BIG EXHIBITION NOT IMPRESSIVE

LIKED PACIFIC COAST

Plainfielders Home After Two Months' Trip to the Coast Relate Interesting Facts—How to Save Money on Trans-Continental Ride.

First-hand impressions of the big Panama-Pacific Exposition, at San Francisco, the San Diego Fair, and California in general, were related today by Henry Dresselt, of Lincoln place, and Chester Galloway, of Netherwood avenue, who returned last night after an eight weeks' trip to the coast. Both men were delighted with California as a State, but were not over enthusiastic in speaking of the big Exposition. It still seems to be far from completion and outside of Japan, China and a few other countries, none of the leading European nations are represented in the international exhibit. Both declared the San Diego exhibition, although on a much smaller scale, to be the more satisfactory of the two from the viewpoint of an Easterner searching for representative displays.

The two Plainfielders took occasion to visit many of the more important cities west of Chicago and had a most enjoyable trip in every way. They visited Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, Los Angeles and other points of interest going out and on the return. They were especially impressed by the great number of automobiles in the Western States, both men making the statement that almost anybody and everybody owned a machine of some sort, all the way from what is known as "Turnpike Vermin" to the highest priced imported European limousines. Jitney buses were also very much in evidence in all the large cities and are so numerous on the Western coast as to make heavy inroads on the receipts of the street railways. The buses carry sightseers and transient passengers everywhere for only five cents. While at the Exposition the Plainfielders gained the idea that there is more money in Kansas farming than in any other industry in the United States, as Kansas wheat growers and their families outnumbered all other State representatives five to one. What is more they all seemed to have plenty of change and spent it readily.

In the course of his conversation with a Daily Press reporter, Mr. Dresselt said that California is a wonderful State and he imbibed a hankering to reside there himself. He made a special trip to Pomona, near Los Angeles, to visit Harry Webb, a former North Plainfield resident who conducted a typewriting store on Somerset street and published the North Plainfield Review. He found Mr. Webb in the same line of business at Pomona and doing well, although Mrs. Webb had been quite ill for a long time. Mr. Webb sent back greetings to his Plainfield friends, but declared that California was the place for him and he was going to remain there. While in San Francisco the Plainfielders stopped at the Y. M. C. A., where they received excellent treatment. Prices in the city are normal despite the influx of sightseers and boarding rates are considered very reasonable. Mr. Dresselt added that Plainfielders wanting to visit the big fair can save money by first purchasing a ticket from here to Chicago and getting another one to the coast in the Windy City. The difference amounts to about fifteen dollars, an item not to be sniffed at in these days of business depression and scarcity of change.

BURIAL OF MRS. FORD.

The body of Harriet Burton Ford, a former Plainfielder, who died at her home in Philadelphia, was brought to this city yesterday afternoon and buried in the family plot in Hillside cemetery. A funeral service was held at the cemetery in charge of Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and was attended by a gathering of local friends and relatives. A number of handsome floral tributes were in evidence.

MRS. VAN MATER TO SPEAK.

The Practical Christianity service will be held at the Waldorf, 134 Crescent avenue, tomorrow afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Sophia Van Mater, of New York, will speak at that time on "The Key to Faith." All interested are cordially invited.

LIGHT SENTENCE FOR "DR." CHESTER BROWN

Local Negro Found Guilty of Practising Medicine Without a License.

Elizabeth, May 1—Practising osteopathy without a license will cost Chester Brown, a Plainfield negro, thirty days in jail. This sentence was meted out to him in Special Sessions Court, yesterday afternoon, sentenced being imposed by Judge James C. Connolly. Assistant Prosecutor Martin P. O'Connor stated to the court that Brown practiced osteopathy since Octobzer, 1914, after the State Board of Medical Examiners had revoked his license because he had obtained it the year previous through false representation as to his training in this profession. He used the title "Doctor of Osteopathy" and "D. O." after his name. His father, wife and child were in court when he was sentenced.

Sentence on Albert Rogers, a negro living in Plainfield, convicted of a serious offense, was postponed for a week on request of his counsel.

SOMERSET COUNTY COURT REFUSES BORO LICENSES

In the Somerset County Court, at Somerville, yesterday morning, the applications for liquor licenses made by Morris Latzko and Charles J. Jensen, of North Plainfield, were refused by Judge Daniel H. Beekman. He aded that he would grant them under no consideration and he gave the applicants an oportunity to drop them at this time, thereby leaving the way open to apply at the next term of court or to drop them entirely. They were accordingly withdrawn.

In a plea to the court, William A. Coddington, of this city, counsel for the applicants, said that discrimination had been shown against North Plainfield in the matter of granting licenses and objected to the fact that certain petitions presented to the court were signed by women. He offered to produce a list of 450 reputable taxpayers who were willing to support the petitioners.

BODY OF W. C. KINNEY BURIED AT E. HARDWICK, VT.

The body of William Chapman Kinney, whose death occurred in Muhlenberg Hospital Tuesday afternoon, was taken yesterday to East Hardwick, Vt., for burial. The funeral service was held at his late home on Arlington avenue, Thursday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Although the obsequies were of a private nature many of Mr. Kinney's friends and business associates were in attendance.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes were set pieces from Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., the Commuters' Club and Muhlenberg Hospital.

AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Plans for the entertainment to be given in the German Reformed church, at Duer street and Craig place, next Tuesday night, have been completed and give promise of providing a delightful evening for those who atended. The recently organized Young People's Society will take an active part and will contribute an "amateur" orchestra that is sure to produce much amusement. A nominal fee is to be charged for admission, and the proceeds will be for the church fund.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE RICKERT.

The funeral of George Rickert, whose death occurred at his home on Fairview avenue, Thursday morning, was held at the late residence last night at 8:30. The service was private, being attended only by relatives, and was conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the Frst Presbyterian church. There were numerous floral tributes from relatives and friends. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery this morning.

JOHN J. MIGDOL.

John J. Migdol, of 650 South Second street, died yesterday afternoon after a long illness. He was thirty-four years old and is survived by a wife and four children. He was a carpenter by trade. The funeral will be held at Casey's undertaking parlors, North and Park avenues, Monday morning at 7:45 and in St. Mary's church at 8:15. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

GAVE RECITAL OF 'THE FORTUNE HUNTER'

Fine Entertainment Given Under the Auspices of Recreation Committee.

An appreciative audience attended the entertainment given by the Public Recreation Committee, last night, in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School. "The Fortune Hunter," interpreted by Miss Lillian Lamson, met the full approval of the audience, the versatile young woman presenting the various characters in a finished style. Her impersonation of "Nat Duncan" and "Sam Graham" was particularly noteworthy, her portrayal of the old characters around the country store and the up-to-date young man could not be improved upon.

During the intermission, Henry C. White, chairman of the Recreation Center, addressed the audience, telling of the work the center is doing in this city, and urged the co-operation of the public. "The most important part of the recreation work is the clear, sane and properly supervised activities that the committee affords," said the speaker. "It was educational and instrumental in the making of good womanhood," continued the speaker, "and while the dances are only one of the activities the center offers, there are a great many others that can be patronized." He urged the public to support the public speaking class, which was conducted Thursday nights in the Stillman School under the supervision of Miss Lillian Lamson, and said that in going through life one of the greatest assets a person could have was the clear and distinct use of the English language.

Miss Mildred Brownlee, assistant to the recreation supervisor, entertained the gathering by a series of classical and interpretative dances. Her impersonation of the "Spanish Dance" was particularly unique. She wore the native costume of a Spanish girl and used the tamborine to perfection. Her rendition of "The Voices of Spring" was artistic, and her freedom of movement and utter abandonment of spirit at the coming of spring were beautifully revealed. She carried apple blossom branches in her arms throughout the dance.

It is quite probable that another recital will be given in the near future, and Miss Lamson will undoubtedly give "The Fortune Hunter" over again or another of her many recitals.

BUSINESS MEN TO HEAR INTERESTING SPEAKERS

Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, and Henry W. Herrman, of this city, will be the speakers at the beefsteak dinner of the Plainfield Business Men's Association, which is to be held at the Ritz on Monday night. A final meeting of the committee was held this morning at President Schwed's office, and the return from the ticket sale was very gratifying. Mr. Salter will tell about the work of the merchants' division of the Trenton civic body, and Mr. Herrman's topic will be "Efficiency." No reservations will be made for seats after 10 o'clock Monday morning, and those who may still wish to purchase tickets can get them by applying to President Herman Schwed, A. E. Force, Daniel Hlick at the Welsh Farms Dairy, Samuel Rothberg, J. L. Bennett, M. C. Van Arsdale, J. H. DeMott, Leslie R. Fort, John D. Johnston and J. J. Varley. There will be a business meeting of the organization at 6 o'clock on Monday night at Schwed's store.

W. E. BARTLE LEASES BUSINESS TO BROTHERS

William E. Bartle, who for some time has been conducting a stone yard at East Second and Church streets has leased the plant to his brothers, Albert and James Bartle, and in the future he will devote his time to his quarries at Washingtonville and Martinsville as well as his farm at the latter place.

For nearly fifty years Mr. Bartle has been engaged in quarrying stone, the quarries at Washingtonville and Martinsville being widely known. The stone yard in this city was opened eighteen years ago. Stone from Mr. Bartle's quarries have been used in the erection of many large buildings including the Babcock building, Mt. St. Mary College and the City National Bank; also the Elizabeth Trust Company, as well as other parts of the State. The new concern will be known as Bartle Brothers' Stone Works. Both Albert and James Bartle have been in the business all their lives and are thoroughly experienced.

WAGE INCREASE TO BE DISCUSSED

Several Bosses Will Confer as Individuals With Carpenters This Afternoon.

AGREEMENT PROBABLE

Two Out-of-town Contractors Ready to Give New Rate if Others Will do So—Trades' Council Takes up Eight-hour Violation.

Owing to the extreme interest in the carpenters' increase situation, practically no business outside of the general discussion of this proposition took place at the regular meeting of the Building Trades Council last night. The carpenters related the circumstances of their request for fifty cents more a day, stating that only a few of the bosses had signified their intention of granting the new rate of $4.50 per day. Where the money is forthcoming the men will return Monday as usual, but they will remain out where it is not given or where the bosses make no statement.

Business Agent William Lunger reported to the council that he had the signatures of two out-of-town contractors to an agreement stating they would cheerfully give the increase provided the local bosses would do the same. A general invitation has been given individually to each local employer to attend the carpenters' meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the proposition will be argued pro and con. It is believed that a large number of them will respond in order to have both sides fully understand merits and demerits of the request. An addition of twenty-five cents will be due each journeyman working today, but if it is not given the carpenters will not protest. While there is not a great amount of new work going on at present, the prospects for a busy season in the near future are very bright, and the concensus of opinion is that an agreement will be arrived at very shortly.

The alleged violation of the State eight-hour law on the North Plainfield sewer contract was again taken up last night. Business Agent Lunger reported that after taking the matter up with Robert Clark, Jr., the latter reported to him the workmen were putting in nine hours a day on the job, but were getting paid at the hourly rate. As this is not in conformity with the State's requirements, the statute stating explicitly that eight hours must constitute a day's work, the matter will be taken up with the Borough Council, and also the proper State authorities. A similar violation of the law took place in Plainfield a short time ago, but was immediately rectified when the conditions were reported to City Engineer A. J. Gavett. In this case the contractor was a local man, and the Trades Council feels that others should be made to do the same as he did.

The proposition regarding the Bound Brook painter, details of which were given in the newspapers a few days ago, was referred to Business Agent Lunger for adjustment.

UNION COUNTY TAX BOARD MEETS FOR REORGANIZATION

The Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes met at Elizabeth this morning for the purpose of reorganization as called for by law. Former Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, who is the only Republican member, was made president, succeeding John J. Collins, of Elizabeth. Mr. Collins was nominated for the position by William A. Coddington, but he declined in favor of Mr. Thompson. John R. Connolly was reappointed secretary.

The Board announced that it would hold a conference with the assessors of the county at Elizabeth on May 7 for the purpose of discussing tax matters in general. President Thompson read a letter from the Hudson County Tax Board in which the Union county organization was asked to express its opinion regarding conferences with the State Board, principally to bring about a uniformity of assessments. A favorable reply is to be sent as the Union County Board has always been agreeable to the proposition.

"BILLY" SUNDAY SERVICE.

Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, will preach at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning on "Trouble and Glory," and in the evening at 7:45 'clock, the service planned for last Sunday, "Echoes of Billy Sunday," will be held. A feature will be the singing of Billy Sunday hwmns. The public is invited.

N. P. H. S. PUPILS GIVE TWO PLAYLETS

Playing to an audience that taxed the seating capacity of Columbus Auditorium, the members of the North Plainfield High School Junior Class scored a big hit in presenting two one-act playlets last night. The sketches, which were full of exciting situations that kept the audience laughing at all times, were entitled "The Mouse Trap" and "A Thief in the House." There were thirteen members in the cast in both plays, and all took their parts well.

In "The Mouse Trap" the female members of the cast stood on chairs, desks, tables and sofas during the entire performance, while Warren Townley, as "Willis Campbell," searched the room for the mouse that could not be found. The plot consisted of an engagement that was broken, a quarrel and a litle mouse. The sketch, of course, ended satisfactorily to both the lovers and the audience. The cast of "A Thief in the House" was composed of all male characters, with John Dawe taking the part of "Aunt Carrie," a colored servant. Oscar Dilts, alias "Jerry Sharp," from New York, the "gentleman burglar," who posed as a detective for the city, nearly made a good haul right in the presence of his friends, but was blocked by the clever work of a Hebrew, this part being taken by LeRoy Adams. Alfred Seidel, as the messenger, was especially good, while Charles Roll and Tom Ball, the former being very much in love, also did themselves credit.

Between the acts, Warren Townley presented Miss Ethel Barnard and Miss Mary Robley, the coaches, with a fountain pen and mahogany tray, respectively, in appreciation of their work in preparing the entertainment. After the performance dancing was enjoyed by a large number until 2 o'clock.

The executive staff follows: Coaches, Misses Mary Robley and Ethel Barnard; business manager, T. M. Ball; advertising managers, T. M. Ball and C. S. Roll; stage managers, Sherman Chandler and Martin McDonough; play committee, Miss Marjorie Burtis, John Dawe and C. S. Roll. The class officers are: John Dawe, president; T. M. Ball, vice-president, and Miss Amelia Brizzie, secretary and treasurer, while the class delegates to the student council are Warren Townley and T. M. Ball.

EPWORTH LEAGUE GIVES A SPRING TIME SOCIAL

The members of the Epworth League of Grave M. E. church held a spring-time social in the church parlors last night. The program consisting of music, recitations and stereopticon views was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Clara VanFleet at the piano, and Dyckman Winckler on the violin, rendered Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." Miss Ellen Schuck, "Billie" Schuck and Miss Elizabeth Wallace, representing three spring beauties, gave recitations.

A shadow act was a feature, those taking part being Miss Grace Clark, Harry Schuck, "Ben" Schuck and Arthur Stewart. Miss Ruth Winckler rendered a piano solo after which Mr. Winckler took the audience on a short spring trip, using lantern slides thrown on a screen. Alfred Thorn entertained by making the audience guess the articles he had in his pockets that related to spring. A contest, in which Rev. C. S. Gillespie and W. J. Conroy, were the oposing leaders, was held to see which side could make the most number of words out of the word "spring-time." The former's side won and was presented with a bunch of violets.

Other games were played during the evening after which refreshments were served. The committee in charge consists of Miss Mary Hoagland, chairman; Mrs. Alfred Thorn, Miss Grace Clark, Miss Florence Brakey, Mrs. Myra Stebbins and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Harden.

SHOEMAKER GUILTY ON ARSON CHARGES

Man Who Caused $15,000 Blaze in Oak Tree Will Be Sentenced Next Friday.

Charged with firing the barns of Eva L. Campbell, at Oak Tree, the night of April 17, William H. Shoemaker was arraigned before Judge Daly in the Middlesex County Court at New Brunswick yesterday and entered a plea of guilty to an indictment, returned by the grand jury Thursday. The assignment included two counts, both charging arson. He was not represented by counsel, and sentence will probably be passed next Friday.

Shoemaker's admission of guilt came as somewhat of a surprise in the courtroom. As told exclusively in this paper, April 19, Shoemaker attempted to prove an alibi to Justice of the Peace Patrick Kaine following his arrest in South Plainfield, steadfastly maintaining that he was innocent. All efforts to shake his claims were futile, and he was committed to New Brunswick jail to await trial. He is alleged to have set fire to a barn containing forty tons of hay and other burnable materials, the flames spreading to four other outbuildings. Damage ectimated at $15,000 was done, the owner carrying but $4,000 insurance.

Suspicion was directed at Shoemaker soon after the fire, and detectives arrested him in a hut near the scene of the conflagration. He is well known in South Plainfield, where he has lived for thirty years, and there were many individuals who believed in his innocence.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR GEORGE YORKE

Constable George Yorke, of Columbia avenue, was given a pleasant surprise party, last night, in honor of his forty-seventh birthday which occurred yesterday. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Yorke and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone, the evening being passed with music, dancing and refreshments. The guest of honor received a number of very handsome presents as mementos of the occasion.

Constable Yorke was born in Northampton, England, but was brought to this country by his parents when only a year old. He spent many years as a resident of Newark, but through his business, that of wholesaling delicatessen supplies he came to Plainfield every other week for many years. He removed here in 1906 and now has more friends locally than many people who have resided here a much longer time. He has been constable of the District Court for several years and has performed his duties in such a creditable manner as to receive the commendation of all the city officials and lawyers.

Mr. Yorke was for six and a half years a member of the regular army of the United States and carries numerous scars as evidence of his participation in the Sioux campaign in 1891. The famous old chief, Sitting Bull, the fierce warrior who started the uprising in the Pine Ridge agency in South Dakota, led a big band of braves against the regular troops. In the battle which followed, Constable Yorke was shot four times, one of the balls smashing his left shoulder blade so that most of it had to be cut away. All the bullets were poisoned and many of the soldiers died from the after effects. The Plainfielder was in the hospital for a long time and was incapacitated for many lines of work. He still bears a plate in his shoulder, inserted by the surgeons to take the place of the bone removed.

CHINA REJECTS JAPAN'S DEMANDS

Reported to Have Given Reply to Japanese Ambassador Today.

GERMANS FIRE 20 MILES

Guns Mounted Behind Lines Shell Dunkirk, Instead of Kaiser's Ships at Sea, as Was First Reported—Many Civilians Killed.

Peking, May, 1—China's final reply to Japan's demand was reported to have been handed to the Japanese ambassador by the Chinese foreign minister this afternoon. According to information from Chinese sources the reply was a flat rejection of the demand insofar as they relate to the virtual surrender of Chinese sovereignity.

Dunkirk, May 1—The bombardment of Dunkirk by the 15-inch guns back of the German lines began Wednesday night at 9 o'clock. The damage done at that time was insignificant. All of the damage and loss of life was done Thursday when the shelling began in the morning and lasted until after noon. The bombardment is believed to have come from huge German naval guns, mounted in the neighborhood east of Nieuport, which is 18 miles east of Dunkirk, making the range of the firing at 20 miles.

Berlin, May 1 (by wireless)—The following statement was given out at German headquarters today:

"Western theatre—All attacks by the enemy on the west bank of the canal northwest of Ypres and on east bank of canal north of Ypres failed yesterday. The fortress of Dunkirk was shelled by our artillery. Three of the enemy's aviators were forced to descend.

"Eastern theatre—The engagements near Szawle, north of Suwalki, resulted successfully for us. The Russians fled after setting fire to the town. One thousand Russians were captured with ten machine guns. Russian attacks east of Plock on the south bank of the Pilica were repulsed. We took 350 Russian prisoners."

"Since last night's communique no change has been reported in the general situation on the front. The shells fell on Dunkirk last evening. There were numerous civilian victims. The communique make no mention of German war vessels."

The report of the capture of the town of Gallipoli on the Sea of Marmora by the allies has not been officially confirmed.

Constantinople, May 1 (via Berlin and Amsterdam)—Land operations by the allies at the Dardanelles have resulted in heavy losses. One report received here today stated that at least 10,000 French and British troops had been killed and wounded. The war office today announced the sinking of several more allied transports, the official statement saying several sailing vessels filled with soldiers were hit by Turkish shells and sunk off Sed El Bahr.

Rome, May 1—Italy has reached no terms with the allies nor signed any treaties with them as cabled to the United States Thursday, according to an article in the Tribuna, which is evidently inspired from official sources.

New York, May 1—William B. Joyce, president of the National Surety Company, estimates that the war supplies purchased in this country will aggregate one billion dollars.

The Cunard liner Lusitania scheduled to sail at 10 o'clock this morning, will not get away until 3 p. m. or possibly later. She has taken on board 190 passengers from the Cameronia of the same line, also due to sail at 10 a. m. This change was caused by notification from England that the government had requisitioned the Cameronia as a troop ship with orders to proceed at once for Halifax.

Continuing their activity in Plainfield, the local Equal Suffrage League, of Plainfield and North Plainfield, have placed an immense banner on West Front street, stretching from the Rothberg building across to the Zeglio building. The banner is in the suffrage colors, yellow and blue, and bears the following inscription, "Votes for Women." "New Jersey Next."

ARMLESS AUTOIST HAS A REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dean, of Prospect avenue, recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stevens and Mr. Dean's sister, Mrs. B. D. Clark, of Schenectady, N. Y., who motored to the borough in Mr. Stevens' car. The interesting fact is that Mr. Stevens, who drove the car all the way, has no arms. He has been driving a car for sometime and has toured extensively. He has driven his car to Washington, D. C., and other points in this country and Canada. He is at present planning a trip across the continent to the Panama Exposition and if arrangements are completed will start the latter part of May. Mr. Stevens is the proprietor of four hotels at Schenectady.

Mr. Stevens recently wrote a letter to an automobile company in which he states many things that will be of interest. This letter is printed in the March issue of an auto publication, and reads in part as follows:

"Twenty-six years ago, when I was a boy of fourteen, I met with a railroad accident by which I lost both of my arms. My right one was taken off close to the shoulder and the left one just below the elbow.

"I do not claim to be a wonder, but I have learned to do many things which, at first, might seem impossible for an armless man to do. I drive horses, feed myself, put on and take off my hat and do many other lesser things to help myself. But what I consider my greatest feat is driving my own car.

"For a long time I though I could have a car fixed so I could handle it. But all my friends and especially my wife, were very opposed to my trying to drive. They predicted all kinds of accidents if I attempted such a thing, but I had confidence in my ability and was determined to try. So last spring I bought a touring car and after having alterations, found I could handle it very well.

"I had the emergency brake lever changed so I can operate it with my foot. I have a foot accelerator to feed the gas; electric lights which I turn on or off with my foot; an electric horn which I blow by pushing a button with the side of my knee; spark lever bent so I can advance or retard the spark with my knee, and I crank the engine with my foot. I have a steel 'U' shaped attachment with clasps on the side of the steering wheel. I place my arm in that and steer very easily. I drive just as steadily and well as most people with two hands and arms, and I think a great deal better than some. I can turn around anywhere and go anywhere anyone else can go.

"At first my friends were afraid to ride with me, but they soon got over that when they saw how well I could handle the car. I got my car on April 11, 1914, and up to December 1 I drove it a little over ten thousand miles.

"My first trip was to New York city and through a part of New Jersey (six hundred miles). On this trip I averaged a little more than twenty-five miles to a gallon of gasolene. My next trip was to the Thousand Islands (four hundred and fifty miles). On this trip I made about twenty-four miles per gallon. My longest trip was to Washington, D. C., (one thousand and forty-four miles). I had several detours and some very rough roads.

"I have been planning a trip to the Panama Exposition this summer. My idea is to start about June 1 and take a light camping outfit, and so have our own hotel with us."

TWIN CALVES.

Walter Blair, who resides on the Bound Brook road at New Market, is the owner of a Guernsey cow which gave birth to two calves last Monday. Both of the offsprings are perfectly normal and healthy and now at the age of five days give indication of thriving. Incidents of twin calves being born and surviving are very rare.

MRS. MARGARET STITES CELEBRATES HER BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Margaret Stites, widow of William H. Stites, quietly celebrated her seventieth birthday at the home of her son, Samuel Stites, on Jefferson avenue, Thursday. Many of Mrs. Stites' relatives and friends dropped in and offered their congratulations during the day.

Mrs. Stites has been a resident of this vicinity for sixty-one years. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McQualter and was born in Claire Morris, County Mayo, Ireland. Her father died when she was three years old. Mrs. McQualter and her family then emigrated to this country, locating in Plainfield. When she was twelve year old Mrs. Stites lost her mother, who died in New Orleans of yellow fever. Mrs. McQualter had only been in New Orleans a short time before she was seized with the dread malady. She had gone there to join another daughter, Mrs. Mary Thompson, who is still living.

Mrs. Stites is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Although she has not been an attendant at any of the services for a number of years she is one of the most respected and highly thought of members of the church.

Mrs. Stites has one daughter and four sons: Mrs. E. J. Hughes, of Greenbrook road; Tax Collector Isaac J. Stites, Frank Stites, of Greenbrook road, and Samuel Stites, of Jefferson avenue.

FIRE COMPANY MEETS.

The monthly meeting of Defender Fire Company was held in the Borough Hall, Thursday evening. Business was purely routine. It had been expected that the matter of electing a chief to succeed the late J. Newton Apgar would be acted upon, but an insufficient number of the members were present to do this.

Willard Gray has returned to his home at Califon after spending four months here the guest of his brother, Alvah Gray, president of the local bank.

PLAINTIFF GETS A VERDICT.

Judge McCann, of Newark, has handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff in the case in which A. L. Barton, formerly of this place, sued William Sandy, of Newark, for damage done to his automobile last fall, when Sady's car ran into it at the junction of Broad street and Springfield road, near Westfield. Mr. Barton, in his suit, swore that Sandy was driving his car on the wrong side of the road at the time the accident occurred. Among his witnesses were Mrs. Raymond Hamley, Mrs. L. T. Churchill and his wife, who were in the car at the time. Mr. Barton sued for $79. It is said that the case will be appealed.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven T. Kennedy have moved from Washington avenue to West Sixth street, Plainfield.

MOVES TO HOPEWELL.

Harry S. Titsworth and family will move to Hopewell on Monday, where Mr. Titsworth will act as manager of a new store to be opened by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company. The store will be stocked on Wednesday and opened on Friday.

James H. Reynolds and family, of Richmond Hill, L. I., are moving today in the Ryan house on First street, vacated by Paul Stryker and family on Wednesday.

William P. Deering, assistant editor of the Weekly Call or the Dunellen Democrat, is a slight sufferer from rheumatism.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Under the auspices of the local Jr. O. U. A. M. the two-act comedy production, "Too Many Husbands," will be produced by the Mt. Pleasant Social Club in Excelsior Hall tonight.

Borough Clerk McAneny has been taking in more money this past week than at any other period since he has held that office and all because of the new dog licenses, which went into effect. Norman Keib, of North avenue, was the first one who asked for a license and got the first two issued for his Cocker Spaniels.

There will be special services at All Saints' Episcopal church tomorrow, to which all are cordially invited. At 11 o'clock there will be a workers' service, all the guilds and organizations of the church attending in a body. Holy Communion will be administered by the rector, who will also give a short address on "Working for God." The different bodies connected with the church, of which there are several very active ones, will review their work during the past year. In the evening at 7:45 Rev. Dr. Harding, the official representative of the General Board of Missions, will give an illustrated lecture on "Mission Heroism." The Sunday-school will convene at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The Bible school of the Baptist church will meet in the lecture room tomorrow morning at 9:30 and at the 10:45 morning service Rev. J. Madison Hare will preach on "Christ's method of Advertising." Immediately following will be the reception of members and the observance of the Lord's memorial. Willard Marston will be in charge of the Young People's service at 7:30 in the lecture room and will use "The Christian's Delight" as the theme of his talk.

Mrs. J. Madison Hare and Mrs. John Z. Hatfield attended the annual convention of the Women's Foreign Mission of New Jersey, which convened at Camden, yesterday, as local delegates.

The weekly meeting of the Lend-a-Hand Society was held in the parlors of the Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Robert E. Marshall will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church at both the morning and evening services tomorrow. At the meeting of the Epworth League the installation of the newly elected officers will probably take place, while the Sunday-school will meet, as usual, in the afternoon.

J. C. Buchanan left today to take up his residence at Atlantic City, where he will direct one of the orchestras in one of the leading hotels.

Miss Alice Kyte, of Martine avenue, has returned from a several weeks' trip to Detroit and other cities in the Great Lakes region.

Edith and James Fancher, of Martine avenue, are spending the week-end with their grandparents in Somerville.

Since Mrs. Robert Thrane, organist at the Episcopal church, is very ill at her home on Paterson road, her place will be filled by Miss Isabelle Hubert, of Westfield, until she recovers.

It is probable that at the next meeting of the board of trustees of the Fanwood Public Library, it will be decided to discontinue the Friday night opening, as the number of patrons does not warrant keeping it open. Librarian Reiner expects to recommend the change, as he says that but few people take advantage of the departure from the regular circulation hours and it is useless expense to keep the thing up.

A meeting of the Borough Board of Health is scheduled for Monday night in the Fanwood firehouse and if it is held, Charles Fernald, appointed a member of the Board at the April meeting of the Council, will probably qualify. There has been no meeting since January and the sewer question as well as other minor matters will come in for considerable discussion.

Mrs. Robert Thrane, of Paterson road, has received word from England that her brother, Noel Morse, who has spent the past two summers with his sister, has entered Kitchener's new army and is drilling preparatory to going to the front and taking part in the war. He is the third member of the family now fighting for England, two brothers having previously joined the colors.

Jack and Joe Baker, of Rahway road, have received news that their father, a resident of Rahway, is in the Elizabeth General Hospital as the result of a stroke of apoplexy and doubts are entertained as to his recovery.

Eugene Martin has returned to the township after a business trip through the Middle West.

Mrs. Wiliam H. Hoar, of Martine avenue, is entertaining Miss Evelyn Clark and mother, of Bath Beach, N. Y.

Mrs. Robert Joy, of East Orange, is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Creezy, of Martine avenue.

South Plainfield.

Services will be held in the Baptist church tomorrow as follows: Bible school at 10 o'clock, followed by worship at 11 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Allen's morning theme will be "God's Care;" Junior Endeavor at 3:30 p. m.; Young People's meeting at 7, followed by evening song service at 7:45 p. m., evening subject will be "Bargaining With Truth."

A social will be held under the auspices of the Barraca class next Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Baptist church. A program of recitations, music and moving pictures will be given and refreshments served to all.

Miss Phoebe Sydam, daughter of Frazee Sydam, of Oak Tree, was married to Edward Snyder, of Flemington last Tuesday afternoon at the home of the groom in Flemington. After a short honeymoon they will reside at Woodbrook Farms, where the groom has just furnished a home for his bride. Mr. Snyder is employed at Woodbrook Farms.

Miss Mary McCaffrey, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton for the past week, has returned home.

Mrs. Frank Sivieter, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Walter Downing, of Brooklyn, returned home yesterday. Mrs. Sivieter was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs Downing, and son, Walter, who expect to spend a week there.

Mrs. J. Swope and daughter, Emma, who have been the guests of Harry Phillips for the past week, returned this morning to their home in Easton.

German Valley. and Chester

Joseph McConnell, of Dover, is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lunger.

Mrs. Antoinette Youngs has returned to her home in Springfield avenue after visiting Miss Mary Dodd, in Newark, for several days.

Westfield.

C. A. Baechtold, of Mountainside, writing from Portland, Ore., where he is on a business trip, reports business booming at that city and good business all through the West.

The Westfield Board of Health has set May 10 to 15 as the clean-up period.

Whitehouse

Many young people gathered at the home of William C. Lane, at Lamington, last night, to attend a sociable under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. C. B. Wortman returned to Pottersville yesterday, after spending the winter in Plainfield.

Manager Alvah A. Conover, of the Lebanon baseball team, has booked the nine representing the Young Men's Welfare League, of Washington, N. J., for the opening game at Lebanon, Saturday, May 15.

The Misses Cora K. Backer, of Plainfield, and Amy Miller, of Newark, returned yeserday after a visit to Charles Backer, at Lebanon.

Henry Agans returned yesterday to Netcong after a visit to his brother, Jasper Agans, at Centerville.

Rev. Charles Gulick, of Dumont, will preach in the Reformed church, at Lebanon, Sunday. After the morning service there will be a special meeting of the consistory to select a date for a congregational meeting to vote for a pastor.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Mrs. Leslie Carter will make her Plainfield debut next Wednesday and Thursday at the U. S. Astor Theatre in a photoplay revival of one of her earliest successes, the war melodrama, "The Heart of Maryland," which she did soon after being taken under the managerial wing of David Belasco. All the old thrills of the piece are contained in the film, together with many new one, which are possible in camera work, but impossible to realize on the restricted stage. The battle scenes have been handled with amazing realism, and both the interior and exterior views throughout the six parts of the picture are artistically treated. After a lapse of so many years it will, indeed, be interesting to se Mrs. Carter in this once celebrated role of "Maryland," and it will be pleasing to find tht she accomplishes its playfor the camera with all of her old-time verve and spirit. The thrilling episode in which she clings to a bell-clapper, and swings far out from a tower, is more wonderful on the screen than it was on the stage, even with the original Belasco realism, and the "curfew shall not ring" business is most exciting. Mrs. Carter has the advantage of an unusually good supporting company, all the members of which have been well directed by the producer, H. Brenon. There is no doubt about the appeal of this strong melodrama. "A Man's Prerogative" will be shown Monday. Miss Olga Petrova will appear Monday and Tuesday in "The Heart of a Painted Woman," and Charles Chaplin will furnish the comic relief Monday and Tuesday.

MASTER PAINTERS TO MEET.

The Master Painters' Union will hold a meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock in Building Trades Council rooms. It is urged that all the members be present.

This is the First "Last-Minute" White Sale in Wanamaker History

This particular Summer Sale of White had to be a last-minute affair. The marvel is that we truly can call it our best White Sale.

The widening silhouette of 1915 became authoritative in March when Callot declared for the 12 yard skirt.

On the next steamer from Paris came the Wanamaker representative with all the originations of the rue de la Paix safely packed away in her trunk.

But everything is not simplicity and brides will find many charming lacy gowns at $45.75.

Our workrooms were cleared for action. Scores of expert designers were ready to copy, adapt, measure, modify—the French models.

In the space of thirty days it seems as though actual miracles have been accomplished.

Some fifty or so shipments have been coming in every day for the past week.

Underclothes of Very New Materials

Satin striped voile will prove itself a favorite because it is sheer, but not transparent; cool, but not delicate; strong, but not heavy.

Striped flaxon is introduced in a whole series of garments. It is a perfect Summer material, and wears better than dimity.

Nainsook, batiste, cotton crepe, Berkeley cambric, crepe de chine, Georgette crepe, are also in these specially priced White Sale underclothes.

New Movement Toward Simplicity

Paris has other things to think about than the laundering of milady's lingerie. Therefore, in addition to the lace-trimmed and embroidered styles, the makers have created charmingly simple garments for every day wear.

It is a simplicity that suggests exquisite needlework. The edges are finished with picot stitching. Ribbons are used like butterflies, an occasional one here or there to give a bit of color. Tiny pin pleats suggest more hand-work. Materials are soft and beautiful in their dainty sheerness.

30 Blouse Styles Copied from New Paris Models

Some of their many new features are the wider armholes, a different kind of awning stripe, the eton-like collar of soft linen, the later developments of side and double frills, the buttoned over yoke, neckties that fasten in the back, high collars which are low in front.

Underclothes Prices

Novelty nightgowns, $1 to $25.
Wide petticoats, $1 to $25.
Circular drawers, 50c to $2.50.
New corset covers, 50c to $3.
Flaring combinations, $1 to $7.50.
Wider envelope chemises, $1 to $5.

Swirling foamy masses of tulle with scallops around the edge and lace-trimmed are a Paris version of the wide skirt. $5.75.

Blouse Prices

Copies of French models, $2 to $9.50.
Linen shirtwaists, $2, $3, $4.50 and $5.
Sash blouses, $2. Handkerchief blouses, $2.
Exceptional lace and chiffon blouses, $3.50.
Nagasaki silk blouses, $2.85.
Organdie blouses, $3 and $3.50.
Crepe de chine blouses, $5 and $6.75.
Georgette crepe blouses, $5

White Sale of Linens Opens With 12,000 Towels, $3 and $3.60 a Dozen

Easy to call them the best towels in the city at the price because towels at $3 and $3.60 a dozen are so scarce that they hardly are to be had anywhere.

These come from the country which makes the best medium grade towels in the world.

They were originally woven for importers throughout the United States. When it came time for delivery it was found the quantities ordered by each importer were incomplete.

The manufacturer's agent hesitated to ship them to their original destinations, therefore, the Wanamaker linen chief was able to secure the entire quantity to offer in this sale.

"You say you are going to sell them at $3 a dozen?" queried an importer who saw the $3 towels come in.

"Yes," we said.

"Why at $3 I could sell the entire lot wholesale!" said he.

And the $3.60 qualities are equally exceptional.

Fine French Washable Gloves, $1.15

A White Sale in the Glove Shop

Just over from France come these gloves of very finest French doeskin. They are the choice of all summer gloves. Exquisite, describes them.

Pure white—pique sewn—very beautiful with two large pearl buttons. They are guaranteed washable.

Many women will wish to choose them by the dozen pairs, for we cannot possibly duplicate them later.

Even when the glove industries are normal such a quality as this would sell at $1.50 or more.

But this last shipment we could get is offered at $1.15 pair.

Main floor, Old Building.

FOREIGN MISSION SOCIETY TO HOLD ANNIVERSARY

The forty-first anniversary of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed church in America will be held on Tuesday, May 11, in the First church of New Brunswick. The morning and afternoon services will begin at 11 o'clock and 2 o'clock, respectively.

Mrs. George Sherwood Eddy, missionary to China, who is home on a furlough, will address the meeting on the "Recent Evangelistic Campaign in China." Mrs. Eddy is an unusually interesting speaker, and is ably qualified to speak on the subject, having spent may years in that country working with her husband in the Christian uplift of the people. Among the other speakers for the occasion are: Miss Jean Kenyon Mackenzie, lately a missionary in Africa; Dr. Ida S. Scudder, of the Mary Taber Schell Hospital, Vellore, India; Miss Bessie M. Ogsbury, of the Amoy Mission, China, and Miss Hiwali, a young woman from India, who will speak in her native costume.

A cordial invitation is extended to the many friends of missions to attend what promises to be a day full of interest and profit.

—Hundreds are thinking as much about the inevitable home-hunt as about the great war. Let your "To Let" advertising help them.

WHAT IS A NORMAL CHILD?

There is a law on the statute books of New Jersey, passed a few years ago, which provides that all children in the public schools who are three years below the normal shall be segregated in special classes. In a way, this is a progressive law and New Jersey is ahead of other states in legally recognizing the need of some special education for such children.

In practice, however, this law fails to do full justice to the situation.

Primarily, this law does not explain what constitutes a normal child, and yet, a satisfactory conception of what constitutes a normal child is necessary to determine who can be judged to fall below that level. It has been left to the State Board of Education and to the State Commissioner of Education to interpret the wording and to make the law's provisions operative.

It was therefoe thought that the first practical step was to determine, by an extended school survey, which of the pupils were over age in the school grades. This presupposes, however, that there is a normal age for every school grade. If we assume, for instance, that the normal entrance age in the first grade is six years, it means that the normal age for the second grade is from seven to eight, in the third from eight to nine, etc. On this basis a child would normally graduate from the grammar school at the age of fourteen.

If a boy of ten and a half years, who thus ought to be normally in the fifth grade, is found to be still in the second, he is called three years below normal, or three years over-age.

It was soon found that such a distinction is too rigid and that there are causes which may work for retardation without putting the stamp of sub-normality upon a child. Therefore, the Commissioner of Education distinguished three classes of retarded children.

Class A consists of foreign born children who do not know the English language, and for whom ungraded schools should be established where the requirements for promotion are liberal and elastic. This class, furthermore, includes children who have entered school late or who have been irregular in attendance. These need special coaching work and cannot be called sub-normal. Another group in this class is that of physical defectives with removable handicaps to whom a thorough method of medical inspection will bring relief.

Class B is composed of the so-called incorrigibles—children who are retarded from lack of good will and who are habitually lawless. For these the Commissioner suggests special schools where a course of instruction modified to meet their interests may be established. This provision is distinctly helpful as many of the so-called incorrigible children are really perfectly tractable and are simply under emotional strain in a school environment which is not adapted to their needs. This group offers a most fascinating field for study. Whenever I meet a "bad boy" I am impelled to reach out to him and take him by the hand. I feel that here we have a boy with misdirected power which may be utilized for good—an unfortunate who is at odds with himself and with his environment. Yet, there may lie slumbering in him a tremendous force for constructive activity. This force, unless trained in the right channel, may explode destructively, leading the child to delinquency and crime. In most cases he is potentially normal, but must have opportunity to become socialized.

Class C, according to the Commissioner's grouping, consists of the mentally sub-normal. The Commissioner admits that "the study so far given to this class of children has disclosed the subtlety and difficulty of the educational problems that they involve." Fully realizing this situation I therefore raise the precedent question: "What is a normal child?" Until it is clearer to us how to answer that question, we are in serious danger of doing a great injustice to this class of children more particularly.

The mere fact of school retardation means nothing. The standards of school work are artificial and are based upon a vocational selection. Vocational—yes. For the ordinary school curriculum is founded on the scholastic tradition of the middle ages when schools were for the education of the clergy and the learned professions. To be a "scribe," that is to say, to be able to read and write, was a special calling. The mass of the people as well as their active leaders—the kings, the nobles, the builders and the doers—were innocent of the arts of the scribe. They could not even write their names and usually made three crosses in place of them, even on state documents. To this day we speak of "signing" our names and of giving our "signature" when we really write. Yet, the work of the world has ever been done by the doers, not by the scribes.

When education was popularized many years ago, the same standards were retained that had been employed in the schools founded for such professional training. The fact that public education was to serve an entirely different purpose scarcely dawned upon the "humanistic" reformers. Only now do we begin to realize that reading, writing and arithmetic are not all there is of education; that a man can be educated and successful in life without being a good speller, a fluent reader, or an expert at figures. A friend of mine in New York who is an excellent business man, managing a large concern, has always been woefully deficient in number work. Columns of figures appall him. When I asked him how, under the circumstances, he could be so successful in business, he smiled and said: "Why should I trouble myself with my accounts when I can hire a good bookkeeper for $60 a month?" Here we have the revival of the "scribe" in another form; my friend was the "doer;" his bookkeeper was the "scholar."

School education as at present understood, with its bookishness and one-sidedness, does not appeal to all children. In fact, the great mass of people is more work-minded than book-minded. I choose the word "work-minded" in preference to "hand-minded," because the latter word is oftentimes used to designate a type of mind which is less intellectual than that of the "book-minded" person. But a book-minded person may in reality be much more stupid than a work-minded one. Our artisans and farmers not infrequently have deep and wonderful thoughts of their own, while our learned professors may lose themselves in abstruse notions and artificial distinctions. Is a good blacksmith sub-normal in comparison with a physician? Perhaps he could not become a good physician, but he does make an excellent blacksmith. Does the university standard determine normality of mind? There is a trite saying that we have many a bad doctor who ought to have been a blacksmith; and many a bad blacksmith who might have been a good doctor. This does not indicate a difference in normality, or a comparison of an inferior and a superior type. It simply indicates difference in type.

Dr. Claxton, the U. S. Commissioner of Education, in his address on the occasion of the opening of our "Educational Clinic," spoke of the "distinguished dunces." He meant those famous men who appeared to be dunces when they were at school. Owing to the artificial standards of school education, they were scholastic failures. Their teachers pronounced them incapable of amounting to anything in after-life. But the names of these teachers are forgotten while the names of the "illustrious dunces," like Daniel Webster, Henry Ward Beecher, Friedrich Froebel, Volta, Burns, Balzac, Thomas Edison and Walter Scott, will forever be honored and revered in spite of the fact that they were "dullards" in youth.

And there is even another side to this problem. Sixty years ago an Englishman, by the name of Carter, wrote a pamphlet on "the artificial production of stupidity in schools." Professor R. Thomas E. Shields, of the Catholic University in Washington, has written a book on the "Making and Unmaking of the Dullard." Both refer to the results of faulty methods of teaching. Often it is just the bright boy or girl who suffers from this cause. The mere conforming child, even with little brain power, can perhaps survive just any kind of training.

To show how complex the problem of some children is, I will quote a case from the records of our Educational Clinic. The case of this boy of fourteen was reported to me from a neighboring town with the explanation that he had been in the same primary grade for five years. "This boy has a most decided handicap in his greatly impaired vision which the glasses he wears do not really correct. In addition, he is deaf in his left ear and the hearing in his right ear is diminished. These two defects alone help to explain his failure in the ordinary school where no attention can be paid to them. Whether the shortness of his visual and auditory memory and his practical illiteracy are due only to these two defects, or also to the fracture at the base of skull and the consequent inflammation of brain which he suffered when a child of two or three years, is doubtful. Of course there is a chance of a brain lesion having occurred at that time.

"He is certainly very backward in everything that refers to the use of words. His spelling is wretched owing to his lack of phonetic concept. His visual imagination is poor. A picture story means little to him, while he can count he cannot construct numbers on the abacus. In contrast to this is his quickness in identifying and adding figures with dice.

"On the other hand, to everything that implies action he responds well and shows good retention. He can carry out nine directions given simultaneously without a single break. Out of school his life is full of dramatic interest and active work. He has made his father's barn into a club house where he inspires his companions to play cowboys and Indians, where they have a moving picture machine, etc. He helps his mother and does all kinds of work around the house. To have been kept in the same primary grade (third) for five years without proper attention to his special defects must have killed all his interest in school work. He had no incentive. His interests therefore centerd on the out-of-school occupations where his energies had some outlet. Neither his teachers nor his parents seem to have known the real boy well enough to appreciate his needs."

It is true that other criteria than the mere retardation in school work are suggested by the State Commissioner of Education to determine sub-normality. One of these is an application of the so-called intelligence tests developed by the French psychologist, Professor Binet. My own work with these tests shows how misleading their results are. Mr. Alexander Johnson, of Vineland, N. J., (where these tests are widely used) admitted during his recent visit to our Clinic that they are a rather rough method of testing, and are of greatest service only in determining different types of feeble-mindedness. He does not ascribe much value to them for children whose mentality goes beyond that of a normal child of ten. As a matter of fact, the special classes which have been established in a number of places under this New Jersey law, contain a goodly contingency of feeble-minded and truly mentally defective children who ought not be in such classes at all, but for whom custodial care should be provided. This custodial care, by the way, can be shown to be not only more effective, but also much less expensive.

Another attempt made by the Commissioner to define sub-normality is to call attention to a "description" given by the heads of the Vineland "Training School" for the Feeble-Minded, of what they consider "mentally sub-normal" children. These, they think, exhibit certain common characteristics. Space forbids quotations and discussion of this description here. But a closer analysis will convince the careful reader of its contradictions, vagueness and ambiguity. Much of what is put down as characteristic of sub-normal development may be the effect of many other causes. It may even fit any ordinary child at certain stages of his development and of his school life.

We are therefore still very much in the dark as to what standard we should apply in carrying out the provisions of this law which otherwise might be very beneficial. The State Commissioner has done a great preliminary work in his efforts to interpret the law and to make it operative. But much further study is necessary before we can answer with any amount of certainty the question: "What is a normal child?" And only then can we consider the question: "What is a sub-normal child?"

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the Twenty-sixth day of April, A. D. 1915, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Charles C. Randolph, Elias H. Bird and John Abbott, the commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to widen East Second Street from the northeasterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the southwesterly side line of Church Street," approved December 7th, 1914, and the resolution of the Common Council in the premises, adopted April 5th, 1915, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises, and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinance and said resolution and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be widened to extend from the northeasterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the southwesterly side line of Church Street, the center and side lines of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map therein referred to, and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Map showing proposed laying out and widening of East Second Street from Watchung Avenue to a point 225 feet northeasterly of the center of Washington Street, June, 1914."

The land to be taken for the widening of said East Second Street on the northwesterly side of the same from the northeasterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the southwesterly side line of Church Street, includes all that part of the property now or formerly of The Home Real Estate Company, William A. Woodruff, Charles M. Raybert and John H. Borman, which lies between the present northwesterly side line of said street as now laid out and opened, and a line parallel with the center line of said street as established by this ordinance and distant therefrom twenty-five (25) feet in a northwesterly direction.

The land to be taken for the widening of said East Second Street on the southeasterly side of the same from the northeasterly side line of Watchung Avenue to the southwesterly side line of Church Street, includes all that part of the property now or formerly of the United States of America, the Plainfield Milk and Cream Company, The Trustees of the Rahway and Plainfield Monthly Meeting of Friends and Joseph C. Allen, which lies between the present southeasterly side line of said street as now laid out and opened and a line parallel with the center line of said street as established by this ordinance, and distant therefrom twenty-five (25) feet in a southeasterly direction, as shown on said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for a more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

MANY ENJOY PARENT-TEACHER ASS'N DANCE

The dance held in the Irving School last night under the auspices of the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teacher Association, was a great success, about one hundred and twenty-five persons being in attendance. Excellent music was furnished by Glover and Dunham. The hall was attractively decorated with spring blossoms.

During the evening refreshments were served by a committee of which Mrs. John Dunn was chairman. Mrs. A. E. Force, chairman of the entertainment committee of the association, was the general chairman of the affair. Mrs. Juan A. Babcock is president of the association.

TEMPERATURE REPORT.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 50 degrees; 11 a. m., 50 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 52 degrees.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The following extracts from a letter to the Editor of the Philadelphia Ledger are worth careful reading. Want of space forbids inserting the whole letter.:

Cold Logic Applied to "Inalienable Rights."

Editor, Philadelphia Public Ledger:

Sir—In an editorial in the Public Ledger of March 23 you assume that women have the same inherent, inalienable rights as men. You say that equal franchise rests its claim upon this assumption; you assert that the franchise is not the concession of a privilege, but the exercise of a right that is inseparable from citizenship.

With your assumption that women have the same inherent rights as men everyone will be in accord, but that woman suffrage rests its claim upon this assumption does not make the claim valid. Life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness—these are inherent rights; to these women, as well as men, have an inalienable right. The franchise is not an inherent right; it is a government expedient. Pushed to its logical extreme, the doctrine that the suffrage is an inherent right would give the vote to the Indian and the defective; it could not be refused to the Chinese and the Japanese resident among us. They, too, have inherent rights.

Nor does citizenship rest upon the exercise of the franchise. The fact that I do not possess a vote in no way affects my status as a citizeen or my right to the protection my country affords or should afford to its citizens. Do you deny to my kinswoman in Paris at the present time the right to say, "I am an American citizen," because she does not vote? To my friends in Serbia and Russia the rights to whatever protection their country's flag may afford because they do not vote? The franchise is a governmental expedient, not an inherent right nor an indispensable qualification of citizenship.

The question to be decided by the voters next autumn must not rest on irrelevant assumptions nor on arguments drawn from alien conditions. It must be clearly and sharply defined. Women may vote in Finland, may be under legal disqualification in England, may have become aware of themselves in the Latin countries. These are interesting facts, but they have slight bearing on the question at issue here.

Is it expedient in this country, in this State, at this time, to extend the suffrage to a large new class of voters, indiscriminated by any qualification other than of sex? This is the vital question. Popular government on the vast scale on which it is being tried in this country is still experimental. This is the fundamental assumption. If we are to ful our trust to the future, and measure involving so sweeping a change as the doubling of the electorate must fully justify itself; it must be considered primarily as a measure of public polity, with reference to its value and the price we must pay for it, and only secondarily as a piece of class legislation should we consider the advantage or disadvantage the possesion of the franchise would be to the possible voter.

Three chief lines of thinking are suggested by your editorial. First, that women who are property holders are under disqualification without the vote. I have been a property holder and taxpayer for years, and the fact that I have no vote has never placed me at a disadvantage. My property has received the protection of the State, and has been subject to no discrimination in the amount of tax paid for that protection. The State, in the large sense of the word, takes cognizance simply of the fact of ownership, not of the individuality of the owner. My financial agent, who has a vote, is subject to inconvenience, annoyance and financial loss at present, because, by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, the State can by law do what no individual would be permited to do.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

You assure us that "there are profound reasons for believing that the enfranchisement of women will bring a new a truer sense of civic responsibility * * * to the Commonwealth." Will you tell us what they are? In the struggle of life it is the individual that counts. There are undeniably women "in the possession of every qualification for sharing the responsibilities of government possessed by men," but the question to be decided upon next autumn is not as to the qualification of every woman for voting, but the effect of the universal enfranchisement of women. Every law of probability leads one to the conclusion that the irresponsible, the illiterate, the venal, the absentee vote would outnumber that of the "saving remnant." Illinois gave the vote to Jane Addams, but it also gave it to Mrs. Blazi, who secured the registration of 500 women, and is said to have delivered 300 votes for "Bathhouse John" Coghlin. Human nature is human nature in women as in men.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

But the ultimate argumet, you say, is that women have a right to the franchise. Upon what is their right based? The franchise is a measure of governmental policy; it is not an inferred upon women by law, therefore they have no claim to it as a legal right. Two associations formed for the purpose of furthering the agitation for the immediate universal enfranchisement of women have qualified their title by the term "equal;" "the Equal Franchise Society" and the "National College Equal Franchise Association," assuming thereby, apparently as a logical conclusion, that because men vote, women should vote. But implicit in the name is a fallacy. The logic breaks down on close scrutiny.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Women have neither an inherent nor a legal right to the franchise. Their immediate universal enfranchisement in this country, in this State, is inexpedient. We ask the votes of the Commonwealth to defeat the measure proposing it. W.

WILL DELIVER FIFTH DISCOURSE IN SERIES

At the First Baptist church tomorrow evening, the pastor, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, wil deliver his fifth discourse in the series "Through the Year with Bards and Bible," this particular sermon being, as the month indicates, upon May and its significance and suggestion.

The poems in this sermon will be especially beautiful and the entire discourse, Dr. Strong believes, even more helpful as well as pleasing to lovers of poetry and nature than any that have preceded it. Among the selections which he will recite are poems or extracts from the English poets, Edward Capern and William Wilsey Martin, and the American poets, Ina Donna Coolbrith, Will Carleton and William Cullen Bryant.

ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT.

William J. Trembath, of Chatham street, the borough, who for several years was the secretary of the New Jersey Association for Poultry Improvement, but recently resigned that office, was Wednesday evening elected vice-prsident of the New Jersey Fanciers' Association. The latter organization has its headquarters at Somerville, where the annual meeting was held Wednesday. Mr. Thomas, of Somerville, was elected president of the association.

COREMAKERS LAID OFF.

A number of the coremakers who have been employed at the local shops of the Niles Bement Pond Company during the past few months, while the shop has been rushed beyond its capacity, and running both day and night shifts of men, have been temporarily laid off, as they have run ahead of the foundry in their work. It is believed, however, that they will be placed at work again in the near future.

CLAM CHOWDER SUPPER.

The Women's Relief Corps held a successful clam chowder supper at Reform Hall last night. About one hundred and twenty-five suppers were served and the organization realized a considerable sum. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. E. P. T. Smith, Mrs. Ada T. England, Mrs. A. Townley, Mrs. Mary E. Kithcell and Mrs. Brewin.

WANT SPRING FLOWERS.

The Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild requests its friends to gather wild and early spring flowers and bring them to the W. C. T. U. rooms, Monday afternoon, between 4 and 6 o'clock, and Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30 o'clock, so that the guild may carry brightness and cheer to the sick and "shut-ins" of Plainfield.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE.

Under the auspices of the Young People a special service will be held at Warren chapel tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, at which time Alfred C. Estes, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will make an address. This will be the first public appearance of Mr. Estes since he came to Plainfield recently.

COMPANY K TESTS.

Five members of Company K took the annual qualification tests at the Armory last night. They were Privates Wyckoff, Driko, Becker, Milwater and Wahlig. All of the members of the company have now taken the tests and all passed with creditable records.

I. O. R. M. CONVENTION.

The State Convention of the Independent Order of Red Men will be held at Paterson on Thursday and Friday of next week. Daniel Mundy, of Woodland avenue, will represent Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118 of this city, as the official delegate.

LECTURE POSTPONED.

Owing to the illness of the lecturer, the lecture on "The Making of a Magazine" will not be given before the Monday Afternoon Clut at its meeting next Monday. A subs[illegible] program will be provided and the lecture will probably be given later.

PERSONAL.

Robert Kelley and family, of Webster place, have removed to 100 Summit avenue, the borough.

Mrs. Frederic L. Greene, of West Fifth street, is confined to her home with illness.

will give a brief series of addresses in which the PROMINENT DOCTRINES OF "PASTOR RUSSELL" Will be considered in the light of the Word of God.

The following subjects are announced, beginning next

Sunday Eve., 7:30 o'clock

1. Jesus Christ, Who Was He and Who Is He?
2. Man, Who and What Is He?
3. Is There Probation After Death?
4. Are the Finally Impenitent Annihilated?

These addresses will be a presentation of BIBLE TRUTH, rather than an assault on error or a personal attack.

Each address will embody an earnest and forceful unfolding of the precious GOSPEL OF GOD.

We cordially invite all Christians and those who have accepted or are inclined to accept the doctrines referred to, and the public generally.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Plainfield comes to the fore in another branch of sport this afternoon. Joe Jackson, a local boy, will drive a Correja special in the A. A. A. meet at Newark. As a racing driver the localite has no peer on the half-mile saucer and during last season he was beaten but twice in nine races. This is a record held by few, if any, of the racing pilots and it's a safe bet that some of his Queen City admirers will be at the track this afternoon to get a line on him.

Trenton's victory over Plainfield High in baseball Thursday afternoon should have been taken as somewhat of an ill omen by the Ninth street rooters. The Trentonians do not happen to be the classiest bunch of ball-tossers playing in State schoolboy circles and letting them get away with a 2 to 0 scalp doesn't reflect any credit on the ability of the red and blue youngsters as diamond elites.

Someone has suggested that the Columbus Club keep its basketball net up all summer. Now we'd like to know whose going to furnish the refrigerating plant to go along with it. In our opinion it's high time to turn basketball nets into "hock."

Britt Martin's Plainfeds are about as formidable a bunch of ball-tossers as we have had around this burg in several seasons. One thing is certain, and that's the fact that we're going to have a team with enough kick in it to do the Queen City credit on the diamond this summer.

If some good natured bug doesn't come along and start an agitation for a marathon race in Plainfield pretty soon this bunch of toddlers who are indulging in midnight running rehearsals will become discouraged. Judging from appearances these road warmers could run a hundred miles without suffering any ill effects. (But it all depends on how long the miles are).

Still we have a slight suspicion that if some of the exercise enthusiasts would devote their energy to something a little more remunerative than rehearsing a certain dining parlor wouldn't be called upon to deal out so many minor meals consisting of "ham and" at ten per slide.

At least one of the newly organized club teams in this city looks as though it would create a little interest this summer and that's the T. A. B. nine. You've got to hand it to some one for the calibre of talent lined up by the Abstainers don't be surprised if you see them waving a challenge for the city title when September rolls around.

North Plainfield High School girls are going to make their own graduation dresses, according to reports. Why not put the boys to work making their own baseball suits, inasmuch as one of the male students was proficient enough in domestic science to cop a prize for bread making.

Speaking of bread making, why not create an interscholastic competition in this indoor sport. "Slinging the dough" is something every future American ought to know something about.

Says a High School feminine correspondent in a tennis story: "Spalding's balls and racquets will be used by the school team and it is expected that some very nice exhibitions will be presented to the fond admirers of pretty girls and ladylike sport." She's a regular "back to Noah Webster Mrs. Horace Greeley."

SPORTING NOTES

The Frisco sprinters will hold a unique race tomorrow. It is a handicap event, three and a half miles, to the top of Mount Tamalpais.

A big event in the South today is the dual track meet between Tulane and Louisiana State College at Baton Rouge.

Pruning day has arrived in the baseball leagues. Several hundred grips will be packed in the National and American Leagues alone.

The $2,000 awarded Jack Pfiester, former Cub pitcher, in his suit against the telegraph company that failed to deliver a telegraphic offer from Hugh Duffy, hardly heals his feelings.

The hunt club racing season opens today at Hewlett Bay Park, on Long Island. Next Saturday the Meadowbrook steeplechasers hold their annual event.

Panama-Pacific polo ends today. The sport has found many enthusiasts in the West.

The Eastern thoroughbred season shifts today to Pimlico. The Lexington meet closes Wednesday night.

N. P. H. S. VS. H. B. H S. SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY

The North Plainfield High School baseball team will play the High Bridge High School aggregation on Hyde Oval Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The borough boys still have sad remembrances of defeats handed out by High Bridge last season and will be out for revenge. Stahl will work for the locals, and Dorland, the midget player of the High Bridge team, will oppose him.

B. J. Phelps, formerly of the borough, will accompany his team here.

DANIELS, BUTLER AND CRAIG ARE WINNERS

Park Club Ten-pin Competition on Borough Alleys Last Night.

E. M. Daniels, 2d, Warren Butler and J. H. Craig were the point winners in the Park Club handicap ten-pin competition held on the club alleys last night. All of the winners made good scores, Daniels getting a total of 586. He had a handicap of 12 each game, and in the third game rolled for a 214, the highest of the night.

Butler's handicap was 23 per game, and with a net count of 477, he made a total score of 536, six pins ahead of Craig, who was credited with the six points. His score was 530. Last night marked the end of the bowling season at the club. The scores of last night's play follow:

E. M. Daniels, 2nd	172-12	184

TOMMY MULLIN TO PLAY SATURDAY BALL

Local Diamond Star Will go to Washington (N. J.) to Perform.

As was stated several days ago in these columns, Tommy Mullin, of this city, has decided to accept a position with the Washington, N. J., team to play every Saturday this summer. Mullin is at present coaching the North Plainfield High School baseball team, and it was first rumored that he would throw up this job altogether, but he has decided to see the borough team through the season, with a hope of repeating last year's record, and will work with them five days a week.

In discussing the matter Mullin said: "If I wait until the latter part of June or the first of July to try for a position there will be small chance of my getting with a good team. Now I have a good offer to play with the Washington Club all season, and I have to live." Tommy will be at Hyde Oval every day but Saturdays.

Besides playing Saturday ball, Mullin has also signed up to play with the Franklins, of Perth Amboy, every Sunday. He starts with them tomorrow.

N. P. JUNIORS WON.

The North Plainfield Juniors defeated the Silver Stars on Hope Common, this morning, by a score of 20 to 5.

START NEW SETTLEMENT.

New Brunswick, May 1—The anarchists of New York and New Jersey opened today a 69-acre tract in Stelton to settlement by members of their political order. The new settlement will be governed by the ideas of the anarchists, and entirely separated from the Socialist colony already established at Stelton. According to Harry Kelly, chairman of the Ferrer settlement in New York, the main object is to produce genuine anarchists by rearing children in a thoroughly anarchistic atmosphere.

WARREN BUTLER THE PARK CLUB'S CHAMP

Will Receive Silver Trophy for Superior Work on Alleys.

At the close of the ten-pin competition held at the Park Club last night, F. Warren Butler was declared the winner of the tourney, which has been running all winter, and also the winner of the silver trophy which went with the championship. Butler has led the members of the tourney nearly all season, and by annexing two points last night, finished four points ahead of his nearest rival, C. D. Boice.

Butler has taken part in eighteen games and made a total of eighteen points for the season. Boice participated in as many games, but could only total fourteen points. Dudley S. Strong was third, with nine points in twelve games. For second prize, Boice received a silver cigar and ash tray, while Strong was given a sterling silver cigarette humidor. C. A. Boice was the winner of the regular monthly prize, getting a box of cigars, and Edwin M. Daniels also received a box of cigars for the evening prize.

The final standings of the players follow:

HOLY NAME CADETS LEAD THE WAY IN FIRST GAME

The recently organized Holy Name Cadets opened their 1915 baseball season, yesterday, on Hope Common. The encounter resulted in a victory for the society boys, the defeated team being the renowned and by no means inferior West End A. C. The game was a very interesting one, although the Cadets clouted the pill whenever they took a notion to do so. It was not thus with the West End lads who, although they hit heavily, were unable to bunch their bingles and advance the men on the bags.

Brandt, Holly and McCarthy wielded the willow most effectively for the West End A. C., and fielded most brilliantly also. The Cadets played an even game throughout the whole nine frames and the fact that their coach, Gallagher, used fifteen men, did not reduce in any way, their fighting strength.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's Theatre will present on Tuesday the first serial of the big motion picture attraction, "The Diamond from the Sky." This is a $20,000 prize photoplay selected from 19,846 scenarios submitted in the Chicago Tribune $10,000 contest for the best known story of the year and it is more absorbing and more gripping than any screen production seen this year. Another $10,000 is being offered for the best suggestion for a sequel to this picture and the patrons of the popular West Front street house will have a chance to compete in this grand offer. The answer need not be in literary style, but just a mere suggestion may win the prize. Further particulars of this contest will be announced later. "The Diamond from the Sky" will include a star cast. Lottie Pickford, the younger sister of the famous Mary Pickford, and who is one of the sweetest and daintiest of motion picture actresses, plays the leading role. Her smiling eyes and beautiful curls make her an idol of the movie fan. In the heroine's role in the gripping picture she is seen at her best, and one glimpse of her in the character prompts one to see the next installment. Irving Cummings is the leading man and no present day screen actor is his equal in this vigorous masculine role of the hero. The forceful ability of these stars, Lottie Pickford and Irving Cummings, and their magnetic personalities will hold audiences spellbound. The work of William Russell, who plays a strong dramatic part, could not be surpassed. Charlotte Burton plays the bold adventuress and her success in this new role eclipses everything she has ever done. George Periolat, the famous character actor, plays the part of the gypsy, a difficult part that calls for the extraordinary ability which George Periolat has. This great American picture is produced by John R. Freuler and S. S. Hutchinson, of the North American Film Corporation. With such men as these, men who know the public and what the public wants, and whose words are accepted as Gospel throughout the film world, the success of this picturized novel of romance is assured. The story of "The Diamond from the Sky" will appear in five hundred newspapers throughout the country simultaneously with the release of each chapter of the film version. The first chapter of this serial will appear at Proctor's Theatre, Tuesday, and will continue thereafter until the end of the serial. Read the story in the newspapers and keep track of this wonderful production.

WILL PRESENT MEDALS TO BASKETBALL TEAM

The committee in charge of the euchre and "500" which is to be given in the basement of St. Joseph's church, Monday night, reports arrangements to be progressing very favorably. Mrs. Edward Ryan, chairman of the general committee, is highly enthusiastic about the outcome, the affair being the event of the opening of the basement of the church after much renovation. Following the play, refreshments will be served and music will be provided by Paroubek's orchestra.

A feature of the evening will be the presentation of the medals to the members of the basketball team. The following members will receive the trophies: Martin McDonough, Daniel Denny, Albert Brynairski, Joseph Carty, Harry Moulton and Andrew McDonough.

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

BUILDING SEASON BEGINS TODAY

PRICES REMAIN LOW

Contractors are Awaiting Labor Adjustment and Action on Part of Railroads in the Release of Supply and Equipment Orders.

New York, May 1—May 1 marks the real start of the building season. This year it is featured by conservation, both in lending money for prospective construction and in the quantity of materials moving to jobs under way. The prices of materials remain low, and the prospects are that for the next fortnight they will remain practically stationary, pending labor adjustments and action on the part of the railroads regarding release of supply and equipment orders.

Current price shifts effective on this date include a range of $5.75 and $6 for Raritan common brick; $5.75 for good Hudson common brick; a range running from $1.23 to $1.32 for Portland cement; a price of $1.15 instead of $1.25 for finishing lime; a drop of five cents on all grades of gravel except in subway gravel, where the drop, by some of the smaller companies, is even more. The big companies do not care for business in this commodity less than ninety cents.

Hollow tile is without change on moderate quantities for exterior or interior block, but concessions are being made this month for large quantities. Linseed oil has advanced two cents. Spelter, affecting all galvanized material like pipe and wire goods, including reinforcement, is higher. Quotations for May are 13½c., June 13c., and July 12½c. Copper, used for flashing and art work in buildings, has advanced. Electrolytic is now 18½c. and 18¾c.

Yellow pine is lower by fifty cents; hemlock is weak, but spruce is stiffer. Specifications against contracts for rolled steel products have increased, and this is being reflected in a recovery in steel output. Portland cement is still being sold by smaller companies and one large company below cost, but so fast are these companies loading up their mills that it was reported in the Building Material Exchange this week that before long it would be necessary for them to return to more profitable levels. The Whitehall plant at Cementon, Pa., is being operated now at full capacity. The Alpha threw in an additional kiln this week. At present 181 kilns are in service in the Lehigh Valley. Including those in service in the Hudson Valley, about 200 kilns are serving the demands of this market, and yet no company is developing a reesrve supply.

Portland cement companies, according to an authority in the trade, are losing at the rate of $150,000 a year on a one to two million barrel a year output. This drain has been in progress for almost four months, and it does not seem as though this heavy loss could be endured by the disturbing elements in the trade much longer.

Dealers, therefore, have been taking advantage of the present situation by buying in large quantities on prompt delivery from the price cutting concerns. Builders and prospective builders are advised that the day of higher prices may not be more than a month off.

Of importance to all dealers receiving material through New York Harbor is the announcement that advances in the charges for handling freight by lighter and float within and without the free lighterage limits have been further suspended by the Interstate Commerce Commission, dating from today to November 1.

The effect of this suspension will be to give the prospective builder the benefit of existing costs of transportation of material in New York Harbor instead of having to bear the extra burden at a time when every little added cost of construction has an important bearing upon whether projected work would go ahead or not.

The borough of Dunellen has sold three lots at Dunellen at a tax sale, the property being assessed to Elizabeth Doty, to Henry Wrage and Arthur J. Hamley.

Henry Wrage has bought a half interest in land on the north side of North avenue, 325 feet from the corner of Jackson avenue, Dunellen, from Arthur Hamley.

Arthur Drake, Jr., has bought a property on the Gulhane and Penneld tract, Dunellen, from the Watchung Investment Co., for $550.

Cameo Realty Corporation to J. L. Klein, lots 10 to 14, on block 5, map 8, Height & Todd, Piscataway township.

The Dunellen Building and Loan Association has transferred to William G. Giles, property on Depot avenue, Dunellen.

SELLS ANOTHER HOUSE.

Real Estate Operator Henry Wrage, of Dunellen, has sold one of his houses on Third street, this city, to Charles Gilwick, of this city. The house contains six rooms and has all improvements. This makes the third house that Mr. Wrage has sold this year. One of the other two houses was located at Dewey Park and the other at Center street, Dunellen.

A PLAIN COLONIAL HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

A PLAIN colonial design always looks well and the popularity of this kind of a house is good evidence of its lasting qualities since this style has been in common use from the earliest history of our country. Our illustration shows a house with a total frontage of 47 ft., the main part being 36 ft. and the sun piazza 12 ft. in width at the left. The vestibule entrance coming between the piazza and the living room on the left side of the house. The arrangement of the plan is suited to a south or west frontage. For an east front the plan would be reversed. The height of the stories are 8 ft. 6 in. and 8 ft. with a basement 7 ft. 6 in. under the main house. The exterior is finished with cement stucco and all of the trimmings, cornices, casings, etc., given a coat of dark creosote stain, the roof shingles also stained, all of the sash painted white. This will give a very pretty and artistic effect.

The vestibule opens into a hall 7 ft. wide with the main stairs leading up at the opposite end from the vestibule and a good coat closet at the right of same. The stairs are planned on the combination order and are reached from the kitchen by a short section of steps. Beneath are the basement stairs with a grade entrance. The living room at the right is 27 ft. 6 in. front by 15 ft. depth with a broad fireplace and book shelves on either side. The dining room at the rear on the right side is 15 ft. by 11 ft. 6 in., and the kitchen on the left 14 ft. by 9 ft. with liberal sized pantry between. This main floor is finished in birch or Washington fir with plain birch or oak floor. The second story has four good chambers provided with ample cloth closets. In the rear is a large bath room. A sleeping porch the full size of the piazza below connects with the second story hall and is glazed and plastered. The main stairs lead up to the attic story. This floor is finished in white enamel with birch floor.

It is estimated to build this house as described for $4,200 to $5,000, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The attic story is not finished but has good floor and is lighted from the gable ends and used for storage purposes.

POSTOFFICE SOON TO BE A REALITY

Cellar Staked Out Yesterday and Excavating Will Be Commenced Monday.

Representatives of the Charles Gilpin Company, of Philadelphia, came to this city yesterday, and, after filing plans for the Plainfield postoffice building with Inspjector T. O. Doane, began staking out the site at East Second street and Watchung avenue. The work of excavating for the cellar will start next Monday. This will require several weeks, after which the actual construction will begin immediately. The contractors will bring many of their employes from Philadelphia, but quite a number will be engaged locally. Several subcontracts, such as the electric wiring, painting and grading, are to be let to Plainfielders, with resulting benefit to the respective trades.

The government's total appropriatio for land and building was $150,000, and of that amount the Gilpin Company will receive $82,978 for erecting the structure. It is to be placed far enough off the north side line to permit the prospective widening of East Second street, the thoroughfare being very narrow at this point.

The new building will be a classic building of Italian renaissance design, having a collonnaded front. It will be one story high, about one hundred feet square, with splendid interior accommodations for the postal business. The exterior facing for the walls will be stone, the roof composition and the building will be of fireproof construction throughout.

The public lobby will have a terrazzo floor, marble wainscot, cast metal screen and windows. The room set apart for the postmaster will have the usual office finish and will have every convenience. The building will face Watchung avenue, and the only entrance for the public will be on that thoroughfare.

LINCOLN ENTERS A BID FOR NEW FAME

"Industrial Graveyard" at Neighboring Town Now Running in Opposition.

The late Silas Dewey Drake, a real estate operator who had a keen appreciation of the value of publicity in aiding to "boom" a new town, put Lincoln on the map when the suffragist movement was in swaddling clothes by having women elected to the Town Council. As a result of the clever way in which Drake handled the publicity matter about the town, the fame of Lincoln became known as far as the Pacific coast, and Drake induced a number of factories to locate there, as it really did have exceptional railroad facilities, with three big transportation lines crossing its boundaries.

Lincoln misses Silas Dewey Drake. Some of the factories have closed up on account of lack of capital; some have moved away, and several suffered from fire that gutted the buildings. As a result, Lincoln is not the busy city that Drake meant it be ere this. The statue of Lincoln, which was set up in the little park in front of the station on the Central Railroad of New Jersey is still there and a reminder of the martyred President, as well as of the man who planned so much for Lincoln as a town.

There is a fair prospect now that Lincoln may get back some of its lost prestige, but in an entirely different manner than that planned by its founder. For years on the shores of Perth Amboy some of the finest craft that plied New York Harbor and adjacent waters found their last resting place on the beach of what was known as the "marine graveyard."

Lincoln has a "graveyard" of land craft, by way of contrast, which includes some of the obsolete equipment for trolley and street railway lines. In the yards of the "Industrial Service Company," half a mile west of the Lincoln Station and close to the three railroads that pass through the town, may be found an assortment of street cars, fast line trolley cars, old locomotives and derricks of different shape and description.

Under sheds are two cars which a dozen years ago were of the finest type of suburban electric cars. Not far away are two cars from the Bristol and Norfolk Street Railway, built when the vestibule first came into vogue. Further along may be seen a real old-fashioned horsecar, with safety gates, while the old locomotive is an antiquated type of engine used in construction work ten years ago.

The company utilizes this equipment, which is bought up at ridiculously low figures, in many ways, and at the same time maintains a big yard on a tract of land for the storage of modern equipment while it is not in use. The "industrial graveyard" is interesting because it contains types of equipment that is seldom seen any more, and shows what progress has been made in recent years.

BUILDING RECORD FOR APRIL TAKES TUMBLE

The month of April just closed is the first month of the present year to fall below the records of last year in the line of values of buildings to be erected as covered by construction permits issued by Inspector T. O. Doane. During the month thirteen permits were issued by the official, seven of which were for alterations, the other six being for entirely new structures, the latter to cost $51,800. The alterations will cost $10,290, making a total expenditure of $62,090 for the month.

While the past month is below the record for the corresponding month of 1914, the totals thus far this year for improvements of various kinds are far beyond the figures up to this time of last season. While April is the first break the present season has had in the wrong direction, indications are still holding good toward the holding up of the good improvements already made in building conditions.

The tables below show the distribution of expenditures during the past month as well as a comparison with the same month of a year ago.

LONE BUILDING PERMIT GRANTED DURING WEEK

The local building and construction world has experienced during the past seven days one of the worst weeks it has had in some little time, during which but one permit was issued by Inspector T. O. Doane. This lone document calls for the erection of a dwelling at a cost of $3,000.

The one redeeming feature of the week is the filing of plans for the new Federal postoffice building on Watchung avenue, which means the starting of work in the immediate future, thus insuring work for a number of men. This, together with the work on the new $60,000 apartment on East Seventh street, means the employment of a large number of building craftsmen as soon as actual work on the foundations are started.

The lone permit of the past week calls for the erection of a two-and-a-half story two-frame dwelling at 380 Summer avenue, in the First ward. The structure, measuring 22 by 48 feet, will have concrete and concrete block foundations, and hemlock framing, the cost being estimated at $3,000. William H. Clum is the architect; Morris Rabinowitz, the mason contractor, while Louis Vieth will do the carpenter work. Mr. Vieth and Lillian Vieth are the owners of the proposed structure.

STILL ANOTHER FACTORY FOR SOUTH PLAINFIELD

Chelsea Park, consisting of seventeen lots, located along the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield, and for some time belonging to that company, have recently been sold at private sale to Dr. F. B. Fascola, of Hoboken. The purchase price was not made known, although it is known that when the Lehigh disposed of the property it brought $11,000.

From present indications, this sale means the erection of another factory in the village, although no definite plans have been announced as yet. It is thought that a factory now located on Staten Island, in which Dr. Fascola, together with a company of Rome, Italy, bankers are interested, will be located at the recently acquired site. Plans for the new buildings have been filed with the State factory inspectors.

RUSH AT METUCHEN.

Several hundred men are now working every hour out of the twenty-four in eight-hour shifts to finish the construction of fifteen or more buildings that will constitute Lewis Nixon's new gun cotton manufacturing plant near Metuchen, on the site of the powder mills of the International Praeposit Company. Mr. Nixon is residing at Metuchen and is giving his entire time to personally supervising the work. Most of the buildings are of brick construction, and the great haste with which work is proceeding and the secrecy maintained has excited the curiosity of the townspeople. It is said that Mr. Nixon has large orders from the allies, hence the haste in rushing work on the buildings.

In the vegetable garden, sow beets for succession. Sow Brussels sprouts in the open ground where they are to remain.

Set out strawberries.

Make an asparagus bed and set out the roots.

Plant evergreens.

MAY is the busiest month in the gardener's calendar. Work crowds on the heels of work and everything seems to be crying for immediate attention. It is a time, consequently, when the beginner has borne home to him the necessity of orderly, systematic procedure and, particularly, the advantage of beginning his operations as early in the season as possible. The first half of the month, and, in some localities, the second half as well, is not without its annoyances from sudden frosts, either. But, where it is the home gardener's purpose to make every square foot of ground yield its utmost, this risk must be assumed and consolation found in the fact that damage can almost always be prevented at the expenditure of very little time and trouble. A light covering of newspapers or cloth will generally prove sufficient. But if frost penetrates the cover, keep the protection on to provide shade against the sun's rays. Let it remain until the plants have recovered. If the damage is more severe, remove the covers and spray thoroughly with cold water until the plant is entirely thawed, replacing the cover and protecting from the sun until recovery is evident.

Strawberry Plant As It Is Received Ready To Be Set Out. Note The Numerous Leaves. The Same Plant With Foliage Cut Off Before Setting Out. The Pruning Is Essential.

The annuals listed for sowing this week include one, candytuft, that does not bear transplanting. Sow it, therefore, where it is to bloom. Plant candytuft, ageratum, celosia one-fourth inch deep; cosmos should be planted a little deeper and lobelia, marigold, gaillardia and scabiosa not more than one-eighth inch deep. When the seedlings appear, thin candytuft, ageratum, celosia, marigold and gaillardia to six inches apart. Lobelia need be thinned only to four inches apart. Scabiosa does best when nine inches apart and cosmos should stand 12 inches apart for the early varieties and twice that distance for the late varieties.

In the vegetable garden it will not be amiss this week to give a light cultivation to the soil between rows of seedlings, especially onions, that are already above ground. It pays to keep ahead of weeds and, from the earliest days of spring, to maintain the earth in a finely pulverized state. Beets can be sown for succession. As soon as those previously sown are about five inches high, thin out so that the remaining plants will stand three inches apart in the row. Eat the thinnings as greens; they are delicious. Sow the seed as formerly—one-half inch deep in drills one foot apart. Sow Brussels sprouts thinly in drills one-half inch deep and two feet apart.

In the home garden, it is usually best to grow strawberries in the hedge-row manner. First of all, be generous in applications of manure and fertilizer to the soil where the berries are to be grown. Spade deeply, pulverize the soil thoroughly and be sure the bed is ready to receive the plants on arrival. Following the row system, set the plants a foot apart in the row, with the rows themselves two feet apart. This is the closest they should be planted and so set demand a very liberal supply of plant food. Runners, the first three or four from each plant, are allowed to set but are held to the rows. Others are cut off as they appear. Plant generously of the fall-fruiting varieties. They are no longer novelties and are best, everything considered, for the home garden of limited space. Progressive and Superb are two excellent varieties. They will give berries throughout the season and up to frost. A crop can be had, indeed, the first fall after planting, but do not allow the blossoms to set before July. Pinch off earlier bloom. This applies to all varieties of springset strawberries as well.

Even a small asparagus bed pays the home gardener. And it pays best when it is most carefully prepared. The best procedure is to trench the soil. Excavate it, in other words, to a depth of twenty inches and on the bottom, after loosening it, spread a layer of well-rotted manure to a depth of six inches. Tramp down firmly and on top of this spread the surface soil taken out of the trench until it stands four inches below the surface level. On this next set the roots, spreading them carefully, and fill in. The crowns can be set from 12 to 18 inches apart. Two-year-old roots are usually planted, but one-year-old crowns will do as well. They are preferable, in fact, but are not often to be had from the dealers. The rows should be not less than two feet apart. Palmetto and Argenteuil are two excellent, rust-resisting varieties.

If by any chance, either strawberry plants or asparagus roots have to be kept after receipt before planting they must be well taken care of. Loosen the strawberry bundles and heel them in temporarily in a shaded and moist situation. Keep the asparagus crowns well dampened up to the moment of setting them in the bed and, in setting them, give a final soaking with water. They need no pruning. But the strawberry plants will be better off if the young leaves are removed before planting and only two or three of the older leaves are permitted to remain. Both demand firming of the soil carefully about their roots as they are transplanted.

Evergreens can be moved later in the season than the deciduous trees. They begin their new growth in late May or early June and can be safely transplanted up to that time. The secret of success lies in never allowing the roots to dry. Remember that exposure to wind as well as to sun has a drying effect. Keep them covered. In ordering from a nursery, the trees are generally forwarded "balled and burlapped"—that is, the roots are surrounded by a ball of earth and this, in turn, is wrapped in burlap. Water on arrival and do not remove the burlap until the last moment before the tree is set in the hole made ready for its receipt. An additional precaution that well repays the trouble it occasions is to wrap the newly planted tree loosely with a light cloth covering. This affords shade, conserves the moisture and prevents evaporation in sun or wind until the root system is again established and able to withstand the drain made upon its resources by the foliage. The cover should remain on for a week or ten days.

THE MASTER MIND

Novelized by Marvin Dana, author of "Within the Law," from the successful play by Daniel D. Carter

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

"So Wainwright couldn't and you," he muttered. "Well, I can. And you, my lady, shall be my pawn in the game."

The implacable man had a venomous gleam in his eyes as these thoughts ran through his brain. He had a wonderful capacity for using other people for his own purposes, and he was determined to demonstrate it thoroughly.

The Master Mind took measures at once to make good his boast. With scrupulous fidelity he restored Wainwright's apartment to the order in which he had found it. Then, his work there accomplished, he left the place and boarded the fastest train for Chicago. On his arrival in that city he devoted himself at once to his quest for the mysterious maiden. With a few modifications of his personal appearance he undertook in person a painstaking minute search throughout the neighborhood where had occurred the automobile accident. In an adjacent side street of none too savory a character he at last came on a street urchin who had been present at the time of the accident and who, moreover, possessed some information that might serve as a clew to the identity of the ministering girl of that occasion. The boy had seen her at other times, both before and after the accident, in a quiet and respectable neighborhood a few blocks further down the street. He cheerfully guided Andrew to the vicinity.

The Master Mind was hugely elated by this initial success. A garrulous woman, who took a frank interest in all her neighbors, welcomed his questions and answered them with the positive information he sought. She had long known the girl by sight. She had heard of what had happened at the time of the automobile accident. As the girl's home was only four houses away from her own, she had had no difficulty in learning the name—Margaret Flint.

"But she's gone from here now," the woman concluded; "been gone for three months. You see, it was this way," she explained: "Her father was pretty poor, just a house painter, and his health so bad he couldn't get work most of the time. Her mother was dead, and there wasn't any other children. And then her father died. It was after that she went; had to—couldn't pay the rent. And that's all I know."

The Master Mind finally, however, succeeded in tracing Margaret Flint to the house of a prosperous merchant, where she had secured employment as a parlormaid for two small children. There Andrew had an interview with the girl herself. At his first glance into her face he was forced to lively appreciation of her loveliness. Then the girl voiced a response to his greeting, and instantly the spell was broken. A keen critic might perhaps have detected a musical resonance in the tones. But if such a quality was indeed present it was hopelessly covered by the harsh, nasal, treble utterance of her class.

CHAPTER III.

A Pawn in the Game.

THE Master Mind professed to have known the girl's father intimately and offered this as an explanation of his visit. After a brief interview that satisfied his curiosity, and did little to arouse hers, he took his departure, and straightway began plotting the immediate steps next to be made. So cunningly did he contrive his mesh of chicanery that the miserable victim in the toils never suspected even that he was the agent of her anguish. Through the bought offices of a confederate, who had no suspicion as to his identity, Andrew so arranged matters that Margaret Flint was accused of theft. The stolen brooch of her mistress was found in the girl's trunk. On such circumstantial evidence it was easy to secure conviction of one who had neither money nor friends to plead in her behalf. She was sentenced to two years in the woman's reformatory.

But it was no part of the Master Mind's plan that the girl whom he had thus stricken by his arts should languish in prison throughout the whole term of her sentence. It was sufficient for his purposes that the stigma had been inflicted on her. He waited for six months and then entered on the second stage of his operations. First he paid a visit to the wretched object of his machinations. He professed profound sorrow over the plight in which he found her, and promised to use every endeavor in her behalf by gaining the services of certain influential politicians with whom he enjoyed friendly relations.

As a matter of fact, however, Andrew called on only one man for assistance, and that no friend. With a new type wheel on the small machine, which he had brought with him in the suit case from New York, he concocted a most explicit letter to a politician of Chicago, who had risen from the ranks by ways best known to himself. The Master Mind pointed out that it would be well for the politician to secure forthwith the release of Margaret Flint on probation. Otherwise some curious facts in the history of the politician would be turned over to the public prints. A few details as to the nature of such revelations were given, and, as he read them, the politician's florid complexion faded to a mottled ashen, and his hands trembled strangely. Within three days Margaret Flint was released from custody, and just outside the walls of the reformatory she found waiting her father's friend.

"I'll be your friend," he said to her when they were alone together in the parlor of a quiet Chicago hotel. "Your father was kind to me. I have no children of my own or any one depending on me. Your father is dead, so I can't repay his goodness to me. So I mean to take care of you. You have had a mighty hard time of it so far. You have been poor, you have been a drudge, you have been in prison. Of course I know you were innocent, for I believe what you tell me. But the world doesn't know. The only way to make your future life happy is just to bury all the past forever. Maggie Flint, the nursemaid, who was sent to jail, is dead from this second and buried. Now, whom shall we resurrect in her stead?" He smiled quizzically in response to the girl's expression of sheer amazement. "I am not rich," he went on frankly, "but I have a comfortable fortune—enough so that I can educate you as a lady and keep you fairly well afterward without your having to worry ever again about work."

"It's like a story I read once," the girl breathed tremulously. The shrill voice had sunk to a softer register. The sapphire eyes were glowing with the naive happiness of a child.

"Yes, it is like a story," the Master Mind assented. "But, first of all," he continued, "you must go to school I've been making some inquiries," he explained pleasantly, "and I've found out that there's just the place for you over in a private school in France. You see, Margaret, you're a bit too old for the regular school in this country."

"France!" the girl repeated.

"Yes," Andrew went on briskly. "That school will be just the place for you. They'll teach you everything about how to be a lady as well as the usual stuff out of books. But we must have that christening. I've thought of a name."

"Tell me!" the girl urged.

"Lucene Blount," he replied. "You like it?"

"Oh, I love it!" was the eager answer. "But—but it seems so strange—after Maggie!"

"So it does," he agreed. "Well, then, if you're satisfied we'll settle on Lucene Blount."

The smile that curved her pale lips was very winning—so winning, indeed, that once again the plotter experienced a pang of regret over the necessity that led him to sacrifice this life to his vengeance.

"We'll be sailing in the course of a few days, for I mean to see you safe in the place myself, and in the meantime I'm going to feed you on the fat of the land and keep you out in the sunshine every minute possible until you just blossom."

As it had been planned, so duly it was executed by the Master Mind. In France speedily began the transformation of a humble working girl who had been subjected to the ignominy of imprisonment into a woman of excellent education, of gentle manners, of essential refinement of character. To this work Andrew allowed a period of four years. Thus it will be seen that the man was not influenced by heedless haste. At last the span drew to its close and the final activities of his scheming began. It was time, too, since Wainwright had persistently advanced in public honor until he was become the chief man of his political party in the state with a splendid reputation absolutely unblemished. It was known that he would be given the nomination for governor by his party in the campaign of the coming year. It was certain as well that he would be elected. The Master Mind smiled a smile that was not good to see as he sat at his typewriter, into which he had just slipped a new type wheel, and addressed an envelope to Cortland Wainwright, Esq.

At his breakfast table next morning Wainwright at sight of a card that dropped from the opened envelope felt a chill of apprehension. To these white cards he had become in a way habituated. For nearly four years they had appeared in his mail at irregular intervals. Some had come to his office, some to his home, others to his hotels abroad, even to the country houses of friends where he visited.

He stared at the ominous symbol in a dismay foreign to his habit. This was the silent message of a doom brooding close over him. And against the insidious attack he was without resource, helpless in his ignorance of where or when or how the blow would fall. Already he had employed in vain one of the best men from the Pinkerton agency to seek out the Master Mind. Now, however, under the urgency of the card Wainwright left the table and went to the telephone, where he established communication with the detective, Marshall, and made an appointment. Then he returned to the table and resolutely continued the reading of his letters. Presently another communication absorbed his attention.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

BEAUTIFUL GIRDLES.

QUAINTNESS AND CHARM IN EMPRESS EUGENIE GOWNS.

With our attention riveted on belligerent Europe, it were strange, indeed, did we not glean an occasional inspiration from our rather more than usual intimate knowledge of our neighbors. Contemplation of their present unrest inevitably leads me to ruminate over their turbulent past, against the historic horizon of which will be silhouetted, here and there, a bright light. Empress Eugenie was one of these, and to her do we owe the inspiration of the tight bodices and flaring skirts. A dress that includes both these features is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8878. The pattern includes a foundation waist with high neck and long sleeves, and cuts in sizes 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Made of all one material, the dress requires in size 36, 8 yards 36-inch material.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"I wish Mrs. Ellson had let me alone; that story sticks to me like a burr, and spoils all my pleasure in Mrs. Morton," said young Mrs. Scott to her husband after her guests had gone.

"Ah, Laura, forget it. Why do women gloat over a bit of gossip as if they were birds of prey? That woman nettles everyone she meets. Mrs. Morton said she made her uncomfortable."

"Did she say that? It might be interpreted two ways."

"There you go. Great Scott! Laura——"

"Oh, do not take our name in vain," she laughed. "Won't you ask Mr. Parsons about it?"

"No, I won't." His tone was irritated. "You can count me out of this, and do not mention it to mother if you want to keep her respect."

"I wish I felt well enough acquainted with Mrs. Parsons to ask her about the matter," mused Mrs. Scott, when left alone. "I don't want to have her out here and be intimately associated with her if their names are bandied about on people's tongues. If I draw the line on social smirches in the city I surely ought to be able to do it here. We are invited to the Parsons for luncheon next week and I'll keep my eyes and ears open. If I were only a better judge of character! I have been deceived so many times by people that I dare not trust my own judgment."

Nell noticed a decided chill in the attitude of young Mrs. Scott at Mrs. Parsons' luncheon and was greatly hurt by it. Mrs. Ellson kept her under surveillance. Twice to free herself from his oppression she went home under pretext of seeing how the little nurse was succeeding with the baby, for her mother had gone home the week before. The elder Mrs. Scott was as delightful as ever. She walked over with her to see the baby, and remarked on the artistic arrangement of the little home. Altogether, Nell was relieved when the affair was over.

"I can't imagine what made young Mrs. Scott so cool to me today," she said to Dick that evening at supper. "She was so friendly and cordial that day at the lawn party. I may have imagined it, but I think Mrs. Ellson was talking about me to her, for she hardly took her eyes off me."

"Oh, you surely imagined, knowing what Mrs. Ellson is; she would not dare to assail the character of a guest. She does not know Mrs. Scott."

"If she did I would not worry," exclaimed Nell. "It is because Mrs. Scott does not know her that she may be able to do me harm. I can't imagine why Mrs. Ellson treats me as she does. She gave me the cut direct today again, and she was so cordial that day she took mother out riding before baby came."

"The reason is not far to seek," said Dick, making a wry face. Nell looked up inquiringly. "She is jealous of you."

"Jealous of me!" repeated Nell incredulously.

"Yes, she thinks the doctor comes here too much." As Nell stared in blank astonishment he continued, "She thinks you call him unnecessarily, and that he likes to come."

"Can't we have another doctor?" Nell's face was troubled.

"There's absolutely no one else in town that I have any confidence in. Mrs. Ellson is too well known to do you any harm."

"Well, Mrs. Scott is not necessary to your happiness," said Dick easily.

"Oh, I liked her so much and I thought we could have such good times together and now——" Nell wiped her eyes.

"There, don't cry, little girl. Remember we are only borrowing trouble," said Dick comfortingly.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Why the Dollies Went On a Strike.

There Was a Jap Doll Named Mishka.

"THE dollies in the nursery were extremely indignant, and, as there was a very large family, of course there was a lot of indignation floating around in that nursery."

Daddy and the kiddies were seated upon the divan for the evening story.

"There was a rosy cheeked wax doll named Mary that could say 'mamma' and 'papa' when hard pushed, and there was an unbreakable one that had one of those famous smiles that won't come off. Her name was Polly. There was a Jap doll named Mishka that wore a kimono and a rag dolly called Rags whose head was all wabbly.

"And there they sat all in a row around a tiny table talking doll language like mad, and their anger, strangely enough, was directed against their little mistress.

"Their little mistress, Emily, loved her dollies very much, so we will have to listen very intently to their dollie language to find out what their grievance could possibly be.

"'Emily loves to play with me,' began the rag dolly called Rags as she wabbled her head, 'but my head has been loose for six months, and do you think she will take a needle and sew it on? No, indeed! She will prance in here, snatch me up and kiss me, and my head almost falls off during the process. I should think she might sew it on.' And Rags waggled her head vigorously.

"'That's so,' squeaked the rosy cheeked wax doll. 'She has played on my vocal organs so hard that she has made me all wheezy. Why, I haven't a word to say any more when she presses my talking apparatus!' And beautiful rosy cheeked Mary sighed as she toppled off her chair and lay upon the hearth rug before the blazing nursery fire.

"'Well,' said Mishka, the Jap doll, 'she isn't very particular about my toilet. I've worn the same kimono for a year, and it is so soiled it could stand alone, but do you suppose she ever thinks of giving me a clean one?'

"All the dollies agreed save Polly. Polly sat there and grinned in the most maddening way; but, you see, poor Polly couldn't help it because her smile was fastened on to her so tightly that she couldn't leave it, as the Cheshire cat does. Then, because she persisted in laughing at them, after awhile they all began to laugh, and then they all had a jollification, and when little Emily appeared she never knew there had been a strike.

"Now you must go to bed, kiddies."

Household Hints

YOUR GARDEN

The vegetables that will bear early planting are peas, lettuce, raddishes, parsley, beets, turnips, onion sets, potatoes and cabbage plants.

Your earliest crop will be radishes.

Before planting any seed, plan the location of the vegetables. If you know the garden plan of last year, try to plan it different this year, so that the same vegetables are not grown twice successively in the same place. Cabbage, turnips and beets seem to be most affected by continuous planting in the same spot, and beans and peas the least.

Do not plant cucumbers, squash or melons near each other.

In most gardens the vegetables are planted in long rows, but for the very womanish reason that it affords shorter rows you can divide your garden into four section by a lengthwise and crosswise path intersecting in the center. One section is for potatoes, one for lima beans, one for beets, carrots, peas, parsley and lettuce; the fourth for string beans, wax beans, cabbage and radishes.

THE TABLE

Chicken Alabama — Singe, draw and disjoint as for fricasseeing, two four-pound chickens. Arrange pieces in bottom of baking pan; pour over them cup of boiling water, and add two tablespoons butter. Cover and cook in moderate oven one hour, turning chicken once or twice. Sprinkle with teaspoonful salt, a little pepper; add tablespoon onion juice and cook half hour. Make twelve tiny sweet potato croquettes and twelve corn fritters (using canned corn at this time of the year). When done, arrange chicken on large platter, garnish with fritters and croquettes and strips of broiled bacon. Rub together two tablespoons flour and butter. Add to pan a cupful milk, then add butter and flour, and stir constantly until you have a smooth, creamy sauce. Add half teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Strain it over chicken. Sprinkle thickly with chopped parsley and serve.

Lettuce With Peas—Thoroughly wash leaves from two heads lettuce, then drain on a cloth. Heat one and one-half tablespoons melted butter in sauce pan, add lettuce with a teaspoon salt and one teaspoon sugar; cook ten minutes, occasionally stirring. Pour in two tablespoons flour, stir well while heating two minutes, moisten with two quarts broth, add pint can peas (or fresh ones) and dash of pepper; cover pan, let boil thirty minutes. Arrange six slices toasted French bread in soup, sprinkle grated cheese on top, set in oven ten minutes. Remove and serve.

Queen Cakes—One pound flour, half pound butter, half pound white sugar, half pound currants, three eggs, one teacup cream, two teaspoons baking powder, essence of lemon or almond to taste. Beat butter to a cream, sift in flour, add sugar and currants, mix ingredients together. Whisk eggs, yolks and whites together; mix them with the cream and flavoring; stir these into flour, beat well ten minutes, add baking powder. Put in small buttered tins and bake cakes twenty minutes to half an hour.

Queen's Pudding—Six eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately; nine tablespoons cracker crumbs rolled fine; two cups granulated sugar, one pound English walnuts chopped fine, half pound dates cut fine, two teaspoons baking powder. Mix baking powder, cracker crumbs, sugar and egg yolks, then add nuts and dates; lastly fold in whites of eggs. Bake in shallow pans in slow oven. Serve with whipped cream. This can be made several days before serving, which means a great deal for one who is going to have a big dinner.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — It's Moving Day For Scoop (Oh Girls Isn't It Getting Exciting) — BY "HOP"

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Plainfield lovers of motion pictures will have an opportunity to see the famous actress, Florence Reed, noted for her work in the "Yellow Ticket," in "The Dancing Girls" on Monday and Tuesday, at the Plainfield Theatre. The film presents a wonderful story of heart interest and some of the most beautiful photography ever seen upon the screen in this city. Wednesday and Thursday, the theatre has secured the Paramount feature, "It's No Laughing Matter." Maclyn Arbuckle plays the title role of "Hi Judd," poet, postmaster and philosopher, who is the sunshine of the village and a veritable doctor of happiness. His right arm the little world of the village leans on; the kind words he scatters broadcast reap their harvest of love for the old postmaster and the verses he writes (sometimes when he should be working), proclaims him the wit of the village. And because of the verze writing Mrs. Judd is often discouraged. Hi confides in his daughter, Bess, that he often stands in awe of Mrs. Judd, when she catches him, pencil in hand, with the woodpile untouched and the chores not done. But Bess is consoling and when Hi is not around she makes a collection of verses and sends them on to a great newspaper. Theirs is a peaceful life that must have its dramatic climax and it all descends upon them at once. Jim Skinner, an unscrupulous, grasping old miser, holds the mortgage on the house and also has designs upon Hi's position as postmaster. Then the bank fails and shadows hang low. In the meantime drama is stirring within their home. Bess, who had thought she cared for Hal, the station agent, is under the spell of Sam, who has come from the city to be the new ticket agent. Hi, dubious of his character and regretting his daughter's change of heart, before it is too late, finds a picture of Sam, his wife and their baby. Hi recognized in the wife, Belle, the long missing daughter of Mother Wilkins, a widow of the village whose home has burned and who would have suffered from privation had it not been for the generosity of Hi. He sends for Belle, making her believe the money and message came from Sam, and when Sam is confronted with the wife and baby he sees there is nothing to be done but face the unexpected situation. The mortgage is due. Heartbroken, they are preparing to leave the little home when word comes from the newspaper—"Verses accepted—send them as fast as you can write them." Thus ends the story. Hi with his $500 check from the newspaper pays off the mortgage; the future holds its promises; mother Wilkins is happy with her daughter and the little baby, and Hal and Bess are engaged to be married.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

CITY THAT TRIED BAN ON SHINGLES

Newton (Mass.) Has Piece of Legislation That Has Been Agitated Here.

AN ALDERMAN'S VIEWS

Ordinance Now in Use Seems Applicable to Plainfield's Needs—Will Add Vigor to Movement Under Consideration.

Since the "anti-shingle" subject was first brought to the attention of the local public by Charles S. Sminck certain individuals as well as Mayor Leighton Calkins have been investigating conditions in other towns and some very interesting data has been collected. One of the most timely bits of information comes from the Mayor's brother, who is an alderman in Newton, Mass., a city in the same class with Plainfield.

He writes as follows in response to a letter from Mayor Calkins:

"The history of the shingle ordinance in Newton is this: The ordinance was originally passed last November on recommendation of our building commissioner, fire chief and insurance experts. Similar ordinances have been recently passed in Boston, Brookline and other cities. The board was satisfied that fireproof or fire-resisting substitutes for shingles could be procured just as inexpensively as shingles; that a high percentage of our fires were caused by shingled roofs; that it was not practicable to attempt to establish a zone system; and that the step was progressive and for the best interests of the community.

"A petition was presented to the board, backed by lumber interests and carrying signatures of four or five hundred citizens, requesting repeal or modification of the ordinance. Public hearings were held, the whole matter thrashed out again and the petition for revocation or modification was voted down by a large majority of the board.

"The lumber interests are much exercised. They fear that the example of Newton and Brookline will be followed by other communities and their business seriously affected. Most citizens, when the situation is explained, approve of the ordinance.

"An ice house in Newton Centre was burned two days ago and it was necessary to call in fire apparatus from Brookline, Waltham, Watertown and Wellesley, not to put out the original fire, but to protect shingled roofs of buildings within a radius of two miles from catching fire on account of sparks and embers.

"My own opinion is that the ordinance is a wise one, and will be followed by many communities in the next few years."

A copy of the Newton ordinance follows:

"Section 163. The roof of every building hereafter erected or re-covered in whole or in part, and the top of every dormer window thereon shall be covered and roofed with brick, tile, slate, tin, copper or iron, or such other incombustible or fire-retarding roofing, as the commissioner by his certificate in writing may authorize; but this section shall not be construed to prohibit the patching or minor repairs of shingled roofs.

"This ordinance shall take effect upon the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

"Whoever violates any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars for each violation."

DR. THOMAS HALL ON "THE GERMAN POINT OF VIEW"

An interesting public meeting has been arranged for Thursday night at the Plainfield High School, when Dr. Thomas C. Hall, well-known to many Plainfielders and who has lectured here many times and has also preached at the Crescent Avenue church, will speak on "The German Point of View." Dr. Hall is a man of power and deep erudition, a splendid and fascinating speaker.

Dr. Hall is an Irishman by birth and an American by adoption. He was a classmate of President Wilson at Princeton. He studied also in Berlin and Gottingen and knows Germany thoroughly. He is now professor of Christian ethics at the Union Theological Seminary. The public is invited to hear him Thursday night. No admission fee will be charged.

DILL'S STAND ON LICENSE SUBJECT

State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Outlines Views to Democratic Club.

ACTION IS CRITICIZED

Qualifies Stand Taken by State Department—Dill Also Claims Local Resolution Would Not Have Been Passed if Conditions Were Known.

Resolutions passed recently by the Plainfield Democratic Club embodying the sentiments of the local organization in the matter of examination of applicants for motor licenses of residents in Plainfield and vicinity have brought forth a reply from William L. Dill, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. The letter explains the attitude assumed by the State authorities in the matter and is as follows:

"I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 27th enclosing copy of resolution passed by the City Democratic Committee of Plainfield, last night.

"Permit me to say that this department is making every effort to so arrange the schedule of examinations as to allow persons to be examined without causing them any unnecessary inconvenience and I am quite sure that had your committee been conversant with the circumstances you would not in your wisdom have passed the resolution which you did.

"With the small number of inspectors that we have and the rapidity with which examinations are piling up, it is impossible to set aside special days for the many sections of the State that have made request for same.

"If your committee is cognizant of persons operating motor vehicles without licenses, we should be very glad to have all the information you can furnish the department with, in order that proper prosecution may be secured.

"For the season, however, of 1915 it will be absolutely impossible to hold any examination in the city of Plainfield as the schedule which was promulgated several weeks ago is now so congested as to seriously interfere with the work of the inspectors so far as the patrolling of highways is concerned."

The resolutions adopted by the local committee requested that arrangements be made here to examine applicants for auto licenses instead of compelling them to go to some neighboring city.

WILLIAM H. BECHTEL MARRIED AT CATSKILL, N. Y.

William H. Bechtel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Bechtel, of Carlton avenue, and Miss Sallie M. Smith, of Catskill, New York, were married at the latter place, last Wednesday night. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride and was witnessed only by a few relatives.

Although Mr. Bechtel had announced his engagement several months ago, news of the wedding came as a surprise to his parents and friends in this city. The first information was conveyed in a telegram received Friday, and today Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel came to Plainfield for a brief visit. They will make their home temporarily at Catskill. Mr. Bechtel is a salesman for the United States Tire Company, having the territory in New York State between New York city and Albany. He has been prominent in local and New York athletics, and has a host of friends who will extend congratulations on receipt of the news. His bride has been making her home with her sister at Catskill, her parents being dead.

SLIGHT FIRE.

Telephone alarm at 10:50 yesterday morning called the apparatus from fire headquarters to the home of William Shafer, 311 East Sixth street, where a slight blaze was in progress in the kitchen. It was caused by oily rags placed in a corner beneath the sink developing spontaneous combustion. One tank of the chemical engine was sufficient to put the blaze out. The damage was trifling.

MINSTREL REHEARSAL.

Rehearsals for the minstrel show, which will be given in a short time by the Agoga Class of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will be held Tuesday and Friday nights of every week until the date of the performance. The date and place will be announced soon. Rehearsals will be held in the Sunday-school rooms.

Mrs. Robert Barnes, of Grove street, who has been spending several months in Florida, has returned home.

WANT NO SALOON OUTSIDE OF ZONE

AFTER CLARK'S PLACE

Organization Will Try to Prevent Renewal of License—Judge Beekman Commended for His Action in Somerset County.

Discussion of a plan which may result in a great protest against any licenses being granted outside of the Tyler zone next year; the passage of a resolution endorsing Judge Daniel H. Beekman's refusal of two applications for new licenses in North Plainfield, and routine business occupied the time of the members of the executive committee of the Federation of Men's Church Clubs yesterday afternoon. The meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A., and was well attended.

The matter of the Tyler zone was brought up by Irving A. Hunting, who said that he believed that it was largely due to the inactivity of the Federation that the transfer of the Clark license to a new owner was permitted, when it had been distinctly understood that the place was to be discontinued with the death of Clark. He thought that the mere fact that this license had been granted this year was no reason why it should be granted another year, and suggested that action be taken by the Federation to prevent its being renewed next year. Councilmen Claybrook and Hylan were both present at the meeting, being members of the Federation, and they explained how the transfer was brought about, although both were opposed to it. Incidentally Mr. Claybrook intimated that he might not be a candidate for re-election as councilman at large this year.

When the matter of Judge Beekman refusing the licenses for two new retail places in North Plainfield was brought up, attention was called to the fact that it was claimed in court that there was a big sentiment in the borough for more bars, and that petitions against them were "signed by a lot of women school teachers and young women." It was decided to send a letter to Judge Beekman commending him for his stand in the name of the Federation, to show him that there were a great many men who approved of what he had done, and a committee consisting of A. B. Cole, Robert Pentecost and Leslie R. Fort was named by President Veysey to draw up the resolution.

Councilman Claybrook was appointed a committee of one to get Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan to come to Plainfield to speak on the first convenient date, probably in the fall, and C. A. Riec was named as chairman of another committee to arrange for a public debate or debates on topics of interest. Samuel T. McCarter, Jr., resigned as first vice president, as he is no longer the representative of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the Federation, and Leslie R. Fort was elected in his place.

MISS ALINQUIST BRIDE OF EUGENE GILBERTSON

Miss Sigrid Almquist, of 941 Kensington avenue, and Eugene Gilbertsen, of 930 Madison avenue, were married at 8 o'clock Saturday evening by Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, at his home on Watchung avenue. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Shjarback, of this city.

Both the bride and bridegroom are natives of Sweden and have been living here for some time. Mr. Gilbersen is employed in Plainfield as a chauffeur. They will reside in this city after a trip.

AUTO BUS PARTIES.

The Plainfield Transit Company, the office of which is at 310 Park avenue, is equipped to accommodate from twenty-five to fifty people who desire to go by auto bus to Paterson to hear "Billy" Sunday. Churches, lodges, clubs or any one wishing to go to Paterson or make trips of any distance can arrange the same by calling at the company's office or 'phoning 130 Plainfield.

ADDRESSED P. H. S. GIRLS.

Miss Jessie Fowler, of the National Vocational Bureau in New York city, addressed the girls in the Plainfield High School this morning, on higher education. She dwelt on the qualifications essential to success in each line of work and urged serious consideration of different lines of work before taking them up.

MAYOR CALKINS AND J. E. DUNN AID CIRCUS

Former Gives License and Latter Lot—Boxholders Include Prominent People.

Mayor Calkins has issued a license for the circus which is to be given next Friday afternoon and night for the benefit of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, the Visiting Nurse Association and the Public Recreation Committee, and has endorsed the project as one in support of most worthy causes. Under the ordinance, the Mayor is empowered to fix the license fee, and because of the charities for which the benefit is given, he has granted the permit without charge. John E. Dunn, the owner of the lot, has also given permission to use it without cost, as he did last year for a similar benefit. As these are the only two things which the local management has to provide, all other expenses being borne by the Frank A. Robbins Show, the local expense is nothing, and the generous share of the proceeds which Mr. Robbins will allow to the local causes has been materially increased by the liberality of the two men.

Boxes for the performances are selling well, and but few are left for the matinee. For the evening performance quite a few are still available. Among those who have already taken boxes are George M. Holstein, Mrs. G. H. Detwiller, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. George M. R. Morse, Dr. and Mrs. Edward S. Krans, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Hugh Jarvis, Mrs. Henry L. DeForest, Mrs. Noah C. Barnhart, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. William S. Tyler, Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard, Mrs. J. M. Charles, Seymour Perkins, Mrs. George S. Clay, Councilman Richard S. Claybrook and Herbert Jackson. Boxes may be procured through any of the women forming the School Committee of the League of the Nurse Association, or at the Daily Press office.

The committee has found that a number of people hesitate about taking boxes and seats because of the great amount of dust that made the interior of the tent unpleasant last year. Through a liberal use of water and shavings, the committee in charge has arranged to do away with this objectionable feature at the show on Friday.

Aside from the professional features of the show, there will be a pageant with 130 local children taking part, an exhibition by Boy Scouts, and by athletes from the Y. M. C. A., and a large number of High School young men will act as clowns and participate in other ways. It is promised that a great deal more will be given for the money than was the case last year.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF MISS ELSIE RODMAN

Announcement was made today of the engagement of Miss Elsie Rodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Rodman, of South Orange, and Victor Constant Kitchen, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. W. Kitchen, of East Orange. Miss Rodman is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, for many years rector of Grace church, this city.

The couple will be married on June 9 in St. Andrew's church, South Orange. The ceremony will be performed by the rector, Rev. F. Creswick Todd. A reception will follow the ceremony at the Rodman home.

LABORERS ON DUNELLEN SEWER DECLARE STRIKE

One hundred laborers, mostly Italians, who have been working on the sewer trenches in Dunellen, went out on a strike this morning. The men, who are employed by H. K. Corbin and Company, the contractors, are asking for an average increase of forty cents a day.

The average pay received by the laborers at the present time is $1.60 a day and they are making demands for $2 a day. No action had been taken in the matter up to a late hour this afternoon.

TAKE POSSESSION OF OFFICES.

City Judge W. G. DeMeza and Attorney J. Henry Crane, who recently formed a partnership for the general practice of law, have taken possession of their offices in the Jeffery building at 134 Park avenue, which have been occupied by Mr. Crane for some time. Judge De Meza formerly had his offices in the Codington building, on Park avenue.

Donald McInnis, who has resided at 824 West Third street for a number of years, has removed to 324 Grant avenue.

BISHOP VISITS THREE PARISHES

Rt. Rev. Paul Matthews is Greeted Here by Large Congregations.

MANY ARE CONFIRMED

New Head of Episcopal Diocese Preaches at Holy Cross, St. Stephen's Churches and St. Mark's Mission—Receptions Follow.

Bishop Paul Matthews, of the New Jersey Episcopal Diocese, visited three local parshies yesterday, being greeted by large congregations at each one. His visit here was for confirmation principally and in each case large classes were presented to him. At the 11 o'clock service in the morning, the Bishop was at the Church of the Holy Cross, where he preached an excellent sermon, and then confirmed a class of twenty-two presented by Rev. C. H. Kues, the rector. This was the first visit of the Bishop to the borough church.

The Bishop also made his first visitation to St. Stephen's church at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The altar, illuminated with candles, was a mass of dogwood branches, against the white hangings, making a screen of particular beauty as seen in the soft light of the afternoon sun through the windows.

The Bishop preached an instructive sermon on the "True Gifts of Confirmation," and the limitations of the spiritual through the human and temporal condition of mankind and life. A class of adults and young people was confirmed. Immediately after the service the Bishop received at the rectory for an hour or more and met in a friendly manner all the members of the congregation as they were presented by the rector and the vestry of the parish. Special music was a feature of the service, pleasingly rendered by the choir, and all present left the church with the sweet melody of the anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord Where He May Be Found," as a memory of the beautiful service.

The Bishop made his third visitation at St. Mark's Mission on St. Mary's avenue, last night, being accompanied there by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and here again he preached an interesting sermon. Mr. Stevenson assisted at the service. Charles Sedgwick, lay reader of the mission, presented a class of six for confirmation. This was the first confirmation at the mission since it was set apart as such by Rector Stevenson, of Grace church. The mission is growing and Bishop Matthews took occasion last night to congratulate the members of that parish.

MAYOR WILL INQUIRE INTO MERITS OF PROPOSED BILL

In response to an invitation extended by State Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, Mayor Leighton Calkins, of this city, will probably attend a meeting to be held in Newark, May 5, at which time the Assembly resolution providing for a survey of municipal finances will be brought up for consideration.

While adverse to any move that will result in more laws relative to the regulation of municipal finances Mayor Calkins has become interested in the proposition up for consideration and intimated this morning that he intended to inquire into the merits of the resolution with a view to ascertain in what way it would effect Plainfield.

HIGH SCHOOL INSTRUCTOR TO TALK AT DINNER TONIGHT

John C. Evans, one of the members of the High School faculty, has been added to the list of speakers for the beefsteak dinner to be given tonight by the Plainfield Business Men's Association at the Ritz. Mr. Evans will speak on the relationship between the Plainfield High School commercial department and the Plainfield business men, and he will tell of some of the things that are being done to make that department more efficient.

The sale of tickets for the dinner has been good, and it is expected that seventy-five or more will be present. The other speakers will be Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, and Henry W. Herrman, of this city. The former will tell of some of the things that have been done by the merchants at the State Capital to attract business, and the latter will discuss efficiency.

The Borough Board of Health will holds its monthly meeting tonight.

CARPENTERS FAIL TO GET INCREASE

Three Hundred Mechanics Decide Not to Go to Work Today.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

As a result of the master carpenters of the city failing to grant the local journeymen an increase of fifty cents a day in wages, three hundred followers of the trade quit work at noon Saturday and remained off the various jobs today. Although the Carpenter's Union held a meeting Saturday afternoon, at which time they were ready to confer with the bosses, none of the latter appeared. Shortly before noon today, Alexander Milne, acting in behalf of the committee in operation for the master carpenters, told Business Agent William Lupger over the telephone that his committee would like to meet a similar one from the journeymen this afternoon for the purpose of talking things over. This will be the first conference the opposing sides have held, and a report of what transpires will be made to the journeymen in Trades Council Hall, a call having been made for all members to assemble at 8 o'clock.

The Master Carpenters' Association, of which John Abbott is president, met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Saturday night, and, through the secretary, L. T. Titsworth, gave out the following statement: "As a result of the meeting held Saturday night, the master carpenters of Plainfield and vicinity decided to refuse to pay any more than $4 a day for journeymen carpenters. Their decision was influenced by the fact that the price now paid, $4 per day, is the highest wage paid carpenters in the State of New Jersey."

Although there is not a great deal of local building going on at this time, the quitting of the journeymen has tied up the erection of three large buildings beside a number of good-sized residences. The larger structures on which carpentering has been suspended are the new Evergreen Avenue School, the Harrison Avenue School and the Crescent Court Apartment on East Seventh street. The contractors on the two school buildings stand ready to grant the increase if the local bosses will do so, as a hindrance of their operations will mean a considerable financial loss. At the meeting of the journeymen Saturday afternoon nothing definite was accomplished, but at another session held at 10:30 this morning, the message from Mr. Milne was reported. The men all stated their willingness to discuss the 50-cent increase, and at the same time were open in the statement that they would remain firm in the request of a daily wage of $4.50. The notification to the master carpenters was first given last November, in accordance with an agreement reached by all unions in Hudson, Essex and Union county districts. It was stipulated that May 1 would mark the day for a definite decision to be given, and the masters have had since then to think the matter over.

It was stated today that in Hudson county the increase would probably be granted, and conferences are being held in Elizabeth, Newark and other places, with a view to reaching an adjustment.

FUNERAL OF JOHN MIGDOL ATTENDED BY FRIENDS

The funeral services of John J. Migdol, of South Second street, were held this morning from the funeral parlors of P. Casey and Son, and later from St. Mary's Catholic church where a high mass of requiem was held. A large number of friends and relatives were in attendance at this service, at which Rev. Father Sciola officiated. There were a number of floral tributes, including set pieces from the Polish Falcons, Branch 281, and from the John Sobrieski Association, Mr. Migdol being a member of both of these organizations.

The bearers were representatives from the two organizations named as follows: From the Polish Falcons, Vincent Wiswinski, Walter Lalina and Walter Mise; from the John Sobrieski Association, John McDougall, Michael Karkowski and Joseph Pfiester.

MONTHLY MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of Park Avenue Baptist church will be held Friday night of this week. The Brotherhood is a new organization and G. W. V. Moy is president.

GERMAN VICTORY IN WEST GALICIA

Russian Army Has Been Crushed and is Reported to Be in Full Retreat.

TORPEDO MORE BOATS

Owners Demand Investigation of Sinking of American Vessel Gulflight—Aeroplane Chased Away From Dover.

Berlin, May 3.—The Austro-German army operating against the Russians in Western Galicia has won a great victory, it is announced in an official statement from the War Office today. According to this announcement the Russian front on the entire line in Western Galicia has been crushed by the offensive of the Austro-German army. The Russians are officially reported to be in retreat, leaving behind them enormous quantities of booty which have fallen into the hands of the Germans and Austrians. At Mitau the Russians lost 1,700 prisoners.

The German War Office also claimed progress in West Flanders, saying that the Germans occupied a farm near St. Julien. Heavy losses have been inflicted upon the French with mines in Champagne, near Prehes and Souain.

Unsuccessful French attacks have been delivered against the German position at Hartmannsweiler Kopf. A German aviator has dropped bombs upon the French city of Epinal.

Copenhagen, May 3.—The Swedish steamer Ellida was torpedoed in the North Sea by a German submarine on Sunday while en route to England. The crew was saved.

Aberdeen, Scotland, May 3.—Two British trawlers were torpedoed by German submarines off this port today.

Pittsburgh, May 3.—Declaring that the torpedoing of the oil steamer Gulflight Saturday was deliberate, and that Germany must make reparation for the ship and cargo worth $1,000,000, officers of the Gulf Refining Company, of Pittsburgh, today laid the matter before the State Department for investigation. Cable messages received by the company from survivors say that the vessel was torpedoed and that the mishap was not an accident.

Dover, England, May 3.—A German aeroplane flew over Dover at noon today. British aeroplanes ascended to the battle, but the raider escaped over the English Channel.

Paris, May 3.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"The Germans attempted two attacks with the aid of asphxyiating gas, one to the north of Ypres near St. Julien and the other south of Yres, near hill No. 60. Both were without result. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

Rome, May 3.—Count Golukowski, who arrived this morning from Vienna, will present further offers of territorial concessions to Italy along lines which Prince Von Buelow outlined to Foreign Minister Sonnino last night. Count Golukowski's mission is thought to be Austria's final effort to secure Italy's neutrality.

London, May 3.—Chancellor David Lloyd George will introduce a provisional budget in his statement to the House of Commons tomorrow based on the assumption that the war will last until the end of the financial year, on March 31, 1916, says the Daily News.

TROOP NO. 7 HONORED.

Troops Nos. 7 and 14, Boy Scouts of America, of this city, attending a large Scout rally held at the home of the West Orange Scouts, Saturday afternoon. Troop No. 7, the local colored troop, whose scoutmaster is Joseph A. Gerner, received honorable mention as second prize in the all-around competition in scoutcraft. Several hundred Scouts were present from this section of the State.

Scoutmaster Gerner also received second individual prize for making fire without matches. Troop No. 14, with Scoutmaster E. K. Powelson, witnessed the exhibition but took no part.

TO ATTEND A SOCIAL.

The members of the Plainfield Choral Society and Symphony Orchestra, which recently rendered the oratorio of "Elijah" so successfully, are invited to attend a social to be given in the Franklin School on Thursday night at 8 o'clock. An informal program is being arranged by those in charge, which will include dancing, games and other features. Refreshments will be served, and a good time is assured to all who attend.

SUFFERS SEVERE INJURY TO NOSE WHILE PLAYING

John Kepler, the six-year-old son of Marshal and Mrs. Ernest Kepler, suffered a painful injury Friday afternoon, when he was struck on the bridge of the nose with an old meat saw while playing with two chums, John and Henry Schenck, aged 8 and 7, respectively, in a vacant lot near his home, at the corner of Sanford avenue and Second street.

The saw was found in the lot and one of the Schenck boys, who picked it up, upon being asked by young Kepler to see it, in a spirit of play, threw it at him, the teeth of the saw striking his nose and laying it open to the bone.

The lad ran home and his mother summoned Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of Plainfield. The saw was rusty and grave fears of tetanus developing were entertained. All danger from this source, fortunately, appears to be passed now.

MAY DAY PARTY FOR MISS MATTOX

Miss Irene Mattox tendered a May Day party to a number of her friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Piddington, at 326 Whittier avenue, Saturday evening. The following were present: The Misses Hazel Piddington, Hannah Nelson and Stella Dohn, of New Market; Miss Edna DeHart, of New Brunswick; Miss Emaline Kessler, of Allentown, Pa.; Mrs. W. T. Piddington, Sanford Snyder, of Bound Brook; T. A. Pierce, R. F. J. Von Minden and Emile Nelson, of New Market, and Benjamin Dodwell, Russell Brakeley and William T. Piddington.

The home was decorated with apple and cherry blossoms. The women brought lunches in May baskets. The program comprised dancing, games and music. The music was furnished by a Victrola. In a series of games Miss Hazel Piddington and Sandford Snyder proved the most proficient and they were each awarded an appropriate token. The feature of the evening was the rendering of a number of selections by a quartet, composed of Benjamin Dodwell, T. A. Pierce, Russell Brakeley and W. T. Piddington, with Miss Hazel Piddington acting as accompanist.

Punch was served throughout the evening. At 11 o'clock the lunches were served with ice cream and cake as dessert. The guests departed at a late hour.

MRS. THOMAS BECK INJURED.

Mrs. Thomas Beck, of Jackson avenue, who recently underwent an operation, injured herself while attempting to move a piano at her home on Friday, and Dr. Cooley, who was summoned, manifested grave concern. The injury, fortunately, has not proven nearly as serious as was first supposed and Mrs. Beck was able to be up and about her home yesterday.

REALTY CHANGES.

The former Walter Vliet house on Front street was sold on Tuesday of last week by the present tenant, a Mr. Stevens, who moved here from Pennsylvania with his wife several months ago, to John P. Fenner. Mr. Fenner has since sold the house to Theodore W. Day, of Dunellen avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, of Front street, spent the week-end out of town visiting Mrs. Johnson's parents.

Miss Gertrude Smith, of Bayonne, is spending a few days in the borough as the guest of Mrs. George Meyers, of Prospect avenue.

Miss Hazel Piddington entertained Miss Edna DeHart, of New Brunswick, who formerly lived here, over Sunday.

Treasurer B. K. Burke, of the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company, spent the week-end at Hopewell.

The Daughters of Liberty will meet in Friendship Hall on Thursday evening.

Friendship Council is planning for a "ladies' night" to be held probably sometime in June. The program will consist of an entertainment and dancing. The committee in charge is Lester Rule, Harry Tomlinson and William Van Nuis.

VISITED WASHINGTON.

About thirty persons from this place and ten from New Market went on the Central Railroad excursion to Washington, yesterday. The excursion stopped at this station at a little after 1 o'clock yesterday morning and arrived in Washington at 7 o'clock. Returning it left Washington at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and arrived here about 9.

PROPERTY SOLD.

The recently completed house of Contractor A. H. Burdick on Washington avenue, adjoining the Dumont property, has been sold through the John Fedderman agency to Mr. and Mrs. Forman, of New York city, who will take possession about the first of June. Mrs. Forman is manager of the curtain and lace factory of Van Blaricom & Company, located in the Gallagher building. She is a daughter of Mr. Van Blaricom.

Miss Mabel Whitford, who teaches at Millbridge, spent the week-end at her home on New Market road.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mann, of Grove street, are mourning the loss of an infant daughter, who arrived yesterday morning.

Former Mayor and Mrs. William Wyckoff spent yesterday at White House visiting relatives.

CHARLES DODD ARRESTED.

Charles Dodd, alias "Moonlight Charley," was arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell in the borough hall, yesterday morning, on a charge of being drunk and was fined $2. Charley was arrested by Marshal W. H. Snyder, Saturday afternoon, while lying in the gutter along New Market road totally oblivious to his surroundings. Marshal Snyder was notified of Charley's condition and location by a pedestrian. The marshal found Charley helpless, and was obliged to hire a taxi from the Park Hotel livery to make the necessary transfer.

'Plains & Fanwood.

The members of the Mount Pleasant Social Club presented the two-act comedy, "Too Many Husbands," before a capacity audience in Excelsior Hall, Saturday night, and pleased everyone by their clever acting. The success of the affair was due in a large part to Mrs. George M. Banks, who coached the cast. William Hooper was stage manager and Everett Banks, business manager. The cast is as follows: Harry Brown, Frank Hooper; Milly Brown, Grace Melick; Mollie, Adelaide Banks; Arthur Maitland, William Hooper; Rudolph Bauer, Raymond Somlock; Colonel Thaddeus Crane, Howard Melick; Dorothy Crane, Eva Sheldon; Chauncey Chilton, Everett Banks; Jones, an expressman, James Somlock; Mrs. Sheffield, Mary Somlock; the Rev. Ormsby and O'Flynn, Clifford.

Miss Grace Hall, of Whitehouse, visited Mr. and Mrs. William Lidgate of North avenue, over the week-end.

Mrs. John R. Stevens, who has resided on Martine avenue for the past year, removed to New York on Saturday.

John Reed and family, of Bayonne, have removed to their new house on Russell road, the borough.

Paul Phillips, of New York, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Phillips, of LaGrande avenue.

Eugene Lidgate, of North avenue, has been secured to do the catching for the Hackensack Young Men's Club every Saturday. It is one of the best semi-pro teams in the Northern part of the State. Yesterday he played with the Ridgewood A. C.

The workers' service at the Episcopal church yesterday morning was largely attended, and an interesting sermon by the pastor on "Working for God" was greatly appreciated. All of the organizations connected with the church, including the Ladies' Aid Society, Women's Auxiliary and All Saints' Guild, reviewed their work for the past year, and, aside from helping a great deal in various ways, they are all in a flourishing condition. Many gathered at the church in the evening for the purpose of hearing an illustrated lecture on "Mission Heroism," by the Rev. Dr. J. R. Harding, representative of the General Mission Board. He depicted the privations and suffering the heroic missionaries underwent when they went into heathen lands to convert the inhabitants, and amply illustrated his talk with slides of different parts of the world, where the missionaries are now engaged in their work.

John Hays and wife, of Morristown, are spending some time in Scotch Plains as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hand, of Park avenue. He was formerly a resident of this place for many years, and it was from here that he enlisted to fight in the Civil War. Captain Hand and Robert Walpole were members of the same company and enlisted at the same time.

Luke C. Pandick entertained a house party of relatives and friends from New York at his home on North avenue over the week-end.

Dr. Maurice Hall was a visitor in the borough yesterday, and will return to his home, on South avenue, some time during the week, after spending the winter in New York.

An "open meeting" will be held in the local Methodist church Monday night, May 10, under the direction of the Fanwood Township Sunday School Association. The previous meetings of the same nature have been successes, as it is expected the coming one will be. After considerable work Rutger Neilson, secretary of the association, has secured the Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, to talk on "Teacher Training," and the Rev. George H. Trull, of Elizabeth, will lecture on "The Value of Missions in the Religious Education."

Mrs. William H. Demler, who has been very ill at her home on Valley Road, is convalescing. Mrs. Demler when at lunch about three weeks ago a crust of bread lodged in her throat. A doctor was immediately called, but could find no trace of the bread. The sharp point of the crust had irritated the throat and caused inflammation of the throat, from which she has been suffering ever since.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Mantz have closed their house on Craig place, the borough, and are living in "Krikbrae."

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Hose, of Newark, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Kutz on Sunday.

Miss Adelaide Carter, of Nutley, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Fetherston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. McWade, of "Traumerie Villa," entertained several guests over the week-end.

Mebane Ramsay preached at both morning and evening services in Wilson chapel yesterday. At the morning service Mr. Ramsay preached on "Christ and His Mother." There was special music, including selections by the choir, solos by Mrs. Charles E. Spier, appropriate for "Mother's Day," which was observed. Mr. Ramsay's evening sermon was "Alpha and Onega vs. the Beginning and the End." The girls' chorus rendered an anthem "The Man of Galilee." Mr. Ramsay leaves this week for Omaha for three weeks.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon.

Martin A. Korff will lecture tomorrow evening on "The Four Great Wars of American History" in the Improvement Hall. The illustrated lecture will be accompanied by music.

Sunday school in Wilson chapel will begin at 9:15 a. m. instead of 2:45 p. m. next Sunday to continue through the summer months.

Miss Edith T. Kutz, of Newark, spent Sunday with her parents here.

The stage operated by Charles Alpaugh between New Germantown and Whitehouse Station was wrecked in a runaway accident at the latter place Friday. While taking on freight at the New Jersey Central Depot the team became frightened at a locomotive, when the driver was on the freight station platform, and started up. The horses ran only a short distance before the top of the stage came in contact with a tree, tearing off the top of the wagon. The force of the impact caused the horses to break loose from the stage, and they ran a short distance before they were caught. The team was not injured, and there was no one in the stage when the runaway occurred.

OBSERVE WOMAN SUFFRAGE DAY

Woman Suffrage Day, which is now celebrated throughout the country on the first Saturday in May, was signalled in Plainfield by the appearance of a large banner entitled "Votes for Women—New Jersey Next," suspended in the middle of Front street.

The banner brought to the public mind tht something was stirring among the Suffragists of the town, and in the evening a large audience listened to speeches given at Central avenue and Front street from the automobile of Arthur B. Jones. The speakers were Miss Eva Ward, Mrs. Wittmer and Champlain L. Riley.

Miss Ward dealt with the legislative situation with regard to the Read act fixing special elections, which has necessitated the calling of a special session at Trenton today owing to its irregularities. Some sixty odd bills, she claimed, had passed the Legislature this last session only to be rejected owing to the irregularity with which they were drawn. It was possible that if the women of New Jersey helped the men choose the legislators in the future men might be selected who understood their job better.

Miss Ward went on to read from a leaflet recently issued by the liquor dealers in Massachusetts, and argued that in a democratic country it was not possible to exclude people from voting because some special interest feared it might lose out.

"The Suffragists are not attacking the liquor dealers, but the liquor dealers are attacking the Suffragists," said Miss Ward, "and are using their vast funds against them. You have to choose between liquor dealers and Suffragists. Which of the two are right in principle and which are the true friends of the people?"

Champlain L. Riley said that now the question was before the voters, all men who believe in justice must vote for suffrage. Mrs. Wittmer said that men were the only representatives women have, and that every voter must expect to be approached by the women who were so vitally interested in the question of their own rights. An interested audience stayed until after 10 o'clock, when the meeting was brought to a close.

LOCUST TREES.

They Are Very Easy to Raise and Yield Valuable Timber

No wood is easier or more quickly grown than the common locust, and but few if any kinds of timber are more valuable to their owners at this time of need in lumber that has a commercial value.

Curiously enough locust trees will grow in almost any soil. They are easily started and can be transplanted without danger of loss. They also may be grown in out of the way or waste places where the soil is unfit for cultivation, and they grow so rapidly that in a few years a locust grove will have trees that are large enough to be made into posts for fencing or lumber for furniture or house finishing.

Locusts bear the most honey laden flower carried by any tree extensively grown in America, and where there are plenty of locusts and bees in the same community there will be a heavy yield of honey.

Locust posts have been known to remain in the ground for fencing purposes for a period of sixty years, and when removed the bark was not decayed, and the wood was almost as solid as iron.

The latest use for locust is in the manufacture of fine furniture and interior finishing of fine residences. The wood has a grain and color not found in any other timber.—New York Journal.

Same Old Stuff.

"Black specks dance before my eyes, doctor," complained the society patient.

"That is very annoying and monotonous."

"Yes. They never have any new dances."—Kansas City Journal.

As to Jarley.

"That man Jarley is without any exception the most inaccurate man I ever knew," said Dobson. "Tell me, Jones, does he ever get anything right?"

"Oh, yes," replied Jones. "Anything that is left Jarley will always get right."—Judge.

COP HAD CLOSE SHAVE IN ARRESTING BARBER

Dunellen Man Taken Into Custody for Sunday Opening.

Vincenzo Tozze, the Dunellen barber, was arrested yesterday morning by Marshals Mohan and Shugars for having his barber-shop open on Sunday.

Tozze is said to have opened his shop at 8 o'clock, and according to Marshal Shugar's time-piece the marshals walked into his shop at 8:15, while Thomas Groves, who hails from New Market and is employed six days during the week by Street Commissioner Isaac V. Smalley, was in the chair. The marshals seated themselves in chairs until Tozze had completed his operation on the person of the aforesaid Groves and then Marshal Shugars advanced with the announcement that he intended to arrest Tozze for violating a borough ordinance. This occurred, according to Officer Shugars at 8:20 o'clock, or 2½ minutes after the marshals had entered Tozze's parlors.

Inside of the next ten seconds an exciting scene occurred. A second after having delivered his proclamation Marshal Shugars had placed his hand upon Proprietor Tozze's shoulder and inside of the next second Tozze had lunged forward and smitten the marshal's face twice, once with his left hand and the other time with his right. The marshal stepped back and drew his billy and with flushed countenance stepped forward to use it when Marshal Mohan intervened Marshal Mohan then grabbed Tozze and he was shortly behind the bars in the borough jail.

When arraigned before Judge Von Minden and Recorder Campbell in the borough hall two hours later, Tozze was charged of assault and battery and for violating a borough ordinance. Tozze pleaded not guilty to the first charge. In pleading to the second charge Tozze said that in one way he was guilty and in another way he was not. The hearing was set for 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and Tozze was released under a bond of $100, which was furnished by his brother, Raffey Tozze, of Plainfield.

After his case had been temporarily disposed of Tozze wanted to swear out warrants for the arrests of Paul Ratti, the local fruit dealer, and Ambrose Egidio, the bootblack, both of whose places are open on Sunday, charging that they were as guilty as he was. Campbell informed Tozze that he could appear before him at 8 o'clock this morning and swear out the warrants.

The case it seems has arisen out of hard feelings existing between Tozze and Ratti. Tozze has been riled for sometime over the fact that he has been obliged to keep closed on Sunday, while Ratti has been allowed to keep open. He has addressed several communications to the Council on the matter. In his last communication he served notice on the Council that unless Ratti's place was closed that he would open his place for business and he carried out his threat yesterday.

Yesterday morning was the first time that a barber-shop has been open in the borough on Sunday since an ordinance relating to Sunday closing was enacted during Mayor Sandford's administration. This ordinance was enacted on November 14, 1910, and took effect on December 1. The fruit stores were closed along with the barber-shops for a time, but later they were permitted to open. The ordinance, it seems, permits places that sell milk and serve food to be open on Sunday.

The serving of ice cream is the principle business conducted by the local fruit stores on Sunday. In justification of the stand that the borough officials have taken on the matter to date a prominent official, yesterday, cited the case in which the Supreme Court of the State held that ice cream was a food. It is said that John H. Tier was fined for violating a city ordinance by selling ice cream on Sunday and he forthwith appealed and won his case.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To:
John J. Carney and Mabel Carney, his wife.
Adelaide Austin and Arthur Austin, her husband.

By virtue of an Order of the Court of Chancery made on the day of the date hereof in a cause wherein, J. Herbert Case, Substituted Administrator, &c., is Complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the Bill of said Complaint on or before the twenty-first day of June, next, or said bill will be taken as confessed against you. The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by David J. Carney, late of the Borough of North Plainfield, County of Somerset and State of New Jersey, to J. Herbert Case, Substituted Administrator of the Estate of Samuel A. Wallace, deceased, dated June 11th, 1903, for Thirteen Hundred Dollars, covering lands in the Borough of North Plainfield, County of Somerset and State of New Jersey; and you, JOHN J. CARNEY and ADELAIDE AUSTIN are made defendants because you are the nephew and niece respectively of the said David J. Carney, deceased, who was an unmarried man and departed this life intestate on the Seventeenth day of March, Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen, and have an interest in said property as next of kin and heirs at law of the said David J. Carney, deceased; and you, MABEL CARNEY and ARTHUR AUSTIN, are made defendants because you are the wife and husband respectively of the said John J. Carney and Adelaide Austin, and thereby may claim some interest in the said premises.

BRYANT'S POETIC CAREER.

Two Facts About His Greatest Work, "Thanatopsis."

Bryant was nearly twenty-three years old when "Thanatopsis" was first printed in the North American Review. So much has been said about the astounding precocity of this poet and so many errors have accumulated around the publication of his masterpiece that it may be well to state the facts.

We know just two facts about this work. First, it was published when Bryant was almost twenty-three—not young for a poetic genius; second, that in its original published form in the North American Review it is not a remarkable poem.

It was in the 1821 edition of Bryant's poems, when the author was twenty-six or twenty-seven, that the work first appeared in its universally known form. Only a few minor changes were made after that date. This disposes of the generally accepted statement that "Thanatopsis" is a juvenile masterpiece.

Bryant was, however, a precocious poet, although his precocity is not displayed in his greatest work. One of the most extraordinary facts about his poetical career is that he actually published verse during the administration of Thomas Jefferson and during the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes. So long a period and so slender an output speak well for his fastidious taste. —North American Review.

ARMS OF ANTWERP.

They Recall the Queer Custom That Gave the City Its Name.

Historians relate that Antwerp takes its name from a castle which in Frankish times marked the site of the city. This castle was built to protect the entrance to the Scheldt and to prevent foreign traders introducing goods into the country without paying toll to the sovereign lord.

The penalty for theft and smuggling was in those days the cutting off of a hand, and, as in this case the severed members were thrown into the Scheldt, the castle came to be known as Andhunerbo—or, in Flemish, Antwerpen—"the place of hand throwing." The castle and two severed hands appear on the city arms to this day.

Antwerp cathedral's tapering spire was once compared by Charles V. to mechlin lace. The towers of the old Steen castle, the fortress palace of the former counts of Antwerp, break the center of the line of docks and look as stolid and formidable as in the days when the castle was necessary to guard the shipping. Here were held those great fairs which during the middle ages served to attract merchants from all parts of the civilized world.—London Standard.

Trial by Jury.

The New York Law Journal says on the subject of trial by jury:

"While we do not think that trial by jury ought to be abolished or that there is any increasing sentiment in that direction, we do believe that the system should be modified by dispensing with the requirement for unanimous verdicts. This would obviate the element of individual eccentricity as an impediment to the administration of justice. Mental idiosyncrasy on the part of judges is constantly exhibited and scarcely excites comment. An eminent and very able judge will dissent from the ruling of his associates when it is extremely difficult to understand how so gifted a mind could have gone off on that particular tangent. By permitting affirmances or reversals, notwithstanding dissent, the personal equation is eliminated."

Modeled After an Ancient Tomb.

The temple of the Scottish rite in Washington is a handsome white marble structure about 150 feet square and rises to a height of 150 feet above the street level. At either side of the main entrance is an immense marble sphinx. A row of tall ionic columns surrounds the second story. The architects followed closely the design of the ancient tomb of King Mausolus, which stood in Halicarnassus and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was built by the wife of the king and was decorated with hundreds of wonderful statues. This old tomb became so famous that many buildings were modeled after it, but this is the only structure in America in which the design has been used.

In Biology.

Teacher—John, how can you tell the dogwood tree?

John—By its bark.

And his answer was correct, even if it did cause a laugh.

Another bright answer captured in biology:

Teacher—What animal supplies us with ham?

John—The butcher.—Chicago Herald.

PATROLMAN ADDED A PIECE OF LEAD TO THIEF'S MEAL

Charles Hall, of 915 Watchung avenue, telephoned to police headquarters at 3:15 yesterday morning, stating that someone was in his chicken coop and Captain Flynn dispatched Patrolman Roy E. Martin to the scene.

The policeman found a big raccoon feasting on six chickens which he had killed. A bullet from Martin's gun put an end to the animal's festival. The reccoon was an unusually large specimen of this breed of animal and Martin has turned him over to Kirk Wiggins, a taxidermist, to have it stuffed.

STATE MEETING HERE.

The colored real estate men of New Jersey will meet in this city Decoration Day at 148 North avenue for the purpose of discussing various phases of the work. Those expected are W. R. Lomax, of East Orange; William E. Jackson, of Montclair; A. R. Mayo, of Jersey City; William Woodson, of East Orange; J. W. Hudspeth, of East Orange; W. R. Burden, of Camden; Robert Jetter, of East Orange; E. W. Ball, of East Orange, and a representative from the East Orange colored Y. M. C. A.

BANK WINS.

Washington, May 31.—The United States Supreme Court today denied a petition for a writ of certiorari sought by the city of New York against the Third National Bank of Jersey City. The case grew out of the payment of installments upon a municipal contract for street cleaning and furnishing scows—to the street cleaning department of New York. The effect of the denial will be to affirm the decision of the lower court, which was adverse to the city.

ELECT MARTIN SNYDER.

Martin Snyder, of the College League of the Y. M. C. A. has been elected president of the newly organized Boys' Council by a vote of the members of the boys' department. The voting was exceedingly close, Snyder getting 25 and his opponent, Howard Willett, polling 24. Benjamin Doane was chosen vice-president and Max Fullerton secretary and treasurer.

CHILD WELFARE.

The Plainfield Federation of Child Welfare Organizations will meet in the Library of the Plainfield High School on Wednesday, May 5, at 3 p. m. This will probably be the last meeting until fall.

Traditions of Sandwich.

Sandwich is the hub of the universe—of golf. In times medieval it was one of England's five gates, through which passed heroes and saints, priests and kings. Here it was that King Arthur set out to play the emperor of Rome with Excalibur, and here on his return Guinevere welcomed him. St. Paul, says tradition, landed at Sandwich, but it is history that marks it as the landing place of St. Augustine. Picts and Scots were here beaten back by the army of the eastern Julian, and Theodosius landed to repel the Saxons. Becket escaped from England via Sandwich to France. Here Richard I. landed after his Austrian imprisonment and John, king of France, came as a prisoner of the black prince.—London Chronicle.

Tart Retort.

Of Lord Jeffreys, noted for his heartless cruelty, it is recorded when he was chief justice he had a witness before him whose evasive answers aroused the judge's ire. The witness wore an exceedingly long and bushy beard. Said Jeffreys, "If your conscience is as large as your beard you'll swear anything." Unabashed, the witness retorted, "If your lordship measures consciences by beards your lordship has none at all."

Your Chances.

The little chances linger and return, but the great chances come and go and never come again. If we could look back over the lives of the people by whom we are surrounded how many great and rich opportunities would we see that they have permitted to drift by them unimproved!

ST. JOSEPH'S SOCIAL HALL WILL BE OPENED TONIGHT

Although the main portion of the program will be given over to euchre and "500," the entertainment which is to be given tonight at St. Joseph's church, will offer many other diversions for those who do not play. Music will be provided by Paroubek's orchestra for those who wish to dance, while a number of local young people will render vocal selections. Many handsome prizes have been donated for the event and there will no doubt be close play for the awards.

The affair will be held in the basement of the church, which has been thoroughly renovated, and will be used as a social centre for church entertainments and meetings in the future.

PERSONAL.

B. T. Barnes, formerly of this city, where he was engaged in the candy business, but now of New York, spent Sunday in Plainfield with friends.

Mrs. John Butler, of West Sixth street, is detained at her home by illness.

Norman K. Barnes, of the West End, who recently underwent a serious operation at Muhlenberg Hospital for the removal of gall stones, has returned home and is much improved.

Fred Dixon and family, of 310 Grant avenue, have removed to 805 West Fourth street.

Mrs. John T. Baker, of Stelle avenue, left today for Easthampton, Long Island, where she will spend some time.

A. I. Smalley, of this city, who has spent the winter on his orange grove in Florida, is visiting for a time in this city.

F. W. Bird, of Westervelt avenue, has returned home after spending some time at Lovejoy, Pa.

Mr. Horton and family, of 1,215 Arlington avenue, have removed to 802 East Second street.

TOOK LEADER'S EXAMS.

Ten members of the Boys' Leader Corps of the Y. M. C. A. took the national leader's examinations Friday afternoon. The "exams" were given for the second years leaders work. Tests were given in gymnastic ability, squad leading, dumb bell drilling and gymnastic nomenclature. The following boys took the tests: Howard Willett, Martin Snyder, Charles Gates, Joe Angerbauer, Russell Tomlinson, Harold Wilson, Benjamin Doane, George Feaster, Walter Brown and James Brownlee.

DOCK WORKERS STRIKE.

New York, May 3.—Several hundred dock workers went on strike at the Bush Terminal, South Brooklyn, today. In place of the customary activity in loading and unloading of steamers the men stood about in groups discussing reported troubles with the management. At the offices of the Bush Company it was said that there was some difficulty between the company and its employes at the Terminal but the nature of the trouble was not known.

ARRESTED A SUSPECT.

Michael Caupoattano, of Cottage place, was arrested at 1 o'clock Sunday morning by Patrolman John Neylon. He was caught coming from the Meyers Coal Yard on East Second street and will be arraigned in police court tomorrow morning to face a charge of stealing the fuel. He was released today under $25 bail.

ARREST WIFE-BEATER.

Charged with beating his wife, John McCormack, of 245 East Second street, was arrested Saturday night, and was this morning remanded to a cell to be brought before Judge DeMeza in the morning.

COURT DID NOT CONVENE.

Out of respect to the memory of Patrolman Mathew Vanderweg, whose funeral was held this morning, Judge William G. DeMeza postponed all police court cases until tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT RETURNS.

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson returned to the White House this morning, after a week-end visit to Williamstown, Mass.

The Women's Missionary Circle of the First Baptist church will hold an all-day sewing meeting tomorrow and lunch will be served at noon under the direction of the entertainment committee.

MANY CANDIDATES SEEK APPOINTMENT

No Less Than Five Patrolmen Want to Be Made Sergeant.

It is expected that the Common Council, at its May meeting tonight, will adopt, on final reading, the amendment to the police ordinance, and then, as soon as Mayor Leighton affixes his signature, it will become a law. The amended ordinance provides for a somewhat new ranking in the police department, making the present roundsmen sergeants, and creating the new position of lieutenant, which, it is expected, will be filled by Maurice Higgins.

There are, in addition, two men who will become sergeants, Andrew Saffron and Charles Flynn, and there is still a third to be named. This has resulted in considerable rivalry, for there are a number of candidates, including Patrolmen John Kelly, Arthur McGinley, James Saunders, Dennis O'Keefe and Tobias Nolen. If Mayor Calkins and the Police Board have decided on the man who is to get the appointment they have not intimated the fact as yet.

There is now another vacancy in the force to be filled caused by the death last week of Patrolman Martin Vanderweg, who had been an officer for twenty-two years. There is one man available for the job, John Wirth, who was one of the four candidates who successfully passed the examination. The other three, Samuel Kriney, Raymond Strayer and Joseph Dunlap, have been appointed, and they will begin their service on June 1, serving six months on probation. If found satisfactory they will expect to be made regulars at the expiration of that time.

HOME-MADE PIE REMINDS CHIEF OF HIS NATAL DAY

An extra large home-made pie placed on his plate at dinner time reminded Fire Chief T. O. Doane that today was his seventy-first birthday. He spent the anniversary day much the same as he does any other event taking his usual run at a small blaze on Park avenue this afternoon. Aside from being possessed of an unusually large appetite, probably caused by the pastry coming from Mrs. Doane's culinary department, the chief says that he feels exactly the same as he does on "ordinary" days.

The fact that his natal day is May 3 became generally known in the department this morning and the laddies offered their congratulations. He is unusually popular as a leader and this was never more in evidence than it was this morning. Besides being well known here, this year being his fiftieth as a fire fighter, he is well known throughout the State.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Mr. Early went to Trenton, Saturday, for the purpose of attending the meeting of the New Jersey Association of Mathematicians.

Those students who are expecting to compete for the cash prize offered by the Harvard Club should see that their names are forwarded by Mr. Earley to the secretary before June 1.

The following events in the Somerset county field day have been announced open to members of the High School: A 100 yard dash for boys over fifteen years of age, and another class for those younger. A one-eighth mile for all-comers, and a potato race for girls, no age limit.

Miss Margaret Eaton, formerly a student at North Plainfield High School, acted as a committee of one to address the school this morning for the purpose of drumming up trade for the Plainfield High School Senior play.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A birthday party was given to Miss May Currin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Currin, of 943 Arlington avenue, Friday afternoon, in honor of her second natal day. The young lady was the hostess to a number of her friends, who spent the time in playing games and singing. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

RASORES MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Rasores will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. L. N. Lovell, Crescent avenue. The payment of duies will be in order.

FIRE SETTLEMENT.

C. H. Lawrence, whose house at South Plainfield was destroyed by fire a few days ago, received $3,000 from Frederick A. Martin Co. today in settlement of his loss.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Lutheran Church will hold its monthly meeting at the residence of Mrs. John Borman, 317 East Second street, on Thursday, May 6, at 2:30 o'clock.

The five-part photo-play, "The Man Who Found Himself," based upon the drama variously called "The Mills of the Gods" and "The Coward," when it was successfully produced a few years ago, is being shown at Proctor's Theatre today and tomorrow. George Broadhurst was the author. What "G. H. B." doesn't and didn't know about dramatic construction is not worth knowing. Robert Warwick, admittedly the greatest motion picture actor now before the public, has an ideal part in the drama—one that combines all the good opportunities that were given him in "The Man of the Hour," "The Dollar Mark," "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and other notable film plays. As James Clarke, a thieving cashier in the power of an acquaintance, Payton, who blackmails him, he has the immense problem of finding himself, of retrieving himself in the eyes of the law, and in those of the girl who loves him. He is sent to prison and escapes, and then his real troubles begin. The blackmailer still pursues him and finally when he twits his victim with cowardice, Clarke, secure in the love of his sweetheart, voluntarily returns to jail to serve the balance of his sentence. Here is a strong, consistent, logical story around which the author, Broadhurst, flung plenty of exciting incidents and action. The drama in fact is full, from start to finish, of sensations and bold character drawing, such a one in fact as holds your attention from the minute it starts until its completion. The production is on the same lavish scale as with other World Film features. Nothing is stinted or scamped. And the photography, always a strong part of these features, will meet with general approval. "The Man Who Found Himself" belongs to that class of production which justifies a motion picture exhibitor in raising his prices to the public.

MAY 3RD IN HISTORY.

1491—Mahomet II, sultan of Turkey, died. He took Constantinople from the Christians, driving men of learning into the west, where learning was revived.

1493—Pope issued a bull dividing the infidel world between Spain and Portugal. Spaniards given full rights to new discoveries west of the Azores and the Portuguese to have all east of that longitude.

1568—Dominique de Gourges completed his massacre of Spaniards in Florida, in retaliation of a previous massacre of French settlers, sailed for France.

TALES OF ATROCITIES.

Of late the tales of atrocities on or near the battlefields of Europe have threatened to rival even those current early in the war soon after the invasion of Belgium. Tileston Wells, executive chairman of the Servian Agricultural Relief Committee, is quoted as asserting in Washington the other day that 3,000 women, children and old men were killed in Servia by Austrian troops during the first invasion, that the women were outraged, and that some women and children were burned alive. Even in the House of Lords the other day General Kitchener gravely declared that British prisoners of war in Germany had been insulted, stripped, maltreated in various ways, and in some instances shot down in cold blood.

As it is not possible either to affirm or deny these charges and the hundreds of others that have preceded them, charges made by both the Allies and the Germans, there is nothing for neutrals to do but suspend judgment until such time as fact has been sifted from fiction. Meanwhile the reflecting observer is inclined to make allowances for the very human tendency toward exaggeration, particulary when both fear and hate are aroused. Perhaps even the deliberate and scheming liar is gifted with a less nimable imagination than that of the excited and anxious patriot.

In order to be convinced of this we need only to recall some of the incredible stories told on both sides during our war of 1861-65. Myth-making flourished prodigiously at a time when it was asserted in the North that the Southern Confederates were drinking from goblets made out of the skulls of Union soldiers and when Southeners unblushingly informed the youthful and ignorant that Yankees had horns. The recollection of the fabrication and wide acceptance of such absurdities in our own country will incline fair-minded persons to discount the charges of savagery so freely made against both the Germans and the Allies.

Although it is true enough that civilization to a considerable extent is but a thin veneer, it is difficult to believe that any great number of the soldiers of Christian Europe have degenerated into wild beasts, without any restraint whatsoever from their officers, or that any one of the warring nations has deliberately trampled on all the rules of civilized war.

Judge Daniel H. Beekman's refusal to grant two more retail liquor licenses in North Plainfield will have the endorsement of a large number of the men and women in the borough. There is no more need for more places over the brook than there is a need for additional places in Plainfield where liquor can be purchased. According to the newspapers it was intimated in court that because women protested against there being granted they should be issued. There are already enough places both sides of the brook where liquor can be procured, and they are well conducted by men who should be shown that so long as they behave themselves they will be given every incentive to continue with unnecessary competition. The Plainfield idea of few saloons and high license works as near to perfection as it will ever be possible to bring the business.

In the cities where commission government has been adopted there are of course some people who say that the old way is the best, but the National Short Ballot Bulletin shows that the majority of the people, when the question is put up to them do not want to return to the old method. The latest move to restore aldermanic government has been decisively beaten in Huron South Dakota, by a vote of 732 to retain the commission, against 262 against it. Similar attempts, always unsuccessful, have been made in Spokane, Wash; Baker, Ore.; San Diego, Cal., and Hutchinson, Kan.

Perhaps Judge Connolly was thinking about the way in which the Legislature let down the bars to a lot of questionable osteopaths when he gave a fake practitioner a thirty day sentence on Friday. When the Trenton example before him, no one would have blamed the judge if he had let the man off.

It is certainly to be hoped that the carpenters and the bosses will satisfactorily adjust their differences regarding the wage schedule. It would be most regrettable were the walkout to continue and a large number of men be unemployed for a long while, after the inactivity of the winter.

Billy Sunday's influence is certainly being felt in Plainfield. He is the favorite topic at nearly every place where men and women gather, and the sermons which he has inspired in the city would fill a mighty interesting book.

The Carnegie Hero Fund has made fifty-two more awards for heroism. Through some oversight they have missed the man who gave up his commission on that new fire engine so the city could get it cheaper.

There are a lot of pictures of circus acrobats posted on the billboards about town, but none of them have anything on Rae Tanzer when she starts making affidavits.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL CHANGES MEETING TIME.

Following a lengthy session of the officers and teachers of the Bible School of Trinity Reformed church, yesterday afternoon, it was voted to change the hour of the Bible School session beginning May 16 and continuing until November 1 from 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon to 9:45 o'clock in the morning. This, it is believed, will be sufficient time to determine whether the change is popular.

Miss Helen Smith resigned as superintendent of the beginners' department, being succeeded by Miss Winifred Rapalje, while Miss Mabel Wilson, who resigned as superintendent of the junior department to become instructor of the Teacher Training Class, will be succeeded by Miss Lena Bohan. The constitution was revised and laid over for action at a future meeting. It was decided to hold the annual excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday, August 12.

P. H. S. SENIOR PLAY CAST IS ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

The Plainfield High School senior class play "Trelawny of the Wells," to be given in the Plainfield High School auditorium next Saturday night is fast nearing perfection. Miss Sminck and Harold F. Biddle, coaches, have issued a notice that rehearsals of the whole play will be given every day this week to put on the final touches.

If the way the tickets were reserved last Saturday morning can be taken as a criterion, the house will be packed.

TIME TO BALK.

The Chinaman Thought the Missionary Was Going Too Far.

Dr. Frank Garrett, who has been a missionary to China for the last seventeen years, says that the first thing you have to do is to get the Chinese viewpoint. Like many of their customs, it seems to us upside down. In the United States if you call a man a liar you are likely to get into serious trouble. In China the man would be rather complimented than insulted.

A missionary had established a little church somewhere in the interior and put a native preacher in charge while he visited some other mission points. When he returned he missed one young man from the congregation. The native preacher said they had put him out of the church.

"Why, what was the matter? What did he do?" asked the missionary.

"He stole a bamboo rod," returned the preacher.

"Why," answered the missionary, "a bamboo rod is worth only about 10 cents. Don't you think you were a little severe?"

"No, no," and he shook his head indignantly. "We can't have a thief in the church. The Bible says a thief can't go to heaven, and we couldn't have any one in the church who couldn't go to heaven. Besides, it would give us a bad name in the community."

"Well," returned the missionary, "the Bible says a liar can't go to heaven. Are you going to turn the liars out too?"

"Oh," cried the preacher, "that's different! Entirely different! We all lie."—Youth's Companion.

OLD TIME MANNERS.

Rules of Good Behavior In the Early Eighteenth Century.

In a work entitled "Youth's Behavior," published in 1706, there is this injunction to young gentlemen, "Put off thy Cap or Hat to persons of Desert as are Churchmen, Justices and the like, turning the Cap or Hat to thy selfwards; making a Reverence, bowing thyself more or less according to the custom of the better bred."

In the midst of remarks which indicate the utmost refinement we come suddenly upon such directions as this:

"'Tis not manners as soon as you are set at Table to bawl out, 'I eat none of this, I eat none of that, I care for no Rabbit; I love nothing that tastes of Pepper, Nutmeg, Onyons,'" etc.

After stating that "some have been so refined in Foreign parts that they will neither be covered, nor sit with their backs to the picture of an eminent Person," the writer goes on to remark that "there are some who eat with that eagerness and impatience, they eat themselves out of breath and will pant like a broken winded Horse, but these are not to be indured."

He also warns his pupil thus:

"When you are talking to any one do not Continually punch him in the side, as some people do; who, after every sentence keep asking the person they are conversing with, 'Did I not tell you so?' 'What say you, sir?' and in the meantime they are every moment jogging and thrusting him with their elbows, which cannot be considered as a mark of respect."

Lincoln Among Other Men.

Some years ago a series of pictures was printed showing Lincoln in many attitudes, either alone or in company with statesmen or military men in Washington or in camp. Attention was called by the writer, who had assembled the pictures, to the singular isolation and dignity of Lincoln when taken with any group of men. They, almost without exception, showed that they were conscious of observation, attitudes were studies, and the effort to look well in the picture was often evident. No matter in what company he was, the president seemed not to be conscious either of the artist, of himself or of the men who surrounded him. He stood or sat alone, as if he were an impersonal figure representing native strength and unique sublimity of character.—Christian Register.

A Cautious Reply.

At West Point they tell a story of a man known as Ginger, on account of the peculiar color of his hair, who graduated at the foot of his class after six years at the Point.

Ginger distinguished himself while reciting to an instructor in ordnance by a remarkable answer to the question "How many pieces will a twelve pound shell burst into?" the average number having been determined well by experiment. After due reflection Ginger lifted his eyes to those of the instructor and replied:

"Not less than two."—New York Times.

ARMY OFFENDERS.

Punishments They Underwent In England In Olden Days.

BRUTALITY WAS THE RULE.

One of the Mildest of the Inflictions Was Drumming the Culprit Out of Camp and This Was Attended With Branding and Humiliation.

In times happily gone by discipline in the British army was maintained by methods the majority of which can only be described as vindictive, tyrannical and even brutal in severity. It is doubtful if the savages of the dark ages could have conceived more revolting penalties than some which were inflicted by courts martial, and even by commanding officers on their own responsibility, in former times.

The voluntary sufferings of the saints, the tortures of the religious orders of olden days, pale before the cruelty involved in the various forms of death penalty, the riding of the wooden horse, picketing, running the gantlet, branding and flogging. It is comforting that these punishments have gradually succumbed to the force of public opinion and the progress of civilization.

Drumming out of the army—or trumpeting, as it was called in the cavalry and artillery—was of a different character. It was vindictive, unnecessarily so, but not brutal or even painful. It was quaint and at the present day might almost have been considered theatrical. The prisoner, handcuffed, was brought from the guardroom to the parade ground under escort. The crime of which he had been found guilty and the sentence of the court martial, were read aloud by the adjutant, he was to be degraded, branded as a bad character, discharged from the service with ignominy and to suffer a term of imprisonment with hard labor.

In the process of degradation the buttons, braid, badges, facings and even the medal which he had earned were stripped from his tunic. Then came the branding. There is nothing necessarily degrading in branding. All recruits in the Roman army, for instance, were branded on final approval, but its infliction as a punishment is another matter altogether, and not so easily defended. It was apparently a custom peculiar to the British army. During the reign of George I. deserters were "stigmatized on the forehead." At a later period in history they were branded on the left side two inches below the armpit, and later generally on the arm.

The tattooing was applied with a brass instrument containing a series of needle points, the punctures made by which were rubbed with a composition of pulverized indigo, India ink and water. It was administered by the drum major under the supervision of the medical officer in the presence of the regiment on parade, and, in justice to the authorities, it must be admitted that it was accomplished with as little pain as possible.

Further than that there is little that can be urged in its justification. Branding was a relic of bad times and carried something revolting to humanity along with it. Any indelible stigma or brand of infamy is a fearful punishment. For one thing, the infliction was completely irremissible. It could be removed neither by repentance nor by any subsequent period of good conduct. To brand a soldier and then discharge him from the service, as in this case, was to turn him adrift in the world with greatly impaired means of earning an honest livelihood.

Hunger frequently urges its victims to follow dishonest courses, and what else could be expected from a branded and discharged soldier, precluded from all honest means of future support? It was a cowardly and vindictive form of punishment, since its infliction could neither promote the amendment of the offender nor render him more subordinate.

The last scene in the drama of drumming out of the army was perhaps the quaintest. The regiment being formed in line, with a sufficient interval between the front and rear ranks, the prisoner was escorted down the ranks, followed by the band playing what was known as the "Rogue's March." In this manner he was practically turned out of barracks, the escort finally marching him to the military prison to undergo his sentence of hard labor. In cases where a man was discharged with ignominy without imprisonment, his exit from the barracks was not infrequently accompanied by a kick from the youngest drummer. Formerly he was conducted by the drummers of the regiment through the streets of the camp or garrison, with a halter round his neck and a written label containing the particulars of his crime.—Chambers' Journal.

What Was It, Then?

"I don't see why you call your place a bungalow," said Smith to his neighbor.

"Well, if it isn't a bungalow, what is it?" said the neighbor. "The job was a bungle and I still owe for it."—Ladies' Home Journal.

POLICEMEN HONOR DEPARTED COMRADE

Platoon of Officers Escort Body of Patrolman Vanderweg to Cemetery.

One of the most impressive funeral services that have taken place in this city in many years was that conducted in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock this morning when the last sad rites were said over the body of Patrolman Martin Vanderweg, whose death occurred at his home on West Fourth street, last Friday morning following a third stroke of paralysis. A solemn high mass was said by Rev. Father Bogan in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends that included almost the entire membership of the Plainfield police force. There were also numerous officials and dignitaries who had been warm friends of the officer during his long term of service.

In the course of the obsequies Father Bogan took occasion to pay a tribute to the man who had always regarded his duty first and himself second. Not only was he faithful in his pledge to the people but he was also absolutely conscientious at all times to his home and to his church. His demise was one which caused extreme regret throughout the municipality and the pastor extended words of sympathy to the bereaved wife and son.

When the funeral cortege starte for St. Mary's cemetery, where burial was made, a squad of six policemen in charge of Roundsman Charles Flynn wearing full uniform and with shields draped, acted as pall bearers. These were Martin and Thomas Flatley, Richard Birmingham, John Hendershot, Dennis O'Kefe and Tobias Nolan. The hearse was preceded by a platoon of sixteen full uniformed officers in charge of Roundsman Andrew Safforn, and marshalled by Police Chief P. S. Kiely, Captain John Flynn and Sergeant Maurice Higgins. The detachment acted as honorary escort. Among those who attended the service were Mayor Leighton Calkins, City Judge William G. DeMeza and Councilman John H. Cose, the latter representing the Police Board.

The floral tributes were so numerous as to require a barouche for removal from the church to the cemetery. They included set pieces from the Patrolman's Benevolent Association, from the police department as a whole, and the family and relatives.

Patrolman Vanderweg was the fourth member of the local police force to die while engaged in active duty. The others were Captain George W. Grant, Patrolman Quass, and Sergeant Herbert L. Overbaugh. Another member of the force, Patrolman Frank Sweeney, is critically ill in a New York hospital, having been off duty since last December.

A. C. ESTES SPEAKS AT YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE

Alfred C. Estes, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was the speaker at a young people's service held at Warren chapel last night. His topic was "The Season of Sowing and Reaping," and in part he said:

"The farmer or gardener must sow and plant according to law if desired results are to be obtained. If men and women are to be used of God in sowing for a real harvest they must do it according to God's plan. What kind of sowing and planting are being done by the men and women of Warren chapel. First, what are fathers and mothers doing to implant seed of the word in the hearts and lives of their children. How are we sowing when it comes to Sunday observance and how are men sowing when it comes to voting for license or no license?"

Mr. Estes urged his hearers to do personal work which he said did two things; it prepared the sower and mellowed the soil. He stated that while it did not minimize the power of preaching to the multitudes yet it was the personal work which counted greatest, for all cannot be preachers but could be personal workers and God counted on each man and woman to take the message of the Gospel to some one else.

FLATLEY AND WELSH RAID TAKE SEVEN FROM A HOUSE

Patrolmen Martin Welsh and Thomas Flatley made a raid on a house located at 538 West Fourth street at 11:15 Saturday night, taking into tow six colored and one white alleged disorderly characters, together with the keeper of the place, Kate Stevens, colored. They spent Saturday night and yesterday morning in cells and were released later to appear Tuesday morning for hearing on charges of disorderly conduct.

Those taken into custody were: George Hatchett, Daniel Harlist, Walter Johnston, John Cuff, Harry Alexander and Martin Cuff, colored, and Daniel Van Orden, white. VanOrden is seventy-one years of age.

ALLIES REFUSE TO ACCEPT ORLEANS

Duke Has Tried to Enlist In Various Armies.

The French government has refused the request of the Duke of Orleans that he receive permission to enlist in the Foreign legion under an assumed name. The pretender to the throne of France is practically a man without a country, and none of the allied nations will accept him as a soldier.

Early in the war the duke sought to have amended the law passed in 1886 forbidding him to enter France and to resume his exile later if he were permitted to fight.

After the French refused to accept his services as a soldier the duke sought to enlist in the British, Belgian and Russian armies, but the military authorities of those countries, out of courtesy to the French government, refused to accept him.

He then appealed to Premier Viviani for the right to enter the Foreign legion, but the premier held that such a step was impracticable, for he would be sure to be recognized, and the government would be compelled to expel him from France under the law directed against members of former French reigning families. The duke's home is in England.

TROUBLOUS TIMES IN CHINA.

It Is Threatened With a Revolution While Dealing With Japan.

The publication of an alleged interview with President Yuan Shih Kai of China, in which he was quoted as indicating that assurances had been given by the United States to the Chinese government that the great war would not affect the integrity of the Chinese nation, has recently attracted much attention in official circles in Washington. The particular expression of the chief executive of the Chinese republic that excited the most interest in government circles was this:

"We have received formal communications by mail confirming cable dispatches received some weeks ago in which the Washington authorities assure us that Japan does not intend any aggression."

Yuan Shih Kai has had internal troubles besides his difficult foreign relations with Japan. Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the southern political leader, who was the first provisional president of the Chinese republic, has begun to be active again and has been denounced in a mandate, signed by President Yuan Shih Kai.

NOT MUCH TO GLOAT OVER IN THIS GAME

N. P. H. S. Beat Leals 4 to 1, But "Ye Gods! How Slow It Was."

North Plainfield High School and Leal School played some disappointing ball Saturday on Hyde Oval, in the first Interscholastic League contest, the boroughites winning by a score of 4 to 1.

The game started off with the only sensational play afforded the spectators, when Hebert stabbed a long low one from Stewart down around his shoe laces, and heaved it into Mead for a double play. Dale fanned out. Hebert came to bat for High School and took a base on balls. He got around to third on an error and a sacrifice, but got stabbed at the plate when he was sent in on an infield hit to the pitcher.

Stahl brought in the first run of the game in the third inning, making first on a nice hit, and dodging around on two errors and a fielder's choice.

The seventh added one to the boroughites' tally when Hebert scored from second on one of Dilts' two-base wallops. Leal trotted in their only run in the eighth. When Stahl threw hard at the keystone sack to catch the runner. Nobody covered the bag, the ball rolled past the outfielder, and Parmly scored on the brace of errors. The High School cleaned up two in the eighth on two deep right field singles, which the right fielder stretched into a double and a triple by his errors, the men scoring on an infield hit.

D. O. ROGERS WINS TOMBSTONE EVENT

On Playoff Exceeds Opponent's Drive by Fifty Yards.

D. Ogden Rogers was the winner of a tombstone 18 holes handicap medal play event at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday. The competition attracted a large field of golfers. Rogers and B. C. Kenyon each returned a tie score of 70, but on the playoff, the former won, his drive being about fifty yards longer than that of his opponent.

The conditions for the competition were that each player take the par score of the course, which is 71, add his handicap to it and then go as far on the course as possible with that number of strokes. By this arrangement the competition aroused considerable interest among the golfers.

The leading scores returned were as follows:

D. Ogden Rogers, 78, 8-70, B. C. Kenyon, 86, 16-70; G. A. Bomann, 96, 24-72; Arthur Murphy, 85, 9-74; J. R. Shoemaker 87, 11-76, E. T. Willson, 91, 15-76. There was also a sweepstakes event, the winner being H. T. Eaton, with a score of 88, 13-75.

In the evening following the play on the course, there was the weekly dinner-dance, which was largely patronized by the members of the club. These social functions will be held every Saturday night up to July 1, and possibly later in the summer if the patronage warrants.

HAD ARM BROKEN WHEN HE COLLIDED WITH MILLS

Walter Stamm, captain of the Pingry baseball team, and brother of Frank Stamm, widely known in athletic circles as a sprinter, is in the Elizabeth General Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the left arm caused Saturday afternoon by a collision with a member of the Plainfield High School nine in a game at Elizabeth.

Stamm, playing second base, had jumped to catch a ball thrown by the catcher to head off Mills, the P. H. S. base runner, when the latter bumped him. The arm was broken just above the wrist in two places. After it was set and placed in a plaster cast, Stamm was told his baseball games for the summer would be limited to the part of spectator.

RUNYON WINS POLE VAULT.

Ralph Runyon of the Plainfield High School, won the pole vault event at the annual Stevens' "Tech" games at Castle Point field, Saturday afternoon, making a mark of 10 feet, 6 inches. In the high jump event he was tied for third with a Newark Academy entrant and totalled 6½ points for Plainfield High School, putting the local institution in fifth place.

HOPE DID NOT PLAY.

The non-appearance of the Royal Giants to play the Hope Chapel team, Saturday afternoon at Clinton avenue, left the Fourth street aggregation without a game and a short practice was held. The Giants claim to have called the game off in the morning because of the bad weather.

P. H. S. SUPERIOR AT BURLESQUE BASEBALL

If Errors Were Runs This Would Have Been Some Game.

The Plainfield High School baseball team won a listless and uninteresting game Saturday afternoon at Elizabeth, defeating Pingry School by a score of 13-5. The playing of both team was off-color, fifteen errors being made and numberless bonehead plays pulled off. The only thing that helped to keep the few rooters in good spirits was the rooting of a loyal fan who neved failed to express his opinion of every player and play, good or bad.

Because of the frequent misplays made by his teammates, Brick was forced to pitch so much that he lasted only seven innings, when he gave his place to Denny because of a sore arm. Denny also had an off-day. Langstaff, the Pingry pitcher, seemed to be the only baseball player on the team. The only way he could be sure of getting a man out was to make him fan, for when the ball was hit, it was usually turned into an error by his teammates.

The diamond was surrounded by a fence which was only about twenty yards in back of first base. As a result every ball hit to deep right field went over the fence. Dunham, of Plainfield, was the only fellow to take advantage of the two-base hit ground rule.

The fourth inning was a big one for the local boys. Mills got a hit and was helped to third when Harris made a bad error on Rosenson's grounder. Apgar hit the ball to Harris, who again let it go through him, two runs coming in.

After three more hits and the same number of errors were made, Plainfield was retired, but not before seven runs were made. This sort of play happened throughout the game.

Stamm, the second baseman for Pingry, suffered a painful injury in the sixth inning. As Mills was sliding into second base, Stamm endeavored to get out of his way, but only stepped in Mills' path and was thrown in the air. He landed on his wrist and broke it in two places.

BAT SPLITTING GAME WON BY PARK TEAM

Church Boys Have a Clouting Session on West End Field.

The Park Avenue Baptist baseball team took the First Baptist aggregation into camp on the West End field Saturday afternoon, the final count being 13 to 9. The contest was a swatfest throughout, the winners making 19 safeties, while the Front street team counted for 16, three of which went for extra bases. "Dunc" Patterson and "Rope" VanZant were the opposing pitchers, and both were hit hard at times. Errors also helped in getting runs across the plate.

The Baptist team played like champions in the first inning, getting four runs and blanking their opponets. But those four runs were all they made for six innings, while the Parks scored once in the third and put a half dozen over the platter in the fifth, giving them the lead, 7 to 4. The home team scored four in the seventh and one in the ninth, while the visitors chalked up three in each of the seventh and eighth sessions. Smith and Burner each hit safely four times in as many times at bat, and Harry Moulton made two out of two trips to the plate. The score follows:

FOUND GOING HARD IN BIKE ROAD RACE

Queen City Pedal Pushers Far From Pleased Over Results.

Five local bicycle riders, representing the Queen City Cycle Club, started in the twenty-five-mile handicap road race held on the Hudson County boulevard, yesterday afternoon, Holger Mortonsen, with a handicap of 4½ minutes, finished in second place, and was ninth for the time prize. "Alex" Campbell was the second Plainfielder to cross the tape, getting sixth prize with a 5½ minutes start on the scratch man.

Charles Woodruff started with the four minute riders, but did not finish. The Simon brothers, Eddie and Willie, both started, but before the race was half over were forced to quit because of accidents. Eddie was a two minute man, and at the 12-mile was struck by a wheel and a motorcycle and thrown heavily. He received several bad cuts and bruises, and was unable to go to work today. W. Simon started one minute before the scratch men and was well up in the front when struck by an automobile, putting him out of the running. He was also bruised. The local riders were not favorably impressed with the race and would rather ride on the Mountain avenue course.

B. A. C. WON.

The B. A. C. baseball team defeated the Netherwoods, yesterday afternoon, the final score being 16 to 0. O. R. Allen, pitching for the winners, held his opponents hitless as well as scoreless. The victors only made one error, while their opponents were guilty of over a dozen.

GAME POSTPONED.

The game between the St. Joseph's and Manville baseball team, which was to be played last Saturday at Manville, was postponed because of the unsettled weather.

HAD TO POSTPONE THE SAURER TEAM'S OPENER

The opening home game of the Saurer baseball club, scheduled for Saturday afternoon with the Elizabeth A. A. combination, was postponed because of wet grounds and the locals will not use Parker Field until May 15, which is two weeks off. At that time the Royal Giants will open negotiations with the city champions.

The game with the Elizabeth team will be booked for some later date. Saurer did not play yesterday and they will not be in action next Sunday, although an out-of-town contest will be played Saturday of this week.

BRANTINGHAM SPLITS EVEN WITH PEAPACK SPORTSMAN

Thomas Brantingham, of this city, wen to Peapack Saturday afternoon and defeated Thomas Howard, of that place in a 100-bird shoot, the local man being six birds to the good at the finish. Two weeks ago Howard defeated Brantingham in this city, and a deciding match will be held Thursday afternoon of this week in this city.

In a 50-point quoit contest the Peapack man defeated Brantingham.

FRANK BRUGGY SOLD TO NEW YORK STATE CLUB

Frank Bruggy, the former Plainfield ball player, who was taken South by the Boston Braves in March, and who has since been a member of the squad, was sold to the Albany Club, of the New York State League, Saturday afternoon. Bruggy was ordered to report at the Empire State capitol immediately. The experience Bruggy gained while with the Boston-Braves, together with his season as a catcher in the New England League, should make him a star on the New York State circuit.

The fact that he has failed to remain with the world's baseball champions should not prove a disappointment to the local player, but, on the other hand, he should find a world of encouragement in the fact that on his first trip to the majors he looked so good to the manager of the proven best baseball club in the world that he held him until the rules of the league demanded his release. Bruggy has had but a single season's experience as a catcher in league company, and that in a Class B league.

BOROUGH BOWLING SCHEDULE.

Matches will be played in the borough one-man bowling tournament on two nights this week: Wednesday night, Mentzback will play Conshay, G. Conover meets McKenzie and Kunzman plays W. Conover. On the following night Snyder meets Nate, Miller meets Thorn, and Kunzman and Connolly will play the last night.

MYSTERIOUS PLAINFIELDERS DEFEATED BY HUNTS POINT

The mysterious Plainfield A. C. team, which has been playing some fast semi-pro teams of New York, met defeat at the hands of the Hunts Point Athletics at Old Bronx Oval, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 5 to 2. "Hank" Mathewson, who is well known in this city as a twirler, pitched against the locals, and only allowed two scratch hits.

LEAL JUNIORS FIRST.

The Leal Juniors took the long end of a 16 to 4 score from the North Plainfield B. S. S., Saturday afternoon. Nichols and VanMater were the opposing slabmen. The B. S. S. took the lead in the early part of the game, but their opponents tied matters up in the second, took the lead in the third with two runs and then practically won the game in the fourth when five tallies crossed the plate. The score by innings follows:

RANDOLPH PITCHES WELL.

Cliff Randolph, of this city, pitched a shutout game for Perth Amboy yesterday afternoon against the Franklins, of that place. The final score was 2 to 0. Tommy Mullin, also of this city, played with the losing combination, but evidently left his batting eye at home.

LOCAL AUTO DIDN'T HAVE A "LOOK IN"

Jackson and His Coneja Special Failed to Place in Meet.

Those Plainfielders who went to Newark Saturday to see Joe Jackson, the local boy, pilot a Correja Special in "Matty" Mathews' program of auto events on the Olympic track meet with a big disappointment. The big yellow car, which expected to bring across the bacon in at least two of the feature events, turned out to be the "Flivver" of the race meet, and Joe Frazier took Jackson's place at the wheel in the last number on the program.

Jackson was the first man out in the initial event, a one-mile time trial. The driver exhibited his unfamiliarity with the turns by shutting off too quickly, thereby losing several seconds the four times he had occasion to turn. The spectators, looking for thrills, rose to their feet as he shot around the upper turn and bumped the bumps before hitting the bachstretch. His time, 42 seconds, for the half mile, was slow, and the 1 minute 24 seconds turned in the two circuits of the track did not stand very long.

In the five-mile invitation Jackson got off to a flying start, but his oil pump handle pulled out on the first turn. He was compelled to stop on the lower turn during the third mile.

With Frazier driving the Cerreja, it was given a 30-second allowance in the final five-mile handicap, but he could hold the lead for but one mile. He failed to finish in the prize list.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE TEAMS GUESTS AT SOCIAL GATHERING

A very pleasant entertainment was given to the Interscholastic League basketball teams of this city and the borough in the local High School auditorium Saturday evening by the Student Council of Plainfield High School. A large number of basketball players, both boys and girls, and their friends, danced to the music of Swifel's orchestra.

The social gathering between the three schools was an enthusiastic one and considerable interest was manifested in a proposition to make them more frequent.

The committee for the dance was under the supervision of Professor George L. Wriston. The patronesses were Mrs. George B. Wean, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. I. C. Evans, Mrs. Lindsey Best and Miss Katherine Ball.

FORMER P. H. S. STARS IN ROLE OF POINT WINNERS

Jack Zerega, of this city, won five points for Swarthmore College at New Brunswick, Saturday afternoon, in the annual Swarthmore-Rutgers dual athletic meet which ended in a tie the score being 56 to 56. Zerega romped home ahead of them all in the two-mile event, his time being 10 minutes and 33 seconds, which is considered very good time. Toward the end of the meet, Rutgers was ahead but by winning first and second in the pole vault, Swarthmore tied the final count.

A baseball game between Rutgers and Swarthmore was also held and Harry Jennings pitched the New Brunswick team to a 5 to 3 victory. He allowed six hits, fanned ten and passed five. Jack Riffert, of this city, played right field for Swarthmore but failed to hit safely. He received no chances in the field.

TEAM THAT WILL WIELD RACQUETS FOR N. P. H. S

Manager Elmer French, of North Plainfield High School has received confirmation of his date with Summit High School tomorrow afternoon. This will be the boroughites' initial appearance on the courts, and they have but a week before the first interscholastic game with Leals School.

Five men will take the trip to Summit, Tomkinson, Chandler, French, Force and Sidney Dunning. French and Tomkinson will probably team on the doubles. Force and Dunning are substituting temporarily in the absence of VanMater and Townley for baseball practice.

LINDEMANN VICTOR.

The Suburban A. A., of New York, with Ernie Lindemann pitching, defeated the Cuban Stars yesterday afternoon by a score of 9 to 8. The winners made 14 hits, while Lindeman yielded to 13 bingles.

SCHOOLEY ISSUES CALL.

MARVELOUS RED CROSS EXHIBITS AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

While Europe feels the greatest struggle in history the efficiency of the Red Cross is being put to the hardest test of its wonderful existence. A larger army is now marshalled under its banner than under the flag of any one nation. It moves silently and steadily amidst the fierce din of battle, its marvelous effectiveness the result of the businesslike systematizing it has undergone with the years.

Appreciating the endeavors of the Red Cross, the great nations, despite the cataclysm in Europe, have installed wonderful exhibits at San Francisco and have incorporated in these exhibits a tribute to the Red Cross. The United States and Japan in particular are devoting much attention to this feature and the result has been most gratifying to the thousands who daily throng the magnificent exhibit palaces of the Exposition.

Japan has one of the most exhaustive exhibits along these lines, showing in detail how the wounded are cared for on the battle field and under fire. This exhibit is made vividly realistic by perfect wax models of the human figure, the surgeons and nurses being so true to life that a close study of the figures is necessary to discern from living models. The Japanase exhibit, as well as that of the American Red Cross, is complete in every detail, even to the field telephones used for communicating with the chief surgeons, bases of hospital supplies and the hospitals themselves, which are far removed from the scene of action. The exhibits show, in a remarkably clear manner, the uses of the latest surgical instruments as well as the various forms of sterilization with which each field outfit is equipped. The dressing of wounds is brought to the front by the use of lay figures, explaining clearly the care with which the wounded are handled. The most minute apparatus carried in the "kits" of the Red Cross worker are exhibited, showing their use, even down to the patent magnet, used for extracting particles of steel from the eye and thus saving the sight which otherwise might be lost.

Never in the history of world's expositions has such attention been given this wonderful organization as at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition and its exhibits are proving an interesting study in connection with the Mine Rescue Service and the wonderfully effective emergency service maintained at the exposition. The use of oxygen and anaesthetics is demonstrated and the Red Cross exhibits as a whole are worthy of the great attention they are attracting. Several other foreign countries will be equally as well represented as Japan and the United States within a few days and the completion of all exhibits of this character will add another splendid accomplishment to those already achieved by the directors of the great exposition in bringing to its 80,000 displays everything representative of the work of the world.

SOMERVILLE TEAM LOST OUT TO NEW YORK CLUB

The Somerville baseball team was defeated at Dyckman Oval, New York, yesterday afternoon, by the Kingsbridge Athletics, the score being 5 to 0. The Somerset county seaters only made four hits. The score follows:

LEAK IN WAR COLLEGE? HOW DOES MILITARY WRITER GET FACTS?

The people knew the answer of von Hindenburg. They had read it, as had all the world for miles around, in the cataclysm of the plunging towers. New York must surrender or perish!

High officers in the War and Navy Departments, in whose custody repose America's war secrets, are regarding each other with suspicious looks. The unspoken question when they meet is, Have grave military confidences been betrayed, and, if so, by whom?

Uncle Sam has many secrets, but the most zealously guarded are those pertaining to his two fighting arms, the Army and Navy. The custodian of this precious information is the War College, whose doors never swing open except to the most trusted officers of our Army and Navy. The most skilled Raffles could not pick the lock.

And now comes McClure's Magazine with a startling exposition of the very things the War College has been so secretly debating. How an enemy could land 150,000 troops on our shores, and how we would ineffectually try to stop them are graphically described. And the magazine backs up its narrative with the statement that the information "is based on expert information, backed by intimate knowledge of military and naval facts."

"We know it is," reply the shoulder-strapped and epauletted custodians of these secrets, "but where in thunder did they get the dope? What is the leak?"

Cleveland Moffet, who wrote the McClure narrative, has chosen Germany as the attacking nation and has transferred to Long Island the military tactics so recently employed by the Kaiser's army in the invasion of northern France.

Mr. Moffet, when in Washington recently, declined to reveal the source of his information. Frederick L. Collins, President of the McClure Publications, likewise refuses to discuss the question in such a way as to shed any light on a possible "pipe-line."

The article, entitled "The Conquest of America" and written in narrative form, tells about the blowing up of the Gatun Locks, whereby the American fleet is bottled in the Pacific Ocean. A German fleet, full-equipped for every emergency, lands its army near East Hampton, N. Y. and marches to New York City. With graphic incident, it is shown how the huge towers of the Woolworth and Singer Buildings could be toppled to the pavement with single shots from the giant guns of the invaders, and how the streets of New York could be swept clean with machine guns.

Nor is this all! The magazine announces that the June issue will reveal the plan foreign countries would put into effect in the invasion of New England and the capture of Boston.

German sympathizers in Washington have broadly hinted that the article is a part of the well-laid plan of the Allies in Europe to discredit Germany in the eyes of Americans.

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

It was just now one of those recurrent seasons in New York city when there is a harrying of the grafters, or, rather, of a selected few of them. In one most important instance there was a woeful lack of admissible evidence against an offender whose guilt was nevertheless generally known. The roughly scrawled, ill spelt missive before Wainwright promised to turn over the needed evidence, but only to Wainwright himself in person. The reason for this condition seemed convincing enough. The writer explained that his life would pay the penalty were his treachery made known to the guilty involved in his revelations.

For the sake of his own safety the writer suggested that Wainwright should meet him the night following the receipt of the letter at half past 11 o'clock on the south side of Chelsea square, toward the west end, where the probabilities were that there would be almost no one else about, and the interview might pass unnoticed.

At 11 o'clock that night Wainwright set forth to the meeting with the unknown. Walking westward along Twentieth street, he peered sharply about him for a glimpse of any one who might suggest his mysterious correspondent, but the place was wholly deserted. The fact caused Wainwright no concern, for the hour of the appointment was not quite arrived. He strolled slowly on until he was come within a few yards of Tenth avenue.

Suddenly a shrill cry startled him. He saw less than a rod before him the figure of a man dimly visible in deeper shadows close by a house wall. At the same moment there sounded another cry, and now he saw, behind the other, a second figure, which darted forward swiftly. Then, just as the two figures blended, a lance of fire burned through the night, and the sharp crack of an automatic smote the stillness of the square. Wainwright stood rooted to the spot in stupefaction over the unexpectedness of the event. In a flash he understood that an assassin had been lurking there in ambush awaiting his coming. The shout of the other man had been in warning. Evidently the newcomer had turned into the street from Tenth avenue just in time to observe the assailant as he stepped forth from his place of concealment, and the newcomer had not hesitated to spring forward and grapple with the criminal. Doubtless the unexpected interruption had diverted the aiming of the weapon. Certainly another shot had been prevented by the fall of the weapon.

One of the forms broke fiercely from the clutch of the other and disappeared into Tenth avenue as his adversary went staggering back against the wall from the effect of a well delivered blow.

He ran to the corner of the avenue and looked south, in which direction the thug had vanished. Then he stopped short in wonder, for the man had gone from sight as if the earth had opened to swallow him. A policeman was approaching on the run, drawn by the noise of the shot, and there were others pressing toward the scene of the encounter, the nucleus of a crowd. Wainwright was relieved to find that the policeman recognized him, and he was in consequence spared some possible annoyances that might otherwise have been his from being involved in a shooting affair at such an hour in such a neighborhood. But when he turned to express his grateful appreciation to the man who had rendered assistance so vitally timely and efficient he met with disappointment, for there was no trace of his rescuer.

He questioned the policeman, but the puzzled official was unable to offer effective aid. Finally Wainwright took a car eastward on his way home.

Safe in his apartment again, Wainwright sat long over a cigar, pondering the events of the night. It seemed clear enough to him that the communication requesting a meeting in Chelsea square had been only a ruse to secure his presence where he might be murdered at leisure.

Wainwright rose at last and went into his bedchamber. There sounded the tingling of the telephone bell. He put the receiver to his ear. At once a voice came clearly:

"Is this Mr. Wainwright?" And then when he had answered in the affirmative: "Well, I called you up about that shooting business down at Tenth avenue tonight. You understand?"

"Young chap named Walter Blount."

"Who is this?" Wainwright demanded.

"Oh, who I am don't cut any ice! I just happened to be in the crowd there, and I heard you asking the cop about the guy that butted in and let you out. I got a line on that guy, and so I thought I'd put you wise."

"Who was he?"

"Young chap named Walter Blount from somewheres out west. He's staying in the city, though—got a house. The address is 21A East Thirty-ninth street. That's all. Good night."

"But wait! Tell me"— Wainwright began hurriedly. His appeal was useless. There came no response.

CHAPTER IV.

A Family Made to Order.

WILLIAM SLOCOMB, alias Diamond Willie, alias Walter Blount, sat in the library of the house of which he was theoretically master and sought to divert his tedium by playing Canfield solitaire. Nominally he was indeed the head of the house, which had been taken in his name for the season, and he was about to entertain there his putative parents, come on a visit from their home in Laramie, Wyo. As a matter of fact, however, Walter was a puppet in the hands of the man who was serving him as butler. That ingenious individual, by name Andrew Allen, had decided that this particular thief would fit admirably into his schemes. The accomplishment of his design was not difficult, since at just this time Walter was closely pursued by the Pinkertons for a recent offense against the law, and the offer of an asylum was welcome.

Andrew had maintained so much secrecy as to the nature of his plans that Walter's curiosity was provoked, and this soon drove him to dissatisfaction with the situation, in which he quite forgot his first relief over securing a safe refuge from danger. Instead he grew fretful over the dull routine of days and nights. He was dishonest by nature, a thief by choice. His slightly prognathous jaw showed merely moral degeneracy, not firmness of will. At twenty-five years of age he was a thorough paced scoundrel, willing for any crime, but incompetent. Nevertheless as yet his evil nature was not graven clearly in the lines of his face, which a careless observer might have deemed winningly boyish. Now as he sat erect in his dinner jacket by the table on which the cards were displayed he did justice by his appearance to the judgment of Andrew in this selection as the pseudo young gentleman of means come out of the west for a trial of the metropolitan life. He scowled heavily, and his jaw shot out sullenly as the trial of the cards proclaimed his luckless ness. He shot a baleful glance toward the irreproachable manservant, who for some time had been standing at a little distance in an attitude of patient deference.

"For you to finish the game, sir."

"And then what?"

"To take the cards away, sir."

The young man sneered.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" he drawled. "You're waiting to take the cards away."

"Yes, sir. Mr. Andrew's orders, sir."

The words, decorously spoken, were the last straw to the burden on Walter's patience. With an oath he seized the pack and threw it violently to the floor.

"Well, take them away, then!" he snarled, with an evil grin. He sprang to his feet and moved about the room nervously for a minute.

"Say, you!" he cried. "You know who I am, don't you?" he demanded.

And now there came a subtle change in the inflections of the menial's voice, though its respectful quality was still in evidence. There was a vague suggestion of satisfaction in his tones as he answered:

"Yes, sir."

Walter muttered a curse.

"Kept it to yourself mighty close, didn't you?" he affirmed rather than interrogated. "Oh, I was on to you the minute I saw you!" Walter spoke with some relaxation of his aggrieved manner, for it was a relief to cast off disguise in the presence of this fellow. "But this Mr. Audrew—tell me, Parker, who is he, anyhow? What's his little game, eh?"

The anticipation of information from this source was not to be realized.

"I have been with Mr. Andrew for some time, sir," he said with an increased precision of utterance and a reversion to his customary "sir." "I never ask questions. I simply obey orders, sir."

"He's got to show me," Walter stormed, "that's all. He's got to show me what this game is about or I'll quit."

Walter's gaze followed in astonishment the figure of the servant as it went noiselessly out of the room, and not until it had vanished into the hall did he observe another form which was standing motionless just within the doorway—that of Andrew himself. There was a dead silence while the Master Mind walked slowly forward until he stood close, face to face with his tool. Though he wore a livery, as befitted his pretended place in the household, there was nothing of the servile in the clear cut face and the erect body as his keen gray eyes regarded speculatively the disconcerted youth before him. His tone was mild when he spoke, but he ran in it an undertone of menace.

"You won't continue?"

Walter had recourse to bluster.

"No, I won't!" he declared gruffly. "You heard me say it the first time, didn't you?"

"Very well, then," Andrew vouchsafed, still in that voice of ominous calm. "I suppose that I must notify the Pinkertons so that you may return to your former condition—the condition in which I found you. Shall I?"

The young man labored to preserve an undaunted demeanor.

"At least," he vouchsafed sulkily, "I should know where I was."

"Oh, there could be no doubt as to that," Andrew conceded with a grim smile. "And you would know your destination also for a certainty—Sing Sing."

Andrew wasted no time in pleading. Instead, he went to the telephone at one end of the long library table and spoke into the transmitter:

"Hello! Give me 100 Rector."

The voice of Walter sounded swiftly.

"Say, what's that number?"

The Master Mind turned from the telephone in leisurely fashion and regarded the young man with cold disdain. He placed a hand over the transmitter and replied with significant brevity, though quite without emphasis:

"The Pinkertons."

"Wait, Andrew; wait!" Walter cried desperately. "I'll stick," he said faintly.

Andrew put down the instrument and once again faced Walter. Now, his face was menacing. "Hereafter, please remember, Diamond, the next time I have occasion to call you Diamond Willie a Pinkerton will tap you on the shoulder."

Under the taunt the fickle mood of the youth flared in a new gust of rage.

"Say," he cried viciously, "who the — are you, anyhow?"

Instantly the Master Mind assumed the respectful demeanor of the faithful family retainer.

"Why, sir," he said gently, "I'm your confidential man and valet and butler, you know, sir. Why, Master Walter, I have served your father for many years."

This reference diverted the victim's attention again to the general subject of his grievance over enforced ignorance.

"Father, huh!" he exclaimed, with a jeering laugh. "Say, when am I going to meet these fake parents and this sister of mine? Why shouldn't I be curious, I'd like to know? Answer me that. You've been drumming them into me all this time."

"On your table, Walter, you will find a memorandum containing the instructions you are to follow when Mr. Wainwright comes," was the reply.

"Oh, that!" sneered Walter. "I've been over it already a dozen times today—for want of anything better to do in this dead and alive house of mine—not! But what's the use of it! Wainwright ain't coming."

"He will come," was the unperturbed answer. "He thinks you saved his life last night from the attack of some felon he had sent up the river."

"Well, suppose he does. That doesn't prove that he'll come here."

The Master Mind smiled coldly.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Nell had expected after two weeks or a month at most to feel as strong as usual and be able to begin life just where she left it when baby came. It was very disconcerting to find herself trembling after the least exertion and limp as a rag after one of baby's long crying spells. Dick was very helpful, and he could quiet the little fellow in his strong arms and get him to sleep when Nell could do nothing with him, for her nervousness reacted on the baby. Mrs. Reeves was sorry to go and leave Nell so far from well. "Six weeks is a long time to be absent from home, Nell," she had said. "Your father is lonesome, I know from reading between the lines." Nell had insisted on her return.

"We'll get along some way. I'll surely get stronger soon and I must learn to carry my own burden. It was so good of you to stay all these weeks."

They hunted up a little girl to help with the dishes and take the baby out while Nell rested, but the days were a long, exhausting pull and sometimes the nights brought little slumber. Dick was so strong he could not realize what an effort Nell was making to keep going. He thoughtlessly added to her burden by urging her to go out when she really needed to be in bed. The baby rarely waked evenings, so they were comparatively free, but Nell was nervous about leaving him.

"Come on, Nell, let's go over to the Parsons'. You have not been out today," he said one evening.

"Really, dear, I think I should improve the time when baby is quiet by sleeping. I am tired enough, goodness knows." There were hollows under her eyes.

"You never go out with me any more. We've hardly left the house together since baby was born, except that day at the Scotts. You seem to think you cannot leave him, and that is all nonsense. He'll be the better for your going and freshening up a bit; you need change."

"I need sleep, Dick, dear. I am too tired to walk over there tonight."

Dick looked annoyed. "I hope you are not going to develop into one of those fussy mothers who think they must hover over the cradle every minute, and never allow any other thing but baby to enter their heads."

Nell did not answer, but rose and left the room. The day had been hot and peculiarly hard, and she felt ready to cry with weariness. She undressed and lay down, but the room was hot and her unhappy thoughts served to keep her awake. "How could Dick talk so?" She reached her hand over to the little warm head and the touch eased the ache of her heart. Finally she fell asleep.

Dick read the paper, and sauntered out into the yard. He was lonely and discontented. The whole scheme of Nell's life revolved around the baby and all the pleasant chats and walks were gone. He did not realize that it was a temporary thing, but felt he must fight to prevent its becoming permanent. If he had been in a city he might have gone to a club and formed the habit of finding his happiness away from home. As it was he fussed and nursed a vague sense of injury.

The Big Sentinel Swan Protects the Nest.

"I TOLD you about the wonderful birds, the swans," said daddy to his two kiddies as they came for the evening story, "and how they kept the lake clear of ice in the winter. So tonight I think I must tell you how the old swan guards the nests at nesting time.

"Though these swans were brought to the shores of this lake only about three years ago, there are nearly three times as many of them now as there were then, and you may believe that the increase in the family has not come about without a vast amount of fuss and trouble on the part of the big sentinel swan.

"You see, children, the mamma swan lays each season two or three eggs from which the little swans are hatched. The nests are made of long sticks and rushes and are placed in undergrowth by the side of the lake and quite close to the water. The mamma swans take great pains to hatch out her fluffy children healthy and happy and wise, and to do this they must have the help of the big sentinel swan.

"The big sentinel swan is a male bird whose duty it is to protect those nests and the mamma birds who are sitting on them to hatch out the little birds, and you may believe that he does protect them to the extent of his ability, and that is always enough.

"Woe betide any rash boy or girl, or, for that matter, any of their elders, who approach too close to those nests. The people living in that town have learned this, and they are very careful not to offend the great old bird when he is on guard.

"The sentinel swan is a terrible fighter, and against his attacks the biggest man would be quite apt to turn and run. The swan's bill is very sharp, his wings are very powerful, and when he fights he fights with bill, wings, feet and, in fact, with the whole of him at once. The nests are afforded most gallant protection, you may be sure.

"But when the little swans are hatched out and come to the water to swim with their parents it is a very pretty sight.

"At first they are timid. They flutter around on the bank and make quite a fuss, and one little one that I saw one time refused to go in. Then Mamma Swan just poked him in with her strong bill, because she knows they can learn to swim if they will only try.

"You know some birds refuse to fly sometimes and have to be poked out of the nest, and some children hate to do little chores, and they have to be urged," laughed daddy.

A day wasted in your classified advertising campaign for work is a real loss.

If you have property to rent, drop all secrecy about it, and use the classified ads.

DETERMINED classified advertisers always win; and, simetimes, even the timid, try-it-once people win, too.

BIG BROADSIDES of advertising are necessary only for big business operations and enterprises. For the small affairs of business and daily life, the classified advertisements are not only available but highly effective.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Roast Steak and Potatoes—Butter baking dish and sprinkle in layer of chopped steak; season with salt and pepper. Put over this a layer of raw potatoes, peeled and sliced. Dust over a little flour, then another layer of steak, and so on until pan is full. Fill pan with hot water, cover and bake about two hours.

Chicken Timbales—Two cups meat, one cup bread crumbs, three eggs, one and one-half cups heated milk, half teaspoon salt, one-sixteenth teaspoon pepper, lump of butter. Bake twenty or thirty minutes in molds.

"Mary's Favorite" Pie—Bake a crust as for lemon pie, let cool, and fill half full of sliced bananas. Now make lemon filling as follows: One cup sugar mixed with one tablespoon flour, add juice and rind one lemon, yolks two eggs well beaten, small piece butter and one cup boiling water. Let cook until thick, then cool and pour oven bananas. Beat whites with one teaspoon sugar, spread over pie and brown.

Fig-Apple Pudding—Nearly fill a buttered baking dish with equal amounts of chopped figs and sliced apples, arranging them in layers; add half cup water and cover with biscuit dough about three-fourths inch thick. Place over fire, cover tightly with pan and let simmer twenty or twenty-five minutes, being careful that pudding does not burn. Lift cover carefully and try the crust. When done, make an opening in middle of crust and pour in another half cup water to which has been added one cup of scraped maple sugar and a tablespoon of butter. If maple sugar is not at hand, brown sugar will do. Sprinkle a little of the scraped maple sugar over top of pudding when serving it.

To Clean Glass Oven Doors—Glass front ovens are frequently complained of as not sufficiently light and clear to be satisfactory. Such glass doors will do their duty if the housekeeper does hers, for the glass needs frequent thorough washing on both sides with some fine scouring powder or scouring soap. Ordinary soap and water will not accomplish the results desired, as in baking the fumes and steam generated sometimes make a coating difficult to remove. In addition a small searchlight may be used when stoves are not well placed for light.

Keeping Bathtub Clean—Invariably in every home there is a window just over the tub or so near to it that it is next to impossible to keep dust out of the tub, no matter how often it is cleaned. Buy some cretonne corresponding with the wall decoration and cut a piece the size of top of tub, then plait a ruffle to reach to the floor and attach this to the piece for the top. This cover is not only saving of work, but it also is a great improvement in the looks of a bathroom.

Glaze or Potato Dumplings—This is the old dish known to many Germans as "glaze," or potato dumplings in English. Boil a dozen large potatoes with the jackets on. When done, peel and mash. Add an egg, salt and flour enough to form into balls (the dough must not stick to fingers). Have ready a kettle of boiling water, drop balls in and boil twenty minutes, uncovered. To be eaten with saurkraut and roast pork and rich gravy. When old, slice and fry like potatoes; excellent.

YOUR GARDEN.

Pick peas, when green and tender, and dry in pod for winter use.

When flowers are frostbitten, sprinkle with cold water; will often save them.

To start cuttings from rose bushes, take cuttings, bore hole in small potato and place cutting in potato. Plant in rich, moist earth in sunny spot and cover with glass fruit jar or glass dish pressed firmly down on ground, until plant starts.

To Keep Cats and Dogs Off Your New Garden—After you have planted seeds, sprinkle thickly with red or black pepper. You will see how shy the cats and dogs will be of your nice soft garden.

Don't Forget to tie a few little bags of moth balls on your rose bushes to keep the insects and bugs away. Do it now.

PARIS OFFERS A HINT TO THE WOMAN WHO "MAKES OVER."

From no less a master of tailored wear than Doucet comes this dainty costume of gabardine and a new satin-striped taffeta—both in soft taupe shade. The design of the suit will suggest to the woman who has a last-season costume to rebuild a very clever way of getting around the wide skirt difficulty. The narrow skirt of last year will make a braid bound overskirt above a flare petticoat of the silk; and in like maner, last year's coat, braid-bound, may be mounted in bolero fashion above a loose silk coat like the one pictured.

STRIPES ARE AT THE HEIGHT OF THEIR POPULARITY.

Young girls particularly have welcomed the smart new striped materials, and in the Ladies' Home Journal Pattern above is illustrated an attractive model for the striped dress. In strictly tailored style its collar rolls high to the throat or can be left unfastened. The skirt is a two-piece model to be made with or without the trimming band, which extends into a panel in the back to carry out the lines of the waist. The waist pattern, No. 8869, cuts in sizes 32 to 44 inches bust measure, and the skirt pattern, No. 8870, in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20. Dress in sizes 36 and 18, requires 5⅝ yards 36-inch material, with ⅝ yard 36-inch contrasting material.

Pattern can be purchased at the store of A. E. Force & Co.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

RUTGERS COLLEGE SUMMER SESSION

Will Open on June 28 and Continue For Six Weeks.

ATTRACTIVE BULLETIN

All Branches of Study are Included in Curriculum—Many Teachers of Reputation to Assist Regular Staff of Professors.

Extensive provisions are now being made at Rutgers College for the summer session, which opens on June 28 and continues six weeks. An attractive bulletin issued this week by the director of the summer session relates the fact that Rutgers in 1914 increased her summer session attendance 43.3 per cent. over the figures for 1913, and announces over one hundred courses in education, methods of teaching, psychology, ancient and modern languages, English, art, architecture, industrial arts, manual training, vocational education, music, agriculture, the biological and physical sciences, history, government and international relations.

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has made a liberal appropriation to the Rutgers summer session to enable it to offer courses by specialists in the several fields of international relations, the geography of South America and Spanish. Keen interest is at the present time being taken in foreign affairs, and many people, particularly teachers, are anxious to have accurate information on international questions. The courses in international relations will present among other things the elementary phases of diplomacy, international conciliation and America's place in the making of a law of nations.

The present expansion of our commercial relations with the Latin-American nations has created a strong demand for training in such fields as South American markets and manufactures, South American geography and Spanish. By virtue of an additional appropriation from the Carnegie Endowment, Rutgers is enabled to offer this summer an extensive course in the economic geography of South America and courses in Spanish.

Rutgers offered many courses for teachers which are designed to cover the State certificate requirements, and all such courses, when completed, are accepted by the State Board of Examiners in lieu of an examination. Aside from the special provisions that have been made for regular subjects that earn certificate credit, large emphasis has been put upon the practical arts, including domestic science and manual training, upon vocational education and the psychology of mentally deficient children.

The courses will be offered by the regular staff of professors and instructors of Rutgers College. They will be assisted by many teachers of reputation from other institutions. Among these are the following: Assistant Commissioner of Education Levis H. Carris, who will give courses in vocational education; Edward A. Reuther, supervisor of industrial education, State of New Jersey, who gives courses in manual training; Miss Rosamond C. Cook, of Teachers' College, domestic art; Miss Helen Clark, University of Illinois, psychology; Dr. Daniel C. Knowlton, Newark Central High School, history; Miss Sarah E. Levis, supervisor of art, Merchantville, N. J., drawing; Dr. Cornelia MacMullean, professor of English, Montclair State Normal School, English; Dr. Margaret Otis, formerly professor of psychology in Wells College, new expert investigator of mental retardation, child psychology and psychological clinic; Mrs. Charlotte B. Skarstrom, supervisor of physical training, Ossinning, N. Y., public schools, physical education; Professor Andrew L. Sloan, head of department of geography, Newark State Normal School, geography; H. B. Willis, superintendent of education, Middlesex county, school management; George W. Wilmot, supervisor of music, New Brunswick public schools, music; David Whitney, Wesleyan University, zoology; Dr. H. H. York, Brown University, botany.

This staff will be increased before the opening of the session by the addition of specialists in international relations, industrial arts, reading and elocution, history of art, advanced chemistry and English.

All departments of the college will be opened to the summer students. The library of the college, which contains 77,000 volumes and 30,000 pamphlets, the Sage Library of 50,000 volumes and 8,000 pamphlets, the Carnegie Library of the city of New Brunswick, the Middlesex County Pedagogical Library, the scientific equipment of the engineering and technical schools and of the department of agriculture are open to men and women alike. Large dormitory and dining accommodations are available at low rates, and all facilities of the college are at the disposal of the students of the summer session.

One of the most attractive additions to the school is the $25,000 swimming pool, the gift of Mrs. Robert F. Ballantine, which has been completed very recently. Opportunities to engage in various athletic sports, tennis, boating, canoeing and the like are many. Excursions by trolley or train to the seashore, only twenty miles distant, and to many places of great historical interest are readily managed, so that altogether Rutgers is an ideal place at which to spend a summer in study.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hyrdochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Two autos stood side by side in a garage. A fire came along, doing each about the same amount of damage.

One car was insured in this agency and the loss was adjusted the day of the fire. The other car was insured in another agency and the loss was settled about a month later.

The owner insured with us had time to have his car repaired and in running order before the other man's claim was satisfied.

Board of Education Protest to Council Against Diversion of Funds.

QUOTES SCHOOL LAW

Auto Companies Given Permission to Install Gasoline Tanks—Council Authorizes Payment of $669.90 as Sewer Assessment.

The Board of Education in a communication to the Common Council at its May meeting last night entered a formal protest against any diversion of money due the Board for any other than school purposes. The matter referred to was the action of the city in withholding the sum of $230 representing the premium on the recent sale of school bonds. The Board claims that it is entitled to the money for school purposes under the State school law. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

In accordance with resolutions offered by Councilman A. D. Edgar and adopted, the Laing Auto Repair Company, of Sycamore avenue; the Model Garage, of 1520 West Front street, and the Plainfield Auto and Tire Company, of East Fifth street and Watchung avenue, were granted permission to install gasoline tanks beneath the sidewalk in front of their places of business. The application of John DeForest for permission to install a gasoline pump on East Fifth street was referred.

The petition from the East End Civic Association for better police protection was referred. In response to a request the Council appropriated the usual $100 to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., for the observance of Memorial Day.

Isabelle M. Laing, owner of property on Sycamore avenue, adjoining the police station, in a communication set forth that a cornice of the latter building projected over her property and to avoid any trouble in the future at her request, a resolution was adopted providing that this projection shall be removed upon proper notice from the owner of the adjoining property.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of fourteen permits last month, and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett granted nine sewer permits during the same period. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts for the past month of $211.27, expenditures of $69.67, the balance, $141.60, being turned over to the city treasurer, W. F. Arnold.

Resolutions offered by Mr. Claybrook and adopted authorized the transfer of $2,000 from the general fund to the fire fund and $1,500 from the general fund to the poor fund, and fixing $19,500 as the appropriation for street lighting for the coming year.

Mr. Claybrook, replying to the inquiry from the Board of Trade as to why the city charges 10 per cent. interest, when 6 per cent. is the legal rate, stated that under the law it is the penalty provided for the non-payment of taxes.

The payment of $699.90, the sewer assessment on Parker Field, was authorized through a resolution by Councilman Francis J. Blatz, according to the terms of the agreement between the city and Andrew McClean Parker, from whom the playground is leased.

Councilman Juan A. Babcock reported back the petition of residents of West Third street for better police protection, explaining that he had taken up the matter with Police Chief Kiely and that it would be given proper attention.

Monday night, May 24, at 8 o'clock, was fixed as the time the Council will meet to receive bids for receiving 250 tons of coal for the city departments for the coming year, and the Council adjourned to that date last night.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The BryantLincoln Parent-Teacher Association will meet in the science room of the Plainfield High School tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to hear the lecture to be given by Miss Addie Jackson, the physical director of the public schools. The lecture is arranged by the Board of Education, and is free to the parents of Plainfield.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in the Exempt Firemen's Hall, 109 Park avenue. Important business will be considered.

COUNCIL PASSES 1915 TAX BUDGET

Total Amount to Be Raised by Taxation Aggregates $270,910.

LESS FRANCHISE TAX

Finance Committee Cuts Appropriations About $13,000—Contingent Fund Fixed at $18,000—G. A. R. Gets $100.

The tax ordinance for 1915 was introduced by Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, chairman of the finance committee, at the May meeting of the Common Council last night, adopted on two readings and ordered advertised. The budget is exactly the same as presented at the recent public hearing no changes having been made in the meantime except there is included $100 for the Memorial Day celebration by the G. A. R., and the interests on bonds for the brick pavement, street macadamizing, police station, obligations on sewer bonds, are included in the general budget.

The amount to be raised for general purposes exclusive of school, library, poor, fire, street lighting, State and county taxes and contingent fund, is $105,000. The amount appropriated for street lighting is $19,500. The total amount appropriated for interest on bonds, playgrounds, shade tree commission and schools is $165,910. The receipts from licenses, franchise taxes, poll taxes, etc., is estimated at $46,855, leaving the balance to be raised for general purposes to be $105,000.

It is the opinion of Mr. Claybrook that if the schools do not ask for too large an increase the tax rate for the coming year will be between

WOMEN DECIDE TO AID TEMPERANCE

Monday Afternoon Club Will Assist Local Organizations in Movement.

Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite presided at the final meeting of the general department of the Monday Afternoon Club in the parish house of the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon. The secretary read the report of the former meeting. Notice was given that the concluding meeting of the executive committee would be held May 11, at which time all new members' names should be in the hands of the secretary to be voted upon. Four resignations were handed in yesterday, in three cases the members moving out of town.

Five members of the local club attended the "miniature federation" meeting, which was held in Elizabeth last Monday. Extremely interesting reports of the session were given by Mrs. Cowperthwaite, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Mrs. Lamar Van Syckle.

A lively discussion was held, in which many members participated, as to whether the club should appropriate money for the Women's College at Rutgers. After much deliberation, nothing definite was decided upon.

The secretary read a resolution suggested by the civic section of the club, in which that body urged the club as a whole to unite with the Charity Organization Society and various other associations in the furtherance of temperance in Plainfield. The main object of the plan is to promote the poster campaign that is being waged throughout the country. Its purpose is mainly educational and to create public sentiment and aid prohibition in that respect. A motion that the club assist in this work was made and carried.

At the conclusion of the routine business an unusually interesting paper was read by Professor Langdon, of Brown University, on "Italy and the War." The essential characteristics of the nations involved were briefly related. He narrated that the Italian people were a sentimental, deeply practical and a thoroughly unified nation. They were so deeply rooted in the past that it was difficult for them to depart from the usual customs.

MISS CONOVER ENTERTAINS.

Miss Idabel Conover, of Jackson avenue, the borough, was the hostess to twenty-five of her friends at her home last night. The dining room and parlor were daintily decorated in cut flowers and plants, the prevailing color throughout being pink. The evening was spent in playing games, singing and dancing. Solos were rendered by some of the guests. At a late hour refreshmens were served. Guests were present from Metuchen, Newark and this city.

150 Children to Participate in Georgeous Spectacle as Introduction to Circus.

ELABORATE COSTUMING

Misses Lamson and Brownlee Have Arranged Unique Display to Increase Performance for Local Charities—Costume Plan.

Illustrating modern ways of fighting disease and dirt, the original pageant to be given by children identified with the Recreation Committee, in connection with the benefit circus on Friday afternoon and evening, promises to be the most unique and instructive thing of the kind ever attempted in Plainfield. Nearly 150 local children have been in rehearsal for the spectacle, and they will be assisted by several principals, the names of whom will not be made public until later in the week. The plot of the pageant is as follows:

"Humanity is held in bondage by Ignorance, who banishes Sunlight, Fresh Air and Water. Microbes attack Humanity, who falls exhausted, and Wisdom comes to the rescue, bringing Sunlight, Fresh Air, Water, Food and Exercise, and driving off the Microbes. Ignorance flees, and Hope comes to Humanity."

Throughout the pageant, which will start the circus performance and has been arranged by Miss Lillian L. Lamson, recreation supervisor and her assistant, Miss Brownlee, there will be special dances and drills by the children representing the various characters mentioned in capitals in the synopsis. Special costumes have been arranged for all of the characters, such as yellow dresses for the

$90 IN FINES OR A 320 DAY JAIL TERM

This Was the Aggregate Meted Out to Those Taken in Raid.

Evidence given by Patrolman Martin Welsh in the city court today had a decided bearing on the disposition of disorderly charges against eight defendants who were taken in a raid made by Welsh and Patrolman Thomas Flatley at 548 West Fourth street, Saturday night. Judge DeMeza held that seven of the eight were guilty, and meted out the following sentences: Daniel VanOrden, white, $20 or sixty days; Kate Stevens, colored, $20 or sixty days; George Hatchett, colored, $10 or forty days; Daniel Harlist, colored, suspended sentence; Walter Johnston, colored, $10 or forty days; John Cuff, colored, $10 or forty days; Harry Alexander, colored, $10 or forty days, and Martha Cuff, colored, $10 or forty days. VanOrden admitted that he "paid the rent" and the Green woman was his housekeeper. VanOrden is seventy-one years old. It is probable that all will elect to take jail sentences, and they will be committed to Elizabeth this afternoon.

GIVEN A SHOWER.

The East End "500" Club held its by-weekly meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of East Second street, the affair taking the nature of a shower for Mrs. Gertrude Firstbrook, who is shortly to marry Herbert B. Smith, of West Fifth street. Twenty friends were present at the event. The afternoon was spent in playing "500" while musical selections interspersed the games. Mrs. Firstbrook and Mr. Smith will be married during the course of next month.

LIES COST HIM $20.

Charged by Patrolman John Nevlon with stealing coal from Meyer's coal yard in East Second street Saturday night Michael Compoattano was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning. Because of his guilt and the fact that he lied when placed on the witness stand the prisoner was given the option of paying a fine of $20 or spending forty days in the county jail.

HONEYMAN TOURISTS.

A. V. D. Honeyman and his party of twenty-six tourists left today on the New Jersey Central for a six week's trip through the west. They will visit Denver, Colorado Springs, the Grand Canyon and the San Francisco Exposition. They will return by way of the Canadian Pacific.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING OF ST. JOSEPH'S HALL

Elaborate Entertainment Provided and Medals Are Presented.

Members of the parish and their friends attended the euchre and "500" which was given in the new social hall of St. Joseph's church, last night. The committee in charge of the affair arranged many diversions for the attendants and an enjoyable time was had by every one present. Many prizes were awarded the players who showed proficiency in cards and throughout the play much competition was exhibited by those participating.

During the evening the following program was offered by local talent: Solos, Miss Sadie Lee, soprano; Edward Harding, Jr., tenor; choruses, Elizabeth Day, Sadie Lee, Mrs. Aller, Ethel Mead, Margaret McGur and Elsie Moulton, sopranos; A. E. LaPorte and Vincent LaPorte, tenors, James Bailey, bass; recitations, Alice Mehl. Mrs. Harry DeMeza presided at the piano throughout the evening. Father Hart made an address of welcome. After the play dancing and refreshments were enjoyed and a social time followed until midnight.

Father Hart presented medals to the members of the basketball team who won the Catholic championship of the city this year by defeating the Columbus Club in a series of three games. Captain Denney presented Father Hart with a medal as a mark of esteem from the members of the team. Those who received medals were Captain Daniel Denney, Albert Brynairski, Joseph Carty, Harry Moulton, Martin McDonough and Andrew McDonough.

The affair netted a substantial sum for the church fund. The basement of the church, which was thoroughly renovated, presented an attractive appearance, being beautifully decorated for the event with cut flowers and potted plants. The hall will be the centre of all the social activity of the church in the future. The committee in charge of the affair was composed of the following: Mrs. Edward Ryan, chairman; Mrs. Edward Duchesne, Mrs. Hilare Blatz, Mrs. Cormick McDonough, Mrs. Martin Reilly, Mrs. Robert McDonough, Mrs. Patrick McDonough, Mrs. Thomas Meaney, Mrs. Pasch, Miss Irene Duchesne and Miss Calvert.

The list of prize winners was given out as follows: Mrs. B. Carson, Mrs. Thomas A. Moore, Miss Margaret Downey, Miss Bridget Moore, Mrs. James C. Hurley, James P. Lynch, Mrs. James Bailey, Miss H. H. Haley, A. A. Cannon, Mrs. Thomas Goff, John Geary, Mrs. W. F. Hamilton, Miss Bessie McLoughlin, Miss Abbie Dorgan, Miss Adelaide Stiglitz, E. G. Mullen, Mrs. Peacock, Mrs. J. Blatz, Miss Margaret Eginston, Mrs. A. F. Decker, Miss Helen Meaney, Miss McLaughlin, Mrs. W. W. Warnock, Mr. DeCamp, Steven Waldron, Miss Mary McCullough, Miss Winifred Higgins, Mrs. C. B. Pope, J. J. Kenney, P. J. Perrine, Mrs. C. A. Case, T. H. Duffy, James Wahlen, Mrs. Thomas Watt, Miss Irene Duchesne, Jack Connelly, Jack Moore, Mrs. D. Hogan, Miss Bernadette Duchesne, Mrs. Edward Duchesne and Charles A. Case.

ONCE EARNED $50 A WEEK; ARRESTED AS WIFE-BEATER

On complaint of Miss Mabelle Phillips, agent for the Charity Organization Society, John McCormack, of 245 East Second street, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court today, accused of neglecting and beating his wife and crippled child.

The case has attracted considerable attention and was the object of an investigation by Miss Phillips. McCormack is an electrical engineer who at one time drew a salary of $200 a month. Recently he has been employed in the Spicer Manufacturing Company's plant at South Plainfield as a laborer for thirty cents an hour. Discouraged over his "comedown" he took to drink and as a result was lodged in the Somerset county jail at Somerville in 1914. Through the efforts of Miss Phillips he was released in January and restored to his family. She also secured a position for him.

He was arrested Saturday. Judge DeMeza gave him another chance on the condition that he find a boarding place in South Plainfield and contribute $5 a week to the support of his family.

RUSH LETTING UP.

The rush of work which the Pond shop has been experiencing for the past few months is beginning to let up and as a result twenty-five men were laid off in one department yesterday. It is believed, however that practically a full force will be kept going until well into the summer. A night gang of planer hands has been working for some time and is to be continued.

MAYOR ANSWERS TAX CRITICISMS

Replies to W. M. Stillman in a Communication to Councilman Claybrook.

PUBLICITY IS INVITED

Points Out That the Public Hearing Was Arranged to Discuss Local Expenses Exclusive of Schools—Favors Home Rule.

Through an oversight, which was explained to Mr. Claybrook at the May meeting of the Common Council last night, the communication from William M. Stillman on the tax question intended to be read at the public hearing on the budget last week, was not presented at that time. It was read last night, however, as was also a communication from Mayor Leighton Calkins to Mr. Claybrook, being a reply to Mr. Stillman's letter. The Mayor's answer follows:

Send down proof for lead and head.

"April 29, 1915.

"Richard A. Claybrook,

"Chairman Finance Committee of Common Council.

"Dear Mr. Claybrook:

"I am as sorry as you are that William M. Stillman's letter was not read at the budget hearing on the evening of April 23, but I am glad to know that you have explained to him that it was handed to you by the City Clerk just as the hearing began, and that, in the rush, you laid it aside for later consideration, not noticing from the address that it was intended to be presented that night. In view of our earnest effort this year, by an administration pledged to the fullest publicity on all matters of municipal concern, to get the people interested in their public affairs, I am sure that

LIVE-WIRE TIPS FOR MERCHANTS

Business Men's Association Heard Harry B. Salter at Beefsteak Dinner.

ENTHUSIASTIC AFFAIR

Addresses Following Dinner Were Particularly Interesting to Type of Men Present—Business Meeting Preceded Dinner.

Merchants representative of Plainfield's retail trade, the nucleus and major portion of the city's business, met at the beefsteak dinner of the Business Men's Association in the Ritz last night. Dining, however, proved to be a minor consideration, the menu being overshadowed by the more appetizing program of three speeches. Primarily the men had come together to glean some new tips on how to run their respective lines of city commerce, and all went away well satisfied with the result.

In many respects the gathering was similar to the one held several weeks ago, keen enthusiasm and interest in the speakers' remarks being apparent on every hand. Good fellowship was the keynote. Rivals in specific lines of business met on a friendly basis, and for the time being the thought of competition, generally uppermost in the minds of the twentieth century merchant, was placed into the background. The gathering was representative of nearly every line of trade for which Plainfield stands, and in many instances the representation was not an individual one.

The reception of the after-dinner speakers' remarks made it plainly evident that the diners were deeply interested in the proposition of how

RICHARD H. DEPEW, JR., NOW A BENEDICT

Takes Miss Trenna Hofer, of Cincinnati, as His Bride at Home Ceremony.

The marriage of Richard Henry Depew, Jr., son of Richard Henry Depew, of 1019 Hillside avenue, this city, to Miss Trenna Hofer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Hofer, of Avondale, Cincinnati, Ohio, took place at the home of the bride's parents last evening.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lenora Hofer, as maid of honor, and Miss Ethel Wright, of Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, and Miss Katharine Drayton, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. The best man was Henry Cope, of New York, and the ushers were Ross Bragg, of Cincinnati, and John C. Martin, of Plainfield.

The ceremony and reception were attended by several hundred guests from Cincinnati, New York, Chicago and other places. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Depew will settle upon their ranch in Wyoming.

The wedding of yesterday was the culminiation of a romance begun two years ago when the bride while traveling through Wyoming accidentally met Mr. Depew who was then living on his ranch. The acquaintance quickly grew into a strong friendship and a little later the engagement of the couple was announced. The bride's family is prominent and widely known in Cincinnati, while the bridegroom is equally well known in Plainfield and New York.

CONFERENCE FAILS TO END CARPENTERS' QUESTION

A two-hour conference was held last night between committees representing the Master Carpenters' Association and the journeymen's union, regarding the demand for an increase of wages, but no definite conclusion could be arrived at. The committees finally adjourned until tonight, when the question will again be discussed with a view to bringing about a settlement.

Twenty-one pickets were sent out this morning by the union and they returned at noon time bringing in a number of men who had kept at work through various causes. Their quitting brought out every carpenter in this district. All work on the Harrison Avenue School has been suspended, while that of the Evergreen Avenue School and the Crescent Court apartment on East Seventh street is seriously hampered.

British Colonials Take Form in German Southwest Africa—Austrians to Renew Attack on Servians From Southwest.

Washington, May 4.—Vigorous and forceful presentations will be made to Germany by the United States in the cases of the bombarding of the American steamship Cushing and the torpedoeing of the Gulflight, it was announced on the highest authority today. President Wilson declined to discuss with callers today the Administration's plans in the case. The President conferred with Secretary Bryan for more than an hour in the White House this morning. Later the President said the conference was not for the purpose of discussing the Gulflight affair, although it had been mentioned.

Amsterdam, May 4.—An incessant cannonade far exceeding any that has yet taken place has been audible from Belgium in the last two days from the western frontier of Holland. Hundreds of fugitives from the area behind the German lines are arriving at Bruges, Ghent and Ecloe, while long trains bearing wounded are passing through various points toward Germany. It is declared that the biggest and bloodiest battle of the campaign in Flanders is now raging.

Washington, May 4.—Relations between Japan and China appear less intense, President Wilson declared to callers today, although he declined to give the grounds for his optimism. He said the strained conditions that have existed between the two countries by reason of the demands of the Tokio government were relaxing, and that the situation seems to be clearing. The President seemed highly hopeful that a way out of the difficulty threatening the Orient could be found.

The President said that the United States had received no notification of the reported service of an ultimatum on China by the Tokio government. Minister Reinsch, he said, was keeping a close watch on developments at Peking, and had not referred to the receipt of any such document there. In closing the subject the President made the significant remark that he had strong hopes that the situation would be adjusted in the near future.

London, May 4.—The British steamer Minterne was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands, Monday. The explosion killed two firemen.

New York, May 4.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, before signing the contract for the supply of 1,000,000 rifles for foreign account, secured an option for the purchase of the J. Stevens Arms and Tool Company, of Massachusetts. The price paid will be on a basis which will result in the manufacture of the rifles at a satisfactory profit to the Westinghouse. While the Westinghouse has closed only one contract, calling for 1,000,000 at $27.50 each, negotiations are in progress for an additional order for a similar number at the same price, and it is expected will be closed.

Copenhagen, May 4.—A German warship has shelled and set on fire the Lagskaer Lighthouse, on one of the Aland Islands at the entrance of the Gulf of Bothnia, according to a despatch from Stockholm. A general German attack prevailed on the coast of Finland in northern part of the Gulf of Bothnia, it adds.

Paris, May 4.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon:

"In Belgium, north of Ypres, two German attacks, one delivered on night of May 2 and May 3, and the other on evening of the third, were both repulsed. In the Argonne, near Bagatelle, French troops gained some ground."

Petrograd, May 4.—Caucasus headquarters report the repulse of Turkish attempts to resume the offensive in the direction of Artwin. There has been some fighting at other points, but the general situation is unchanged.

Cape Town, South Africa, May 4.—British colonials under Gen. Botha, occupied Otyimbingwe, in German southwest Africa on Sunday, it was officially announced today.

GEO. T. APGAR, JR., MEETS WITH PAINFUL ACCIDENT

George T. Apgar, Jr., secretary of the Apgar Construction Company, experienced a painful injury at Elizabeth, yesterday, where the company is erecting a $10,000 residence for C. D. Manning, of Plainfield, when one of two boards which he was sawing at once, in order to save time, moved, causing his hand to slip and his thumb to come in contact with the downward sweep of the saw. Wrapping a handkerchief around the wounded member, which was bleeding badly and causing him considerable pain, Mr. Apgar hastened to the nearby office of several physicians, but he could find none of them in. Mr. Apgar then got into his car and drove all the way home and to the office of Dr. Platt.

William Ward, of Grand street, is entertaining his brother, C. E. Ward, and family from Jacksonville, Florida, for the summer. The trip was made by automobile.

The township and borough road committees have not yet come to any settlement regarding the repairing of Westfield road. The boundary line runs on the western side of the road and the borough authorities contend that they are therefore not responsible for any of the upkeep of the thoroughfare. Mr. Ward, in speaking for the township, says that a boundary line is required to run through the centre of the street and each municipality is responsible for the repairing of half of it. The committees of the two places will probably hold a joint meeting in the near future to settle the question for good.

Owing to the illness of Contractor Linden, the borough road committee has been delayed several weeks in the work of macadamizing Watson road and several minor jobs, but expect to do something along that line in another week. Chairman Augustus Sheelen said yesterday that it was his intention to have the annual application of oil laid by this time, but owing to the holding up of the shipment of the tank car it would not be done before the last of the week or the first of next.

Owing to the excellent reception accorded the members of the Mount Pleasant Social Club when they presented "Too Many Husbands," in Excelsior Hall last Saturday, a Bible class at South Plainfield has secured it to be presented at that place in a few weeks.

The Rev. Oscar S. Michaels, who has resided in Plainfield since becoming pastor of the All Saints' Episcopal church, has taken up his residence in the borough.

Miss Mae Hargreaves, of Woodland avenue, entertained a number of her friends yesterday, on the occasion of her thirteenth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Korn, of Martine avenue, expect to leave sometime during the month for the Pacific Coast, where they will visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Mrs. H. P. Robinson, of North avenue, has fully recovered from her recent illness.

Claude Sorenson has joined the ranks of the automobilists.

The condition of Mrs. Robert Tarane, of Paterson road, does not improve and she is still very ill.

The Rifle Club being organized by a number of local young men will get underway next Saturday afternoon, when the constitution and by-laws are adopted. Louis Tuzo, of Terrill road, is interested in the boys and will act as instructor.

Chemist Says Milk Is Good.

The following communication, recently received, is of interest by reason of its high authority:

"Wood Brook Farms,
"Plainfield,

"Gentlemen:

"It may interest you to know of a conversation I had with a college classmate who is a chemist in the N. Y. State Agricultural Dept.

"I showed him the Board of Health statement of the analysis of Plainfield milks, and asked which was the best. He immediately pointed to yours, and asked the price and being informed that you had been selling it for 10c, he said it could not be produced with a profit for that.

"You may use this statement in any way you care to.

"Yours truly,

COUNCILMAN BLATZ PLANS FOR A PUBLIC HEARING

So many complaints have been received from the residents of the West End owing to their inability to secure adequate sanitary sewer facilities, Councilman Francis J. Blatz at the May meeting of the Council, last night, offered a resolution which was adopted instructing the sewer committee to arrange for a public hearing for affected property-owners. The time for the hearing will be fixed by the committee.

There is quite an area in the West End which has not been provided with the city's sewer system and residents are obliged to rely upon cesspools. It is this condition that is complained of and which the sewer committee would like to remedy.

OLD LIBERTY BELL.

It Is Not Only Cracked, but Is Suffering From Metal Sickness.

"The Liberty bell is suffering from the disease of metals," says the Iron Age. This is due to several causes. The famous bell was badly cast in the first instance and was recast thrice by amateurs, who changed the composition of the metal with each recasting. The first crack appeared when the bell was tolling on the occasion of the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall. In 1909 it was discovered that the crack had extended to double its original length.

The bell has been transported to a distance on six occasions and has been clipped by many vandal souvenir hunters. Its trips did it no good, as more or less rough handling was scarcely avoidable.

When the new crack appeared Alexander E. Outerbridge, Jr., an expert metallurgist, was called in to examine it. When it was planned to ship it to San Francisco for the Panama exhibition Mr. Outerbridge was again summoned, and on his report it was determined to keep it henceforth in Independence hall. In his latest report Mr. Outerbridge says:

"It is no hyperbolical figure of speech to say that the venerable Liberty bell is affected with a serious disease. Metallurgists have adopted into technical phraseology the term 'diseases of metals' and recognize several such maladies. I myself have no hesitation in saying that the bell has a distemper, which should insure its most careful preservation from all shocks such as it would be subject to in a long journey."

The Iron Age says that with each of the remeltings to which the bell was subjected it lost largely in tensile strength, resilience, etc. Mr. Outerbridge's experiments show that pure copper loses 50 per cent of its tensile strength by three remeltings. The Liberty bell was recast three times and perhaps even at that time it had already been attacked by the disease that has been eating into its copper and tin vitals ever since.

LABOR AND RECREATION.

All Work and No Play Produces the Fatigue That Poisons.

Men and women come in the morning to their tasks with a spring of fresh energy within them. Little by little during the hours of labor they empty that spring. When it is dry they must draw from forces which should be untouched. By some strange chemistry which no one understands too well these intrusions on the physical forces which should be inviolate produce in the human system a toxic condition—fatigue poison, auto poison the scientists call it.

If this fatigue poison passes a point where the period of rest following is not equal to the task of throwing it off and filling afresh the spring of energy, the man goes back to his toil a little unfit; the longer he goes on the more unfit he becomes. Slowly the poison invades his system. The repairing forces—food, relaxation, pleasures and sleep—become less and less equal to the task. The man becomes more and more open to the attack of disease, less and less able to do his work; unfit to improve upon it; unable to grow. He is an unsafe man, too, one not to be trusted among machines in dangerous places. The man has been poisoned into unfitness by the slow accumulation of fatigue poison which he could not throw off.

It was not work which did this. It was too much work. He needed the work to keep him fit. Without it or its equivalent, a regular physical exercise, his spring of energy would have as surely deteriorated as it did from overwork. The spring of energy standing idle would have soured within him.—Ida M. Tarbell in American Magazine.

A Prophecy That Came True.

When Sir Edward Elgar, the noted composer, was quite a small boy he made a curious prophecy about himself. On making his first appearance at school the master asked him his name.

"Edward Elgar," he replied.

The master thought that the boy spoke too brusquely.

"Add the word 'sir!'" he commanded.

"Sir Edward Elgar!" said the future knight gravely.—London Globe.

Highest Speed Ever Attained.

The highest speed ever attained by man on the face of the earth is one mile in 25.2 seconds, equivalent to 142.85 miles an hour, according to the Railway Age Gazette. It was in an automobile run by Teddy Tetzlaff on the level salt beds at Salduro, Utah, 112 miles west of Salt Lake City. The best speed ever made on rails was with an electric car between Berlin and Zossen—130.5 miles an hour.

MAYOR ANSWERS CRITICISMS

Mr. Stillman will believe that our failure to read his letter at the meeting, and discuss it, was an oversight, and that no discourtesy was intended. I am also confident that the Council appreciates, as I do, the interest in our city affairs which prompted him to send a communication as he could not be present in person. Another year we will not select a Friday evening. That was another oversight, due to it being the set day for all meetings of the finance committee, and without it occurring to any of us that it would conflict more than any earlier day in the week, with church meetings.

"I have carefully read Mr. Stillman's letter, as published in both papers last Tuesday evening. I am in entire accord with some of his views, for example, that we shall never be able to practise true municipal economy so long as we are not free to decide for ourselves how much we want, and can afford, to spend. Of course it is proper for the State to legislate about matters of State concern: Public safety, honest elections, public health, a minimum standard of education at the public expense, etc. But with respect to local, internal affairs, and even with respect to schools beyond a minimum standard adequate for good citizenship, a city should be free to decide for itself how much it can afford to spend, how much it wants to spend, and precisely for what. I am not opposed to expensive schools. But I am unequivocally opposed to expensive schools except by the free choice of the people who pay for them. Our greatest need is genuine home rule, as I pointed out in my message last January. This really disposes of a large part of Mr. Stillman's letter, dealing with home rule, schools, the bonded debt for the increase of which our expensive schools are largely responsible, the State tax laws, etc. These are all matters of interest and importance; so is the increasing cost of county government. But I would like to point out, which perhaps was overlooked by Mr. Stillman, that the hearing was advertised and held solely for the purpose of discussing our local expenses exclusive of schools. So, even if his letter had been presented, as it should have been, its subject matter to a considerable extent would not have been germane to the purpose for which the meeting was held. I do not mean that we would have refused to discuss subjects of general interest; but merely that his letter does not seem to me to point out any substantial saving that it is within our power to make. To take up his suggestions for greater economy, so far as they relate to our local expenses, excluding county and schools, we find them to be as follows:

"(1.) He says we should go back to the call system for the fire department. Possibly we should; but we have gradually been getting away from the call system in recent years without objection from taxpayers and it is only the final step towards a full paid department which has just been taken. The recent fire ordinance formally abolishing the call system was advertised and a date set for objections to be made and no one appeared to oppose the ordinance. My own view is that real efficiency under a call system is impossible, especially under modern methods and with modern equipment. Furthermore, while insurance companies benefit by efficient fire departments, it is hardly correct to assert that a fire department is run solely or mainly for the benefit of insurance companies.

"(2). He says 'Stop charities and amusements which add so large an amount to the budget.' The total amount in our proposed budget for 1915 for charities and amusements is $2,500, made up of an appropriation of $2,000 for the Playground Commissions and $500 for the public recreation fund. I am aware that some people would cut out any appropriation for these purposes, but the amount we have appropriated really does not add substantially to the budget. If Mr. Stillman has in mind the $3,500 appropriated to the hospital as being a charity it might be stated that this is a payment under a contract to care for the indigent poor when sick. As a matter of fact the city does not pay all that it costs the hospital; the actual expenses to the hospital last year were about $5,000. The city is bound to care for its poor and it would cost us a good deal more than $3,500 a year to build and operate a hospital of our own.

"(3). He says 'the excessive cost of the Board of Health should be reduced.' I think he must see that a bare statement like this, if made orally at the hearing, would not have helped us very much. It follows that his letter, which was intended to be read and to represent his views, should have specified the waste in this department. The details of the expenditures of the Board of Health are published annually and available for all taxpayers.

"(4). He says that there should not have been any appropriation made for the care of shade trees. Perhaps not, if we cannot afford it. But the city has no choice in the matter. The law, which is similar to the law relating to public libraries, enables the Shade Tree Commission to certify, within certain limits, the amount it requires. This year the Commission might have demanded $3,000; and the Library might have demanded $15,000. Both departments with public spirit have entered generously into our plans to hold back an increasing tax rate.

"I am sure that you will be glad to hear further from Mr. Stillman, if he will indicate just where a saving can be made in the police and health departments. His letter, boiled down, points out so far as I can see only a possible saving of $2,500 for playgrounds and recreation, and a return to the call system in the fire department. I do not mean that savings cannot be made elsewhere, but only that Mr. Stillman has not specified how.

"It is refreshing to have people show an interest, when we are doing the best we can to give them the kind of government they want. Mr. Stillman's views are entitled to careful consideration. As I have pointed out, we cannot, under the law, side-step some of the things which he, in common with many others, regards as extravagant. But where we have the power to curtail, we want all the help we can get in discovering how to do it. I suggest that Mr. Stillman's letter, which was addressed to the Mayor and Common Council, be read at the regular meeting next Monday, and that a copy of this letter, if it reflects the views of the Council, be sent to him.

"LEIGHTON CALKINS,
"Mayor."

A. color league and other stunts by local athletes. There will also be a number of local clowns. All of the ticket sellers and takers, ushers and others around the show will be well known local men.

Health Notes

Published by the Plainfield Health Department Every Monday.

The problem of keeping our food clean is a serious one; it may even be a life and death matter, for we know that flies carry the germs of tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other forms of intestinal trouble, and the dust may be laden with the germs of these and other diseases.

What about the food that you eat? When you buy it, do you know whether or not it is covered with fine germs; whether or not the flies from nearby stables, privy vaults or garbage cans have wiped their filth-smeared feet upon it? You can only be sure of it in one way. Buy your foodstuffs from the clean merchants, whose stores are clean, who protect such vegetable foods as are eaten raw without peeling from contamination; whose bread, cakes, candies, etc., are securely protected and who deliver all of these things to you properly wrapped. These merchants are safe to deal with; they are protecting your health, in so far as clean food is concerned, and they deserve your trade.

There is a State law which compels all merchants to protect foodstuffs and they are all familiar with it. Your Board of Health is trying to enforce this law by inspecting all stores and huckster wagons, and getting the co-operation of the dealers. Some few will not co-operate, and these must go to court. There will not be many court cases if you refuse to buy from those who are not complying with the law. Read these rules, then buy from the man who protects your food.

Rule 1. Fruits, vegetables, meats and other food products shall not be displayed or exposed on the sidewalk, or outside of places of business, unless such foods are securely covered by cases of glass, wood or metal, or unless they are inclosed in tight barrels, bags or boxes; provided, however, that this rule shall not apply to fruits or vegetables which must necessarily be peeled before use, but such foods, when displayed outdoors, must be supported on platforms at least eighteen inches above the surface of the sidewalk or ground.

Rule 2. Prepared foodstuffs, such as bakers' goods, confectionery, shelled nuts, etc.; dried fruits, such as dates, figs, peaches, prunes, apricots, etc.; cereal products, such as tapioca, breakfast food, etc.; pickled products, such as pickles, chili sauce, etc.; fruit products, such as apple butter, jellies, jams, etc.; meat products, such as dried, salted or smoked fish, veal loaf, pickled pigs' feet, chipped beef, boiled ham, mincemeat or other foods prepared for eating, or subject to the attacks of worms or flies, shall not be displayed for sale unless protected from flies, dust and dirt and all other foreign and injurious contamination by suitable coverings of glass, wood or metal.

WILSON AND HIS PARTY.

Senator Borah is a shrewd and experienced political observer and his warnings to the Republican leaders that their party will not have a walk-over in 1916 is no doubt being thoughtfully considered, particularly his assertion that, although there will be no Progressive candidate in the field, it will be necessary for the Republicans to adopt a liberal platform. The tendency toward radicalism is less marked than it was a year or two ago, but there is evidence that reactionary or ultra-conservative leanings in any party are still unpopular.

According to Senator Borah, President Wilson is "a foeman worthy of our steel," he is "much stronger than his party," and "those who try to delude themselves into believing his defeat will be easily accomplished are in error." As a whole Senator Borah's remarks are pointed and pertinent, but perhaps he also is led into error when he concludes that virtually all the strength belongs to President Wilson and little or none of it to his party. Any party that survives more than a hundred years in spite of its mistakes has inherent elements of strength or, what is the same thing, manifestly possesses an appeal which reaches great masses of the people.

President Wilson's abilities and personality count for much, but he could have accomplished nothing without the loyal support of his party, and, like every other President not called on to face any really great national crisis, he owes more to his party than his party owes to him. Senator Borah has fallen into the too prevalent habit—an unhealthy sign in a republic—of attributing solely to a leader the merit and the power that belong more fully to the majority of the people from whom he has received appointment. The time of Woodrow Wilson is four and may be eight years, but the Democratic party or its general political policy dates from Thomas Jefferson's election in the year 1800.

If Senator Borah really meant that President Wilson's numerical following is at present stronger than that of his party, there is much to support such a view. For Woodrow Wilson is not a Democrat of the old type and he has appealed to a large independent element, perticularly to those who call themselves progressive. Mr. Wilson stands for new political ideals out of harmony with the old Democratic policy of preserving intact our dual system of Federal and State governments, of three co-ordinate departments of the Federal branch, and of no expansion of or encroachment by one at the expense of another. He has labored earnestly for the enactment of legislation he regarded as needful, but has employed methods which have forwarded the process so noticeable in recent times of widening the scope of executive activities and greatly expanding the Federal power.

Though he has described himself merely as "a conservative who does not stand still," President Wilson has strongly appealed to a large element known as "progressive," a fact which no doubt was concerned in the virtual collapse of the Progressive party organization. Senator Borah probably had this in mind when he warned the Republicans of the need of adopting a liberal platform in 1916.

THE CAT.

Ever since the time when the printed word came into general use by the introduction of movable types, the faithfulness and other good qualities of the dog have been the subject of story, poetry and song. The cat, however, has had no legal status in New Jersey, and an effort was made at the last session of the Legislature to provide a licensing system, so that Tabby could have a recognized position. The position of the cat has been definitely determined by a decision of the Maine courts. A citizen of that State sued a neighbor because his dog had been killed by the latter. The killer pleaded in extenuation of his act that the dog was chasing his cat.

In deciding that the dog owner could collect no damages the court said that "the time of its first domestication is lost in the mists of the dawn of history, but it is apparent that the cat was a domestic animal among the early Egyptians, by whom it came to be regarded as sacred, as evidenced by the device of Cambyses during his invasion of Egypt, B. C. 525 or 527, which could scarcely have been feasible if the animal was then wild. From that day to this it has been a dweller in the homes of men. In no other animal has affection for home been more strongly developed. It is clear, therefore, from the popular meaning of the word 'domestic' and from our knowledge of its habits gained from fact and experience that the cat is a domestic animal.

"Among the ancient Britons it was held to have intrinsic value, and the theft of a cat was punishable by fine. When, however, larceny became punishable capitally, the courts to mitigate the severity of the law, held that certain animals were not the subject of larceny if they were not fit for food, or were kept only for pleasure, curosity, or whim. They are instanced by Blackstone as dogs, bears, cats, apes, parrots and singing birds, because their value is not intrinsic, but depending only on the caprice of the owner."

The pageant which is being prepared by the Public Recreation Committee to be given on Friday in connection with the benefit circus for that body, the Anti-Tuberculosis League and the Visiting Nurse Association promises to be one of the most interesting affairs of the kind that the city has ever seen. One hundred and thirty or more children will be used to illustrate the fight for health, and the plan has been worked out in an allegorical style which cannot fail to teach its lesson. No detail has been forgotten, and it is sincerely to be hoped that there will be large audiences present to show their appreciation of the preparation, and incidentally help along three very worthy local causes.

SKILL OF THE BEAVER.

As a Canal Digger He Is an Engineer of Rare Ability.

According to a legend, the beaver is supposed to be a reincarnation of man, put back on earth to expiate past offenses by work, and in some of the early drawings it is depicted with the face of a man. And when we consider its extraordinary intelligence and skill as woodcutter, engineer (dam and canal maker), house builder and food storer the notion does not seem at all farfetched. Describing the canals which the animals make by scooping out the earth with their hands, A. R. Dugmore in the "Romance of the Beaver" remarks:

"It might be presumed that these canals are only run through level country, but here is the greatest evidence of the engineering ability of the beavers. They build their canals uphill by means of weirs or dams, the distance between them varying according to the gradient. Yet they never work uphill unless it is made absolutely necessary by the contour of the land. The width of these canals is usually about three feet, with a depth from one to three feet, seldom deeper except when small pools are made, evidently with the idea of providing a hiding place in the event of danger. The direction of the canals must necessarily be variable. Wherever conditions are favorable they are as straight as though laid out by human engineers, but when there is any advantage to be gained by curves they make curves."

"EVOLUTION" TO BE THEME OF SERMON

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong to Discuss Subject From Scientist's Viewpoint.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, announces that there will be a pleasant surprise for those who attend the mid-week services at the church tomorrow night. He made several important announcements from the pulpit Sunday, among them the fact that next Sunday morning he will preach his long-promised sermon on "Evolution," and the week following a companion sermon entitled, "Do Animals Reason?"

As a preliminary statement concerning these discourses has elicited wide-spread interest, especially among the teachers and pupils of the city schools, Dr. Strong extends a special invitation to the schools of the city and borough to be present at these services and seats will be reserved for them in the gallery. Dr. Strong will show the steady trend away from evolution among leading scientists of Europe and America and will present some interesting informing facts upon the matter under discussion.

Another important announcement concerns some expected services in the near future conducted by one of "Billy" Sunday's most earnest "trail-hitters," a worker who in his way is almost as remarkable as Mr. Sunday himself.

Just now the church is very much alive spiritually. Several are awaiting baptism and many others are contemplating the step. Dr. Strong is always present Wednesday evenings at least a quarter of an hour before the service to talk with those who desire to converse with him upon the subject of religion or upon any other subject connected with Christian life and experience.

PLANS FOR SILVER BAY CONFERENCE

Y. W. C. A. Members to Meet to Discuss Ways and Means.

A meeting of all those interested in the Silver Bay Conference will be held at the Y. W. C. A., Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, to discuss ways and means to provide funds for the delegation to the conference from the local association this year.

These conferences are held on the grounds of the Silver Bay Association, which is situated about seventy miles north of Albany, on the western shore of Lake George, only about ten miles from its northern end, and back of it for many miles stretches the deep silence of the dense Adirondack forests. It is easily reached by the Delaware and Hudson Railroad from Albany to Lake George Station and thence by steamer. The little postoffice at Silver Bay, which is close to the hotel and the telegraph and long distance telephone connections, maintain easy communication with the outside world. A physician and nurse are in constant attendance to safeguard the health of the delegates, and every effort is made for their comfort and pleasure. The Lodge, with its attractive foyer, and its large dining room seating upwards of three hundred people at once, houses many of the delegates, while there are well equipped cottages, and class-rooms, and a large airy auditorium whose porches give a beautiful view of the lake below. The opportunities for recreation at Silver Bay are in many ways ideal. There are smooth, well kept tennis courts for all who care to play, a large athletic field for basketball and more strenuous games, and boating and bathing and aquatic sports for those who enjoy the water. Launch parties often go for a day's excursion to historic Fort Ticonderoga, just at the foot of Lake Champlain, and there are other groups under competent guides who explore trails deep back into the Adirondacks.

The Young Women's Christian Association of New Jersey holds two conferences at Silver Bay—the student conference and the conference for city associations. For young women in business and young professional women the city conference is especially planned—it affords a restful vacation for the girl who has only a fortnight at her command and offers her, too, the spiritual recreation which makes the next year's work a joy rather than a task. Among the Bible teachers for this summer will be Miss Katharine Aller, general secretary of the local association.

NEWS AND VIEWS

THE W. C. T. U.

Iceland, a few years ago, started toward national prohibition. It has it in full effect this year, and Denmark, which gave her official sanction, is placed at the experiment. Iceland has a poor soil and climate, but it has no almshouses, nor inmates in jails, nor criminal courts worth mentioning; but it has newspapers, schools, churches, total abstinence for the individual, and prohibition for the nation.

Going 17,000 miles south, we find New Zealand with the same hatred of rum they have in Iceland and with a fight on, almost as victorious. The people voted the liquor traffic out by a majority vote; but their law required a sixty per cent. vote, which they will secure in the near future.

Canada has local option, and by it much "dry" territory has been secured. The rural districts generally have adopted total prohibition. Prince Edward Island is entirely "dry."

It is generally agreed that the steady, persistent, successful warfare of the people of the United States on the liquor traffic has had much to do with giving temperance light to Europe and the world, and has been the leaven which is leavening the whole lump. About 60 years ago, a wave of prohibition swept over the Northern States. Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Delaware, Michigan, Indiana and Iowa adopted statutory prohibition. One State after another dropped out of the line, until in 1907, Maine stood solitary and alone. In 1907, Maine, Kansas and North Dakota were the only ones of the eighteen States that had tried the experiment of prohibition that retained it, they having adopted constitutional prohibition. Then a wave of popular indignation set in which has moved with steady but merciless fury against the saloon and which now seems to have reached its climax in the process of the destruction of the drink traffic. The States have entered the prohibition column in the following order: George in 1907; Oklahoma, Alabama, Mississippi and North Carolina in 1908; Tennessee in 1909, and West Virginia in 1912. Since last September the number of "dry" States has been doubled. Virginia began the victory in September last with a majority of 35,000, and with every city but three voting against license. It was followed on election day in last November by the four Western States of Arizona, Colorado, Oregon and Washington, all adopting constitutional prohibition.

Alamaba, the only Southern State to return to license, slipped back into the prohibition column in January, and Arkansas, Iowa and Idaho adopted prohibition in February. Both branches of the Legislature of Utah passed a State-wide prohibition bill in March; but the Governor vetoed it some time after the Legislature had adjourned (an act of questionable legality), and there was no recourse. On one day, the third of last November, the saloon was cleared away from enough space in United States territory to make room for England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales; for all of Italy, Holland, Switzerland and Denmark, and then have enough left for another England. Within the last eight months a geographical area has been cleared of the liquor traffic in this country into which could be placed the British Isles, all of France, all of Germany, all of Italy, all of Denmark, with five thousand square miles left.

What an empire—with the Stars and Stripes, unstained by rum, and the Cross of Christ as the sources of the best civilization on the earth! We have here a hundred years of progress in a little over half a year in the warfare against alcohol.

In February last the Legislature of South Carolina voted to submit the question of State-wide prohibition to a vote of the people next September. In the same month the Legislatures of Montana and South Dakota passed a similar bill, sending the question of prohibition down to the people to be voted upon in the November election of 1916. In February the Vermont Legislature also vote to refer a statutory prohibition measure to the people for approval. On February 25 Minnesota passed a county option bill, to take effect immediately, which was fought bitterly by the liquor people.

For between forty and fifty years the brewers and distillers have had a strong haand on municipal, state and national legislation, corrupting it with its touch. The more than $200,000,000 tax paid by these men gave them a real mortgage on national affairs; but things have changed miraculously. Little by little the United States Government has resented the assumed ownership by removing bars from government buildings and institutions, by taking the canteen out of the army, grog from the men in the navy, the wine-mess from the officers, under Secretary Daniels, and the saloons from the Canal Zone, under the present administration. The grip of the brewers and distillers on Congress was so absolute that it took ten hard years of fighting to get a vote on the interstate amendment commerce bill, forbidding the illicit transfer of liquors from "wet" to "dry" territory, which was passed by a two-thirds majority over President Taft's veto, and has recently come into effect to destroy, according to the admission of the liquor people themselves, one-third of all their business in America!

to run their business on a more up-to-date and approved method rather than how to "beat the other fellow out." The attendance was a large one.

During the dinner phonograph selections were furnished by E. F Glover, and this was a feature in itself. Informal entertainment, characteristic of events of this nature, was plentiful on all sides, and it was the consensus of opinion among those who attended the affair that it had been a thoroughly enjoyable as well as profitable one.

Herman Schwed, president of the association, introduced the speakers, and the committee in charge included: Leslie R. Fort, chairman; Daniel A. Hulick and Samuel Rothberg. Prior to the dinner the association held a short business session, during which J. H. DeMott was elected secretary to succeed George Ballantine, who resigned. Peter B. Hodge was elected a member, and an auditing committee was appointed to consist of J. J. Varley, Henry Huarand and Samuel Rothberg.

The principal speaker of the evening was Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce. His remarks involved topics especially pertinent to the business man, and it was evident that he had "touched the right spot," and that his suggestions were welcomed. Mr. Salter said, in part:

"The greatest difficulty confronting the shopkeeper today in small towns and cities adjacent to the larger ones of this great Eastern shopping center is to overcome the idea that the large stores in the commercial centers offer better goods and better values. That is the case in Trenton, situated as we are about half way between the two great cities of New York and Philadelphia, and I have an idea that the same trouble exists here in Plainfield. The average citizen, somehow or other, seems to delight in saying to guests, 'that is imported,' believing, possibly, that such a statement lifts them higher in the social estimation of the visitor. 'This came from New York' appears to be just as much a desirable expression, with reference to merchandise, as does the imported idea, and it is this tendency upon the part of our citizens that commercial organizations are seeking to overcome.

"It is gradually being impressed, however, upon the minds of most of our people, that these 'out-of-town purchases' have not turned out as good as if they had been purchased at home, and as a consequence, I believe it will be easier to overcome this 'buying out of your home town' habit. Much of this is due to the fact that a number of big stores in the big cities have misrepresented things, and the merchants of the smaller cities are fast waking up to the opportunity thus presented. Business morals have undergone as radical changes as have politics in recent years, and it must be apparent to all that unfair competition does not have to be met with dishonesty. Such competition will eat itself out. In other words, make it your business to sell goods that won't come back to customers that will come back. Judicious and honest newspaper advertising is the backbone of publicity, but above all have your ads written by a man who understands merchandising and don't misrepresent. You may reap temporary advantage by special reduction sales, but you'll find that you can hardly ever get the goods thus sold back to their former price.

"We have been passing through a siege of misrepresentation in Trenton, but the percentage of this kind of merchandising is today at the minimum. It took three or four rather severe jolts to make some of our merchandising citizens realize that the Chamber of Commerce meant business, but our honest merchants tackled the job, and as a consequence two of the offenders have left our city, and the others have cleaned up.

"This is the one way we hope to bring about a reorganization of business, and while it was primarily undertaken to help the merchants, you can readily see that it is going to help the buyer. In this campaign of education we again demonstrate the truthfulness of that old adage, 'you help yourself when you help others.'

"Aside from helping business by a co-operation upon the part of all merchants, your business can be materially benefited by a better co-operation upon the part of employer and employe. It is not necessary, of course, for an employer to become socially familiar with his employes, because if one becomes too intimate socially there is apt to be a letting down of these bars of government, which must be exercised in all well-regulated establishments, to the detriment of both employer and employe. But I do know from experience that you merchants can make better clerks by extending a cheerful good morning to all at the beginning of every day and treating complaints as if they had some merit even though you know otherwise. Encourage clerks to make suggestions, get them together once or twice a year and send out of town for someone to talk to them on business matters. Every man or woman has imaginations, and these imaginations will develop into initiative if given a little jolt. Initiative is nothing more or less than imagination put into action. We recently had a wonderful exponent of commercialism in Trenton, and the morning after the first lecture proved to be an eye-opener for many of our merchants. Incidentally a number of these very merchants told me that they went into the scheme thinking only to benefit their clerks, but admitted that the benefit had been just as great on their own side. We all get in ruts, and after all, the only difference between a rut and a grave is in the width and the depth. We get our d-u-e by what we d-o, and if you set the example for your helpers the result will be noticeable. It is just as easy to come into the store in the morning with a smile and a pleasant good morning for all your helpers as it is to come in with a grouch. If you come in with a headache it is a sure sign that you didn't use your head the night before, and for your own good you had better stay away from the store until your mental or physical trouble clears up.

"Many a man has missed a good picnic because he saw the clouds in the sky in the morning. Don't look for clouds, look for sunshine. Wake up, get up, cheer up, speed up. That's all there is to life. You wake up in the morning, then you get up, and if you don't follow it up by cheering up, you certainly won't speed up."

Henry W. Herrman took for his subject, "Efficiency," and said in part:

"The American people have a habit of 'riding' a hobby to death. The word 'efficiency' is right in that line for ultimate treatment; it has become the claim of every merchant and corporation. In attaining efficiency you cannot discount practical experience. Efficiency is nothing more than common sense mixed with a little ingenuity and applied to the theory of keeping everlasting at it, it will bring success. The fact that you cannot discount the personal equasion is a theory that should underline good salesmanship. You can never discount the value of a good man. I believe that in the final analysis the personal equasion stands for 75 per cent. toward success in any line. Efficiency, in its modern expression, when applied by one who knows business and exercises ingenuity, means success, but this must also be backed by good sound principle. Many of our troubles in the business world come through the abandonment of good, old-fashioned honesty. Honesty is the foremost keynote of an organization, and the relation between the working staff and the administration comes next. I have found that in almost all cases where there has been some fundamental fault to be found that there was a feeling that someone was not getting a square deal. Positive conviction that there is no square deal to be had results in leakage and friction in a department. I believe in the good, old-fashioned principle that success depends a good deal on picking the right man for the right place and giving him ample opportunity to show what he can do. Nobody likes to be driven, and a contented feeling among employes is the beginning of a good day's work. Continued content is the price of good work. It's the attitude of the Golden Rule, 'Feel how the other fellow feels.' The men who are really successful today are the men who have that feeling and magnetism for the other fellow."

J. C. Evans, head of the commercial department in the Plainfield High School, spoke on the "Relation of the School Pupil to the Business World." He told of the work being done to "make" practical business men out of High School pupils, and cited some specific examples of results attained. Mr. Evans told of a study he had made of business instruction, and stated that he had secured the services of one who would prove a valuable asset to the teaching corps in the commercial department of the school next year.

N. P. H. S. NOSES OUT HIGH BRIDGE TEAM

Batting Bee in Sixth Session, Netting Six Runs, Enough for Victory.

The High Bridge team that "Prof." Phelps brought to Hyde Oval, yesterday afternoon, made the North Plainfield High School lads hustle to send them home defeated by an 8-7 score. The visitors were well on their way to victory in the fifth inning by a 5-2 score, but Dawe started a batting rally that ended with a total of six runs in the sixth inning, that put the High Bridge boys behind.

Hebert got hit by the first ball pitched by "Midget" Dorland, and scored. Meade tallied in the second for the home team on an error, a steal and a hit by Hebert. The visitors counted four runs in the third inning, and tallied another in the fifth, while the home score stood still, starting the sixth with odds of 4-2 against them. The visitors loafed on their lead, and no one got past first in their half of the inning, but then arrived the big time for the home men, and they grabbed it. Dawe and Van Mater started with a single each, Conroy was passed, Meade got on by an error, pushing in one run, and then Smalley and Stahl both doubled to centre, clearing the bases twice. This left Stahl to score on a fielder's error, totaling six runs in a string, which pulled North Plainfield out of a bad place.

N. P. H. S. VS. RUTGERS PREP.

North Plainfield High School balltossers will travel to New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon and meet the Rutgers Prep nine for the second time this year. The first game took place on Hyde Oval, and the home team lost out after ten innings of play. Stahl will do the mound work for the locals, and will be opposed by Jake Dienzer, the former New Brunswick High School twirler, who pitched several innings for Rutgers at Hyde Oval.

MRS WEAVER LOST.

Mrs. S. F. Weaver, formerly of Centra' avenue, this city, with Mrs T. Gassebeer, lost in the second round of the women's doubles tennis tourney yesterday afternoon, which is being held at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hill. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the young Swedish champion, and Miss Florence Ballin were the victors, the scores being 6-4 and 6-1.

BOB HEBERT INJURED.

Bob Hebert, left fielder on the North Plainfield High School baseball team, was injured in the High Bridge game at Hyde Oval yesterday afternoon while sliding into second. He tore the flesh off his left leg and was taken from the game and received medical treatment. His leg is now a little stiff, and he will not play against Rutgers Prep at New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon. Harry Kirch played in Hebert's position yesterday after he was taken out.

SECOND CITY TITLE BATTLE TOMORROW

Leal and Plainfield High School Forces Scheduled to Meet on Crescent Oval.

The second interscholastic baseball contest for the championship of the city and the Collier Trophy will take place on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon, when the Plainfield High School and Leal School teams are scheduled to meet for the first time. Because of the outcome of the game between North Plainfield and Leal last Saturday, all interested in the championship series are anxiously waiting for the verdict of the game tomorrow, just to compare the relative strength of the city and borough teams, which come together next week for the first time.

Leal gave North Plainfield the hardest fight ever on the diamond last week and if Voorhees pitches the way he did then and is given the same support the city team will have to fight all of the nine innings. Voorhees has a "spitball" that will keep opposing batters busy trying to hit. Mellor, who is playing third in place of Fred Wilson, who was injured, was considered a weak spot but in the game Saturday he showed up well and accepted several chances.

Both of Plainfield's pitchers worked last Saturday at Elizabeth, and Coach Patch has not yet decided which one to use against the private school artillery. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

ENDRESS WON FIRST EVENT ON INDIAN LEAGUE ROSTER

The out-of-door schedule of the Indian League, of the Y. M. C. A., was opened yesterday with the running high jump event, which was won by Endress, of the Sioux team. His mark was 4 feet 2 inches, while Brownlee and Nellis, both of the Iroquois team, were tied for second place with a mark of 4 feet 1 inch.

The event took place in the yard in the rear of the gym, which has been made into a fine outdoor gym. The ground has been graded and is perfectly level, and a baseball diamond has been laid out. A new fence surround it with wire on top of it, so the balls cannot go over. Yesterday the Omaha nine lost to the Wawayanda players in the opening game of the season, 32 to 17.

ST. JOSEPH'S FIVE RECEIVE REWARDS

Borough Quintet, Conquerors of Columbus Five, Presented With Medals.

Six members of the St. Joseph's Boys' Club basketball team received medals at the entertainment given last night in the new social hall. Father Hart, in presenting each player with the trophy, complimented the team for its success during the past season. He urged the players to always play a clean and sportsmanlike game, and if ever defeated, to accept the result with good spirit. The medals are unusually attractive. They are octagon in shape and have the raised letters, "S. J. C." in the center.

After Father Hart's presentation, Captain Denny, of the team, presented Father Hart with a similar medal as a mark of the esteem and appreciation of members of the quintet. Those who received medals were: Captain Daniel Denny, center; Harry Moulton, forward; Andrew McDonough, forward; Albert Bryniarski, guard; Joseph Carty, guard, and Martin McDonough, forward.

BOWLING PRIZES FOR WINNERS IN TOURNEY

Columbus Club Season Was Brought to a Close Saturday Night.

Prizes won during the past winter in the Columbus Club's five-man team bowling tournament were awarded by Grand Knight Robert McCormack Saturday night, acting for the house committee. The team prize, a pin and ball trophy, was awarded to the Robin quintet, captained by Joe Sullivan. In accepting the trophy on behalf of his teammates Sullivan gave vent to his oratorical eloquence and thanked the club for the prize and also the rival teams for their generosity in allowing the Robins to capture the coveted honor. Second team prize, a bronze cup, was given to the Parrots, led by James Strappe. He also delivered an address of acceptance, taking occasion to remark that the winners were only a little better than his team, but that little bit happened to be just enough to gain them the silver trophy instead of the bronze one. Both of the leading aggregations put up a good article of the alley pastime and the competition was keen all winter.

High individual score, irrespective of class ranking, was won by John J. Green. This prize was a pair of bowling slippers, donated by Francis J. Blatz.

Following the ceremonies that went with the awarding of prizes a collation was served by the house committee.

N. P. H. S. TEAM'S LEADING HITTER OUT OF THE GAME

Bob Hebert, the left fielder on the North Plainfield High School team, will be unable to play for a week because of an attack of water on the knee. While sliding to second in the game against High Bridge yesterday, Hebert opened an old cut in his knee, and the doctor gave orders last night for him to give the injured member a rest.

He will be missed from the Rutgers "Prep" game tomorrow, and perhaps will be out for the Saturday game; but Kirch will make a strong substitute in the field, though his batting is not up to Hebert, who leads the team at present.

VOORHEES BEAT VAIL.

Art Voorhees defeated Walter Vail in a bowling match on the borough alleys last night, taking six out of eleven games. His best score was 245, while Vail registered a 203 in the first game. The scores:

A. Voorhees, 156, 209, 173, 183, 178, 170, 170, 209, 245, 197.

TENNIS MATCH OFF.

The tennis match between the North Plainfield and Summit High Schools, scheduled for this afternoon, at Summit, has been postponed because of the rain. The match will probably be played at a later date.

P. H. S. IN DUAL MEET TOMORROW

Montclair High School Track Team Will Visit Parker Field.

A dual athletic meet between the Plainfield and Montclair High School track teams will be held at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The local school has a large number of entrants and expects to make a good showing against their opponents. There will be ten events, including an 880-yards relay, the local team being composed of Schenck, Daniels, Clawson and Jeter.

Montclair willl send a large representation down to "clean up" in the events. The Ninth street institution will be represented by the following: 100-yards dash, Schenck and Jeter; 220-yards dash, Schenck, Clawson and Jeter; 440-yards run, Daniels and Trowbridge; 880-yards run, Daniels, Miller and O'Donnell; high jump, Runyon and Brower; pole vault Runyon and Schenck; 12-pound shot putt, Runyon, Daniels and Chamberlain; running broad jump, Runyon, Miller and Daniel; 880-yards relay race, Schenck, Daniels, Clawson and Jeter.

COMPARING RIVALS IN THE BIG SERIES

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

There are just eleven days remaining before the Plainfield and North Plainfield High School baseball teams meet for their first interscholastic battle on Hyde Oval for the city honor and Collier Trophy. Starting with today's issue the Daily Press Sporting Department will give the baseball history of one member of each team with interesting statistics, which will undoubtedly give the fans a better idea of the players. We start the list with William Peacock and Ralph Smalley, catchers of the city and borough teams respectively.

William Peacock, P. H. S., '15.

"Bill" Peacock's baseball career with the Plainfield High School has been four years long. In 1912 he was carried as a substitute and the following year made his debut behind the bat and also in the outfield. At present he is one of the most consistent players on the team and is a heavy sticker. Last season he adorned the right garden while now he is again in his right position, behind the bat.

Unlike most of the other local school players, "Bill" did not become acquainted with the national pastime in this vicinity, but first played with the Oxfords, of Newark, seven years ago.

He has a fine build for a ball player and is a good runner. He carries around about 160 pounds of flesh and has just passed his 19th milestone. After graduation, which takes place in June, Peacock expects to enter Colgate College.

Ralph J. Smalley, N. P. H. S., '15.

Captain Ralph Smalley, of the borough nine, started to play ball with the Highlanders, a team composed of boroughites. Before trying out with the High School he was also a member of the Interhaven Club, as catcher and outfielder. In his freshman year Smalley made an outfield berth and during the last two seasons has been behind the bat. He is also doing the bulk of the catching this season. Last year he was captain and successfully led the team through a championship series. For the past two years he has headed the team in fielding and last year batted exactly .280.

Smalley has a good wing from home to second and is generally successful in getting base stealers. He is 18 years old, and tips the scales at 160. Throws and bats right handed. He will enter Cornell in the fall of this year.

P. H. S. TENNIS TEAM DEFEATED CRANFORDITES

Plainfield High School racquet wielders won their initial interschool match of the season by taking two out of three matches from the Cranford High School team on Parker Field yesterday. The local players who took part were Captain Curtis Dall, Rodman Parvin, Roscoe Blanchard and John Cottrell. One match of singles went to visitors, while the red and blue supporters captured a singles and the only doubles match played.

Parvin and Dall had an easy time disposing of Hall and Lewis, the Cranford players, the scores being 6-2 and 6-3, while Blanchard beat Hall, 7-5 and 6-4. John Cottrell gave Lewis a good fight, but was finally vanquished, the scores being 10-8 and 6-2.

BARACAS VS. BOROUGH FIVE.

The Baraca bowling five, of Dunellen, will invade the Somerset street alleys tonight and meet Gates' borough team. This match was postponed from last week. In the first meeting of these teams, which took place at Dunellen, two games went to the home pinners, and the boroughites are out to even up matters.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant. —Adv.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver troubles, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

CAMIELLE MASSA AWARDED DUNELLEN SEWER CONTRACT

Camielle Massa, of Cranford, was found to be the lowest bidder for the contract of installing a drainage system in North avenue, Dunellen, when the bids were opened at the Council meeting in that place last night. His figures were $6,520.25, and the bid was accepted.

Mayor Latham appointed John Tinsman a sewer inspector. The Equator Realty and Development Company petitioned for hydrants along the streets in the company's tract. This was referred. S. R. Titsworth was given the contract for sprinkling the streets, his bid of 49 cents an hour being accepted.

COMMUNICATIONS TO BE REFERRED TO THE MAYOR

Considerable delay being occasioned from time to time through communications being held in the office of the city clerk awaiting disposition at a Common Council meeting at the suggestion of Mayor Leighton Calkins, the Council last night adopted a resolution authorizing the clerk or his assistants to turn over to the Mayor or President of the Council all communications upon their receipt, except in the case of the presentation of bids intended to be opened at a fixed time.

There have been times when communications have been held in the clerk's office for a week or even longer, when by referring the same to the Mayor prompt disposition could be made of the same.

WORK BEGUN ON THE NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

Excavation work on the new postoffice was begun early this morning by Mobus Brothers, of the borough. It was the original plan to have Postmaster Alvin E. Hoagland turn the first spade of dirt yesterday afternoon, but the contractors could not begin their work then because the necessary temporary buildings had not been erected.

The postmaster went to the grounds this morning for the purpose of "digging," but found on arrival that much headway had already been made by the contractors. Work has continued all day despite the rainy weather.

CHARLES HAKEN DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Charles Haken, aged fifty years, died this morning at his home on Rock avenue, following a brief illness. He was a native of England, but had resided in this city for a number of years, his last employment being with the New Jersey Central. He was a member of Trafalgar Lodge, Sons of St. George and the Monroe Avenue Methodist church. He leaves beside his wife four sisters and four brothers. Only one of the sisters, Mrs. Samuel Lee, resides here, the others all living in England.

The funeral will be held at the late residence on Rock avenue, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MRS W. O. TAYLOR, PRESIDENT.

Mrs. W. O. Taylor was elected president to succeed Mrs. M. H. Ewart at the meeting of the executive officers and chairmen of various committees of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Ewart resigned because of ill health. Mrs. Frank Rowley was elected secretary to succeed Mrs. Taylor. Mrs. Ewart will continue her interest in the association, which has been so valuable.

PHILIP CURRIN SELLS OUT.

Philip H. Currin, who has conducted a grocery store at Somerset street and Grandview avenue for the past seventeen years, sold his business yesterday to a Cranford man. The latter took immediate possession. Mr. Currin has been one of the oldest merchants on upper Somerset street in point of establishment and his retirement comes with keen regret. His plans for the future are unsettled at the present time.

HEALTH BOARD MEETS.

Health Officer Louis Oliff, of the borough, reported eight cases of measles and one of chicken-pox at the monthly meeting of the Board of Health last night. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., and Captain W. C. Smith were present to discuss the new ordinance being prepared to determine whether tile or iron pipes shall be used for sewer connections.

NOON-DAY MEETING.

All men are cordially invited to the men's noonday prayer meeting which will be held at the Recue Mission Hall, 10 Madison avenue, Babcock building, tomorrow from 12:30 to 1 o'clock. An interesting speaker has been secured for the occasion.

FIREMEN PRESENT NATAL TOKEN TO CHIEF DOANE

The members of the local fire department surprised Chief T. O. Doane yesterday afternoon by presenting him with a handsome leather travelling bag in honor of his seventy-first birthday. The presentation was made by the Chief's driver, Daniel Keiderling, who conveyed with it the congratulations and best wishes from all his associates. Mr. Keiderling added that every subordinate firemen hoped that Chief Doane would pass many more of life's milestones and that the they would serve under him for years to come.

Although taken completely unawares by the gift, Chief Doane expressed his gratification in a neatly worded address of thanks. To the men who were unable to be at headquarters when the presentation was made he returned his thanks by telephone or in personal visit. The Chief received a large number of gifts in honor of the birthday but he stated to a Daily Press reporter this morning that none of them made him feel better than the traveling bag, representing, as it did, the goodwill and sincere wishes of his men. The bag is handsomely embossed in silver and bears the Chief's initials.

LADIES' CHRISTIAN WORK SOCIETY ELECT OFFICERS

Routine business and the election of officers took place at the annual meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, which was held in the Trinity church parlors yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, the retiring president, presided at the meeting. Reports were read, and in every case a successful year was related, and much to look forward to in the coming twelve months.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. W. Templin; first vice-president, Mrs. William Kirch; second vice-president, Mrs. P. K. Dilts; treasurer, Mrs. Elmer Wheeler, recording secretary, Miss Mary A. Cable, and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jennie Chickering. The annual service will be held in the church, Sunday night, May 16, at which time the reports will be read.

"ANTIS" ELECT OFFICERS.

Mrs. E. Yarde Breese, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, was elected president of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage at the annual meeting in Trenton, yesterday, and Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, of this city, was chosen one of the vice presidents. Mrs. J. C. Moore, also of Plainfield, was made chairman of the finance committee.

ELECTED TREASURER.

DeWitt C. Hubbell, of Madison avenue, has been elected treasurer of the board of deacons of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, succeeding Dr. William H. Murray, of Watchung avenue. Mr. Hubbell was elected to the board at the recent annual meeting of the congregation, succeeding S. H. Whitney.

AN AUCTION SALE.

An auction sale of fine furniture and bric-a-brac will be sold tomorrow in the Lufburrow building at Central avenue and West Front street. Robert Muray, the auctioneer, will start the sale promptly at 10 o'clock and a variety of fine articles will be sold.

W. Wallace Coriell, of Lincoln place, who has been ill for the last month, was reported today as being in a serious condition. Mr. Coriell is a veteran of the Civil War, and his chances for recovery are made hard because of his advanced age. He is under the care of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan.

ARRIVAL OF A SON.

A young son arrived last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phleger, of Norristown, Pa. Mrs Phleger was formerly Miss Alice Rimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, of Essex street, this city.

HEADQUARTERS DRAPED.

Out of respect to the memory of Mathew Vanderweg, who for twenty-two years was a member of the Plainfield police force and who died Friday afternoon, the police headquarters in Sycamore street has been draped in mourning.

THE MASTER MIND

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

"Of course," he admitted, "you could hardly be expected to understand. But he is a gentleman, Walter, and he will therefore come to thank you."

The thief flushed hotly under the unveiled insult of the words, but he showed no disposition to resent it.

"How can he?" he persisted. "According to your instructions, I beat it right after the shooting. Wainwright hardly got a glimpse of me, much less of my name and address, I'm thinking."

"I attended to that," Andrew answered.

Walter voiced apprehension in another direction.

"That fellow ain't no rummy," he objected querulously. "Say, if I'd ever known the game was against Wainwright I wouldn't have come in. The Pinkertons would be just as safe, believe me. Whenever he went after a man he got him. They say he even got the goods on the Master Mind somehow and has him buffaloed. Anyhow the Master Mind went out of business and hasn't been heard of for years. And you must know what he was. There wasn't anything he couldn't pull off till Wainwright came along."

"Yes, I've heard of him," Andrew admitted.

Walter went on, speaking with enthusiasm.

"Why, that fellow was the cleverest this country ever produced," he declared, with sincere admiration in his voice. "I tell you he only touched the high spots—banks, corporations, the classiest things going. The men that worked for him even never got their lamps on him, and the bulls never had nothing on him. And then Wainwright got after him and threw a scare into him so he up and got cold feet and quit. So what chance you got? Huh!"

"That question need not concern you in the least, Walter. It is sufficient for you that I have guaranteed your safety." He paused as Parker appeared in the doorway waiting for his attention.

"Mr. and Mrs. Blount have arrived, sir," Parker explained. "They are in the drawing room, sir."

"Tell them that I shall see them at once," Andrew directed. "Let me know instantly when Miss Blount arrives." He nodded dismissal to the servant and turned again to the fuming young man opposite him. His voice sounded in sharp command, "You, Walter, will go to your room at once and study the memorandum until I send for you to meet your parents."

As he passed into the drawing room Andrew cast one swift glance toward a small table on the far side of the room and noted with an almost imperceptible smile a tiny shimmer of blue light that shone from the solitaire diamond placed there in readiness for the coming of his guests. The husband was a large man, of plethoric form and a strong, rough, rugged face, redly tanned by outdoor airs, the tint more florid from good cheer. His expression was kindly, after a rude fashion of its own, and with a pervasive suggestion of force, under which the latent weakness was with difficulty discernible.

The woman, however, was less complex, tall and handsome in a flamboyant way, with no trace whatsoever of intellectuality or spiritual development, merely an easy going, pleasure loving creature, untroubled by scruples of conscience. Both betrayed an acute anxiety in this moment of meeting with the Master Mind, though neither had any suspicion as to his identity, since they knew him only as Mr. Andrew.

CHAPTER V.

Getting Acquainted.

"WELL, Andrew, we're here," Blount said rather inanely after a short period of silence. "How long's the game going to keep us in New York?"

"Why?" Andrew asked sharply.

"Why—er—that is, you know"—

Andrew interrupted reassuringly:

"You need have no fear of the authorities. I shall protect you. There can be no trouble for you if you are discreet. Your only danger lies in curiosity and in disregarding my instructions."

Blount whirled toward his wife with a sigh of relief.

"Get that, Sadie?" he demanded, with a note of marital authority in his heavy voice. "Just you remember it, or else you'll be back in Joliet doing those fancy stitches on bed ticking."

The woman nodded assent.

"I certainly got that," she affirmed in a rich, throaty voice, modified by a faint twang. "But I been honest so long now I'm actually beginning to feel honest inside. And, what's more, and I never did think it could be anyways possible, but you can shoot me if I ain't kind of beginning to—to like it!"

Andrew gave no heed to this virtuous confession.

"You are about to meet the boy whom I have selected for your son. A word of warning—don't trust him!"

"Does he know anything about our record?" Blount inquired doubtfully.

Andrew's reply was explicit.

"He knows no more of you than you do of him. If you value your safety you will bear in mind my advice—that you keep him in ignorance." He stepped to a bell call set in the wall and pushed the button. "Now, your son will be here in a moment. You have only to remember what I have said. I shall leave you two alone with him for a little while."

Then steps sounded in the hall, and Walter appeared in the doorway. There was a sarcastic inflection in Andrew's voice as he made the introductions with a wave of his hand:

"Walter, your father—your mother. Mr. and Mrs. Blount, your son."

Without another word he turned and went out of the room.

It was Blount who first spoke. With a bluff cheeriness of greeting in his heavy voice, he said:

"Well, well! How are you, son?" He smiled a genial welcome.

Walter replied briskly in kind:

"Fine, dad!"

A snort of indignation from Mrs. Blount interrupted the complacency of the two men, who turned toward her interrogatively.

"What's the matter, mother?" the husband questioned, with a touch of solicitude in his manner.

"Get that, Sadie?"

suited to the event and spoke in tones broken with emotion.

"This is all so—so affecting!"

"Huh!" Walter ejaculated huffily. "I guess"—

Mrs. Blount interrupted:

"Father, why don't you introduce me to my son?"

"Sure do!" Walter remarked, with a grimace. "I'm just dying to meet mother."

Blount cleared his throat impressively and spoke with a bow as low as a generous paunch would permit.

"Mother," he said tenderly, "this is our son—our only son to this date, Walter."

Mrs. Blount beamed roguishly.

"Ain't he the cute little son!" she gushed. "Oh, sonny!" She advanced with fond haste toward the disconcerted Walter, with the evident intention of bestowing on him a chaste embrace.

"Aw, cut that out!" the son cried, disgustedly, as he drew back in alarm before the threatened onslaught.

"Why, Walter!"

"Oh, thunder!" Walter expostulated. "Say, what's the use of that bunk?"

Mrs. Blount spoke seriously now.

"No use, of course," she admitted gravely. "It's funny, though," she added, a little wistfully; "just for a minute I felt, somehow, like you might be my boy, sure enough—the one I never had. Ain't that the limit now?"

"Well, I ain't!" the young man declared crossly. "So we'll cut out the cuddling. See?"

Mrs. Blount's humorous sense of the situation caused her again to speak.

"I can't see that he's changed a mite, dad," she remarked, with a mellow gurgle of laughter.

"Aw, cut that!" Walter insisted sullenly.

"Do you know what you're up against?" he questioned shrilly. "I tell you, straight, this game's dangerous. Do you know, it's some kind of a frame up Andrew's got against Wainwright?"

"Wainwright!" Blount cried, aghast at this disquieting statement as to the thing in which he had become involved. "You don't meant the one here—the one that was district attorney?"

"That's just the guy I mean," was the savage assurance.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

SHADOW LACE AND NET.

A very simple little frock of shadow lace, as designed for the little girl is shown here. This is made of lace edging four inches in width and joined to form the body of the frock. The front is occupied by a panel of tucked net, this panel being bordered with scalloped and picot-edged ruffling of net which also finishes the bottom of the skirt and outlines the neck. The girdle is the usual ribbon affair, knotted at the front in imitation of roses.

APPROPRIATE DRESS FOR LITTLE GIRLS.

Never is a little girl more delightful than when, coupled with her innate modesty and daintiness, she has appropriate clothes. Ever delightful are the little long-waisted peasant dresses for girls, made up so charmingly in Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8317. Because of their practicability, comfort and prettiness, these dresses are a satisfaction to both mother and daughter. The dress shown above, closing under the plait at the side front, has elbow sleeves and a skirt with three circular frills. Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 4 yards 27-inch, 3¾ yards 30-inch or 3 yards 36-inch material.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Nell and Dick had been kept awake for hours, night after night, by the baby's sharp spells of illness, and both were worn out and nervous from lack of sleep. One night when the baby woke Nell insisted on getting up with him.

"For I can sleep in the daytime and you must work; you have taken care of him so many nights while I was unable to do it that it is my turn." And Dick, too sleepy to do anything but grunt a protest, was soon sound asleep.

When the little fellow quieted down, she brought him back to his crib and he gave a little sleepy cry as she put him down. This aroused Dick, who opened his eyes with a start.

"Have you had him up without anything around him?" he asked irritably. He was thinking that cold would make another paroxysm almost certain.

"Why, it's warm; I have nothing around me," was the low reply.

"That's different; a baby is so tender; you don't deserve to be a mother if you are going to be so careless."

The baby dozed off to sleep, and Dick was again lost in slumber, but Nell could not think of sleep. She was still very weak, and the baby's long crying spell had worn her to the verge of tears. Then to have Dick say such a brutal thing as that! She went to the couch in the living room, and resting her head on her arm, gazed off over the dusky fields and into the starlit sky. The slow tears rolled down her cheeks and dropped on her arm; the dumb agony was too deep to let her move to wipe them away. Dick was disappointed in her as a mother, and so soon, too. Oh, how could she stand it! He must have felt his disappointment deeply to be able to say such a cruel thing as that. Of course he would cease to care for her as the disappointment grew. The loss of sleep, the tired nerves, the weakened physical condition, all helped to conjure up dark specters in her future. The tears were coming fast now. Her loneliness, awake in the silent night, oppressed her. The distant barking of a dog intensified the silence.

Nell had cried until utterly exhausted, with head bowed on her arms. So absorbed was she in her gloomy imaginings that she did not hear Dick coming up behind her.

"Why, Nell, what does this mean?" he asked. "I waked up and found the baby there and you were gone. What are you doing now?"

"I could not sleep," said Nell.

"Couldn't sleep! You are dead for sleep. What's the matter?"

"You said——" Nell began to sob afresh at the memory of his cruel words.

He put his arms around her and drew her to him. "What did I say?" he asked in a troubled voice.

"Oh! you broke my heart." Her tears were falling on his shoulder.

"Tell me, dear; I never meant to hurt you, whatever it was."

"To hurt me!" she lifted her head and gazed at him reproachfully. "You said I did not deserve to be a mother." He felt her trembling in his arms.

"I must have been half asleep. I never meant it. Please forgive me."

"You said what you thought when you were off guard," wailed the worn-out little woman.

"I don't deserve to be a husband. I'll call myself any sort of a name if you'll forgive my stupidity. Of course I didn't mean it. I was so tired I was not all here. Can't you believe me, dear?" He half carried her to bed, where she soon fell into the sleep of exhaustion.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Why the Rabbit's Ears Grew Long.

"I won't kill you, but I'll make your ears disgracefully large."

"YOU know, kiddies, in the animal kingdom the lion has always been called the king," said daddy, snuggling the kiddies for the evening story.

"Why, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Oh, just 'cause he has a big roar and a woolly mane and mostly 'cause he takes the trouble, I fancy," said daddy.

"You see, some animals may be like some people they just naturally like to boss.

"Well, anyhow, this is to be a story about when the world was very young and there were only animals in the forests and there were no people at all."

"Oh, daddy, no people!" exclaimed Jack.

"No," laughed daddy; "just animals. And you know, too, this king of the animals, like many human kings of the present time, was surrounded with enemies. There was another animal that aspired to be king, and that was the fox, and King Lion found that some one very near his kingly self was telling all the state secrets to Mr. Reynard.

"Now, that would never do, so King Lion called a council unexpectedly one morning and after the roll call discovered that Rabbit, the keeper of the seals, was missing.

"'This looks very suspicious,' roared King Lion. 'Where is Rabbit, the keeper of the seals?'

"But no one knew. So, taking six of his faithful subjects, King Lion went prowling around through the forest.

"Soon he heard voices. He quietly made his way to where the sounds came from, and there, surrounded by fresh vegetables which Mr. Reynard had stolen for him, sat Rabbit and the fox.

"And Rabbit was saying: 'Well, when the king calls his council again I'll find out more things to tell you. You see sometimes I am not allowed into the meetings, but I have very sharp ears, and I'll listen to what is going on, and then I'll come and tell you.'

"But this was more than King Lion could endure. He rushed forward and grabbed the animal, roaring out:

"'I've found you at last, you mean little spy. I won't kill you, but I'll make your ears so disgracefully large that every one will know that you have been punished for listening and telling things.'

"Now, kiddies must hie them to beddie."

"Good night, daddy."

Household Hints

SALADS

Dandelion Salad—Take some crisp, fresh dandelion greens and watercress; wash carefully, cut up fine and set on ice. Break one egg in small granite vessel and beat. Take small half cup vinegar, pinch salt and tablespoon prepared mustard. Heat vinegar, salt and mustard to boiling point and pour over beaten egg, stirring all the time to keep egg from curdling. Set on ice until cold, then pour over watercress and dandelion greens. Serve with hard-boiled eggs.

Lima Bean Salad—To one can green lima beans add three tablespoons olive oil, a little onion juice, half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, two tablespoons cucumber pickles chopped fine; mix thoroughly; serve on lettuce or watercress.

Banana Salad—Cut bananas in four pieces lengthwise and crosswise; place on bread and butter plate with lettuce or cress. On top of banana apply a cream dressing made thick enough so it will not run; over this dressing scatter English walnuts chopped, and over all grate as much cheese as you would like. Do not use mustard with this. Make a dressing in a tincup: one egg, one teaspoon butter, half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup vinegar, sugar to make it thick (about two teaspoons); add some water, stir until cooked or in a double boiler. Beat and stir. Cream may be used instead of water, beaten in after it is cooked.

Cottage Cheese Salad—One cup cottage cheese, one-fourth cup chopped nuts, one slice chopped pimento. Mix all together, make in balls size of English walnut. Roll in chopped parsley. Lay on plates lined with lettuce leaves, placing cheese balls in center. Garnish first with yolks of hard-boiled eggs and the edges with the whites. Put teaspoon mayonnaise dressing here and there on salad. Lastly add a few chopped nuts sprinkled over all, and any kind of fruit, if desired.

BREAD RECIPES

Bread Which Is Hard to Beat—Start in the morning. Scald one pint milk, add three tablespoons granulated sugar (or four tablespoons brown sugar); four teaspoons salt, one large tablespoon (heaping) lard. Cool with one pint cold water, add two cakes yeast that have been soaked in one-half cup warm water. (Rub teaspoon sugar into yeast, if it does not work the yeast is no good.) Put eight or nine cups flour in pan, make large hole in center, stir up liquid thoroughly, pour in, stir flour in from the sides until stiff enough to knead. Use more flour if necessary to make very stiff. Take from pan and knead fifteen minutes or more (the longer it is worked the whiter it is). Place back in pan or bowl, grease top so no crust can form, let rise to double its bulk in a warm place. Mold into loaves, using lard on hands instead of flour. Let rise to double its bulk. Bake from thirty-five to forty-five minutes in moderately heated oven. This makes five medium loaves and is very good.

Hickorynut Bread—Mix well one egg, one cup sugar, one cup sweet milk, one cup broken nut meats of any kind, 3½ cups flour sifted with two heaping teaspoons baking powder and half teaspoon salt. Add a little extra flour to shape into loaf. Put in well-buttered pans, let stand half hour in warm place. Bake rather slowly.

Graham Bread (the best ever)—Mix two cups graham and one cup white flour together; add one cup brown sugar (white is not so good). Stir two level teaspoons soda into a very little hot water, then add it to two cups sour or buttermilk; add a teaspoon salt, mix all together. Will make two nice loaves of bread. Have fire turned way down and bake forty or fifty minutes. If troubled with oven baking too fast on the bottom, set a bread tin in bottom of oven with cold water in it.

Corn Bread—Two cups corn meal, one cup flour, one tablespoon lard, one tablespoon sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda. Put all dry ingredients in bowl and rub as in pie dough, then add 1½ cups milk. Beat thoroughly and bake in hot oven.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — A NICE CHEERFUL PLACE TO BE — BY "HOP"

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The World Film Corporation presents Robert Warwick in the five-part photo-play, "The Man Who Found Himself," at Proctor's Theatre, this afternoon and tonight, based upon George Broadhurst's successful drama, "The Mills of the Gods," also called, at the time of its production, a few years ago, "The Coward." The story is as follows: James Clarke, young cashier, robs his employers in order to provide medical attention for his sick sister. She dies and a fellow employe of Clarke's discovers his theft and blackmails him. Both are eventually found out, prosecuted and sent to gaol. By a series of chances, James Clarke escapes from gaol, gets a job, is earning an honest living and has won the love of a girl whose life he saved. Payton, his fellow thief, after serving his full sentence, discovers Clarke and once more blackmails him, attacking the happiness of his fiancee and her brother and taunting Clarke with cowardice. From this terrible situation Clarke escapes by voluntarily returning to gaol to serve the remainder of his sentence. He has "found" himself. He knows that when he finally leaves the gaol, Catherine, who has promised to be his wife, will be waiting to help him start life afresh.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"Martha By-The-Day," the new play which brings May Robson to the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, May 8, is Julie M. Lippmann's own adaptation of her popular "Martha" books and is said to provide Miss Robson with a character that will live as long as her charming "Aunt Mary"—in fact most of the reviewers in the eastern cities where the play has been presented say that it is even better. "Martha Slawson," around whom the story was written and the play built, is a New York woman approaching middle age and adding to the support of her family by going to wealthy homes to clean and scrub. Her shrewd and amusing comments on life and her startling practical applications of her philosophy of doing without hesitation, whatever seems to be her duty, furnish many amusing situations. Although her purse is small her charities are numerous and one of her acts of kindness brings into her home a young girl of fine breeding who has been beaten in the struggle for position in the Metropolis. Martha mothers her as one of her own and decides that she shall marry a certain wealthy young gentleman whom she has met while working at his sister's house. The way in which she works out the romance is unique and forms one of the interesting portions of the plot. Another stirring incident is the reconciliation she effects between a husband and wife after the former had served a term in prison for a theft the latter had committed to serve her own selfish ends. A splendid stroke of play construction occurs in the third act when Martha's daughter is accused of frequenting a gambling place of ill repute. Her father makes the accusation and the mother, taking her inspiration from the unquenchable fount, a mother's love, defended the girl blindly to learn in the next instant that the child's business in the place was to wash dishes in order to repay her mother some money which she had thoughtlessly appropriated. "Martha-By-The-Day" is in three prettily staged acts, the first showing Martha's flat in Harlem; the second, a trellis room in a magnificent country place in Catskill, N. Y.; and the third, the gate lodge of the Catskill estate. The cast supporting Miss Robson includes Jane Herod, Jack Storey, Mary Mersch, Edwin Brady, Violet Howard, Coates Gwynne, Emily Lorraine, Henrietta McDannel, R. Ardmore, Elizabeth Warren and others. The piece was staged by Frank Reicher, for three years general stage director for the late Henry B. Harris, later associated with Winthrop Ames, at the Little Theatre, and now stage director for David Belasco.

"I don't look like a man that would die very quickly, do I? I have just as good a physique as you ever gazed at. I wouldn't trade with any man I know. A lot of you fellows are stronger than I, but I have as good a physique as you ever looked at. I have been preaching at this pace for fourteen years, and I've stood it, although I begin to feel myself failing a little bit. But I may die, and on that 'may,' on that possibility, I carry thousands and thousands of dollars of life insurance. I don't believe that any man does right to himself, his wife or his children if he doesn't provide for them with life insurance, so when he is gone they will not be thrown on the charity of the world. And next to my faith in God, if I should die tonight, that which would give me the most comfort would be the knowledge that I have in a safe deposit vault in Chicago, life insurance papers, paid for up to date, and my wife could cash them in and she and the babies could listen to the wolves howl for a good many years. I don't expect to die soon. I may die, and on that 'may' I carry thousands and thousands of dollars in life insurance."

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

STRAWS STRAWS

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

ARRAY OF TALENT UNSURPASSED

AT THE BENEFIT CIRCUS

Mayor, Councilmen, Commuters, Lawyers and Business Men to do Everything Except Perform in Ring to Help Local Charities.

Well known Plainfielders will become circus men for a day on Friday, and appear in various capacities which are new to them. The occasion will be the benefit circus to be given for the Anti-Tuberculosis League, the Visiting Nurse Association and the Public Recreation Committee. The men will appear as ticket sellers and takers, ushers, announcers, side show barkers, and in various other capacities, and will include Mayor Calkins, William S. Tyler, C. B. Tyler, City Judge William G. De Meza, Councilmen Francis J. Blatz and John H. Cose, City Collector William R. Townsend, Charles Dunham, C. B. Morgan, Secretary A. C. Estes, of the Y. M. C. A.; V. W. Nash, Jr., Levis M. Booth, A. E. Force, Dr. Edward S. Krans, Dr. C. L. Crist, Samuel Rothberg, Charles H. Frost, Rev. C. H. Mallery, John J. Carty, David B. Doyle, Seymour Perkins, W. H. F. Veysey, Stephen H. Voorhees, George M. Holstein and G. Stuart Simons. Leslie R. Fort is chairman of the general committee. Others will sell peanuts.

The sale of tickets has been lively for the last few days. All but one of the boxes have been disposed of for the matinee, but there are several good ones left for the night performance. In addition to those whose names were published on Monday as box holders are the following: Mrs. David H. Rowland, William P. Smith, Henry C. Irons, Marion S. Ackerman, George L. Babcock, Kenneth Runyon, Mrs. Frederick E. Mygatt and Mrs. J. T. George. Boxes and tickets may be procured through any member of the committees interested in the charities identified with the performance, or at the Daily Press office.

The show will be given at the lot at the corner of Grant avenue and Front street, and is conveniently reached by the Main Line trolley cars. Provision has been made to do away with the dust nuisance, which made so much trouble for the audiences last year. A method of cleaning the lot and covering it with wet shavings will do away with all such trouble. The matinee will begin at 2:30, but there will be plenty going on to attract the interest and attention of those who visit the lot before that time.

The parade will leave the circus lot about 10:30, and a feature will be the presence of the children from the open air school of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, who will ride in automobiles. In addition to the many professional acts, which include as a feature the only performer who leaps the gap upside down, with a roller skate contrivance on his head, there will be over a half hour of local acts, including the opening pageant by 130 school children, a fifteen-minute exhibition by Boy Scouts, athletic work by Y. M. C. A. boys and men, and a large number of local young men will act as clowns.

The children from the Children's Home will be present as the guests of one of the friends of the Home, while the Open Air School children will occupy a special box erected for their use.

ELKS' NEXT DANCE.

The entertainment committee of Plainfield Lodge of Elks has issued its invitations for another of its delightful dances to be held in the Watchung avenue clubhouse on Tuesday night, May 11. Van Eps' band orchestra will furnish music, and several features not seen hitherto will be introduced in the course of the evening. The committee in charge of the arrangements is in charge of Walter Hamilton, Samuel Tavener, Everett Mapelsden, William Mulvey and Harry G. DeMeza.

LOCAL MAN ELECTED COUNCIL'S TREASURER

Represented Plainfield Trades at New Jersey Two-day Session.

E. V. Lorton, representing the Plainfield Building Trades' Council at the New Jersey Building Trades' Council in Atlantic City yesterday, was elected treasurer for the ensuing year. The other officers named included: President, J. T. Cosgrove, Elizabeth; vice-president, E. Fitzgerald, Jersey City; secretary, Henry Sands, Newark; members of the executive board, R. Fitzgerald, Hudson Building Trades' Council; F. F. Eldridge, Newark Council; J. T. Cosgrove, Elizabeth Council; E. V. Lorton, Plainfield Council; O. N. Temple, Paterson Council; A. B. Cook, Somerville Council; J. S. Bennett, Atlantic County Council; J. O. Swenson, Orange Council.

Concluding the annual two-day convention yesterday afternoon, the delegates adopted resolutions condemning the present Legislature for "its failure to adopt progressive laws," went on record favoring woman suffrage and called upon the Legislature to correct the manifold imperfections in the civil service laws so that its provisions for examinations would become more practical.

Red Bank was selected as the place for holdig the convention next year. It will be held the first Monday and Tuesday in May. The executive board was empowered to encourage favorable and fight hostile legislation at Trenton at the next session.

TRESPASSERS SOUGHT BY RAILROAD POLICE

Vigorous Campaign to Be Backed up by City Judge and Local Department.

Determined to put a stop to the practice of boys loitering on the railroad tracks and stoning passenger trains, the New Jersey Central Railroad's police chief has detailed Lieutenant Hughes and Special Officer William Riley to duty on the tracks that run through this city. The first victims of the crusade, four small boys, were lined up before Judge DeMeza in the city police court yesterday for throwing stones at a passenger train Saturday night. They were given reprimands and allowed to go. The arrests were made by Riley and Hughes, who appered as complaining witnesses against the youths, who admitted their culpability.

In commenting on the campaign against stone throwers and troubles after court yesterday, Lieutenant Hughes said: "We have been pestered to death by boys doing this mischief lately, and in several instances patrons of the road have narrowly escaped being injured. We're going to round up everyone we catch on the railroad tracks, and it is probable that examples will be made of them by the court. Stone throwing is one of the worst evils we have to contend with. There is always a possibility of the missile passing through the window of the car and scattering broken glass in the faces of passengers. The railroad is then liable, and we have to make good for what damage the youngsters have done."

In disposing of the cases in court Judge DeMeza said: "I am going to co-operate with these railroad men, and, if necessary, I am going to break up the practice by fining the parents of the accused boys. Considerable trouble has been experienced in the past, and fines levied on the parents will probably result in a dose of corporal punishment being meted out to the juvenile offenders, and this will do more good than anything else."

RECORD COURT SESSION.

City Judge William G. DeMeza had the busiest day of the year in the city police court, yesterday, when fourteen cases were brought before him for disposition. A grand total of $110 in fine money was inflicted and a total of 360 days in the county jail was dealt out as an alternative to the defendants. Eight individuals were found guilty and sentenced while four received suspended sentences.

GROCER AND GIRL CLERK DISAPPEAR

Robert L. Guttridge, Well Known Here, Has Been Missing Since Sunday.

HAD BUSINESS WORRIES

Son of Robert Guttridge, of South Avenue, Absent From His Rahway Store—Well Known as a Cyclist, Married and Has Four Children.

Considerable anxiety is being entertained by relatives over the continued absence of Robert L. Guttridge, son of Robert Guttridge, of 1237 South avenue, from his home in Rahway, no word having been received from him since Sunday last. Guttridge is the proprietor of a small grocery store, at 282 Main street, Rahway, and has a wife and four children.

Coincident with his disappearance Sunday is the rumored absence from home of Miss Marie DenBleyker, seventeen and pretty. Although it may merely be a coincident, it is said in Rahway that the two disappeared at the same time and neither has as yet been heard from. According to reports Guttridge took Miss DenBleyker for a ride Sunday afternoon. She has for some time past occupied a position as bookkeeper in the store and is well known and popular in Rahway.

The disappearance of Guttridge has caused a sensation in Rahway and every effort is being made to gain some information concerning his whereabouts. His father, who conducts a grocery store with his brother, James B. Guttriuge, in Netherwood, is now in charge of the Rahway store.

When interviewed by a Daily Press reporter, this morning, the father said that business troubles could be assigned as the reason for the son's disappearance. He further stated that he had been told semi-officially that the DenBleyker girl has returned to her home and that he attached no credence to the rumor that his son was with her. Mr. Guttridge said that business had not been up to the standard of late and that his son brooded considerably over conditions.

The missing man is well known in this city where he lived up to the time he was married. He was a bicycle enthusist and has won a number of prizes in events held in New Jersey. He was a particularly active member of the Plainfield Cycling Club for a number of years and took part in several of the road races held over the Mountain avenue course.

In Rahway this morning those knowing the girl and Guttridge were non-committal on the subject. Many rumors have been spread and while credence is attached to several of them no authentic information is forthcoming.

MADAME GEBHARDT TO APPEAR AT Y. M. C. A.

Plainfield music lovers will have an opportunity on Tuesday evening next to hear two talented artists at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium. The recital is given for the benefit of the association and will include a concert by Mme. Adelaide Gebhardt assisted by Walter McAfee. Mme. Gebhardt, the pianist, has succeeded in making the piano so speak to her hearers that they feel the power and beauty of the composer's thought as embodied in her music; the delicacy and flexibility of her touch and her wonderful power of expression are long remembered by those who hear her. She is considered one of the foremost pianists in this country by Paderewski. The noted young woman inherits her musical ability and two of the numbers on the program for next Tuesday are compositions of her father. Beside being an adept at the piano, Mme. Gebhardt is blessed with a powerful and clear soprano voice and often pleases her audiences by singing special numbers by request

Walter McAfee, who assists Mme. Gebhardt, is a noted tenor. He is possessed of a strong and flexible voice with which he can give expression to tenderness or passion. Among his selections are the operas of "I Pagliacci," "Tosca," "Myra," "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" and "Where My Caravan Has Rested."

WEST ENDERS IN BURNT CORK FUN

T. A. B. Society Will Have Big Minstrel Show in Celebration of Anniversary.

ON MAY 11 AND 12

Talented Principals Will Give Coon Songs Interspersed With Local Gags—The Cast and Chorus—Dancing Will Follow Show.

Members of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society who have been rehearsing for the past two months are now in a state of perfection to enter the field of minstrelsy next Tuesday and Wednesday nights, giving two performances in celebration of the forty-third anniversary of the organization's beginning. A cast of high class principals will be supported by a chorus of thirty-five young men and the committee feels it will be one of the most meritorious Plainfield has seen in several years. The show each night will be given in T. A. B. Hall on West Fourth street and will be followed by a reception and dance.

Michael D. O'Keefe, who has been one of the hardest workers for the advancement of the T. A. B.'s for many years past, will act as interlocutor. Up-to-date and local jokes will be hurled at him for the benefit of the audiences by the following end men: Frank Donnelly, William Mahoney, John Connolly, Russell Feirling, William Barrett and Joseph Carroll. Each of the ends will render a typical coon song and "put over" original funnyisms. High-class ballads will be offered by Patrick Powers, Albert F. LaRock John McCaffrey and Louis Montferrante. The chorus has been excellently trained while in all the rehearsals the principals have fulfilled all expectations. Handsome costumes and electrical effects will add to the stage setting designed by the committee.

All the solo numbers will be accompanied by an orchestra composed of Allen Squier, piano; Frank Manchester, traps, and Kenneth Stuart, violin. They will afterward provide music for dancing, which on Wednesday night will be continued until 2 a. m. The minstrel committee which has the arrangements in charge is composed of John J. Hines, chairman; M. D. O'Keefe and Joseph T. McCue.

LOCAL HIBERNIANS PLAN CELEBRATION

Division No. 4 Will Observe Its Fortieth Anniversary in Befitting Manner.

Local Division, No. 4, Ancient Order of Hibernians, will celebrate the fortieth anniversary of its organization on May 27th. The scene of the celebration will be Knights of Pythias Hall and members of the division, with the women of the various local auxiliaries are the only ones who will participate in the general enjoyment.

The local branch was founded on April 9, 1875, and has been during the forty years of its existence a helping hand in the general uplift of the community.

The various State officers will address the members of the order on the 27th and if the exertions of the committee prove as fruitful as is hoped, the affair will fittingly mark a successful epoch in the life of a splendid organization. The committee is as follows: P. S. Flatley, chairman; John F. Casey, Patrick Griffen, Frank Cullen, John J. Gallagher, Thomas Farrell, James Kyle, Joseph Diver, Timothy Cullinan and Michael L. Griffen.

At present the officers of the local division are: President, Thomas Farrell; vice president, Joseph Diver; financial secretary, James J. Kyle, Jr.; recording secretary, Timothy Cullinan; treasurer, John J. Gallagher; sergeant at arms, Peter McShea, and sentinel, Michael Regan.

SESAME CLUB.

The Sesame Club will meet at 10:30 tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, 425 East Seventh street.

TRIES TO MURDER FOREMAN OF GANG

Enraged Italian, After Aiming at Man's Skull With Pick, Flees to Hills.

INJURY A SLIGHT ONE

Police Follow Meager Clues—Would-be Slayer Had Worked Here But Four Days—Was Reprimanded for Tardiness.

An Italian laborer, enraged because he was not allowed to go to work on the Greenbrook road trenches after reporting fifteen minutes late this morning, attempted to kill Pasquale Donnati, the foreman in charge of the job. The assailant used a heavy pick in the act, but the foreman dodged and luckily escaped the full force of the blow. After inflicting a slight wound in the back of his victim's head the laborer fled in the direction of the mountains leaving the police with only meagre clues with which to trace his identity.

According to those on the job in the vicinity of Clinton avenue, where the incident occurred, the Italian who caused this morning's trouble has been in the habit of coming to work late every morning since he was employed last Saturday. Remonstrances on the part of the foreman had no effect and as a last resort he reported the matter to the contractor, recommending that steps be taken by the bosses to have the man report on time.

When he appeared at the trench at 7:15 this morning, instead of 7 o'clock, the foreman followed the boss' instructions and told the man not to go to work until he had seen the contractor. This he refused to do and when the foreman insisted on it the Italian became enraged and wielded the pick with deadly intent. Had it taken the desired effect the foreman's skull would have been crushed in and he would without a doubt have been instantly killed. The point at the base of the skull in which the slight injury was inflicted gives evidence of the aim taken by the assailant and his intention of reaching a vital point.

The incident caused the other laborers to become excited and in rushing to the aid of the foreman they forgot about the would-be slayer. Taking advantage of this turmoil he slipped away unnoticed and the police have every reason to believe that he went into hiding in the mountains not far from the point.

The event caused many wild rumors to be put in circulation and it was at first reported that the Italians had revolted and killed two men. This announcement reached police headquarters and Chief Weiss went immediately to the scene. Investigation soon revealed the nature of the affair and he communicated with the Plainfield department in an effort to start a thorough search for the would-be slayer. Up to a late hour this afternoon nothing had been heard of the man.

Donnati was removed to the office of Dr. Buchanan in the borough and was able to return to his home after receiving temporary treatment.

Investigation revealed the fact that the assailant came to Plainfield, Saturday morning, and engaged lodging in a Cottage place house. His name was unknown to the owner of the house and his employers knew him only by a number. He was of a sullen disposition and resented any reprimands from his superiors in an ugly fashion.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY CHILDREN'S HOME ASS'N

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Children's Home Association was held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., this morning. There was a good attendance of board members. The secretary and treasurer read annual reports. Officers elected for the coming year were: Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, president; Mrs. E. E. Parvin, first vice president; Mrs. F. Mygatt, second vice president; Mrs. G. Stevens, third vice president; Mrs. Frank Rowley, recording secretary, Mrs. Horace Phillips, corresponding secretary; Miss Ella Serrell, treasurer, and Mrs. E. J. Campbell, assistant treasurer.

The standing committees of the association will be announced at the next monthly meeting, which will be held on Wednesday, June 2.

TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY.

The sixth anniversary of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, O. E. S., will be celebrated at the semi-monthly meeting to be held Friday, May 28. After the regular business meeting a social hour will be spent in the banquet room. An anniversary supper will be given on June 4 at 7 o'clock.

COLORED BOY GETS $532 FOR TAR BATH

Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk Defendant in Suit at New Brunswick.

In the Circuit Court in New Brunswick yesterday seven-year-old James R. Franklin was awarded a verdict of $532 in a damage suit brought against former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city. Through his next friend, Julia Franklin, the boy sought remuneration for injuries said to have been sustained while he was playing in front of his home several weeks ago, when Mayor Fisk's automobile backed into an iron receptacle containing hot tar for roofing purposes, and the contents were splashed over the child. He was terribly burned and still showed the effects of the accident in court yesterday.

Mr. Fisk was not in the car at the time of the accident, but was made defendant as the owner of the machine. The auto drove away after the incident, and only through the foresight of a witness was the owner's identity learned. The State records at Trenton were consulted for the name of the party owning the car bearing the license the witness had noted, and hence the filing of papers in the suit. Mr. Fisk agreed that the boy should receive something to compensate him for his pain and suffering, and the $532 settlement was mutually decided upon. The whole verdict is intact, as the counsellor who brought his suit took the action out of pure sympathy for the child. He said yesterday that he intends to see that the money is put in a bank and tied up in such a way that the principal cannot be wasted, and the interest will be spent upon the boy exclusively. The youth is colored and comes from a poor family.

TO DISCUSS "THE GERMAN VIEWPOINT"

Dr. Thomas C. Hall, of Union Theological Seminary, to Speak at High School.

Dr. Thomas C. Hall, of New York, will lecture at the Plainfield High School tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock on "The German Point of View." The lecture will be given under the auspices of the following Plainfielders who arranged the meeting: J. Whitney Baker, F. L. Blendinger Henry L. DeForest, James W. DeGraff, Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann, Adolphus W. Hauck, E. Arthur Janke, H. Alfred Janke, C. W. Krausse, Dr. Richard Moldenke, Assemblyman W. N. Runyon and Townsend Rushmore.

Those who have arranged for Dr. Hall's lectures believe that it is desirable to know the German point of view not only for the reason that it is a fair thing to understand both sides, but also because America as a nation is greatly concerned in the issues of the war. They are of the opinion that her world position will assume a new perspective when the war is over.

It is further argued that Germany in the past has been commercially and from the viewpoint of culture of great value to this nation and that there is no doubt but that this happy relation can be restored when the world assumed its natural equilibrium. It is deemed important that the American people should be able to view the situation calmly and with a knowledge of all the facts even in case that the United States should be called upon to co-operate in bringing about peace as an arbiter among the nations.

BOUND BROOK MAN HURT WHEN HIS AUTO OVERTURNS

Leon Brulet, thirty years old, whose home is on Romney road, Bound Brook, was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital last night, suffering from an injury to his right shoulder and general hurts of a superficial nature caused by the overturning of his automobile in Bound Brook last night. He was about to turn a corner when the automobile skidded and turned turtle, pinning Brulet underneath. He was rescued by witnesses to the accident and after receiving temporary treatment at the hands of a local physician was rushed to this city.

The hospital physicians believe that the injured man's right shoulder has been fractured, but this cannot be fully determined until an X-ray examination is completed. The automobile was badly damaged.

JAPAN-CHINA CLASH IS NEAR

Reported That Mikado Will War Without Further Negotiations.

YPRES BATTLE RAGES

Both French and German Official Statements Claim Success There—Twelve More Trawlers Have Been Torpedoed in North Sea.

Peking, May 5.—Attaches of the Japanese Legation are preparing to leave Peking. Reports are in circulation tonight that Japan will begin war without any further diplomatic communication. A Japanese cruiser arrived late today at Chin Wang Tae.

Tokio, May 5.—Japan's ultimatum to China is reported to have been drafted at the Foreign Office today. It is said to give the Peking government forty-eight hours to accept the Japanese proposal. The British ambassador called on the Foreign Minister today and conferred with him for some time. According to semi-official reports England is trying to induce Japan to make further concessions to China. The Tokio newspapers declare these efforts are useless.

Paris, May 5.—Another check for the Germans in West Flanders is reported in an official communique issued by the War Office today. The battle of Ypres continues with heavily reinforced German legions being hurled against the British positions in front of Ypres. An attack delivered by the Germans against the British lines last night broke down with heavy losses. It is stated by the War Office that after the German attack had been repulsed, they were taken upon the flank by violent fire from French guns, which had been rushed up to support the English line. The Germans, as they fell back, suffered serious losses.

Berlin, May 5.—It is officially announced that the English are retreating with heavy losses at Ypres, and that the Russians are retreating from the Carpathians and have evacuated their positions at Dukla Pass. Thirty thousand Russians have been taken prisoners.

The Tageblatt's correspondent at the front reports the capture of Gorlice, Galicia 21 miles east of the Dunajec River, and states that the southern wing of the Russians in western Galicia has been shattered.

London, May 5.—Nine English trawlers, seven from Hull and two from Grimsby, were sunk Monday by German submarines in the North Sea, the Exchange Telegraph Company announced today. Their crews were saved.

Canadian losses in killed, wounded and missing up to May 2, totaled 232 officers, and 6,024 men, Under Secretary of War Tennant stated in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The strike on the part of 1,800 carpenters and builders at Woolwich Arsenal has come to an end. The contractors have promised to negotiate with the union officials to the end that the questions be arbitrated.

Hull, England, May 5.—Three more trawlers, the Iolanthe, the Hero and the Northward, were torpedoed by German submarines in the North Sea, yesterday. Their crews all reached land safely.

FOURTEEN YEAR OLD LOCAL BOY GETS $4,001 VERDICT

Victor Chamberlain, a fourteen-year-old boy living in Netherwood, was awarded a $4,001 verdict by Justice Bergen in the Supreme Court, this morning. The award was directed by Justice Bergen following an agreement reached between the boy's guardians, Robert and Robert C. Chamberlain, with the defendant, Otto H. Oppenheimer, of Newark.

The complainant was hit by Oppenheimer's automobile while riding a bicycle on South avenue, July 4, 1914, and sustained serious injuries. As a result of the accident one of the youth's legs has been made shorter than the other. It is alleged that Oppenheimer was responsible for the collision.

YOUNG WOMEN LOSE COMPANIONS ON EXCURSION

The Misses Martha Kratzel and Anna Wiedenhaupt were among those of the borough on the excursion of the New Jersey Central to Washington, Sunday, who were left in that city and had to return on another train. Their experience was far from a pleasant one. It seems that the young women and their escorts had separated in some way just before train time. The escorts had the return tickets in their pockets and the women realizing their predicament hunted bewilderingly for them. They neglected to return to the station where the men were anxiously scanning the excursionists as they boarded the train. When the train started the men hardly knowing what to do boarded the train and searched in vain for their companions.

After a search through the streets of Washington until over an hour after train time, the women realized that the excursion train must have taken their escorts home and they commenced to wonder how they were going to get home themselves. They counted their money and found that between them they had a few cents over $7. Supposing that they had enough money to purchase single trip tickets home they hurried to the station, where they were informed, to their bewilderment, that the tickets were $5.05 each. This meant that they were $3 shy of having the necessary amount.

The station agent finally came to their rescue informing them that money could be forwarded by wire and advising them to telegraph home for it. They followed this advice and the necessary amount was finally telegraphed by Miss Wiedenhaupt's father. The women arrived home at 2 o'clock Monday morning. The excursion, which had left Washington at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, had arrived in Dunellen five hours earlier.

QUEENS PLAYERS TO PRESENT "DRIFTING"

Rutgers Students to Appear at Plainfield High School May 13.

The appearance of the Queens Players of Rutgers College at the High School, on Thursday evening, May 13, 1915, promises to be an event of unusual interest. Through the influence of the local alumni the collegians were induced to present their "catchy college comedy," entitled "Drifting," although the dramatic season at Rutgers had practically closed.

The play deals with the actual undergraduate life at Rutgers and is from the pen of Earl R. Silvers, an alumnus, who was one of the leaders in every branch of student activity during his college course. Local interest is added by the presence in the cast of Lawrence French, of the borough. The New Brunswick Home News has this to say of his part:

"The work of Lawrence French in his capacity of a happy-go-lucky 'freshie,' always getting in the way, and always getting himself into trouble, was superb and it kept the audience in roars of laughter and applause. He gave the whole production an air of comedy and fun that greatly enhanced its value. His appearance on the stage was always the signal for fun of some sort to start, and he was eagerly awaited by the audience. Although his part was supposed to be a minor one, he played it so ably that it really attracted more attention that the heavier ones."

BIBLE CLASS HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Interesting Reports Presented at Annual Meeting Held Last Night.

The annual meeting of Class 2, of the Trinity Reformed church Bible school was held at the home of Mrs. L. C. VanNest, of East Fifth street, last night. The officers elected for the coming year were: Mrs. T. A. Wagner, president; Mrs. A. Davis, vice-president; Mrs. Harry Messler, secretary; Miss Emma Hyler, treasurer. The following chairmen of standing committees were appointed: Mrs. Charles Mehlenbeck, social; Mrs. E. Pangborn, finance; Mrs. J. Miller, visiting, and Mrs. A. M. Higgins, devotional.

Mrs. VanNest, the retiring president, opened the meeting with devotional service. Mrs. William Shafer, chairman of last year's visiting committee, reported that the committee had made a total of 153 calls. The committee also reported the sick members and sent flowers and fruit to them. It was decided to raise the usual one hundred dollars for the church treasury, but the method was not decided upon. It has been the custom of this class to raise that amount for the church for the past several years. A festival will be held during the month of June at the home of Mrs. VanNest, the date to be announced later.

The treasurer reported $238.62 raised during the year with a balance of $65 on hand. Four new members were received, one death occurred and nine families were helped. Thirty-one of the forty-one members on the roll were present. The past year has been one of the most successful the class has ever had. The committees appointed follow: Social, Mrs. C. B. Mehlenbeck, chairman; Mrs. Hendrick, Mrs. William Shafer, Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. John Walsh and Mrs. Rose Schomp; devotional, Mrs. A. M. Higgins, chairman; Mrs. G. B. Mehlenbeck and Philip Vroom; visiting, Mrs. Jesse Miller, chairman; Mrs. A. M. Higgins, Mrs. George Spier, Mrs. Edward Vail, Mrs. Jesse Lake, Jr., and Mrs. A. K. Willett; finance, Mrs. E. Pangborn, chairman; Mrs. John Hoffman, Mrs. James Neal, Mrs. Edward Weaver, Mrs. Frank Sowden and Mrs. Norman Sears. Philip Vroom is teacher of the class. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

LECTURED ON "INDIA."

The East End Civic Association held a largely attended meeting in the Netherwood Reformed church last night. Routine business was discussed, following which ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph gave an extremely interesting illustrated lecture on his trip through "India." Mr. Randolph is an unusually interesting speaker, and holds the attention of his audience throughout the discourse. The life, conditions, customs, people and characteristics of the Far East were brought out during his narrative.

RUMMAGE SALE.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., will hold a rummage sale in the auditorium of the association building tomorrow, starting at 10 a. m.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The business managers of the junior play are late in rendering a detailed report to the class, but it is estimated that they will clear $50.

Captain Smalley and Coach Mullin went to New York yesterday to do some baseball shopping.

Manager French has appointed Thomas Ball as assistant manager of the tennis team.

The monthly meeting of the Sigmas Gamma Kappas was held in the assembly hall yesterday. President Margaret Ewart presided. It was decided to have a meeting at the residence of Mrs. Goddard next Friday night, when plans will be discussed for the coming year, and for sending two of the members to Camp Altgmont this summer.

AN ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Rev. Lewis Bond, of this city, will give a stereopticon lecture on "Thessalonica, Ancient and Modern," at the mid-week meeting in Trinity Reformed church tonight. Mr. Bond lived in Macedonia for twenty-two years.

Your [illegible] ago will be found and considered—probably investigated—by some of your "logical buyers."

DON'T EXPEIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Plainfield Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Plainfield. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, says: "I confirm all that one of my family said in my favor in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's drug store, some years ago. The cure they gave me has lasted."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Mattis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffing, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

OFFERS PRIZES IN BOY SCOUT COMPETITION

M. C. Van Arsdale Will Aid Circus Exhibition—Prominent Judges.

Final instructions to the Boy Scouts for participation in the benefit circus performances on Friday were issued yesterday by Commissioner Allen E. Beals, who announced that through the generosity of M. C. Van Arsdale, several prizes have been offered to the winners of various events. These prizes consist of a number of pairs of boy scout shoes.

A pair of these shoes will be awarded to the boy scout making fire without matches first. Another pair will be awarded to the boy first reaching the top of a pyramid of boy scouts and standing erect in a signalling position long enough to send five letters. Another pair will be awarded to the scout who can bandage an arm in splints, bandage a head and do it neatest in the opinion of a competent judge. The assist scoutmaster reporting the largest number of scouts present at both performances will also receive a pair of scout shoes.

The judge of the various events will be Leslie R. Fort, editor of The Daily Press; Charles A. Frost, of the Courier-News; Assemblyman William N. Runyon, president of the local Boy Scout Council; the donor of the prizes, M. C. Van Arsdale, and a number of other well known men.

Scouts will assemble at the circus grounds at 1 o'clock on Friday. They will report to the commissioner, or officer of the day. In the evening they will assemble at 6:30, reporting to First Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., and Second Deputy E. A. Sprowl.

The program includes a period of fifteen minutes for Boy Scout work. Each troop participating, and from returns received by the commissioner, every troop in the city will be present and demonstrate a part of its work, will enter the arena and select an exhibition space in front of a section of the seats, taking care to be evenly distributed about the arena. They will then immediately proceed with their exhibition and, on signal, will retire promptly so as not to interfere with the act that is to follow. Prize awards will be judged largely upon the general appearance of competing patrols and the manner in which they perform their work. It has been suggested to scoutmasters that as the signal is given for the troops to enter the arena that they dash out in a body, giving the scout yell favorite with their troop. Scoutmasters are requested to keep all scouts together during the remainder of the performance except in cases where parents desire the boys to sit with them.

Ticket takers at the circus grounds have been instructed not to admit any scout to the performances unless he wears a full scout uniform.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The second term for the swimming classes will start May 17. All girls wishing to enroll in this department are urged to register their names at the association as soon as possible. The course will consist of six lessons.

All those interested in the Silver Bay Conference are requested to meet at the association tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, when plans for sending delegates from Plainfield will be discussed.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Maclyn Arbuckle, who made his first big success in "The County Chairman," when it was first produced at Wallacks' Theatre, in New York, twelve years ago, and who has gotten to be one of the most popular picture actors in the country, will again be seen at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and tonight, and also tomorrow afternoon and night. He will appear in the latest Paramount five-part comedy dramatic production, "It's No Laughing Matter," written and produced under the direction of Lois Weber, a new genius in the creation of feature films. The story is one that is sure to please young and old, proceeding through many intensely dramatic situations until everything ends well for the hero and heroine. "It's No Laughing Matter" comes direct from New York where it has been shown at advanced prices. Always keenly appreciative to the wants of the local picture fans, Manager Shannon has contracted with the leading New York agencies for several massive screen productions to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre within the near future. Numbered among them are films that have set the entire country to talking and are considered masterpieces of photographic art. Patrons of the house are cautioned to watch these columns for the announcements which will follow in the near future. The Plainfield Theatre serial story, "The Black Box," is shown every Tuesday and is being followed with keen interest by hundreds of picture fans, awake to the fact that nothing is too good for the Plainfield house.

Lovers of good comedy, the bright, clean sort of entertainment that has ever appealed to the vast majority of theatregoers, need but go to the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, and see May Robson in "Martha By-the-Day," and they will find a treat in store for them. All who are familiar with the character of Martha Slawson as she is presented in Julie M. Lippmann's widely-read stories will appreciate the comic possibilities of the role that Miss Robson has. That comedienne's well defined ability as an impersonator of eccentric women long ago placed her in the foremost rank of American actresses. She possesses an inate and infectious sense of humor, coupled with a keen insight into human nature, and the faculty of both forceful and delicate expression, and consequently is able to portray something more than a mere type in the characters she assumes. The character of Martha brings to the footlights a new type of womanhood—one that combines common sense, big heartedness and unending charities, with an odd personality and a voluble tongue. She is maid-of-all-work, who has a touch of Irish and is a New Yorker. In order to have her children reside in a little better locality, than would otherwise be possible, she adds to the family income by charwork, performed upon daily visits to wealthy homes. Her Harlem flat has a spare room to which are brought the unfortunates of life, who chance to cross her path. Here they are guests rather than objects of charity. Martha's quaint philosophy, infailing optimism and material help have brought sunshine into the life of Claire Lang, who had been beaten in the battle for existence in New York. The story of the comedy centers in Martha's efforts to advance her protege's love affair. There are abundant laughable situations and plenty of romance in the play. From the kitchen of Martha's flat, the action wanders to the trellis room and to a pretty gate lodge of a millionaire's summer home in the Catskill Mountains. Miss Robson has the advantage of a fine supporting company which embrace Jane Heron, Jack Story, Mary Mersch, Edwin Brant, Violet Howard, Coates Gwynne, Emily Lorraine, Henrietta McDannel, Roy Ardmore, Elizabeth Warren and others.

RETURNING HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Woodruff, of East Second street, and granddaughter, Miss Helen Woodruff, of Duer street, who have been spending the last four weeks visiting places of interest in the West, including the Panama Exposition, are on their way home and will reach Denver, Col., on Saturday. They expect to reach Plainfield on May 15.

EXPLAINS THE STATE APPROPRIATION BILL

Senator W. W. Smalley Tells How Legislature Voted More Than Resources.

Owing to a misunderstand which has arisen, Senator W. W. Smalley, chairman of the legislative appropriation committee, at Trenton, Monday, issued a statement explaining the provision contained in the appropriation bill of 1915. The procedure was somewhat unusual and resulted from the Legislature of 1914 appropriating $1,000,000 more than the resources of the State. In consequence, the money has not been forthcoming for various purposes and it was to remedy the trouble that the provision was passed to help out Comptroller Edwin I. Edwards. The statement was made public through William de LaR. Anderson, clerk to the appropriation committee and is as follows:

"The Legislature of 1914 appropriated $1,000,000 in excess of the State income thus leaving the comptroller in a position where he had to pay $1,000,000 which the State did not have. This situation demanded some instruction from the Legislature of this year to the comptroller as to how to handle it. These instructions are contained in the new section of the appropriation bill of this year and amply cover the situation and make last year's appropriation bill constitutional. The fact that the Legislature of last year appropriated $1,000,000 more than the resources of the State made that bill unconstitutional, the constitution providing that the State shall not obligate itself to an amount greater than $100,000 without a vote of the people."

SPECIAL SERVICES BEING HELD IN NEW M. E. CHURCH

The Kenilworth Methodist church, which was designed and built under the direction of George H. Fisher, Jr., architect, of this city, is being dedicated this week with a series of special services, which began Sunday with Rev. F. J. Hubach, district superintendent, in charge.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, made the address Monday night, the service being under the topic of "Civic Night." Services will be held every night this week and on Sunday the church will be dedicated with appropriate exercises.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Crowded houses at Proctor's Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night saw the first production of the new installment of the new $10,000 prize serial story, "The Diamond from the Sky." The opening more than justified the flattering notices and it is safe to predict at this time that it will prove to be the most popular continued film that has ever been shown in Plainfield. Royal McCardle, for many years a feature writer with the New York World, is the author of the narrative and this is an assurance in itself that it will be just what the people want. The succeeding episodes of "The Diamond from the Sky" will be presented every Tuesday and if you were one of the unfortunate ones who did not see the beginning make it a certainty that you are numbered among the spectators next week. In addition to the vaudeville program, Proctor's Theatre will offer today as a picture feature the popular Mary Pickford in her latest five-part success, "Behind the Scenes." The story deals with the life of a young actress beset by the temptations that befall the women of her profession, but who triumphs in the end. Miss Pickford, who is the highest priced screen artist in the country, outdoes all former triumps in "Behind the Scenes," and none of her admirers can afford to miss seeing her in it. Another five-part feature picture will be offered tomorrow in "His Last Dollar," the play made famous by David Higgins and in which he poses the leading role. Two-reel comedies and short dramatic productions are among the features to be seen at Proctor's everyday, the Charles Chaplin popularities being seen almost every day. The change of vaudeville for the last half of the week will be made at the theatre tomorrow afternoon and it will bring the following excellent bill: Percy Waram and Company, presenting the comedy dramatic sketch, "The Boscam's Mate," which comes from the high-priced houses on Broadway; Sansome & Delilia, European sensationalists, in a marvelous exhibition of balancing and juggling that call for almost superhuman strength; Robie & Robie in a refined "sister" act of singing and dancing; Dynes & VanEpps, comedians, singing and talking, and Lola the violinist, offering a repertoire of high-class selections. Eva Fay, the thaumaturgist, who created a sensation in Plainfield with her marvelous second sight eight years ago, will come to Proctor's next week, opening on Monday in what will be one of the greatest acts seen here in years. Mrs. Fay has been performing to crowded houses throughout.

AGAIN PLAINFIELD LEADS.

Plainfield business men will have no one to blame but themselves in the future if the young people who graduate from the local High School are found to be lacking in training such as is required to successfully hold down a place in local commercial houses. J. O. Evans, head of the commercial department of the High School, explained what he is tying to accomplish to the business men at the dinner on Monday night in such a way that it left no room for doubt.

The school authorities are not only teaching the young people how to read, write and figure, but are making the commercial courses as practical as it is possible to do, after questioning the business men as to the needs of their offices. They are even going so far as to offer to train pupils especially for certain kinds of work, provided the faculty has assurance that the boys and girls so trained will secure positions. An employment bureau has been opened in order to facilitate this work.

But the latest move, and one which cannot fail to meet with approval is the employment of a woman teacher who has had practical experience in merchandising and selling—not the kind of experience gained from books, but that which comes with the hard rubs encountered in a big store. In addition to her work in the regular course, it is proposed to form classes in practical salesmanship for an hour or two each week for the young women now employed in the stores of the city, the latter being done in connection with the night school work. In this move we believe that Plainfield is a step in advance of every other city in the country, and it speaks well for the Board of Education, Superintendent Maxson, Principal Best, and last but by no means least, Mr. Evans.

We have no doubt that this experiment will be watched with more than passing interest by scores of other progressive communities throughout the state, and beyond its confines for that matter. It is a great deal better to teach young people who do not intend to go to college, but will seek business life at the completion of their high school course, such practical things as are proposed, than to load their heads up with a lot of Latin and Greek, and higher mathematics, which will be of little or no use in the future. There has been some criticism of the cost of the schools in the past, but if the businessman-taxpayers' money is to be spent this way, he will mighty soon see the advantages gained thereby, and tell the chronic kickers that it is time for them to take a back seat.

Upon America has been impressed the greatest task a country has ever been called to face, that of keeping an entire nation upon the face of the earth. Some of the men will come back from the war. They will establish homes, begin life again. Thousands upon thousands will never return. The sturdy little Belgian nation will dwindle to a handful unless America keeps the spark of life alight. Every Belgian baby must be kept alive if the nation is to be saved. It is to this work that the Plainfield Belgian Relief Committee has especially devoted its energies, and the Daily Press will be pleased to receive and acknowledge contributions for the purpose of buying condensed milk. We must feed Belgium. We must feed those able to work, until conditions are adjusted and work created for them. We must feed those unable to work—the old and the sick men and women. We must feed the children. We must feed the mothers, the mothers with the little babies in their arms.

One of the criticisms of city expenditures made by William M. Stillman in his recent communication to the councilmanic finance committee was that "too much money is spent for charity." While we fail to see the force of his argument, we are at a loss to understand why it is not much better to support such things by a very modest call in the tax budget instead of going around and asking the taxpayers to put up for them out of their individual pockets. He also thinks there has been too much extravagance in the Board of Health. Without being impertinent, we might inquire where there is a city with the same conditions as in Plainfield, in which the health department is as fussy and at the same time is administered as cheaply and with so much regard for strict interpretation of the law as here?

"Try Plainfield First" was a slogan suggested for this city by Harry B. Salter, the live-wire secretary of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, when he spoke to the business men the other night. That's a pretty good combination of words, and it might well be adopted. If people can't get what they want in Plainfield, no one will criticize them for buying out of town, but so long as local stores supply the goods at a fair price, they should be patronized.

The controversy between Democratic County Chairman L. T. Russell and State Committeeman Dennis F. Collins has already reached an interesting stage. What it will be by election time is hard to predict, but we suspect that the Democratic party will be all shot to pieces by that time as a result of the argument.

Now that the Legislature is all over, there is a suspicion that the best things that have been accomplished this year have been by vetoes of the Governor.

STATE MERCY COMMITTEE.

The Mercy Committee of New Jersey, organized in the Public Library for the relief, help and sympathy in case of war, pestilence and famine or in any misfortune that paralyzes humanity. One hundred nursery kits will be sent to unmarried mothers in the war zone by the organization. The officers elected yesterday were: Chairman, Mrs. Charles P. Freeman; first vice-chairman, Mrs. Jabez Gilbert; second vice-chairman, Mrs. Meyers; secretary, Mrs. Chapman Fisk; assistant secretary, Mrs. S. S. Carvalho; treasurer, Mrs. Arens; purchaser, Mrs. A. L. Otterson.

TOBACCO TO MINORS.

Mrs. Julia Slonsky, who conducts a small store in the West End of the city, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, yesterday, charged with selling tobacco to minors. A fourteen-year-old boy acted as informant for the police department and he admitted that the woman sold him cigarettes. Mrs. Slonsky denied having sold to minors without the proper note from parents and the court suspended sentence, at the same time warning her that a repetition of the offense would mean a penalty.

TO HOLD SEWING BEE.

Lydia Chapter, No. 41, O. E. S., will hold a sewing bee at the home of Mrs. Guy D. Peck, of Park place, on Thursday afternoon, May 20, at 2:30 o'clock.

EXPERTS OPPOSE SHINGLE ROOFING

C. Albert Glasser Gives Reasons Why it is a Shadow of Disaster.

Despite the fact that Charles S. Sminck, in his recent communication to Mayor Leighton Calkins, cited three specific subjects along the line of fire prevention which will additionally safeguard the property and lives of local taxpayers, the only one to attract any great attention to date has been the clause involving the "anti-shingle" ordinance. Besides advocating this ordinance Mr. Sminck recommended that all electric wires in the city, where they pass through the trees, shall be shouldered with heavy insulation to stop easy breaking, the damaging of trees and to prevent the loss of life from broken wires; and that more fire plugs be installed in the business section of the city. It is Mr. Sminck's opinion that the present plugs are not close enough together to provide for the quick concentration of powerful streams to check the spread of a dangerous fire, should one get a rapid start in the business section of the city. "This suggestion is also based on the water pressure, which should at all times be sufficient to provide for the extra hydrants," said Mr. Sminck, "and also to cope with a fire like the one mentioned which might break out at any time."

There are numerous other citizens who cherish the same line of thought as Mr. Sminck and Mayor Calkins is desirous of ascertaining the sentiment of the public in general on the subjects mentioned.

C. Albert Gasser, chief of the Bureau of Combustibles and Fire Risks in Newark, commenting on the A. B. C. of fire prevention, says of shingle roofs: "No conflagration of recent times would have been one tithe so appalling if it had not been for shingle roofs. Individual fires can be handled and individual hazards may be corrected, but a shingle roof town is like a man with an incurable disease. A shingle roof is the shadow of disaster.

"There is in the United States one billion dollars' worth of property which must be discharged by fire within the next four or five years. There is no doubt about it at all. It is inevitable. But why should conditions in the smaller cities be permitted which are so difficult to control later on? Why not begin now and grow up into large cities decently?"

ENTERTAINED MEMBERS OF PLAINFIELD GRADED UNION

Members of the Plainfield Graded Union, of Plainfield, met at the home of Mrs. F. W. Miller, at Somerville, Monday afternoon, for a social gathering, the affair taking the place of the annual institute. Mrs. Miller is soon to remove to Long Island, and she desired to entertain the union before going away. In appreciation of her help and inspiration, the union presented Mrs. Miller with a picture of the Madonna.

Mrs. Miller was the toastmaster, and called for short speeches from the different members. All responded in a happy manner. Mrs. Miller presented each one of her guests with her picture after the luncheon. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in making fancy work. Miss Anna Miller and Mrs. George Banks took pictures of the group gathered on the lawn.

MILLSTONE PROGRESSIVES WIN.

Somerville, May 5—Excitement prevailed in East Millstone Monday night at the annual election of borough commissioners. The progressive faction, led by Freeholder Frank W. Remsen, defeated the conservatives, headed by George E. Pace, a lawyer. The issue was for better street lights and the general improvement of the borough. The progressives claimed the old commission had been lax in these matters and had outlived its usefulness. A record-breaking vote was cast. George N. Gerhardt defeated Mr. Pace for the head of the commission. Other progressive members elected were Mr. Remsen and Wilfred Garretson. Members of the commission re-elected were C. E. Welsh and Charles Van Nostrand.

WILL CONTINUE DEBATE.

Next Sunday the St. Mary's Holy Name Society will hold its regular monthly meeting, after which the debate, begun at last month's meeting, will be continued. The subject, "Which Exerts the Greater Influence, the Press or the Stage?" is an interesting one, and was ably supported by Albert LaRock and Timothy Meaney, for the "Press," and Paul H. Burns and James McCann, for the "Stage." It will be remembered that the judges at last month's meeting rendered no decision. However, they are sure to reach a definite conclusion on Sunday next.

C. AND C. MEETING.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold an important meeting at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night, in the chamber's headquarters in the babcock building.

FORMER ELIZABETH MAN GETS LONG TERM IN N. Y.

Brooklyn, May —Judge Aspinwall, in the Supreme Court today, sentenced Philip T. White and James F. Clennin to Sing Sing for not less than seven and a half years and more than fifteen years for highway robbery. Robert S. Roberts, Benjamin Stifer and Thomas Dally were sentenced to Sing Sing for not less than two and not more than five years. White was the manager of the J. W. Masury Paint Works at Elizabeth.

ENCAMPMENT OF NATIONAL GUARD WILL NOT BE HELD

Announcement was made today by the State military authorities that there will be no encampment of the National Guard at Sea Girt this summer, the decrease in the appropriations for 1914 and 1915 necessitating this suspension. Unless a supplemental appropriation of $18,000 can be secured from the Legislature the encampment will also be suspended next year. This will be the first year since 1899 that there has been no encampment and it will be a great disappointment to officers and enlisted men.

PARK CLUB ELECTS THREE NEW GOVERNORS

Three new members of the board of governors were elected at the annual meeting of the Park Club, last night, and other routine business considered. The new governors are A. M. Abbott, J. A. Van Mater and Charles A. Rice. They succeed Wilbur F. Rogers, George L. Babcock and William Flanders, whose terms expired. The governors will meet Tuesday night to elect officers. The treasurer's report will also be presented at that time.

The club has had a prosperous year financially and socially and the prospects for the coming year are excellent. Wilbur F. Rogers is president of the club now and under his direction the organization has progressed in every way.

CYRIL COAD GIVEN A SURPRISE ON BIRTHDAY

A pleasant surprise was given to Cyril Coad at his home on Cameron avenue, last night, when about thirty of his friends called to help him celebrate his natal day. The evening was spent playing games, singing and dancing. Several piano solos were rendered by the guests and a phonograph was enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

The dining room was attractively decorated in yellow, the table centrepiece being white dogwood, while the parlor was in green and white dogwood. Guests were present from Martinsville and this city.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH

The entertainment given by the consistory of the German Reformed church and assisted by the Young People's Society of the church, last night, was a success from every point of view. The attendance was unusually large and a most enjoyable time was had by everyone present. After the entertainment refreshments were served and an informal social time followed.

The program of the evening was as follows: Victrola selection, Miss Jennie Dresselt; recitations, A. Wolfe and Rudolph Wurgler; selections by singing section of Turn of Verein of Saengerbund Hall; shadow pantomime, leader, A. Brakley, assisted by Miss Grace Clark, Miss Mary Hoagland, Mrs. Thorn, Arthur Stewart, Harry Stewart, Harry Schuck and Benjamin Schuck; monologue, "The Cobbler," Benjamin Schuck; one act playlet, "Ein Zimmer mit Zwibetten," Arthur Wolfe, Lewis Kohlweis and Edward Krausse.

A farce orchestra furnished music through the evening. It was composed of cooks, who rendered pleasing numbers from kitchen utensils. The orchestra was composed of Harry Schuck, leader; musicians, Ray Miller, Benjamin Schuck, Charles Harden, Lewis Arnold, Ernest Stahl, John Wirth, Jr., and Edward Krausse.

TO HEAR "BILLY" SUNDAY.

The members of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, are planning to go to Paterson on Saturday to hear "Billy" Sunday. The trip will be made by motor bus, the round trip fare being nominal. Anyone desiring to go may obtain particulars by calling Anna Lee, telephone 2514-J.

NO SCHOOL FRIDAY.

There will be no school on Friday afternoon for the grammar or primary grades of the city, on account of the circus to be given on that day. All parents are urged to take notice of this and not send their children to the schools.

D. OGDEN ROGERS SCORES FOUR POINTS FOR CUP

D. Ogden Rogers now leads with four points for the Golf Committee cup of the Plainfield Country Club, having won them in the initial competition on Saturday. G. A. Bomann won three points, Arthur Murpay two points and H. T. Eaton one point. The conditions in this competition this year provide for four, three, two and one points, which makes it impossible for one player to outdistance the others before the season is half over.

Play for this cup will take place every Saturday and holiday during the season except during August. There is already considerable interest and the event promises to be more popular than ever.

SAYS HE WAS MISQUOTED.

New York, May 5.—President Ban Johnson, of the American League, arrived in this city today from Boston. When asked about the story that he was trying to have the Federal League suit withdrawn before Judge Landis could render a decision, he said "I have been grossly misquoted. We agreed that baseball and the law courts did not mix, but I said nothing more. The American League has no understanding of any kind with the Federal League."

N. P. H. S. GAME OFF.

The Rutgers Prep baseball manager, this morning, cancelled the game with North Plainfield High School that was scheduled to be played in New Brunswick, this afternoon, because of wet grounds. Another date will be decided on by the two managers.

DR. ARD PRESIDENT.

Dr. F. C. Ard, of this city, was re-elected president of the Union County Mosquito Commission, at a meeting in Elizabeth, yesterday. The other officials renamed for the ensuing year were: Secretary, Louis E. Richards; treasurer, William H. Hope.

GULFLIGHT WAS FLYING LARGE AMERICAN FLAG

Washington, May 5—Information that the American tank steamer Gulflight was torpedoed without notice while flying a large American flag off the Scilly Islands, last week, was laid before Secretary Bryan today, by the Gulf Refining Company, the owner of the steamer.

NEW HOUSE COMMITTEE IS NAMED AT COLUMBUS CLUB

The new house committee of the Columbus Club were elected at a meeting last night and will consist of the following members: Andrew E. Kenney, chairman; J. J. Varley, secretary; Paul H. Burns, treasurer; A. A. Cannon, Charles Shirley, H. P. Greenwood, Joseph McCarthy, George Howe, David B. Doyle, George Tobin, James Hurley, John Caulfield, Michael Moynihan and Robert McCormack.

During the meeting which followed it was decided to hold a "Welcome Night" every Thursday. At that time all members will be invited to bring friends and relatives as guests and it is not unlikely that informal programs of an interesting nature will be arranged each week by the committee.

COMPLETING ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE MOOSE CARNIVAL

Arrangements are well underway for the Loyal Order of Moose Carnival, which is to be held at the grounds on West Front street and Grant avenue, from May 17 to 22. The committee has arranged for the Levitt-Myerhoff shows to provide all of the amusements. The affair will attract to Plainfield several thousand strangers during the week as at this early date the local lodge has the assurance of many of the surrounding cities lodges that they will be on hand for the big reunion.

The coming of the week will unfold many delights to the young and old and renewal of sights and pleasures not soon to be forgotten as it is a traveling university of entertainment and instruction. It orginates new sensations to make the eyes sparkle and the nerves tingle with delight. It brings to the door of the people strange people from far away lands with odd and curious doings of their native doings.

MARTINE WINS POINT.

Washington, May 5—President Wilson today appointed Samuel Iredell, of Bridgeton, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of New Jersey. Iredell was named in place of George Hampton, whom Senator Martine opposed, when confirmation was sought for him in the Seate.

SECOND NIGHT CLUB PLANS ELABORATE SOCIAL EVENT

Members of the Second Night Club met in Columbus Club, last night, and completed arrangements for a spring indoor event to be held Monday night, May 24. A number of excellent features were discussed and four definite numbers decided upon. The leading events on that night will be a Queen of the May dance, Clover Club cakewalk, Harmony Shadow Dances and a Second Night Club Hall of Fame.

NEIGHBORHOOD TEA GIVEN BY MRS. WILLIAM BARLOW

A neighborhood tea was given at the home of Mrs. William Barlow, on Prospect place, yesterday afternoon, in honor of the arrival home of Mrs. G. T. Rogers from the South, and Mrs. J. L. Watson, of the borough, who anticipates leaving the city shortly. The affair was strictly for the North Plainfield women friends of the two women. The dining-room was beautifully decorated in lilacs and potted plants.

Mrs. Barlow was assisted by Mrs. Samuel Townsend and Mrs. Chalmers Overton, who poured tea during the afternoon.

TWO PLAINFIELD GRADUATES.

Among the students who will be graduated from the Newark Normal School, this month, will be Miss Diana Seigel and Miss Julia Aller, of this city. Both young women are graduates of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1913, and are now engaged in field work in the local schools. Miss Seigel is engaged as assistant at the Lincoln School, while Miss Aller is doing work at the Bryant School. They will both return to the Newark institution in two weeks for graduation with the remainder of the students.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Announcement was made today of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Preston Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Scott of Yonkers, N. Y., and Reginald Wadsworth Cauchois, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar R. Cauchois, of New York. No date has been set for the wedding. Mr. Cauchois was an usher at the wedding of Miss Caroline Sprague Martin and Ralph Ellwood Hallock, which took place at the home of the bride's parents on April 24.

PERSONAL.

Miss Bessie Carling, of Kearny, has returned home, after spending several days as the guest of Miss Lucy Douglas, of Grove street.

Andrew J. Stiglitz, of Allen place, who has been detained at his home for the past two weeks with illness, resumed his duties at the Plainfield Trust Company, this morning.

Edward Simon of this city, who was injured in a bicycle race at Hoboken last Sunday, is able to be out again.

DUAL MEET CALLED OFF.

Manager Peyton Schenck, of the Plainfield High School track team, received word at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the manager of the Montclair High School team, that the grounds were too wet to hold the proposed dual athletic meet this afternoon. The message just caught the local manager in time as the members of the team were about to leave. The meet will probably be held at a later date.

NO AGREEMENT YET.

Although another lengthy conference was held in Trades Council Hall last night, between the Master Carpenters and the Journeymen, no agreement could be reached regarding the request for an increase of fifty cents per day in wages. The three hundred carpenters in the city are still out but it is hoped a definite agreement will be reached within the next few days.

SAFFORD CASE WILL GO TO THE JURY THIS AFTERNOON

Following a clash of testimony both the State and defense closed their cases, yesterday, in the trial of Franklin D. Safford, formerly of this city, on the indictment charging him with perjury. Both sides summed up and it is expected that the jury will be charged this afternoon. Having aged noticeably since his confinement in the Tombs, Safford sat mild-mannered and unnoticed in the defendant's chair, all but forgotten in the efforts made by his counsel to prove that James W. Osborne was Rae Tanzer's admirer, Oliver Osborne. In summing up, counsel on both sides hardly mentioned Safford, but went into minute details concerning the identity of Miss Tanzer's admirer.

The charge against Safford is that he perjured himself in identifying James W. Osborne as the man who registered with Rae Tanzer in the Hotel Kensington, this city.

HUCKLEBERRY FINN LIVING IN OREGON

Eugene, Ore., May 5—Huckleberry Finn, the famous character in Mark Twain's stories of Mississippi River travel, has just celebrated his 90th birthday on his turpentine farm near Eugene. Robust and toughened by his hard out-door life, he is as active today as in the old days when he and Mark Twain and Tom Sawyer manned the Gray Eagle, the fastest steam boat on the Mississippi in the days of long ago. For forty-five years, Huckleberry has been a character of the McKenzie River. To his intimate friends he tells of his boyhood days on the Missouri farm, near that of Clemens, of his rough life on the river before and during the war, and how he finally crossed the plains and the Rockies to find himself on the McKenzie River without money and looking for a place to winter. In telling how he got the name "Huckleberry," he relates to a racket on the Grey Eagle, on which he was first mate. "You see, if anything didn't go right, I was the 'huckleberry.' That's what we called a man who gets in between a fight. I jumped down from the quarter deck and knocked them apart." Here the old man held up two mutilated hands. According to his story, Clemens, Sawyer and himself bought the Grey Eagle and fitted her up. In a race on the river Clemens piloted the craft to victory. Finally the government bought the boat, according to his story, and the owners drifted westward. Clemens stopped at Denver, he said, to write books. Sawyer went up to St. Paul, but Finn kept on toward the northwest. He was accompanied by his wife and six children, and the outfit included two mules, two horses, but no money. Finn was the first settler on the McKenzie, according to his story.

RUMORS ARE FALSE.

Rumors that Roy Martin, formerly principal of the Westfield High School, had been engaged by the Plainfield Board of Education to teach in the local High School next year, were branded as erroneous by Principal Lindsey Best this afternoon. When confirmation of the report was sought by a Daily Press reporter Mr. Best made a positive denial.

METHODIST WOMEN MEET.

Women from every Methodist church in the Elizabeth district of the Newark Conference attended the session of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society at its semi-annual rally in Epworth church, Elizabeth, yesterday. Plainfield had the largest delegation about forty women being present. The morning and afternoon sessions were taken up with reports and interesting addresses.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

If "Matty" Mathews and his New York city "know-it-alls" ever attempt to perpetrate an auto race on the Plainfield public similar to the one he put on in Newark Saturday afternoon its one safe bet that he will have to break a few records to get out of this burg with his anatomy intact. Newark sportsmen are supposed to be a set of the best critics in the State, but it was plainly evident that they fell below par when Mathews staged this imposition.

It's a pity that the A. A. A. would stoop to sanction such a disgraceful event as that one at Olympic Park. Plainfielders who shelled out a dollar to witness five measly motor races between a collection of second-rate cars and poor drivers certainly have a grievance to file against the American Automobile Association and if Mathews or any of his pals ever attempts to "pull off" anything of the sort here he will get a cracked ice reception.

The manner in which North Plainfield and Leals inaugurated the Interscholastic Baseball League season Saturday afternoon proved to be far from auspicious. Neither team displayed any evidences of becoming championship stock and if one or the other happens to land the league bacon playing the calibre of ball it did Saturday, the donors of trophies would be doing a wise thing to revoke their offerings.

Certain Plainfield baseball "stars" hiked over to Hyde Oval Monday afternoon to give North Plainfield the double "O" while the boroughites were trying conclusions with High Bridge. Just how much good may come of schoolboy scouting is a matter of conjecture, but we'll be able to glean some real statistics when the initial N. P. H. S.-P. H. S. meeting is called to order.

Haven't heard anything from the Walking Club during the last few nights (or early mornings rather). Wonder if they've decided to give up this pastime for automobile racing. One of the most active pedestrians said he had an offer to accompany a rider in the Newark auto "classic" Saturday, but turned it down on the grounds that his pledge to the Walking Club compelled him to keep out of the path of all missiles, including lemons, tomato cans, Newark sod, etc.

Someone has aroused a little baseball interest in the Elks' Club and the proposition of organizing a team is being seriously considered. Let's hope they don't start off with the Park Club and keep a series going similar to the "give-and-take" staged by the two clubs on the bowling lanes during the past winter.

Ralp Runyon, the Plainfield High School pole vaulter, added his twenty-third medal to his collection Saturday afternoon in the Stevens' meet. These twenty-three pieces of valuable medals together with a pair of silver cups represent the youngster's earnings as the peer of schoolboy vaulters. It might be well to keep an eye on the tall deboniar youth sporting the red and blue.

One fan has asked us if we think the fact that rain spoiled the Sauer team's opener should be taken as an ill omen. No, gentle rooter, Jupiter Pluvius has been a factor in baseball ever since the old clause "three hands out, all out," adorned the rule book. It can't be that some fanatic is chasing around for excuses before the club even starts to play can it?

Have you ever known a fellow who comes into your office and knocks the stuffin' out of a contemporary scribe's hide just because he wants to draw a good write-up out of your paper? Well, we've had just four of this kind in here today and it doesn't go, Gawge. Get me? It doesn't go.

BIG ENTRY LIST ANNOUNCED FOR INDIANAPOLIS 500-MILE

Indianapolis, May 5.—Two additional mail entries have been received for the next Indianapolis 500-mile race, swelling the total count for that event to forty.

They are a third Duesenberg, entered by F. S. Duesenberg, of Minneapolis, Minn., no driver named, and a Shambaugh special, entered by Charles Shambaugh, of Lafayette, Ind. Shambaugh will drive himself.

An "unknown" car was entered at the eleventh hour by an Indianapolis man, but is not officially listed, inasmuch as the owner desired his name withheld until he found out whether his car would be finished in time.

Rene Thomas, who cabled his entry to the speedway management early in the spring, is not coming after all. Thomas, after failing originally to interest the Delage factory in loaning him a car, tried to raise the necessary capital to buy the machine, but fell down on that also.

It is not thought, however, that he will be missed, as Dario Resta, winner of the last Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races at San Francisco, is counted on as being more than able to fill his shoes.

P. A. B. PRACTICE.

The Park Avenue Baptist baseball team will practice on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. All members are requested to report promptly.

Y. W. C. A. HOLD AN INDOOR MEET

Close Gymnasium Year With Attractive Schedule of Athletic Events.

COMPETITION IS KEEN

Miss Marion Mair Captures First Place With a Total of 29 Points—Miss Clara Smith is Second With 17 Points—Prizes for Winners.

The current gymnasium year at the Y. W. C. A. was brought to an auspicious closing last night at the association, when members of the Tuesday night class assembled in the gymnasium for a track meet. Seventeen girls participated in the events. The judges in several instances experienced difficulty in determining the winner, so close was the competition. The events and the winners of the prizes were listed as follows:

Marching—First, Clara Smith; second, Marion Mair; third, Laura Smith.

Floor work—First, Marion Mair, second, Gertrude Mair; third, Laura Smith.

Horizontal ladder—First, Edith Wickett; second, Gertrude Mair, third, Ida Hummel.

Window ladder—First, Laura Smith; second, Marion Mair; third, Margaret Currin.

Basketball distance—First, Helen Hummel; second, Clara Smith; third, Mildred McAuliffe.

Basketball from foul line—First, Mildred McAuliffe; second, Clara Smith; third, Marion Mair.

Basketball baskets in succession—First, Mildred McAuliffe; second, Clara Smith; third, Marion Mair.

Rope climb—First, Marion Mair; second, Ethel Blazier; third, Ellen Doughty.

Running broad jump—First, Marion Mair, 9 ft.; second, Clara Smith, 8 feet; third, Mildred McAuliffe, 7 feet, 11 inches.

Wheel barrel race—First, Marion Mair and Ellen Doughty; second Helen Hummel and Doris MacCarrick.

Boxing match—First, Helen Yates and Margaret Currin; second, Ethel Blazier and Gertrude Mair; third, Ida Hummel and Marion Mair.

Prizes for the most number of points were awarded to Marion Mair, who captured first place with a total of 29 points; Clara Smith, second, with 17, and Mildred McAuliffe, third, with 12. Miss Elizabeth Wetherell and Miss Helen Brynairski were the officials at the meet, and the following girls took part: The Misses Clara Smith, Mildred McAuliffe, Helen and Ida Hummel, Gertrude, Marion and Mazie Mair, Laura Smith, Ethel Blazier, Ellen Doughty, Helen Yates, Doris MacCarrick Mildred Smith, Margaret Currin, Edith Wickett, Marion Reed and Mrs. D. Trendle.

After the conclusion of the meet the girls adjourned to the association parlors where a spread was enjoyed with singing and speech making. During the repast the members of the Y. W. C. A. basketball team were presented with rings. Those who received the trophies were: Miss Marion Mair, captain, centre; Misses Helen and Ida Hummel, forwards; Misses Clara Smith and Ellen Doughty, guards, and Miss Laura Smith, substitute. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a silver loving cup to Miss Elizabeth Wetherell, the physical director and coach. Miss Mair, captain of the team, made the presentation and conveyed to the popular director the appreciation of each member of the squad. Miss Wetherell was deeply touched and it was some time before she could respond. She thanked the girls and hoped that they would all come back in the fall and be loyal and helpful to the new director. Miss Wetherell will leave the local institution July 1.

P. S. C. FIELD DAY TO BE HELD MAY 29

Entrants for Events Will Be Selected From 5,000 Employes of the Company.

A change has been made in the date for the fourth annual field day for Public Service Railway employes. It will be held Thursday, May 20, at the company's athletic oval at Hilton. There will be track and field events for trainmen, a 220-yard dash and 600-yard run for departmental employes only; a veterans' race for motorman and conductors fifteen or more years in the service, and a 100-yard dash for boys under fourteen years, who are sons of trainmen. Watches will be awarded as first and second prizes, and a large number of entries are being received. The sports will be topped off with a baseball match between teams representing the Northern and Southern divisions, respectively.

As there are about 5,000 employes to draw from and as the event is made the occasion for family outings by the men, there are large crowds in attendance at these field days, of which, the one coming will be the fourth. The races will start at 1 o'clock and the ball game at 3 o'clock. A new feature this year will be music by the trainmen's band from the West Hoboken and West New York carhouses. The band has only recently been organized and is practising diligently so as to furnish a pleasant surprise to the men of the other divisions.

Special car parties will be made up to bring employes and their families from Hudson county, Paterson, Passaic, Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Dunellen and Camden, besides all parts of Essex county. General Superintendent Newton W. Bolen is president of the Athletic Association, and W. H. Shepherd is the athletic manager.

JIM COFFEY THE TOPHEAVY FAVORITE OVER AL REICH

There has been quite a change in the odds owing to the unwillingness of the Coffey supporters to give the 2-to-1 odds which first prevailed. Seven to five is about the best obtainable now.

If the contest ends with a knockout Reich is being picked as the man who will be the victor, the "dopesters" figuring that the Blumenthal entry carries a much heavier punch than Coffey and stands a far better chance of winning by a K. O., regardless of the Dublin Giant's remarkable record. Coffey has stopped twenty-four of the thirty-eight opponents he faced, but as yet has not met a man with the punch Reich possesses.

LEAL-P. H. S. TENNIS PLAYERS TO MEET

New Branch of Interscholastic Endeavor to Be Sent Under Way.

City interscholastic competition will be started in another branch of sport, Friday afternoon, when the Plainfield High School and Leal School tennis teams meet on the Park Club courts in the first matches for the city title and the Collier cup. Plainfield has already played one match, defeating Cranford, while the private school wielders have not yet played. Both teams have been practically picked for the series, which will consist of three matches of singles and doubles.

Parvine will probably form the P. H. Parvin will probably form the P. H. S. doubles team while the Leal pair has not yet been definitely picked. Clarence Garrigues, Chauncey Stewart and Captain Seward Lyon will uphold the reputation of the maroon and gold in singles, while red and blue players will be picked from Roscoe Blanchard, John Cottrell, Parvin and Dall. The match will start at 3 o'clock.

The second match of the city series will be played next Tuesday, when North Plainfield meets Leal on the Washington avenue courts.

QUAKERS HUNG ONE ON THE CADET CLAN OF BALLISTS

A re-enforced Quaker outfit overwhelmingly trounced the Cadets on Quaker Field, yesterday afternoon, the score being 15 to 4. Inability to solve E.Clarkson's benders caused the Cadet downfall as they played a brilliant fielding game, making two triple plays in addition to one double play.

The Cadets have decided to play only on week-days, not including Saturday, as the members of the team find that they can earn a little as caddies for the local golf players. However, should any good team desire to play the Cadets on a Saturday, perhaps a nine composed of those of the team not employed as stated above, might give them a good tussle.

The score:

PARK CLUB GOLF PROGRAM WILL BEGIN ON SATURDAY

The Park Golf Club course will be opened for the season next Saturday, when the first play for the President's cup will be held. The course has been put in fine condition and a large number of members are expected to take advantage of the first day provided the weather is fair. The play for the President's cup will be continued every Saturday afternoon until fall.

The tennis courts will also be ready for use Saturday. Both have been rounded into fine shape, the lower being the best as it is the oldest. Last year the courts were in use continually and will undoubtedly be this year.

BOROUGHITES WILL FACE HARD MATCH IN SUMMIT

The North Plainfield High School tennis team will go to Summit tomorrow afternoon to play the match with the High School team of that place that was postponed from yesterday because of rain. This will be the initial match of the season for the boroughites, and as they have had very little practice, the match will undoubtedly be a hard one. The team will be composed of Captain Hoyt Tomkinson, Elmer French, Sherman Chandler and Roy Force.

Three matches of singles and one of doubles will be played, French and Tomkinson pairing for the latter. Saturday morning the first home game will be played with the Nutley School team on the Watchun Tennis Club courts. Tomorrow the team will go to Elizabeth by train, and from there to Summit by trolley.

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this year.

Oscar D. Dilts, N. P. H. S. '16.

Oscar Dilts' rise in the baseball limelight was a rapid one and last year he was right there all the time picking them up in the ruts of Hyde Oval between second and third bases. Until last season Dilts had been a pitcher of great renown among the small independent teams of the borough and during the preliminaries of the 1914 season he worked with Stahl and Dan Denny.

One day, when one man was short he was placed in the infield during practice, and there he has been ever since. Dilts has cultivated a throw to all the bases, and first base especially, as it is the farthest away, that would make any school player sit up and take notice and when once he has the ball safely in his grasp it's "good night" batter. Last season was Dilts' first in the "big" game and he did not make any great fielding record, although he distinguished himself at the bat by finishing third on the list with an average of .305. At present he is clipping the ball about .350, with no sign of letting up.

Dilts played with the North Plainfield Marathons before wearing a school uniform and with this team he learned his first about the game. He is 18 years of age and weighs 145 pounds. He throws and bats right-handed.

Benjamin Rosenson, P. H. S. '15.

For the past two years leader of the Plainfield High School sluggers, Benjamin Rosenson, "Benny" for short, is going after that honor again this season and is at present soaking the ball at a great rate. Last season he hit for an average of .355, a very creditable mark for a high school player. Rosenson was captain of the team last year and leads the boys again this season. In 1913 he played left field and second base, while last year and at present he is covering the shortstop position.

He first played ball with the local Y. M. H. A. nine and has also worn a Dunellen suit. He weighs 165 pounds and is 18 years old. He throws and bats right-handed. Rosenson has a perfect throw to all the bases from any position and is the fastest runner on the Plainfield team.

KNOCKING OUT HITS ON JUVENILE BALL CIRCUITS

By Joseph A. Gallagher.

Marty McDonough, manager of the Laramie Park A. C., has arranged for a three-game series with the Holy Name Cadets. The rivalry existing between the two teams is very keen and the encounters, which will all take place along the middle of June, ought to prove interesting.

Troop 2, Boy Scouts, of Dunellen, has organized a baseball team, with Harold Neely at the helm. The outfit is being coached by a former Jersey City (International League) player and, under his guidance, will, no doubt, shine brilliantly in the local baseball spotlight.

St. Mary's will have another team, for the St. Aloysius Society boys have organized a nine. No games have been played as yet, but next Sunday the team expects to elect a captain and manager. This team is composed of boys ranging in age from ten to fourteen years.

George Jackson's Quaker outfit is a hard-hitting clan and Manager Jackson has unearthed in the person of one Clarkson a very promising pitching possibility. The Quaker infield, too, will bear watching.

Another team that bids fair to obtain honorable mention in the list of capable juvenile ballists is the West End A. C., a fast organization under the leadership of Walter McCarthy, who in addition to being quite a pitcher, is a regular "Ty Cobb" with the willow.

Manager Coffey, of the West Ends, a promising aggregation, met his Waterloo recently when his team played Norman Lynch's Quaker Juniors. Ye scribe umpired the contest and although Naylor, the Junior pitcher, had nothing on ball, the "clouting" Coffeyites failed to connect to any astounding extent. They were weak in the field, too. Practice, boys, practice, say we.

BUY "MILES-PER-GALLON"

Standard Motor Gasoline costs no more by the gallon than "just gas," and less by the mile. Your speedometer record will show you what clean fuel means to your motor.

Standard Motor Gasoline is a straight-distilled product, absolutely homogeneous and uniform wherever you buy it. Every drop is the same as every other drop, and every gallon is the same as every other gallon, whether you buy it now or next week.

Garages and supply stations displaying the Standard Motor Gasoline sign also carry Polarine Oil and Greases—the standard lubricants for all motors. Look for the sign.

THE MASTER MIND

Novelized by Marvin Dana, author of "Within the Law," from the successful play by Daniel D. Carter

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

Blount showed symptoms of alarm. His ruddy face grayed a little, and the heavy flesh of the jowls sagged.

"It don't look good to me," Blount confessed somberly. "What's the idea?"

Walter shook his head in admission of ignorance.

"All I know is that he's got it in for Wainwright." Again he shook his head. "That's all I know. Whatever it is, it's something fierce. If you don't believe me just mention the name of Wainwright some time when he's around. You watch him then, and you'll see, all right."

By a great effort of self control Blount reassumed his manner of geniality.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed patronizingly. "I really must look into this matter, quite in the interests of my friend. You know, I'm an old friend of Andrew's, and merely to oblige him I've agreed to adopt a son and daughter for a few weeks."

"Ain't that the limit?"

Mrs. Blount spoke aggressively.

"Yes, John," she said, "and you know he absolutely assured us that the whole thing was only a harmless joke." She hesitated slightly, then continued doubtfully, "But if it's as Walter says"— She broke off, frowning.

"Listen here, son," he said presently, with a return to his kindlier manner. "If I'm going to be a father to you I've got to be it all the time, that's certain—not merely when somebody else is around. I can't be a fond father one minute and then be hating your insides the next, although when this thing is all over I might feel some different—yes! But as long as we're on this game I'm going to think a heap of you. Yes, that's the program, and it's got to be carried out no matter how much it hurts me."

Walter went forward a step toward the older man, with his jaw thrust out a little farther than usual, and shrugged his shoulders contemptuously.

"I've got you doped out all right," he said.

Blount sat erect, much surprised at the other's attitude of displeasure as well as by the utterance itself.

"Doped out!" he exclaimed.

Walter chuckled malevolently.

"I haven't got you placed exactly," he admitted, "but I've got your class all right. Do you get me?"

Blount bounced heavily to his feet. His expression was suddenly grown sinister.

"My class?" he repeated blusteringly.

Walter maintained his evil satisfaction.

"I'd be willing to bet you a hundred that you wouldn't put your Bertillon on a piece of wax."

Blount leaped forward with a lithe swiftness astonishing in one of his bulk.

"D—— you!" he said very softly, but with an intensity more vehement than mere sound. "Now, you look here—and look mighty close! My name is John Blount. I'm your father. There's your mother. I'm from Laramie, Wyo.

"Now, you look here!"

They respect us out there. Understand? That goes as it lays. They're going to run me for mayor next spring, and my wife here is president of the Mothers' club. You can look up our record there right through for the last four years. We've lived straight, and we're going to remain straight. Now let me tell you something else. If you want to look any further back than that you're looking for trouble—and a chance to get croaked!"

There was a deadly ferocity in the tones.

"Aw, you needn't get so sore about it," Walter urged quaveringly.

Blount spoke again.

"It looks to me as if we were likely to be together for some time to come. As far as I know, you're just Walter Blount. Outside of Walter Blount I don't know who you are, and I don't care either."

Walter strove again to placate the man whom he had so seriously offended.

"Aw, I was just kidding," he protested weakly. His attempt at a propitiatory smile was tremulous.

Of a sudden a new curiosity stirred in Walter.

"And the girl—that skirt—my sister, you know! What is she?" he demanded. "Is she one of us?"

"She's only been with us a week," Mrs. Blount explained. "Came from across the pond, so how can we tell?"

Said Blount:

"We don't know a darned thing about the girl except that she's our daughter. That's all we're supposed to know, and it's all we need to know, at that." A sudden memory moved in the husband's brain, and he continued with increased sternness, "And another thing—don't you dare again to act like you did today at lunch. There we were a-dining at the Waldorf with fine people, and me a-bragging about our big ranches and our beautiful home out west. And then I caught you trying to cop a spoon, so that I had to kick you under the table." An old instinct revived from the association of ideas, and he added petulantly, "And it was a plated one, at that!"

"What's the odds?" she demanded very spiritedly. "Lots of perfectly respectable people take things like that at hotels just for souvenirs. Why, I know a lady that hasn't got two towels alike in her whole house. And she's real rich too."

Walter reverted to the subject of prime interest to him.

"And the girl!" he insisted. He gazed at Blount eagerly. "Do you think Andrew has anything on the girl, like he has on us?"

In an instant Blount had leaped close, his face furious with passion.

"Andrew hasn't anything on us!" he hissed.

A flash of anger gave fleeting courage to Walter.

"Huh!" he exclaimed scornfully. "Don't try and slip anything like that over!"

Andrew came in from the next room and stood directly between the two men. Then he addressed them with contemptuous coldness:

"If through jealousy and bickering you fail to act your parts so that in consequence my plans miscarry, it will count against you far more than would mere disobedience. What was the cause of this row?"

Blount pointed to Walter.

"Ask the whelp!"

"I was just kidding—that's all!"

"Take care, sir," Andrew said harshly. "One of these days my patience will be exhausted." He waited a moment, surveying the youth with a lashing stare. Then, abruptly, he doffed his dominant manner and in its stead assumed the pose of the respected servitor. He bowed humbly to Walter, the nominal head of the household. "Why not show your father through the house, sir?" he suggested.

At once, without any trace of embarrassment, he took the part assigned to him.

"Sure!" he exclaimed, boyishly aglow with pride in the new possession of this city home. He beamed on the bewildered Blount. "Come on, dad!" he urged boisterously. "You'll sure find this place all to the good."

Of Interest to Women and the Home

THE BLAZER RE-INCARNATED FOR THIS YEAR'S SPORT.

Even the blazer had to undergo a radical change to meet this season's style requirements. Here is a new 1915 blazer of rose and white striped cloth, cut on graceful lines and made even more graceful by the loose sash which knots in front. The sash has tassels of white worsted and the blazer fastens with white imitation ivory ball buttons. Novel is the military collar which attaches itself with snaps so that it may be removed when desired.

FOR THE SEASHORE VACATION.

Mohairs and taffetas are justly popular for swimming togs for they not only are comfortable, but they make up very prettily. Panel-front bathing suits have always been liked, and now that they have returned to fashion they are sure to be welcomed. The popular semi-princess lines are very nicely shown in the above illustration. This Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8906 has a sailor collar and short sleeves with turn back cuffs, five-gored skirt, bloomers, pockets and a perforation for bolero outline. This will make up well in mohair or taffeta. The pattern cuts in sizes 32 to 46 inches bust measure and requires, as illustrated, 5¼ yards 36-inch material, with ⅝-yard 36-inch contrasting material for collar, cuffs, tie and belt.

PASTORS TO EXCHANGE.

Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will exchange with Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, next Sunday morning.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"What are you going to wear to the Ellson luncheon?" asked Mrs. Parsons, coming up on the back porch swinging her hat by the ties.

"Wear! I did not know there was going to be one. It's evident I shall not be urged to attend," said Nell, dropping the knife into the pan of potatoes she was paring. "You see I was right, my head is on the block."

"I can't understand it," said Mrs. Parsons, dropping onto the step.

"Dick says—but it is too absurd to repeat," began Nell, flushing.

"Go on; nothing is too absurd for that woman to do."

"He says she is jealous because I call the doctor so frequently for baby. I know nothing of babies and I presume I do call him when there is no need of it."

"Oh, every mother does. Roger used to tell me I'd bankrupt him."

"And do you know," continued Nell, "young Mrs. Scott was very cool to me at your luncheon that day. Did I tell you that I saw Mrs. Ellson buttonhole her and carry her off, while we were on the porch together that day at the lawn party, and I can't help thinking she has told her a lot of lies. I did like Mrs. Scott very much and it hurt to have her treat me so coolly that day, after her friendliness at the lawn party."

Mrs. Parsons dropped her chin in her hand and was silent.

"She will notice my absence from his luncheon. In so small a society everything is noticed." Nell pared potatoes in silence.

"I'll keep my eyes open for signs of trouble and report," said her friend. "Do you know, I think the doctor will get more than he can stand of her some day."

Nell did not answer, and a silence fell between them.

"There, the baby has waked up." Nell put down her pan of potatoes and hastened to the shady spot on the lawn where Master Harlow took his morning nap.

"I must be going, Nell," called her friend, waving her hat as she hurried toward the gate.

"Come over and tell me about the luncheon tonight." Nell had picked up the baby and started for the house.

"Where is Mrs. Morton?" asked Mrs. Scott as she and Mrs. Parsons were seated alone on the window seat after they had left the table.

"She was not invited." Mrs. Parsons had been watching for this opportunity to sound Mrs. Scott's feelings about Nell. "Mrs. Ellson seems to have taken a dislike to her. I can't understand it, for Mrs. Morton is a dear little woman," continued her champion.

"Has she no grounds for her dislike?" Mrs. Scott looked at Mrs. Parsons alertly.

"None that any sane person can see," rejoined the friend.

"Is she subject to unreasonable dislikes?" Mrs. Scott was evidently feeling her way.

"Decidedly so. I have known Mrs. Morton very intimately and can vouch that she is thoroughly sweet and good."

"Has there been any scandal about the Mortons?" Mrs. Scott's face flushed uncomfortably. "I am a stranger here and do not know what to believe——I——"

"Let us walk in the garden; we are not secure from interruption here," said Mrs. Parsons, and they passed out to a seat on the lawn.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How the Swans Kept the Lake Clear of Ice.

They Have Kept the Water From Freezing by Swimming About in It.

"DADDY," said Evelyn as the children came for their bedtime story, "I saw a picture of a swan today. Isn't it a pretty 'summery' bird?"

"Why do you call it a 'summery' bird?" asked daddy.

"Oh, because it's so white and delicate looking!"

"'Delicate looking?'" repeated daddy, with a smile. "That is where you are wrong, little girl. I do not mean that the swan may not look delicate to you, but it is far from being a delicate or a 'summery' bird. It is just as much of a 'wintery' bird as it is a 'summery' creature.

"I know of a colony of swans in a little fresh water lake at a summer resort on the Atlantic coast. This lake is a very pretty one, and the rich people who go there summers like to run motorboats on it.

"But the foot of the lake is only a few feet from the dunes of the seashore, and in high tide the salt waters sweep over into the fresh waters. And so there has come to be so much seaweed growing on the bottom of the lake that it is a nuisance, and the swans were bought to feed on it and keep the bottom of the lake clear.

"The experiment has been a great success. The swans are much admired. There are little swan houses built for them, and they have a keeper, and people who feed or annoy them are taken to court and fined, for the swan has a delicate stomach, at least, and must feed on its natural food.

"But the strangest thing is how they keep a portion of the lake free of ice in the winter. Even when the ice is thick enough so that skaters are enjoying themselves on it you will see a section of it that is open water and that colony of swans swimming about.

"They have kept the water from freezing, you see, through swimming about in it night and day, so that they can duck their long necks under it and feed upon the seaweed. Every once in awhile you will see one of them duck under and bob up and down in the funniest way while it is feeding. Its feathers are so thick that it is not cold at all.

"Once in awhile its foot gets cold, however, and then you will see it swimming about with one foot, while the other is tucked up through its wing, and it will wave that foot at you in the jolliest way as though it were saying 'How do you do?'

"And now it's time for small fry to be tucked into bed," said daddy.

Jack and Evelyn waved hands at daddy to imitate the swan and went laughingly off to bed.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Two autos stood side by side in a garage. A fire came along, doing each about the same amount of damage.

One car was insured in this agency and the loss was adjusted the day of the fire. The other car was insured in another agency and the loss was settled about a month later.

The owner insured with us had time to have his car repaired and in running order before the other man's claim was satisfied.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To keep furs and blankets safe from moths, roll well in newspaper. Moth will not get near printer's ink. This has been tried for many years and never failed.

Valuable Cement—Two parts (by weight) of common pitch and one part gutta-percha melted together in an iron vessel make a cement that will hold together wood, stone, ivory, leather, porcelain, silk, woolen or cotton. It is well adapted to aquariums.

Kitchen Apron Made of Flour Sack—Take empty flour sack (one-eighth or one-fourth sack), boil print out as well as possible. Hem flour sack, cutting off one corner for pocket. Cut two strips off another flour sack, for straps. Sew straps on bib part where you cut off the corner. Then sew two buttons at each of the side corners and, when buttoning, cross the straps. This makes a very neat apron.

To Prepare Chicken—After head, feet and feathers have been removed and fowl properly signed, scraped and washed, cut off wings and fold; cut off legs at thigh joint and disjoint knees. Then cut from point of breast down and backward to joint in back; disjoint, and remove intestines and giblets. Then cut closely on each side of spine to joint on sides of neck, disjoint and remove crop and windpipe; then cut off wishbone; now on each side, from joint of breast downward, the bone there is easily cut through, which removes the ribs. This leaves all the pieces perfectly flat so as to brown nicely when fried in skillet.

TASTEFUL DESSERTS

Floating Island of Fresh Strawberries—Crush one pint fresh strawberries and sweeten to taste. Beat whites of four eggs to a stiff froth and gradually mix in one-half cup powdered sugar and sufficient strained juice from berries to color and flavor, then beat again until meringue will stand alone. Meanwhile prepare a boiled custard from one pint milk, yolks of the eggs, pinch of salt, one-half cup sugar. Cook custard over hot water until well thickened (do not let it boil), flavor with a little vanilla extract and when cool pour into glass dish. Place carefully over custard a layer of the crushed berries and drop the meringue in peaks on top of the fruit. Place on ice to chill before serving.

Old-Fashioned Flaky Shortcake—Make a common biscuit dough with either sour milk or baking powder, then roll it out about half inch thick and spread shortening over it—lard or butter, or lard and butter mixed. Sprinkle a little flour over, then roll it up like jelly roll and roll out again to fit the pan; bake in hot oven. If baking powder is used it will not need shortening.

Pineapple Cake Dessert—One can sliced pineapple, two cups flour, about two-thirds cup milk, three level teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth level teaspoon salt, two level tablespoons butter. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together, rub in butter, add milk, stirring lightly; turn this out on floured board, roll into a thin sheet, line a greased round shallow pan, arrange pineapple on this, letting the slices lap a little, sprinkle lightly with sugar, add a few bits of butter and bake in quick oven twenty minutes. Serve warm with cream or the syrup from pineapple.

THE TABLE.

Economical Breakfast Dish for Three Persons—Cut four slices bacon in dice and fry brown. Beat one tablespoon flour and a little milk or water to smooth paste, then add three eggs and beat thoroughly. Now pour in one and one-half cups milk, then stir in with bacon until thick; season with salt and pepper to taste. Bacon may be omitted for ham, or both may be omitted if you use bacon fryings in spider.

Japanese Koto—Cut five pounds rhubarb into small pieces and sprinkle with equal weight of sugar. Let stand over night. In the morning pour boiling water over one and one-half pounds figs cut into bits, add rhubarb and grated rind and juice of two lemons, then cook until thick. This is a good relish to serve with cold meats and can be used for cake filling.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The D. A. R. Congress.

One of the speakers at the reception of the Congressional Union to the D. A. R. Congress was Miss Julia Lathrop, whose work as Chief of the Children's Bureau is known from one end of the country to the other. Miss Lathrop said in part:

"Have you ever thought how our conception of the nobility of work for children has increased, how we are constantly inventing new and subtler definitions of the care of a child?

"We are seeing that in the home there can be no real dignity, there can be no strength to guard boys and girls against the outside world, unless the person who is at the head of the home understands the world outside. Many of you may have had the experience of coming in contact with immigrant mothers as I have. If so, you have found that the immigrant mother is often unable to cope with her growing boys and girls. She is often despised even by the children who feel a deep affection for her. Now, I have thought many times of late that the mother, shut up within the walls of her home, is very much in that same relation to the children whom she cannot protect because she cannot control conditions outside of her home."

Miss Lathrop's speech made a deep impression on the members of the Congress, who attended the reception in large numbers.

A very straightforward message to the members of the D. A. R. Congress was made by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley at the same reception.

"President Wilson in his eloquent address of welcome on Monday said:

"'I venture to say that if there should ever be discovered a better form of government than the democratic, we should wish to adopt it because it was better; for our object is not to stick in the bark, our object is not merely to preserve forms, but to preserve a precious essence; and that is the essence of equal opportunity and essential human rights.'

"With all respect and honor to our eminent President I feel bound to say that I do not consider that the democratic form of government has yet been adopted in these United States. As my husband once remarked, in three-fourths of this country we still have only a 'hemi-democracy;' we shall not have what Dr. Wiley would designate a 'holo-democracy' until not half but all the people have a share in the government,—until all have an equal opportunity to decide what is right for the country.

"I read, too, in the paper that your own president, Mrs. Story, well said: 'Women cannot have the honor, without accepting the responsibility, of representing heroes.'

"And how, may I ask, could we women best represent the heroes of the American Revolution, men who gave their lives for the principle of freedom? It seems to me the answer is plain,—by living our lives so as to secure to every American woman freedom of action, so that she might be in fact as well as in name, an American citizen."

Suffrage at the Hague.

The forty-two delegates from the United States to the International Women's Peace Congress, were enabled to reach The Hague in time for the opening session of the Congress on April 27, only by a special order of the British Admiralty allowing the ship that carried them, the Noordam, to proceed in spite of the Admiralty's order stopping all traffic to Holland. The Noordam was held up for three days, and was released only after the American Embassy at London had interceded, following an appeal from the marooned delegates to Ambassador Page.

The suffrage note was sounded in the first session of the Congress. Dr. Aletta Jacobs, of the Netherlands, in her welcoming speech, said that one of the most powerful means of making war impossible would be the introduction of woman suffrage in all countries.

The Snow-Man Melts.

The crumbling objections to woman suffrage are constantly changing their shape, like a snow-man melting before the warmth of approaching spring. A little while ago the opponents were saying that it makes no difference, and is merely "a duplication of effort—setting two persons to do the work that might just as well be done by one."

This is apropos of the recent Chicago election. Because the women divided their vote between the Republican and Democratic candidates about as the men did, anti-suffragists a long way from Chicago assume that women's votes never make any difference in the result of an election. The people in Chicago know that if the women's vote did not change the result in the choice of mayor, this was not the case in the choice of aldermen. They have also been much impressed by the remarkable proof of independence shown by the Republican women at this year's primaries, when the women gave a majority of more than 7,000 for the reform candidate, Olsen, and the men a majority of nearly 10,000 for the machine candidate, Thompson. Olsen would have got the nomination but for a stupid primary law whereby Jane Addams and thousands of other women who meant to vote the Republican ticket this year were debarred from voting at the Republican primaries because they had registered as Progressives last time.

In Chicago, in consequence of equal suffrage, both candidates had pledged themselves in advance to a number of reforms that the women wanted; and various improvements had actually been secured policewomen, better garbage disposal, a boys' court, and other things which women had sought in vain for years until they got a vote. The women who had been most active in working for these things are fully convinced that suffrage did it.

In Joliet and several other places the women's vote turned the scale in favor of a commission form of government; and in more than a hundred Illinois towns last year it turned the scale on the liquor question.

Mrs. Benjamin E. Page, chairman of the legislative committee of the Illinois State Federation of Women's Clubs, writes: "The politicians all over the State pay much more attention to what the women want. Any number of instances from the small towns and cities could be given."

JONAS LIE WILL FORM AN ART ASS'N

Announces Exhibition of His Paintings Which Have Become Famous.

It is some years since Jonas Lie has shown his work in Plainfield, and since then his name has become known from coast to coast. The now famous collection of Panama paintings which he produced just before the water was let into the great waterway has been so generally acclaimed that it needs no further comment. The Metropolitan Museum of Art purchased one, and in the present collection in Plainfield is included its rival called "Toil."

Never before has Mr. Lie shown such a representative collection, and it is hoped the general public will take advantage of this opportunity. Besides ten of his Panama series first shown at Kneedler's Gallery, in New York, there are a number of recent snow paintings. Mr. Lie, as his friends know, was born and brought up in Norway and that he knows and loves snow is shown by the intimate and sympathetic way in which he paints it. His snow is not a forbidding cold, but a thing of beauty and source of warmth for the plants which are covered by it. Even the snowladen "Norwegian Village," so bleak and bare, is not cheerless.

Mr. Lie's interest in Plainfield is as keen as when he lived here, and in throwing open the doors to the wohle public of Plainfield he is starting a movement to form an art association to further a public interest in the arts of painting, sculpture and architecture. Mr. Lie is represented in many museums in this country, besides the Metropolitan Museum, the Chicago Art Institute, Peabody Institute, Baltimore; Syracuse Museum, Dallas Art Association, Dallas, Texas; Rochester, Indianapolis and others, and this is an exceptional opportunity to become acquainted with the work of one of the foremost painters of America.

VICTIMS OF LIQUOR RAID TO BE TRIED FRIDAY

Joseph Vocovitch, of Chimney Rock, charged with selling liquor without a license, assault, and the management of a disorderly house at that place, will be tried Friday morning in the Court of Sessions, before Judge Daniel H. Beekman, in Somerville. Six other men, who were boarders at the house of Vocovitch, will also be tried on the same day on a charge of fornication. Attorney Edmund A. Hayes, of New Brunswick, will represent all of the defendants.

The house of Vocovitch was raided on the night of April 10, when the six men and the proprietor were arrested after a raid by a number of detectives of Somerset county. The authorities had for some time been planning the raid, and they believe they made the capture at the right time.

BEGINS LONG BUSINESS TRIP.

Ferdinand Titsworth, of West Fifth street, circulation manager for Scribner's Magazine, left yesterday for an extended business trip as far as the Pacific coast, visiting all the principal cities west of the Mississippi. He will be gone several months in all.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

PROPOSALS FOR COAL.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a meeting held April 13,1915, notice is hereby given that the Board of Education will meet on Tuesday, May 11, 1915, at 8 P. M. in the Board room in the High School building, corner Ninth Street and Arlington Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at which time and place the said Board of Education will receive sealed proposals for furnishing 1550 tons, more or less, of the best anthracite coal for steaming and hot-air purposes; in the different sizes as follows:

Pea Coal	675 tons
Egg Coal	150 tons
Stove Coal	25 tons
Buckwheat Coal	700 tons

Bidders will be required to specify in their bids the name of the coal shippers of same.

All coal to be non-clinking, thoroughly screened and of quality acceptable to the Board of Education.

All coal to be placed in the coal bins within the public school buildings without any extra expense to the Board for handling or trimming the coal in the bins, and to be delivereed at such time as the Board may direct.

Bids to specify whether long or short tons are to be delivered.

Payment by the Board after July 1, 1915.

All proposals to be sealed and endorsed "Proposals for Coal," and addressed to the Clerk of the Board.

No proposals will be opened prior to 8 P. M. Tuesday, May 11th, and none will be received later than that hour.

Bidders may attend the meeting of the Board of Education on May 11th, and submit their sealed bids in person, if desired.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

A. A. TILNEY,
Secretary of the Board of Education.

LOCAL ACTS ARE MANY

Pageant by 150 Children, Boy Scout Exhibition, Clowns Galore and Acrobatic Acts by Y. M. C. A. Youths Will Add to Day's Program.

With every preparation complete for the benefit circus to be given tomorrow afternoon and evening for the Anti-Tuberculosis League, the Visiting Nurse Association and the

The Clown Barber Shop.

Public Recreation Committee, those interested are waiting upon the weather man to see to it that nothing mars the day's program. With local people to the number of two hundred or more participating in one way or another, it will be the biggest and most pretentious benefit ever attempted in this city. The professional part of the program, the bands, gaily decorated circus wagons, tents and other necessary adjuncts are being provided by the Frank A. Robbins Show, and this coupled with the local acts will furnish two and a half hours' entertainment.

The health pageant which has been prepared by the Recreation Committee will give nearly 150 children an opportunity to show their skill; seventy-five or one hundred Boy Scouts will over run the ten giving exhibitions of fire making, bridge and wagon erection, pyramiding, and other useful things which they have prepared for prizes offered by M. C. VanArsdale; there will be a large number of local men selling and taking tickets, and the clowns connected with the show will be supplemented by a number of local boys. The following from the Y. M. C. A. will give an exhibition of athletic skill; Harold Wilson, Davis Blanchard, James Brownlee, Benjamin Doane, Martin Snyder, Joseph Angerbauer, Howard Willett, Russell Tomlinson, George Feaster, Ellis Enander, Arthur Krausse, Walter Brown, Charles Gates and Warren Meyer. Mr. Meermans, the physical director, will be in charge. Two other young men connected with the Y. M. C. A., Gus Engler and Erick VanNorden, will also give an exhibition of tumbling.

The local clowns will include the

TO GIVE ANOTHER DANCE AT THE PARK CLUB

The dances at the Park Club this past season have been so popular that the entertainment committee of which Mrs. Hugh Jarvis is chairman, has yielded to request that another dance be given this season and arrangements have been made for such an affair at the club on Saturday night at 9 o'clock.

Preceding the dance the club will hold a short business meeting and for that reason the dance is set for 9 o'clock.

SURVEYED BRIDGE.

County Engineer Jacob Bauer surveyed the site for the proposed new Grove street bridge yesterday. This morning Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., Councilman J. J. Stahl and Freeholder George Kirch, of the borough, looked over the bridge and the Mayor will probably make a report at the Council meeting tomorrow night.

Frederick Barnes, who has been residing in this city during the past winter, left yesterday for his home in Warehouse Point, Conn. While here he attended the Plainfield Business College.

ROBERT GUTTRIDGE IS STILL MISSING

Girl Bookkeeper Returns—Missing Man Son of James B. Guttridge.

Relatives of Robert L. Guttridge, the Rahway grocer, who has been missing from home since Sunday last, are engaged in a "still" hunt in an effort to gain information concerning his present whereabouts. This was made kown this morning when Chief of Police David A. Ramsey, of Rahway, told a Daily Press reporter that his department had not been called into the case up to the present time. The chief stated that efforts are being made to "hush" the matter up.

Owing to a misunderstanding yesterday the article published in this paper had the family relations of the missing man mixed. He is the son of James B. Guttridge, and not Robert Guttridge, of 1,237 South avenue, as was erroneously stated. His father lives here, but since the disappearance of the young man he has been staying in Rahway and conducting the grocery store on Main street, that place.

As was stated exclusively in the Daily Press yesterday, young Guttridge is said to have left town with Miss Den Bleyker, his pretty seventeen-year-old bookkeeper, Sunday afternoon. The two are said to have gone on a drive. Guttridge left a wife and four children living in Rahway. When interviewed this morning the father of the missing grocer said that his son's whereabouts are still unknown, and the belief that he left because of business worries is still being harbored.

Asked what he knew about the case this morning, Police Chief Ramsey, of Rahway, replied: "Oh! you mean the grocer that ran off with his bookkeeper." Continuing, he said: "The girl has returned to her home in this city, but Guttridge is still missing. No complaint has been made to our department, and we are not looking for the grocer. The girl is not very well known here, her family having moved to Rahway only a short time ago."

Mrs. James B. Guttridge said this morning that the family received a telegram from the missing man Monday, and knew where he was at that time. Mrs. Guttridge also claims that Miss Den Blyker is a woman, contrary to the report that she is but seventeen years of age.

POLICE SEARCH FOR GIRL'S ABDUCTORS

Fear That Dunellen Girl Was Kidnapped on Her Way to Work in Plainfield.

Believing that her fourteen-year-old daughter, Helen Miller, has been kidnapped, Mrs. Katherine Miller, of Dunellen, has enlisted the aid of Chief Kiely and the local police department in a State-wide search for information concerning the girl's present whereabouts. The police have every reason to believe that the girl has been the victim of kidnappers and relatives are much concerned over her continued absence.

In a statement made to Chief Kiely, this morning, Mrs. Miller said that the girl had left home Tuesday morning and has not since been heard from or seen. She was employed in a skirt factory in Watchung avenue, this city, and each morning made the trip to Plainfield on the trolley. The factory authorities did not see her Tuesday or have not heard from her since Monday night when she quit work.

Helen Miller is about five feet, four inches in heighth and weighs about 130 pounds. She is unusually well built and is pretty. According to the mother the girl has never associated with boys and had only a limited number of girl acquaintances. She gave every outward indication of being well satisfied with her employment in Plainfield and was apparently contented with her home life.

Before moving to Dunellen the family lived in Perth Amboy and aside from that town the girl had no knowledge of conditions in other places. Believing that she might possibly have taken a notion to go back to her former home, Chief Kiely communicated with the Perth Amboy police, but up to a late hour this afternoon had received no information that would serve to allay the fears of the anxious mother.

When she left Tuesday morning she was attired in her working clothes and took nothing with her that would indicate that she contemplated making a trip.

NEW ROAD RULES FOR PLAINFIELD

State Statute Repeals Present City Traffic Regulations Now in Effect.

MANY CHANGES NOTED

Some of the Most Important Rules—Police Department Will Enforce Laws—Penalties Provided for Offenders.

Automatically repealing all laws relative to traffic in Plainfield, as well as in other New Jersey cities, the new State code of traffic regulations goes into effect today, this being the first piece of legislation of its kind enacted in any State in the Union. Up to this time all rules regarding traffic have been embodied in the local city ordinances and those in force in Plainfield have differed materially from the ones in other nearby municipalities. Automobile tourists, because of varied codes, seldom were aware of the exact conditions required of them in operating their cars. As a consequence there were many arrests recorded involving individuals who were entirely innocent of any wrongdoing. Four months were required to draw up the regulations and the new code will undoubtedly be used as a model by other States. One of the main points is the relation of a driver to a trolley car as follows:

"Every driver or operator of any

ASSAILANT CAUGHT; COURT IS LENIENT

Italian Who Tried to Kill Foreman Gets Off With a Light Sentence.

Arraigned before Recorder Hand in the borough police court this afternoon, on a charge of disorderly conduct, Tony Bernardo, the Italian laborer who yesterday assaulted Angelo Masso, a sewer gang foreman, was fined $50 with the option of spending sixty days in the county jail. He was represented by Francis J. Blatz, of the local law firm of Codington & Blatz. Masso testified, through an interpreter, that Bernardo wielded a pick-axe with deadly intent at his head as a sequel to an argument over tardiness.

Following an extensive search that continued throughout the day, Bernardo was arrested at the Jersey City terminal of the Central Railroad late last night by the police of that place. The North Plainfield authorities were immediately communicated with and the Italian was brought to this city on the 2:08 train this morning.

Soon after the assault took place in the Greenbrook road sewer trench Bernardo fled to the mountains and lay in hiding all day. Thinking that he might possibly elude his watchers and attempt to escape to New York, Chief Weiss had men stationed at the New Jersey Central station nere to watch all outgoing trains with a view of arresting him before he got out of the State. He was seen to board a train for New York shortly after 8 o'clock last night, and word was telegraphed to Jersey City to have him taken into custody. He maintained his sullen attitude throughout the day and appeared to be unmindful of his fate. Masso, his victim, returned to work this morning.

Many of the fugitive's fellow-countrymen yesterday willingly joined in the search for him and all day the mountains near the borough were scoured. How he escaped unnoticed to the Plainfield depot is a thing that is puzzling the police and will probably remain unsolved as he refuses to comment on his doings yesterday.

CHINA'S ULTIMATUM GIVEN TO JAPAN LEGATION

Peking, May 6.—The ultimatum of Japan to China reached the Japanese Legation today. It probably was presented to the Chinese Government this afternoon.

DR. HALL TO LECTURE.

Dr. Thomas C. Hall, of Union Theological Seminary, will speak at the Plainfield High School tonight on "The German Point of View." Dr. Hall received his higher education in Germany and America, and is an American by adoption. He is said to be well qualified in every way to discuss his subject in an interesting manner. The lecture will be given at 8:15 o'clck, and the public is invited.

DOES PLAINFIELD WANT AIRDROME?

This is the Question Put to the People by Mayor Calkins.

LICENSE IS REQUESTED

Plainfield Theatre Management Asks for Permit to Conduct Open Air Amusement Center on West Front Street.

Whether Plainfield will have a moving picture summer airdrome this summer rests with the taxpayers. At least that is the sentiment advanced by Mayor Leighton Calkins in an interview with a Plainfield Daily Press reporter, this morning. In response to a communication from Michael L. Shannon, manager of the Plainfield Theatre, asking for a permit to run such an amusement center at East Front street and Watchung avenue, Mayor Calkins has replied that he feels duty bound to give the matter as much publicity as possible and to gain the opinion of the people at large on the issue.

In requesting a permit, Mr. Shannon said that he had an opportunity to gain a three years' lease on the site mentioned. There will be no building erected, but the ground will be levelled off and either cinders or gravel used for the flooring. The seats will be permanent benches or chairs in uniform order and first-class condition. Continuing Mr. Shannon says in his communication:

"We intend to extend the billboard fence down to the end of the lot on Watchung avenue, also along the rear of lot; thence running along the line between dwelling and lot to billboard on Front street. This fence will be from eight to ten feet in heighth and on a parallel with the board now occupying the lot, and put up in first-class condition.

"A moving picture booth will be installed and arc electricity will be used for lights around the premises. This work will be done in accordance with the fire and building ordinances; same to have their approval as to construction."

In replying to Mr. Shannon's letter Mayor Calkins writes:

"I am unwilling to grant a license for an out-of-door theatre in Plainfield without first giving publicity to the proposition in order to bring out whatever objections, if any, there may be. As you know, theatres out-of-doors have not heretofore been licensed in Plainfield, and while offhand there would seem to be no substantial reason why the Plainfield Theatre, a regularly licensed company in Plainfield of excellent reputation, should not under proper restrictions give its performances during the summer in the open air, I prefer to refer your application to the Common Council for its recommendation, and otherwise by full publicity to invite the views of interested citizens."

New York, May 6.—An appraisal of the estate left by Alexander Fullerton, brother of Hattie F. Milliken, of No. 996 Central avenue, Plainfield, made by one of the Transfer Tax State Appraisers, which was filed here today, in the office of the clerk of the Surrogate's Court, shows that when the decedent died on July 21, 1913, he left on estate of $26,933.50, consisting of $695.78 in cash on hand, and in banks; $5,557.96 in mortgages, jewelry, etc., and the rest in securities and miscellaneous matter.

Charged up against the estate are expenses of $5,534.49—funeral, $134; administration, $1,829.81; commissions, $332.16, and the rest in debts—which brings the estate down to the net figure of $21,399.01. This, under the directions of his will and codicil, is left, as follows:

Spencer Fullerton, a brother, of Philadelphia, $7,797.25. The rest to friends. To two of the friends deceased left a life interest in $2,652 and, at the death of both, the principal is to pass over to the Theosophical Society, of Adyar Madras S., India. One of the friends, Walter S. Ladd, receives the residue, which amounts to $6,648.76. The Pennsylvania Company of Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, of Philadelphia, are the executors.

MAYOR PRESENTS REED'S OPINION

ITS EFFECTS ARE CITED

If It is Allowed to Stand It Will Make It Impossible for Cities to Compel Public Service to Repair Parts of Streets.

During the session of the New Jersey League of Mayors in Newark, today, Mayor Leighton Calkins will call attention to the recent decision of Judge Kalisch, of the Supreme Court, which, if it is allowed to stand, will make it impossible for any city in the State to compel the Public Service Corporation to repair parts of streets or carry out any other contract made in consideration of a franchise grant.

A statement entitled, "What Did the Legislature Intend?" has been compiled by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and will be presented at the meeting.

Mr. Reed's statement follows:

"In a short time the Court of Errors and Appeals will be called upon by the City of Plainfield to interpret what the Legislature of 1911 intended when it passed the Public Utilities act and created a commission to supervise the operation of public utilities.

MEMORIAL TABLET PRESENTED TO ELKS

Gift to Plainfield Lodge From Mrs. Ida Sandford in Memory of Her Husband.

At the regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, last night, Assemblyman William N. Runyon, in behalf of Mrs. Ida C. Sanford, presented the organization with a handsome bronze memorial tablet in memory of her husband, the late Frederick Sandford, who was a prominent member from the time of its institution. The tablet was accepted for the lodge by Exalted Ruler A. A. Prudhon and will be one of the striking features of the auditorium. It has already been placed in position near the exalted ruler's station and is so constructed that the names of other departed members can be added to the memorial role.

As it stands at present, the tablet is five feet high and four feet wide. The names of twenty-three departed brethren of Plainfield Lodge have already been inserted in spaces below, each one calling for a bronze plate. The tablet is of an ornate design, bearing the familiar clock of Elkdom and symbolic wreaths. At the upper left hand corner the Elks' motto is prominently displayed, "The Faults of Our Brothers We Write Upon the Stands," while on the right hand side is the continuation, "Their Virtues on Tablets of Love and Memory." In the centre is this inscription: "Our absent brothers in memoriam to the honor and glory of the Order of Elks and in loving memory of Frederick Sandford." The wording is completed at the bottom as follows: "This tablet is presented by his wife, Ida C. Sandford, A. D. 1915."

MASTER CARPENTERS SAY THEY WILL GIVE NO INCREASE

The situation relative to the walkout of local carpenters was made more tense today when it was stated that the Master Carpenters, at a meeting last night, had decided not to give the increase. No official word has been given to the union as yet, but it is believed this will be done tonight, a conference having been decided upon between the joint arbitration boards of the two organizations.

So far as the journeymen are concerned, nothing new has developed within the past two days. The men meet regularly each day in Trades' Council Hall and all are firm in their determination to remain out until the fifty cents asked for is granted. Many of the journeymen are firm in the belief that the increase will be forthcoming within a short time.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

A Girls' Athletic Association meeting was held in the assembly hall at noon today to give Manager Spencer authority to buy medals for the girls' team, and to discuss other business incident to the closing of the season.

ARRESTED ON ESSEX COUNTY INDICTMENT

William O'Connor Taken Into Custody by Patrolman O'Keefe Yesterday.

Wanted by the Essex county authorities on an indictment charging him with desertion, William O'Connor, well-known in this city, was arrested at West Front street and Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, by Patrolman O'Keeffe. Chief of Police Bamforth, of West Orange, came to Plainfield in an automobile last night and took O'Connor back to that city.

O'Connor married Katherine Reed, formerly of Liberty street, and is alleged to have deserted her and eight children in West Orange. They lived for a number of years in this city and later moved to the Essex county town. While in Plainfield, O'Connor was employed as a machinist. The West Orange authorities took up the case shortly after the O'Connor family was deserted by the father and the indictment of O'Connor ensued. He will be tried in Newark.

After being brought to the police station by O'Keeffe the prisoner asked to be allowed to go into an anteroom and the request was granted. O'Keeffe, however, was suspicious of his actions and watched him. Left alone O'Connor pulled a bulky letter from his inside pocket and started to tear it up, but O'Keeffe made a grab for it and succeeded in getting it away from him before he had destroyed it. The contents of the missile, according to the police, will be of material value in bringing about his conviction.

ANNUAL DINNER OF PRINCETON CLUB

Affair to Be Held at the Plainfield Country Club May 14.

The Princeton Club of Plainfield is planning to hold its annual dinner at the Country Club this year and to make it a larger affair than in past years. The date chosen is Friday evening, May 14. The speakers are to be Mayor Leighton Calkins, representing the Harvard Alumni of Plainfield; Edward A. Stevenson, president of the Yale Club, of Plainfield; Professor Philip Marshall Brown, of the Princeton Graduate College, and Alfred G. Reeves. The musical part of the entertainment will be furnished by the famous Kenneth Clark, and by Brown Brothers' quartet.

It is expected that most of the seventy Princeton Alumni of Plainfield will be present, many of them with guests, and also alumni from neighboring towns.

On the following day the members and their guests will take part in tournaments in golf and tennis at the Country Club, and prizes have been offered for the winners.

Dr. F. E. Dubois is chairman of the dinner committee, and Mr. Barrows of the field day committee.

SPEEDER'S CASE PUT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW MORNING

Charged by Chief of Police Kiely with driving his automobile in excess of the speed limit and in a reckless fashion at East Fourth and Sycamore streets during the "commuter-rush hour" yesterday morning, Frank D. Clark, a driver employed by the Zeek Baking Company, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. The court adjourned the case until tomorrow morning.

According to Chief Kiely the chauffeur was running his car at a speed of twenty miles an hour and failed to stop when ordered to. A number of automobiles and pedestrians were hurrying to the 8:30 train when the incident occurred.

WENT TO PATERSON.

An automobile load of North Plainfielders made the trip to Paterson today to be present at "Billy" Sunday's sermon in the tabernacle this afternoon. Those in the party included Mrs. W. O. Taylor, Mrs. Townley, Mrs. William L. Smalley, Miss Jubilee Rowley and William Taylor.

WILL DISCUSS MISSIONS.

Rev. Charles G. Fishback, of Topeka, Kansas, field secretary for the foreign missionary board of the National Baptist convention, will speak at the Mt. Olive Baptist church tomorrow night on "Foreign Missions."

TURKS PERISH IN TERRIFIC ATTACK

Repulsed by Allies Leaving 1,500 Dead and Dying on Battlefield.

GERMANS SUCCESSFUL

Italy Said to Be Ready to Enter War at Any Moment—Five Vessels Torpedoed by German Submarines—Spanish Steamer Wrecked.

London, May 6.—The Turks, considerably reinforced, attacked the allies' camp at Krithia (near the end of the peninsula) early Tuesday morning, but were repulsed, leaving 1,500 dead, according to advices from Mitylene received by the Exchange Telegraph Company from its Athens correspondent. The allies have advanced into the interior, the dispatch says, and now occupy positions of great strategic importance.

A report from Tenedos says that British warships continued yesterday their bombardment of Turkish positions in the Dardanelles and also of Smyrna.

The Dardanelles correspondent of the "Chronicle" has sent the following dispatch under date of April 30:

"During the early fighting the Turkish positions ran from the crest above Maidos to the crest above Boghali. The allied forces were along the shore at the mouth of the valley and occupying the Zamak valley.

"The allies then extended their positions along the northern ridge, whereupon the Turks' position on the southern ridge became extremely dangerous because it was commanded by the fire both from warships and landing forces. On April 28 the point of interest was the southern tip of the peninsula where forces were landed in Morto bay and north of Gaba Tepeh. During the forenoon these troops occupied the district extending a distance of about a mile and a half from the point of the peninsula."

The Swedish steamship Vanadis has been sunk in the Baltic by the German auxiliary cruiser Silvana. The crew was rescued. Other reports state that the Vanadis was torpedoed.

The British schooner Earl of Lathom was sunk by a German submarine eight miles off Kinsale, Head Isle, Wednesday. Her crew were saved.

The Danish steamer Cathay, a vessel of 4,076 tons gross, was sunk yesterday in the North Sea either by a mine or a German submarine. Passengers and crew were landed at Ramsgate today.

Paris, May 6.—Desperate fighting continues in the Ypres region. The official communique issued by the War Office this afternoon admits that some of the German attacks there resulted in success, but some trenches which they took were later recaptured by the British. A French reverse in Alsace is also admitted. Germans reoccupied the summit of Mamelon on the left bank of the Fecht River, east of Sillakerwasser. This hill was captured by the French, but the Germans later retook it in the Ailly forest. The French recaptured some trenches.

Rome, May 6.—Persuaded that further efforts to arrive at an understanding with Italy which will insure a continuation of Italian neutrality are useless, Austria has stopped the Glochowski Mission, states the Idea

MINISTER VAN DYKE SENDS A COMPLETE STATEMENT

Washington, May 6.—Minister Van Dyke, at the Hague, cabled to the State Department today that he had mailed a full and complete report of the attack on the American tank steamer Cushing by a German aeroplane. The report, it is expected, will be received within the next ten days or two weeks.

TWO ACCIDENT CASES.

Two accident cases were reported by Muhlenberg Hospital today, one of the victims being Andrew Osyzanski, of South Plainfield, who lost two fingers as the result of getting his hand caught beneath a triphammer in the Spicer plant. The physicians amputated what was left of the digits, after which he was able to return home. The other victim was William O'Sullivan, an employe of the Quaker Hill Farm. He was knocked from the rear seat of a motorcycle in a collision with a wagon on lower Park avenue. O'Sullivan is believed to have a fractured leg and is being kept at the institution pending X-ray examination.

PUPILS OF THE WHITTIER SCHOOL HAVE GOOD RECORDS

The enrollment of the borough schools at the close of the past month stood at 483, of which 236 were girls and 247 boys. Fifty-one pupils are attending Plainfield High School.

The percentage of attendance during the month was 94.

A total of 378½ days were lost by the pupils during the month as follows: Sickness, 324 days; religious holidays, five days; work, 170½ days; unfit clothing, 8½ days; truancy, one day; suspended, two days; pleasure, two days; all other reasons, 65½ days.

Superintendent Rentschler informed a reporter yesterday that provision had been made during the past month for pupils retarded by reason of sickness or change of residence, whereby they receive special attention with the idea of bringing them into their class at normal age.

Some handlooms for weaving made in the manual training department of the schools have been sold to another school district of the State, and the money used to purchase pictures for the walls of the Whittier School.

A number of old books, which have been rebound with the idea of economizing, have been put into use and are giving excellent service.

The grounds about the schools have been cleaned and flower beds planted.

Miss Mabel Bennett, teacher of the second grade in the Lincoln School, has notified the Board of Education that she will not return next year. Miss Bennett has accepted a lucrative proposition to teach English in the Somerset School at North Plainfield School. Miss Bennett is an excellent teacher, and her position will be hard to fill.

MRS. BENWOOD IMPROVING.

Mrs. Peter Benwood, wife of the night gate-tender at the Washington avenue crossing of the Central Railroad, who underwent an operation in St. Peter's Hospital, at New Brunswick, last week, is getting along very nicely, and expects to be able to return to her home in Bound Brook by Monday at least.

Contractors Kirchner & Wormser have completed redecorating the interior of the store in the Messler building at the corner of Washington and Lincoln avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. George Zink, of North avenue, are entertaining Henry Alberti, of Hudson, N. Y.

Miss Edith Wyckoff, daughter of former Mayor and Mrs. William Wyckoff, is spending a week in Bayonne, the guest of her cousin, Miss Alma Wyckoff.

Mrs. Lydia Parker, of Second street, who was quite ill recently, is able to be up and about her home.

TO UNDERGO OPERATION.

Mrs. Forman G. Neighbour, of Mountainview terrace, who has not been enjoying good health for some time, was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital, at Plainfield, in an ambulance yesterday afternoon to undergo an operation, which, it is hoped, will result in her regaining her health. The operation is not regarded as a serious one.

The attack of bronchitis from which A. E. Smith, of Front street, has been suffering from for the past two weeks, has developed into bronchitis.

Mrs. Fred K. Wilcox, Jr., who arrived in New Jersey from Oklahoma for a protracted visit several weeks ago, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Wilcox, of Dunellen avenue. Mrs. Wilcox anticipates that her husband, who has not been East since he left the borough some years ago, will join her before her visit is ended. Mr. Wilcox has many friends here.

Contractor Raymond Whitford has been awarded the contract of erecting a garage for Howard Craig.

Dr. Harold Bull, of Cranford, will open a dental office over Marion's drug store on Monday.

INFANT SERIOUSLY ILL.

Patrick Tozze, the year and a half old baby of Vincengo Tozze, the North avenue barber, is in the Hoboken Hospital, at Hoboken, suffering from an ailment of the throat which has caused his parents much anxiety. The little fellow was taken there on Sunday by his father.

Dr. E. G. Curry, of Madison avenue, is planning a month's trip to be taken in the hope of benefitting his health, which has been very poor.

Lincoln avenue has been completed from Mountainview terrace to Dunellen avenue by the steam sewer trench digger. On account of water the rest of this thoroughfare will be completed by hand diggers.

Miss Margaret Tarpey, sister of Marshal Patrick Tarpey, will arrive in the borough on Saturday from Jersey City, where she is visiting a sister, Mrs. Delia McCarty, for a visit of a few weeks. Miss Tarpey's home is in County Mayo, Ireland, and she arrived in New York last Friday.

TROOP NO. 2 VS. HOLY NAME.

The crack baseball team of Scout Troop No. 2 will play the Holy Name Society, of Plainfield, on Maurer Oval tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Maskell and Schneiderwind will do the battery work for the Scouts.

RESIGNS POSITION.

Frank Day, of Grove street, has resigned his position in the Somerville branch of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and accepted a position as one of the landscape gardeners of the Central Railroad.

Miss Belle Stites, daughter of Tax Collector and Mrs. I. J. Stites, is spending a week at Pleasant Plains, Staten Island, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Frances Leggett.

COUPLE TO RESIDE HERE.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerwin, who were recently married, have commenced housekeeping in an apartment of the Moynihan double house on North avenue, near Jefferson. Mr. and Mrs. Kerwin were married last Thursday in St. Columbus church, at Newark, by Father Wright. Mrs. Kerwin is the daughter of Andrew York, of 93 Emmett street, Newark. Mr. Kerwin has been a resident of this borough for two years. Prior to his marriage he boarded at the home of John Reese. He is employed as engineer at the local roundhouse. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kerwin, reside at Freehold.

Mrs. Mary Volk, Mrs. Kerwin's mother, is making her home with the couple.

STARTS ON LONG VOYAGE.

George Zink and Richard Mann were in New York Tuesday to see Mr. Zink's nephew, Jacob Alberti, sail on the old gunboat Newport, at present commissioned as a school ship by the New York Nautical School, on the annual cruise of the school. The ship will probably not drop its anchor in the harbor of New York again until some time during the fore part of October. Its destination is San Francisco, and the route, via the Panama Canal, stopping on the way at St. Thomas, Colon, Balboa and Honolulu.

William Taylor, of Somerville, has opened a furniture store in the new Kuldoshes store on North avenue.

Mrs. H. B. Walters, of Washington avenue, who fractured an ankle when she fell a few steps down the fronts stairs of her home several weeks ago, although still confined to her bed, is getting along very nicely.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, the national lecturer of the W. C. T. U., was heard by a large audience in the Methodist church last night. Mrs. George K. Post, vice-president of the local union, presided, and Mrs. M. L. Rarick read the Scripture lesson, and Rev. E. R. Brown offered prayer. Mrs. Armor, who spoke on the subject, "A Saloonless Nation in 1920," said that the time is coming when the country shall rise up and smite the liquor traffic. Rev. T. E. Vassar, of the New Market Baptist church, and Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey, of the Methodist church, also took part in the service.

Three miles of sewer pipe have been laid in the borough to date, there being still eleven miles yet to lay.

South Plainfield.

Andrew Waskinski, an employe of the Spicer Manufacturing Company had two fingers taken off while at work in the forge shop last night. Waskinski, who is a hammerman's helper, was put to work yesterday running a press machine which is used to trim the forgings. This job was only temporary, owing to the fact that some of the press hands were ill. He was given first aid by some of his fellow-workmen until Dr. Albert Pittis, of Plainfield, arrived. He dressed the wounds and removed the man to Muhlenberg Hospital in his automobile.

P. F. Kaine has completed arrangements for a moving picture house which is to have a seating capacity of four hundred people. The building is to be erected on his property which is near the Lehigh Valley station and he expects the contractors to start work on the building in about a week.

Mrs. Albert H. Riblett entertained the members of the Ladies Aid Society at her home on Russell road, yesterday afternoon, when a very profitable time was spent sewing.

The illness of John Meggy, of North avenue, was found not to be as serious as at first thought and he will be around in a few days, an operation not being necessary.

The weekly meeting of the Lend-a-Hand Society will be held in the parlors of the Baptist church tomorrow afternoon, when the usual busy time sewing will follow the business session.

The lecture by the Rev. George H. Trull, of Elizabeth, at the "open meeting" of the Fanwood Township Sunday-school Association, which will be held in the Methodist church on Monday night, should prove to be very interesting as he is an authority on mission topics and is the author of several books, the best known one being "Teaching Missions." His talk on "The Place of Missions in the Religious Education in the Sunday-school" will be along the same lines as the lecture by the Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, Plainfield who will lecture on "Teacher Training."

The cast for the presentation of "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party" on Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the Methodist church, has been selected and a rehearsal was held last night.

Tony Alberts, the local contractor, is altering the "old station," which was recently purchased by Charles Norton, and when completed it will be one of the show places of the borough.

After spending a month in a trip to the Pacific coast, where they viewed the wonders of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Mayor and Mrs. Hoar, of the borough, have returned to their home on Martine avenue.

Ralph Venizia, of Terrill road, will apply to the court at Elizabeth tomorrow for a renewal of his wholesale liquor license.

The young people of the borough will conduct a subscription dance in the Fanwood firehouse tomorrow night.

The superintendents of the various Sunday-schools in the township are preparing their annual reports, which will be compiled by Township Secretary Neilson and sent to Trenton.

Freeholder Hall, of North avenue, is serving on the May term of the Grand Jury.

MISS MARTHA EMMONS LOSES PERFECT SCORE

Miss Martha Emmons, of the eighth grade of the Somerset School, who has led her class in the spelling contest being held under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association with a perfect score for three hundred words, marred her record in the fourth and next to last contest by misspelling two of the one hundred words. She is still ahead in her class and will have to miss several words in the last contest, which takes place the last Friday of this month, to lose the five dollar prize.

The only perfect paper in the eighth grade was turned in by Charles White. In grade seven there were no perfect papers while Elias Chrissafides, Henry Helriegao, Beatrice Lee, Florence Lindini, John Mason, Olga Phillipson, Marie Maurel, Evelyn Schomp and Dorothy Sklarew were perfect in the sixth grade. Margaret Case, Kathleen Regan and Ethel Winn, all of the fifth grade, spelled all words correctly.

FOURTH ANNUAL BALL.

The Imperial Social Club has completed plans for its fourth annual ball and shirt waist dance to be held at Saengerbund Hall, the borough, Monday, May 31. Halbforster's orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish the music for the occasion. The three previous balls held under the auspices of this organization were successful in every respect, and a large attendance is expected for the coming event.

PURCHASE INTERNED SHIPS.

New York, May 6.—The report that the Atlantic Fruit Company has bought the interned Hamburg-American steamers Siberia and Sarnia was confirmed today. There is a possibility that later a fleet of ships may be put into service actually owned by the company.

JOINS WILD WEST SHOW.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—Because his theatrical tour has been a financial failure, Jess Willard, champion heavyweight pugilist, has deserted his thespian role and will join a Wild West Show. His first appearance is scheduled for Chicago on May 22.

FANWOOD COUNCIL FIXES SALARIES

Amounts to Be Paid Officials Determined at May Meeting Held Last Night.

EFFECTIVE ON JULY 1

Additional Police Protection to Be Given the Borough Through Telephone Call System—Council Refuses to Endorse Application.

Ordinances were adopted by the Fanwood Council, last night, fixing the salary of the overseer of the poor at $25 per year, that of the assessor at $100 per year and the recorder at $25 a year. The first ordinance will go in effect July 1 and the second one, which revokes an ordinance referring to the same adopted in 1912, will become effective at the same time, while the third will not become effective until 1916, but is passed now so that it may be put in the book of ordinances.

Additional police protection is to be afforded the borough through the installation of a telephone call box to be centrally located by the police committee. It is proposed to erect a strong box in which will be placed the 'phone and it will be indicated at night by a green light. A person needing the services of a policeman will call "Central," who will switch on the light to attract attention and the police in answering will be able to locate the call.

The street committee reported that the streets and gutters have been cleaned and are ready for the annual application of oil. Joseph Rhodes, of Midway avenue, in a communication, complained of drainage conditions on his thoroughfare. This was referred.

The Council went on record as being opposed to signing a petition being circulated by Ralph Venezia, who is seeking a liquor license, but the clerk was instructed to write the court that there was no objection to the man receiving a license. Westfield, it is reported, is opposed to this action and will try to prevent Venezia getting a license, it is said. The clerk was authorized to purchase a typewriter at a cost not to exceed $80. It was reported that there is a total of $2,260 cash on hand and bills aggregating $288.40 were ordered paid.

Wanamaker's Great Wotsat Theatre Party

Last Saturday was a gala day for thousands of youngsters in New York, for the Wotsat Club had a great party at the Manhattan Opera House.

This interesting organization, originated by the John Wanamaker stores, has had parties before, but they have been held in the auditorium of the store. The membership is now so large that it was impossible to entertain all the children there.

Children were trooping down Thirty-fourth street before 9 o'clock, although the party did not begin until 10, and so strenuous was the attempt to get inside the house that two boys broke a panel of glass. However, their injuries were slight, and after they had their cuts dressed they entered the house and enjoyed the fun with the rest of the children.

The name Wotsat is an abbreviation of the oft-asked question, "What's that?" The purpose of the club is to arouse the desire for knowledge of everything good. As the guests arrived the military band of the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute, directed by Frederic D. Wood, played some stirring music. Then the curtain rose and Knowledge was discovered asleep on the stage. A fairy appeared and tried to awaken him. But still he slept. Then she called Wotsat, Mother Wotsat with Strumm, Optick and some of the children. They decided to give the Wotsat call. Still he did not arise, so then all the members of the club helped, and when he heard their harmonious cry he immediately awakened.

At one side of the stage the name Wotsat appeared in electric lights. Mr. Appel, who presided at this affair, asked the fairy to wave her wand. Then the following words were shown made from this name: Wake, Open, Try, Study, Ask, Truth.

Songs were sung by all the children, motion pictures were shown, and a butterfly dance was given by Elizabeth Mitchell and Stella MacIntosh. Gordon Phillips played the piano, Benjamin Stern the violin, while the Highland fling was cleverly danced by Thomas Sanderson, who was dressed in correct Highland costume. Ruth Igou, the original Alice in Wanamaker's, was then introduced. Her father writes the fascinating stories in the Wotsat Magazine. The credit, however, as Mr. Appel, or Eddie Tor, as he is known in Wotsat language, said, should really belong to Mrs. Igou, who came from the far west in Canada, and when she arrived in New York was amazed to see the hundreds and hundreds of children who were cooped up in the city. She felt she must do something for them, so she started right in with her own little girl, and taught her that she must always be kind to children and animals, and then the good fairies would always be with her and bring her pleasant surprises.

With a Maypole dance given by the children, and the singing of "America," the delightful party came to an end. As they passed out, the children received balloons and magazines.

PROPOSALS FOR COAL.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J., at a regular meeting held May 3d, 1915, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on Monday, the twenty-fourth day of May, A. D. 1915, at eight o'clock P. M., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing the following that is to say:

250 Tons of Coal more or less, stove and nut, of quality equal to the best Lehigh, delivered in bins at the different departments.

To be delivered at the various Engine Houses, Police Station, Alms House and Street Department, in quantities as required by each of said departments, during the remainder of the current year, with the privilege on the part of the City to purchase at same prices for the first three months of 1916.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council. Proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Coal."

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

GIRL VIOLINIST A BELGIAN REFUGEE

Lola de Valerie, Compelled to Flee From Brussels, Appearing at Proctor's.

Although the fact has not previously been announced, a pretty sixteen-year-old girl known only as "Lola the Violinist," who comes to Proctor's Theatre today for a limited engagement, is a Belgian refugee and also one of the most talented musicians of her native country. Her full name is Miss Lola de Valerie and with her mother she was compelled to flee from her beloved city of Brussells in which place she had been graduated from the conservatory of music and where she gave numerous recitals before eminent professors. Mr. Proctor heard Lola play in New York at a concert, and he immediately signed a contract with her for a tour, her first appearance in vaudeville. She was at one of his metropolitan theatres last week and comes to Plainfield from Albany, N. Y., her only other American appearance.

Lola de Valerie,

Miss Lola and her mother fled from Brussels last August and after a difficult journey during which they had to make a detour in order to avoid territory on which a fierce battle was taking place, arrived at Ostend. At that place they managed to secure passage on a boat and landed at Folkstone, England, and from there they journeyed to London. Owing to the depression caused by the war all amusements in the English metropolis was practically at a standstill, so there was little opportunity for Lola to display her art, and she and her mother were advised to go to America, which they now hail as a wonderful land of promise.

Miss Lola is but a slip of a girl, very unassuming, in her manner for one so talented and she considers the United States and its people so charming that she has no desire to ever return to her native land. Her selections are such that cannot but please the average theatregoer, for instance, an entrancing waltz from "The Only Girl," "Mighty Like a Rose" and Kreisler's "Viennois Caprice," all rendered with such a brilliance as to compel an encore.

She will be at Proctor's West Front street Theatre only during the last half of this week, her engagement ending Saturday night and lovers of violin music should not fail to hear her.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

May Robson is to give local amusement seekers their first glimpse of "Martha By-the-Way," one of the most enjoyable comedies that has been given to the stage in a long time, at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, matinee and night. The name of Miss Robson's comedy is similar to the title of the book from which it was made. Published for the first time, about two years ago, the story is now selling in its fourteenth edition, and among readers who delight in wholesome comedy and sentiment, the fogue continues big. Julie M. Lippmann, who wrote the "Martha" stories, is also responsible for the stage version, and the delicious atmosphere of the book is retained in the comedy which fairly scintillates with quaint humor and homely sentiment. Martha Slawson, the central figure, brings a new type to the footlights. She is voluble of speech, ever meddling with the affairs of others; plain spoken and impulsive, but withal generous and tender hearted and intensely human. At the beginning of the play she is revealed as a scrubwoman. To gain for her little family and for her charities, the dollars required to advance them, Martha goes out by the day to do charwork. However, fortune quickly smiles upon her and she takes up her abode in a wealthy home. In the scenes where Martha mingles with the world of fashion, Miss Robson is superb, taking advantage of one of the best opportunities of her career to display her wonderful understanding of comedy values. Unrivaled in the impersonation of ecentric comedy types, she is ideal for this role, as her native sense of humor and her magnificent power of transition from comedy to pathos fit the character perfectly. To her impersonations she always brings a comprehension of the inner humor and the pictorial possibilities of phrase or line, and an ease and fluency of quiet delivery that are in the better spirit of polished experience and original comedy. In "Martha By-the-Way" humor and pathos are skillfully blended, and Miss Lippmann has been successful in having selected from her stories the most telling incidents, infectious comedy and homely sentiment for her play. The comedienne is surrounded with an excellent company of players each of whom brings to the performance a characterization worthy of attention. From a scenic standpoint everything has been done to make the production of high standard.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Mrs. Leslie Carter, in her earliest success, "The Heart of Maryland," which ends its Plainfield engagement at the Astor Theatre tonight, gave to the program yesterday and today a degree of artistry not always obtainable. Pictorially, the film is of exceptional quality, with a wealth of splendid locations. "The Heart of Maryland" also possesses enough thrills and heart-throbs to satisfy the most exacting "movie" fan. Possessed of all the qualities that contribute to a great screen triumph, including scenic splendor, realistic backgrounds and the most intense type of silent drama, the production appeals alike to those who love the artistic, the dramatic and the natural in a play. Mrs. Carter gives to the role of "Maryland," which by the way was her stepping-stone to fame, adequate realism. Miss Bessie Barriscale and Enid Markey, in the celebrated Mutual masterpiece, "The Cup of Life," will be the dramatic feature at the Astor Theatre, Friday. They have the advantage of an excellent supporting company. A clearly defined under-plot and numerous carefully thought-out situations give the story cogent proof of its kinship to fact and its power to beguile the sympathetic of their tears. Its appeal is almost wholly emotional and its story a vivid revelation of the depths of a woman's love and suffering. The story concerns two sisters, one of whom chooses the primrose path and meets a tragic end, while the other becomes a happy wife and mother. A notable new feature will be presented Saturday in "The Victim," by Paul West, whose growing reputation as a photo-dramatist has to some extent obscured his by no means insignificant fame as a humorist. In the cast the volatile Mae Marsh is particularly featured. She is ably supported by Robert Harron and Eugene Pallette. The latter figures in the big scene of the picture where two burglars, locked securely in a safe, have a desperate hand-to-hand conflict as thrilling as it is decisive. From the actors the story exacts unmeasured expenditure of emotional effort. After rehearsing for two days for this picture Miss Marsh was compelled to take to her bed for a week to recover from the strain on her nerves. Charlie Chaplin will frollick through two merry reels in one of his latest comedies Saturday. Monday and Tuesday "Graustark," one of the dramatic treats of the season, will be shown. Manager Hall announces the booking of "The Goddess," "Diamond From the Sky," and other big features, which will be shown for the first and only time at the Astor Theatre.

THE HUMBLE POSTAGE STAMP.

The civilized world today pays homage to the postage stamp, the little friend of humanity, on its 75th birthday. Not since the days of the discovery of printing had there come to human beings such a boon as was launched in England on May 6, 1840, when the first postage stamps were used. That date in history marked the beginning of popular communication, placing within the reach of the poorest the means of writing to nearby and distant relatives and friends. It put the people of the world into closer touch and encouraged the art of writing as no other agency had done. But, greatest of all, it spread civilization.

Millions of people who today open their mail scarcely glance at the little stamp that adorns the wrapper. It but represents to them the cost of transporting and handling by the government. Few indeed realize that the postage stamp is a modern contrivance, and that its great aid to modern life has played a remarkable part in the world's development during the past three-quartres of a century.

It was in 1840 that Rowland Hill, an English school-master, stirred all Europe to laughter by declaring that James Chalmers and himself had devised a system whereby a two-sheet letter could be sent from London to Edinburgh for two cents and yet leave the Government a fair profit on the transaction. At that time the fee was 54 cents for that distance. The poor laughed with the others at the idea of any means that would place them on a par with the aristocracy.

Hill persisted and when the time was ripe he flashed the system on Parliament and offered proof that the actual cost for carrying each letter averaged only a small fraction of a cent.

The idea sprung by Hill and his friend James Chalmers gained friends, after the first roars of laughter had died away. On May 6, 1840, postage stamps, or "stamped labels" as they were called at the time, were inaugurated. On the first stamps was a profile picture of the young Queen Victoria. The effect on the postoffice was instantaneous. Within two years, and they were panic years at that, the business of the postoffice nearly trebled.

There had been a postage system in vogue at different places as far back as the third century. It was always bad, always expensive, and always limited to the wealthy. No envelopes were used up to the early part of the nineteenth century. A letter was simply folded and sealed with wax, then addressed on the back of the final sheet. By the early system, payment was secured from the receivers of these communications, and this in itself had many sources of difficulty and annoyance.

The postage stamp came into use in the United States in 1847, seven years after Great Britain had adopted it. Five and ten cent stamps were the first American postage stamps, and they carried the heads of Franklin and Washington. Four years later the letter rate was lowered to three cents and in 1883 to two cents. Before the postage stamp was adopted, the postal charges were more moderate in the United States than in England. Our rates were six cents for thirty miles or less; 12½ cents up to 150 miles; 18¾ cents up to 400 miles, and 25 cents for every distance over that.

Hill, the discoverer of postage stamps, was knighted and received a gift of $45,000 raised by public subscription. In this modern age such a reward would be picayune.

Anti-Vivisectionists are much disturbed over the new law which was passed at the session of the Legislature just adjourned, and which they say is defective, like so much other legislation from the same session. It is pointed out that the act which was passed to make it possible for the Rockefeller Institute to carry on its work in New Jersey has a loophole which will permit all sorts of things to go on in the name of vivisection. The act permits "agricultural stations and schools maintained by the State or Federal government, medical societies, universities, colleges and philanthropic institutions" to practise vivisection in the state, so long as they are licensed by the State Board of Health. Once that license is procured there is no provision for supervision by the State Board, and the anti-vivisectionists claim that they each become a law unto themselves and may work as secretly and cruelly as they choose. It is claimed that no other state organizations are given such power, and there is already a movement on foot for the amendment of the law next year, to make it more practical.

Not having taken advantage of all that could be done during the severe cold weather in December, the ice men now come forward with the information that because of the mild winter just passed, they are compelled to raise the price of the commodity ten cents a hundred pounds. 'Twas ever thus!

There are mighty few communities who can boast of a fire chief who has passed his seventy-first year, as has Chief Doane, and who remains such a live youngster. Here's hoping that he will live to see many more years of active service, and Plainfield a city of 100,000.

As an official on the job and available to citizens every day in the week Mayor Calkins takes the first rank. He seems to seek more work to do, instead of trying to dodge it, as is so often the case with officials who receive small salaries.

ALREADY FOR BIG CIRCUS

following High School students: Daniel McNamee, Edward Crone, Monroe O'Donnell, Roddy, Alfred Seal and John Cose., Jr. Others who will clown will be Benjamin Berse, Philip Phillips, John T. Caulfield and others.

For the matinee all but one of the twenty-four boxes had been sold this morning, but there are still a number of desirable ones left for the evening performance. The show lot is located at the corner of Grant avenue and Front street, having been donated for the purpose by the owner, John E. Dunn. The performances will be given, rain or shine, in a waterproof canvas tent. Reserved seats and general admission tickets, as well as what boxes may be left will be on sale at the Daily Press office for the matinee until noon tomorrow, and for the evening performance until 6 o'clock, after which they will be found at the ticket wagon on the show grounds.

The parade will leave the show lot about 10:30 in the morning, and will go through Grant avenue to Fourth street, down that thoroughfare to Park avenue, to Front street and back to the show grounds.

So that none of the children may be disappointed, the Board of Education has ordered the closing of all of the schools after the morning session tomorrow.

The New York Telephone Company, in order to add to the convenience of the general public attending the circus, will install a special pay station on the lot tomorrow, the number being 2195. It will be available for use until the show is over at night.

MAYOR PRESENTS OPINION

in disposing of the case of the City of Plainfield against the Public Service Corporation decided that the intent of paragraph 'd' of the utilities act which provides: 'That no public utility shall make or give, directly or indirectly any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person or corporation or to any locality or to any particular description of traffic to any prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever,' did not intend that any contracts or agreements made by the Public Service Corporation or its predecessors should be null and void, but rather that they should continue in full force and be performed by the company, and that the paragraph referred to has to do only with the sale of the service of the P. S. C. and has nothing whatsoever to do with any agreements made by it, or its predecessors in consideration of franchise grants.

"After the Utilities Commission had decided that the Public Service Corporation must perform that part of its contract with the inhabitants of the city which calls for the free lighting of public buildings, the case was appealed and the Supreme Court recently decided that it was unlawful for the Public Service Company to furnish light to our public buildings in accordance with its contract because to do so would be a violation of the Public Utilities act.

"The Common Council has directed Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed to take the case to the Court of Errors, and this, the highest tribunal of the State, will in the very near future be called upon to determine the matter.

"In 1898, in consideration of the right to use the streets of the City of Plainfield, the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, the predecessor of the Public Service Corporation, agreed to furnish free lighting service to all city buildings. An ordinance was adopted at the time stipulating the streets to be used and the location of poles and wires.

"A contract entered into by the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company with the Common Council, previous to the passage of the ordinance referred to, reads as follows:

"'In consideration of the passage and approval of the said ordinance, and of the sum of one dollar paid by the said Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield to the said Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the said Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company hereby covenants and agrees to and with the said Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield that said company, its successors or assigns will at all times hereafter, while said Company, its successors or assigns, shall continue to use any of the streets of the said City, or any of the subways aforesaid, light by electricity, free of charge, the Common Council chamber, offices of the Mayor, Collector, Street Commissioner, City Clerk, the City Jail, Station House, Almshouse, Fire houses, as at present lighted, or new in proportion, and all other offices, rooms or buildings, owned or occupied by the City officers, or that may hereafter be owned or occupied for city purposes, including City Hall, if the same be built or rented.'

"Corporation Counsel Reed contends that if the Legislature intended to do what the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Utilities act implies, and if this interpretation is sustained by the Court of Errors and Appeals, a generous gift has been awarded the Public Service Corporation, in the form of a release from contractual obligations entered into with various municipalities throughout the State, and henceforth it will be impossible for any municipality to compel the Public Service Corporation to repair streets or sections of streets or to do anything else that may have been a part of the agreement made by it, or its predecessors, in consideration of franchise grants, and any municipality that may have made agreements with the P. S. C. or its predecessors for any particular branch of free service granted, would have been better off if in the first instance it had demanded a stipulated amount in payment for such grants. If this had been done the community would not be compelled to suffer a loss because it would have been compensated for the use of its streets and highways, while now the communities are to be deprived of that which they had every reason to believe was rightfully theirs, and this deprivation is to be brought about through the passage of a law which everybody supposed was for the sole purpose of preventing discrimination on the part of utilities companies in selling their service to individuals, corporations and communities.

"The adjudication of this case promises to arouse as widespread interest as did the recent decision in the ninety-cent gas rate case. It is a matter of vital importance to every community and deserves the thoughtful consideration of all officials."

LEFT FOR WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Robertson, of 1100 Evergreen avenue, left this week for a two months' trip to California, including the Panama Exposition. On the way out they will visit many places of interest in the west.

—RECRUITS TO THE RANKS of classified advertisers are coming all the time. And they are winning "the victories of peace" every day.

NEW ROAD RULES

vehicle following a street car when passing such street car while it is stopped to take on or let off passengers shall only pass said street car on the right and shall keep at least eight feet from the right hand running board or low step of said car, and shall give an audible indication of approach to said car and shall exercise due precaution not to interfere with or injure passengers getting on or off the car."

At the present time in Plainfield there is no ordinance governing the relation between drivers of licensed vehicles and trolley cars and this regulation will be an entirely new one locally. In Newark and Elizabeth similar regulations have been in force for a number of years and local ordinances have become familiar with them. Heretofore the automobilist in this city has been allowed to use his own discretion in passing standing trolley cars and considerable trouble has resulted.

The statute goes on to provide that if the street through which the trolley passes is too narrow to allow both the car and automobile to pass, the latter vehicle must be brought to a stop until the trolley is again in motion.

The law continues as follows:

"A vehicle proceeding in the same direction as a street car operated on tracks in the center of any public road, etc., when passing a moving street car shall pass such car on its right, provided, however, when through narrowness of road or street or through a congestion of traffic standing at the curb or side of such road or street, it is impossible or unsafe to pass such car as above, then by exercise of exceptional caution the vehicle may pass on the left of the street car." This section effectively disposes of the disputed question on which the courts have ruled both ways.

No vehicles shall stand within ten feet of a fire hydrant. Police signals are made uniform all over the State, as are the extending of the hand at before turning and raising the hand when stopping.

The question of the right of way at intersections of roads is determined by a rule applying both in cities and on country roads that the vehicle approaching from the right shall have the right of way. This is the old rule of the sea and is the traffic regulation in force in most of the European countries. Fast moving vehicles are given the right of way over slow moving vehicles.

Speed of trolleys is fixed at thirty miles per hour in the open country and fifteen miles per hour in the city. The street car conductor is compelled, in case of accident, to stop and go back and render all possible assistance.

One provision of interest is that should a parade take longer than fifteen minutes to pass a given point it shall be interrupted for the passing of street cars. Physicians are given the right of way through any parade, as are police and fire and United States mail vehicles.

Bicycles and horse-drawn vehicles are limited in cities to a speed of eight miles per hour, and racing of any kind is prohibited, unless street or road has been closed by the authorities to other traffic and permission of authorities obtained.

The rights of pedestrians are defined in the road for the first time in New Jersey either by statute or ordinances. The law provides:

"Pedestrians shall have the right of way over vehicles at any street crossing.

"Any person crossing a street at any place other than the crosswalk shall do it at his own risk. Nothing in this regulation, however, shall relieve the drivers of vehicles from being constantly vigilant, exercising all reasonable care to avoid injuring either person or property." A crossing is defined in the act as the most direct route from curb to curb at the intersection of streets and are only indicated crossings. It is suggested that on streets paved with a smooth surface that crossings be indicated by painting.

Power is given to the police and motor vehicle department to enforce the act, and the inspectors of the motor vehicle department are given the same powers as police officers. The procedure is similar to the procedure in the motor vehicle law. Penalty for violation is fine not to exceed $25, or on failure to pay, imprisonment for a period not to exceed ten days. Second offense penalty doubled.

REV. LEWIS BOND GIVES AN INTERESTING LECTURE

Rev. Lewis Bond, of this city, gave an interesting illustrated lecture at the mid-week service of Trinity church, last night, his subject being, "Thessalonica, Ancient and Modern." About fifty views were thrown on the screen and the speaker explained them in an interesting way. He showed views of many of the ancient buildings and then the modern city as it is now. Mr. Bond is thoroughly acquainted with this country, having been a missionary there for more than twenty years.

He dwelt on the industrial school which is just outside of Thessalonica and is a comparatively new institution. The building was erected by the men and boys of that place and is doing wonderful work. Dr. J. Ackerman Cole, of Scotch Plains, is greatly interested in this school and has already given hundreds of dollars for its support. He recently gave a donation for the erection of a pumping apparatus and Mr. Bond showed pictures of the pump in action.

He also showed slides of the inhabitants and their habits and methods of work and living. The machine that was used to show the views was from the Italian Mission in New York city and was operated by a member of the mission. The lecture lasted about one hour and was enjoyed by all present.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD

LOCAL CLERGYMAN IN HOT PENSION DEBATE

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson is Also Appointed to Two Committees.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace Episcopal church, was named as one of the trustees of the Cathedral Foundation at 143rd convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey, which convened in Trinity church, Elizabeth, yesterday. He was also elected to the missionary appropriations committee.

After debating the entire morning on the merit of the clergy pension fund system as adopted by the general convention of 1913, and recommended by Bishop Matthews in his Episcopal address, the convention was adjourned. The clergy vote was fifty-three in favor and five against, and thirty laymen voted "aye" and nine in the negative.

The system provides for the systematic collection of funds from each parish, which is expected to contribute 1 per cent. of the rector's annual salary. If the parish refuses to pay this amount, the clergyman can, the system provides. In the distribution of pensions to retired clergy, the system provides that the pensioners shall receive 50 per cent. of the average of their annual salaries from the time of their first assignment to a church until their retirement. The minimum pension is placed at $600 per annum.

The pension system, after several years of research and investigation by a committee, was adopted by the general convention in 1913, and an organized effort is being made to have dioceses in all parts of the country adopt it. Bishop Lawrence, of Chicago, is president of the fund, and John Pierpont Morgan is treasurer. Monet Sayre, an insprance expert, of Boston and New York, explained the sound scientific principles of the new pension system.

The chief active opponent of the system proved to be Dean Charles M. Perkins, of Vineland, who throughout the convention made himself prominent by reminding Bishop Matthews of the few petty mistakes he has made in conducting the order of business. The convention is Bishop Matthews' first one in New Jersey, and he has not become accustomed to the constitution and canons.

In opposing the pension system, Dean Perkins attacked Mr. Sayre and asserted that the did not present facts gained by experience, but was merely reciting theory. He called the pension scheme one of "charity," and declared that Episcopal clergymen should not think of accepting charity from any source.

The dean's views were not shared with any other delegate, and he was made the butt of sarcastic criticism by Mr. Sayre, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson and others. Mr. Stevenson referred to Dean Perkins as "our dear mistaken dean," during his remarks. He declared that clergymen should be able to place themselves on a plane of independence as a matter of inherent right, not charity, and so that clergymen's work would be lent dignity and demand respect in old age.

DR. HUBBELL ELECTED.

At the quarterly meeting of the New York Commandery, of the Loyal Legion, held at Delmonico's, New York, last night, Rev. Dr. Hubbell, formerly of this city, was re-elected chaplain on an independent ticket, an opposing candidate being named on the regular ticket. Dr. Hubbell has been chaplain of the commandery for several years.

SAFFORD CONVICTED; ARRESTS TO FOLLOW

Attorney Wood and Benjamin Slade Come to Blows After Verdict.

The question of whether Assistant U. S. Attorney Wood struck Benjamin Slade, attorney for Franklin D. Safford, hotel clerk, convicted of perjury, or whether Slade struck Wood during an encounter in a Federal building corridor following the verdict, will be threshed out today before Judge Hough.

It took a jury eleven hours to return a verdict declaring Safford guilty of perjury in identifying James W. Osborne, former assistant district attorney, as the "O.Osborne" who registered with Rae Tanzer at the Hotel Kensington on October 18 last.

It was learned that all of the ballots except the final one stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

Court adjourned about 10:40 p. m. Attorneys and members of the discharged jury were leaving the courtroom when Mr. Wood was seen to speak to Joseph Cassel, who had been juror 3.

"What right have you to speak to a juror!" shouted Benjamin Slade.

The remark attracted every one in the corridor and fists were raised, and one or more blows struck. But accounts differed as to who struck the first blow. After court attendants had separated Wood and Slade the latter appealed to Judge Hough, who was then leaving his chambers. The judge told the attorney to bring his witnesses to court today. Slade claimed Mr. Wood had struck him "right in the eye in court."

A moment or two later Henry K. Kendregon, who had been foreman of the jury, approached Cassel as the latter stood waiting for an elevator.

"Don't come any nearer me, or I'll smash you," Cassel is reported to have said. Court attendants again rushed on the scene, separated the men and preserved order until all had left the building.

ANCIENT MEDICAL SKILL.

Peru Had Clever Physicians and Surgeons Ages Ago.

Both cocaine and quinine were first discovered and used by the prehistoric inhabitants of Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia. A cup made from the wood of the tree yielding quinine was filled with water and allowed to stand overnight. In the morning the liquid had become saturated with the medicinal properties possessed by the wood and its bitter contents were drunk. The quassia cups sold in drug stores in this country during the past century were the early method used to administer quinine.

The leaf from the tree giving cocaine is chewed today by the Indians living in the mountainous districts of Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia. It acts as a heart stimulant in those high altitudes and deadens the pangs of hunger so frequently felt by the half starved natives.

The Chumus, who lived in Peru, according to some authorities, 2500 years before Christ and whose dominions extended into Bolivia, Ecuador and parts of Brazil and Colombia, had a pharmacopoeia of their own. Most of the articles used by them as medicines aeons ago are used by the physician of today. Their surgeons were highly skilled too. I have seen skulls dug up in their old cemeteries that showed their owners during life had been injured many times in battle by blunt instruments, presumably clubs, and their lives had been saved by trephining. I recall one skull with four silver plates, several with three, very many with two and hundreds with one. —Leslie's Weekly.

AVOID CONTAGION.

Get the Health History of a House Before You Move Into It.

To those intending to buy or move into a house that has been occupied the following advice is offered by the Women's Home Companion:

"Guard your family from contagious disease germs in the new house. It has been proved that thousands of tuberculosis and scarlet fever cases annually are the result of moving into houses which have not been disinfected.

"Secure the 'health history' of the house you expect to buy or rent. It will be supplied by your board of health, your health officer or any physician who practices in your town. If it has housed a tuberculosis patient don't take that house; find another.

"No matter what the 'health history' of the house, have the plumbing examined, the drains flushed and the entire house disinfected.

"If the walls are to be repapered have the old paper removed.

"Do not move into any house where the cellar has been flooded and is moldy.

"In towns where there is neither city water nor sewerage system make sure that the well and the cesspool are widely separated."

It Made a Change.

"Do you find the air of this neighborhood salubrious?" asked the new arrival.

"Not any more," replied the oldest inhabitant. "There has been a big improvement since they moved the glue factory to the other side of the county."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

LEALS WALLOPED BY RED AND BLUE TEAM

Private School Pitching Star No Terror to High School Swatters.

A fusilade of hits, tallies in nearly every inning, and misplays galore marked the defeat of Leal's School ball tossers yesterday, at Crescent Oval by Plainfield High School. This game was Plainfield's first Interscholastic League match and she made it a hummer, getting twelve runs to Leal's two.

Denny, the Plainfield High School's star pitcher, was at his very best yesterday. The first man up walked, but he was the only man to get a free trip. His wicked curves were working in fine shape, making eight men fan the atmosphere, and allowing but eight safe bingles. In the seventh inning he showed what he could do and tightened up. Only three men came to plate and only three balls were pitched. In the last inning he struck the three men out.

Vorhees, the strike-out king of Leal's, could not seem to get his spitter working, for when the ball came over Plainfield's batters frequently lost it in the outfield. However he did succeed in striking out nine men, but also allowed sixteen hits.

Dunham started the game for the home team when he landed on the first good ball and knocked it for one base, reaching third on a couple of errors. He scored on Mills' hit, and Mills and Rosenson tallied on one of Peacock's four timely bingles. This same performance happened almost every time this trio went to bat.

The Leal's team started the game as though they were going to give their opponents a hard rub. Parmley drew a pass, was sacrificed to second and came in on Stewart's single. This ended their scoring, however, until the sixth frame, when "Peanut" Stewart got a safety and was knocked in home by a good hit of Sharpe's. The work of their captain, Stewart, was the only thing that kept the Leal's team from an overwhelming defeat. He fought hard all during the game. He handled nine hard chances cleanly and wielded the big stick for three safe hits.

The result of this game has given Plainfield High School the odds over North Plainfield for the game next Saturday. Last week Leal's held N. P. H. S. to four runs, which were scored only in the last two innings.

The score:

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

JENNINGS BATTING LOW.

Out of seventeen trips to the plate this season, Harry Jennings, the Rutgers College star twirler, who pitched several games in this city last year, has only secured one hit and has an average of .058. Twing, of Elizabeth, leads the team with a mark of .441.

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this season.

Harold P. Meade, N. P. H. S., '15.

Harold P. Meade, who comes from the state of Pennsylvania, will be practically the only new face in the interscholastic series this year. While he has not had the experience of all of his teammates and rivals Meade has in a few games developed wonderfully as a first baseman.

This time one year ago Meade was a "rookie" with the Cheltenham, Pa., High School team and was a substitute first baseman. He played in three games during the season and also played off and on during the summer months. When he came to the borough school the filling of first base was the most talked of question in baseball lines. When sounded on the subject he stated that he had played that position and decided to try for the team. He is still on first and an accident is the only thing that will take him off now. He has a good throw and although he hasn't proved himself a "Ty Cobb" with the bat yet he is improving every game.

Meade weighs 165 pounds and has just passed 17 years. He is right handed.

Aaron J. H. Hirsh, P. H. S., '15.

Aaron Joseph Herman Hirsh is a new first baseman this year, although he warmed the bench last season waiting for "Bill" Victorsen's exit from the initial sack. While a sub Hirsh developed a fine wing and is now holding down that position as well as the most of his predecessors.

Like several of his teammates, Hirsh learned the first steps of the game playing with the Y. M. H. A. team and was also a member of the Plainfield A. C., a Sunday ball team, several years ago. He is 18 years old, weighs 146 and is right handed. He will graduate in June and will further his education in Dickinson College.

COFFEY GETS RIGHT TO MEET WILLARD

Knocks Out "Al" Reich in the Third Round With Ease.

Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant, knocked out Al Reich last night in the third round of a scheduled ten-round affair in Madsion Square Garden, in New York. The trick, which is generally regarded as giving Coffey the right to meet Jess Willard the first time the champion agrees to defend his title, was turned before the biggest crowd that has seen a fight in New York since the Horton law was repealed a dozen years ago.

The first two rounds of the setto were all in Coffey's favor his aggressiveness keeping Reich on the defensive most of the time. In the third session he kept forcing matters and Reich had to break ground. As he did so Coffey got in a left hook to the jaw, and as Reich went down a hard left to the stomach made the victory certain.

Both fighters appeared nervous before the bout started. Coffey forced the pace in the first round, landing half a dozen jabs before Reich sent in a blow.

Reich opened the second round with a rush, and after some sparring, crossed a right to the chin, staggering Coffey. Coffey managed to keep Reich away with left jabs for a while, but Reich broke through with another blow on the chin that sent Coffey to the ropes. Coffey came back with a rush, landing a straight left that knocked Reich down, the bell stopping the count at four. Reich assumed the defensive in the third, but was soon battered down.

The men were about equally matched in weight, Reich tipping the scales at 203 pounds and Coffey at 200 pounds. Coffey was the favorite in the betting but Reich was known to be a terrific hitter and it was figured that he had a chance to get over a knockout wallop. In action, however, it turned out that Coffey never gave his opponent a chance to get set for a hard punch. The Dublin giant kept tearing in and, eventually, put over the punches that brought him a victory.

INTERNATIONALS ROUTED BY INVASION OF FEDERALS

Hartford, Conn., May 6.—It is not at all unlikely that this city will soon be represented on the International League circuit, taking the place of Newark, N. J., which is reported to be about ready to quit because of poor patronage. Since the recent disruption of the Eastern Association, baseball promoters have been considering this city and also Springfield. It is said that President Barrow, of the International League, has made some inquiries regarding the outlook here.

The Federal League opposition in Newark is said to be having the same effect there that the advent of the Gilmoreites in Baltimore had in 1914. The Newark International Leaguers have attracted few, and when a double-header last Sunday did not draw anything like the crowd that was looked for, the International Leaguers were about ready to quit.

BIG LINEUP FOR MEET TO BE HELD HERE MAY 31

The athletic meet which will be held on Parker Field on Decoration Day, under the auspices of the Union County Athletic League, will undoubtedly bring together the greatest number of scholastic athletes that have ever appeared for one such event in this section. In opening the meet to all schools of this section of the State, the Plainfield High School authorities struck the right spot and already ten schools have agreed to send representatives. They are Westfield, Cranford, Rahway, Roselle Park, Roselle, Battin, Woodbridge, Summit and Bloomfield.

Several other schools, including Bound Brook, Somerville, New Brunswick and Montclair are still to answer the invitation and it is likely that all will be represented. There are a number of events and medals for first, second and third in each event, with a placque to the school scoring the greatest number of points, have attracted the athletes.

WOODBRIDGE CANCELLS; KEARNEY MAY BE BOOKED

Manager Van Camp received word from the manager of the Woodbridge baseball team, this morning, canceling the game at Hyde Oval for Monday, on account of financial stringency in the Woodbridge Athletic Association.

TWO-MAN TOURNEY FOR ELK BOWLERS

First Matches Will Be Rolled Next Tuesday Night for Several Prizes.

At a meeting in the Elks Club, last night, the new bowling committee for the year was appointed and organized with John H. Cose as chairman and V. W. Nash, Sr., as treasurer. It was decided to conduct a two-man tournament during the summer, the opening match to be played on the club lanes next Tuesday night. Matches will continue on following nights until June 15.

Cut glass donated by Chauncey Stout, captain of the Elks' junior team, will be awarded as first team prize; merchandise valued at $8 will go as second team prize, and merchandise valued at $3 will be given as third team prize. The winner of the highest individual mark among the captains of the teams will receive a pair of bowling slippers and the highest among the players will get a Waterman fountain pen.

An innovation will be introduced this year in the selection of players for the Elks' junior and senior league team representatives. Beginning September 11, the club will conduct an individual tournament, the men finishing highest being named as the team players for the senior and junior teams.

SAYS ENGLISHMEN ARE OPTIMISTIC

Thomas Hanna, Back From British Isles, Tells How People Feel About War.

Returning to Plainfield after more than a year's absence in the British Isles, Thomas Hanna, a well known former local resident, is today holding informal receptions with friends welcoming him back. He arrived in New York last Friday on the White Star liner Majestic, which has since been requisitioned by the English government and left yesterday for Halifax to transport Canadian troops. Mr. Hanna will remain in Plainfield only long enough to let all his acquaintances see how well he is looking, after which he will leave for the West.

Naturally enough, the majority of questions asked Mr. Hanna about his trip are those relating to the war in Europe, and being an excellent recounter he has many interesting stories. He declared emphatically that England has not the slightest doubt but that she will win the terrible struggle. The feeling of confidence prevades the entire British domain, and, of course, is shared by the allied nations. In the big cities of London, Manchester, Liverpool, Belfast and Glasgow, all of which he has visited since hostilities began, the people are conducting business much the same as under normal conditions. Were it not for the sight of newly recruited soldiers and the display of flags, he said, strangers would be in ignorance of the fact that the country was engaged in the greatest war the world has ever known.

"'England can't lose,' is what every British subject says when asked for his idea of the outcome," said Mr. Hanna, "and they go about their business and work perfectly satisfied to let K. of K., as they love to call Kitchener, direct the manouvres of the forces in the field."

Speaking of his trip over Mr. Hanna declared that it was uneventful, although many of the cosmopolitan quota of passengers were uneasy until the ship got out of the submarine zone. All big steamers are convoyed from Liverpool to the open sea by British cruisers and the only point of danger from German submarine attack is at the point where pilots are taken on or put off. Almost everybody hung over the rails of the Majestic expecting to see a periscope or the cumbersome bulk of an undersea boat rise up from the water, but nothing of the kind occurred. All the way over only two or three vessels were sighted, none of them being man-of-war men. Practically all of the crafts that have been torpedoed since the German embargo was declared, the former Plainfielder continued, are trawlers, colliers and vessels of very small tonnage.

Mr Hanna resided in Plainfield for many years and was employed at various times by the Campbell Press Works, the Courier News and the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and has a host of friends who are glad to welcome him back. He was related to the late Charles Dodd, warden of the Union county jail, who died suddenly several weeks ago and was in Ireland when apprised of his death.

PLAINFIELD MAN INDICTED ON GRAND LARCENY CHARGE

George E. Mount, who claims residence in Plainfield, and who said that he was an electrical engineer, was indicted yesterday on a charge of grand larceny, it being alleged he obtained through fraud $700 worth of leather belting from the Page Belting Company, of 94 Warren street, New York.

Attorney for the company alleged Mount got a $42 commission for a "sale" to a fake firm.

INSPIRING AN ACTRESS TO ACT BY GIVING HER A PERFUME "JAG"

SPRAYING AN ACTRESS WITH PERFUME

THESE ARE THE GIRLS WHO GET "JAGGED" ON PERFUME

HOW THE PERFUME "JAG" AFFECTS THE GIRLS

BESS RYAN
THE FAMOUS "TOODLES" WHO PLAYS FASHION

Wonderful Results of Olfactory Experiment on Players Portraying Primeval Passions In "Experience."

THE latest way to make an actress really act?

Give her a perfume "jag."

"Ah," you will say, "most of them use some fancy perfume, whether they are in a theater or not!"

But that's not the point. In order to get the proper acting results one must pick the proper perfume to be sprayed upon the actress according to the role she portrays. If she is cast for the role of Passion then the perfume must be something that will make her fairly tingle, make every nerve quiver, just before she goes upon the stage. If she is cast for the role of Love it must be the sweetest of perfumes, the fairest and most delicate of subtle odors. For Hate, for Deceit, for Slander, for any of the other primeval passions common to mankind, first pick your perfume, and if you pick the right one your actress will behave like a "doped" race horse at a half mile track.

This has just been proved in a series of remarkable experiments at the Maxine Elliott Theater, New York, where the wonderful play "Experience" utilizes the services of many beautiful women who portray the elemental passions and attributes of the human race.

In watching the performance carefully Morris Gest of the firm of Comstock & Gest, and William Elliott, managers of the "Experience" company, noticed that some of the young ladies went through their roles in a lackadaisical manner. When he went back stage to find out the reason he was shocked and amazed at the conflicting odors of perfumes that greeted him as he talked to the principals. Each of the girls seemed to use a different kind of perfume, but they did not harmonize. There seemed to be something wrong. The mingling of these many odors was depressing, and no doubt that explained why the players seemed to give such a poor performance that night.

Then Mr. Gest called in for consultation the eminent chemist and recognized authority on perfumes, Professor Gilbert Roodhouse, formerly of Lafayette university, who not only knows everything about modern perfumes, but those of the ancient Greeks and Romans, to say nothing of Cleopatra's favorite cosmetic and the particular aroma most liked by the queen of Sheba.

"The influence of perfumes upon the nervous system has been recognized by scientists for hundreds of years," declared Professor Roodhouse. "Even such a great authority as Lombroso, the eminent criminologist, has declared that the mere odor of patchouli awakens uncontrollable evil desires, while others of the cardinal elements from which all modern perfumes are made have varying effects upon the senses."

As a result of this consultation a series of experiments was inaugurated. They have proved so successful that a new era in the art of acting has undoubtedly been inaugurated. Henceforth all an actress has to do to get in spirit with her acting role is to pick the proper perfume, have it sprayed on her for five minutes before going upon the stage, and when she does make her appearance every nerve and fiber of her body will thrill in accordance with the role she plays.

In each dressing room of the Maxine Elliott Theater, where these girls dress, is a large metallic tank attached to a fine sprayer which works with pump attachment. The tank is filled with the cardinal ingredients of the perfumes which have been selected as most suited to the role portrayed. These selections have been made by Professor Roodhouse, and it is notable that none of the modern perfumes is included.

"The modern perfumes are the same as the ancient," said the professor, "except for modern names. But if you will study the history of perfumes I dare say you will find that many a society woman uses today under another name that which was the favorite of the late Queen Cleopatra."

Maids employed by the theater spray the actresses with perfume to give them a perfume "jag" just before they go on the stage. At first the girls didn't like changing their favorite perfumes, but now they all love the new ones.

Here are the remarkable ancient perfumes, modernized and compounded by Professor Roodhouse and inserted in the tanks in the nine dressing rooms at the Maxine Elliott Theater. Some of the ingredients were difficult to procure. It took nearly a month to get enough white violets from South America to make up the perfume for love, and owing to the war there is little ambergris on the market. But these are the perfumes sprayed for each performance upon these young ladies to inspire them with a perfume "jag" and make them play their rolls well.

INTOXICATION (Eleanor Christie).—A solution of one part ambergris to twelve parts alcohol, dissolved and permitted to stand for two weeks. Ambergris is an oil or fat, can only be dissolved in alcohol, is from a whale, emits a strong and intoxicating odor, and Miss Christie says the effect of three minutes' spraying is as though she has drunk five quarts of champagne, yet she still retains full control of all her senses. It exhilarates, makes one walk on air, yet does not intoxicate.

DECEIT (Dorothy Parker).—A solution in which the chief ingredient is patchouli. This is a leaf which was much used by the ancients and is the basic ingredient of many of the scented baths of the Romans and the Greeks. It comes from oriental countries, has a peculiar musty and mossy odor and, as Lombroso says, "inspires wicked thoughts." Deceit says she found it difficult to play such a disagreeable role as she portrays until she began to sniff the patchouli every night.

FRIVOLITY (Marion Whitney).—Essence of citronella, made from the citron plant from Ceylon and India. Can also be extracted from the citron fruit. A delicate and peculiar odor which inspires light headed and a mild form of semi-intoxication.

BEAUTY (Madeline Howard).—For Miss Howard has been prescribed what is reliably stated to have been the favorite perfume of the Queen of Sheba. It is an ancient oil, obtained from the Canary trees of the Moluccas, and the word in Tagal dialect is "Flower of Flowers." The native term is Ylang-Ylang oil, and it is carefully preserved. A very small quantity is imported to New York each year from China. Miss Howard describes its effects as "lifting her above the rest of the world and making her feel that she doesn't care if school keeps or not."

PASSION (Florence Short). — This was the most difficult to select, for the reason that the first choice seemed patchouli, but as that inspired criminal passions also, instead of merely love passion, the final decision rested upon the perfume which history credits Cleopatra with using when trying to lure Mark Antony. This is a combination of frankincense and oil of myrrh. The first is a dried leaf which is burned, leaving a peculiar odor, and then the essence of myrrh is sprayed. The combination is absolutely irresistible. Miss Short says she has to drink two glasses of ice water in order to counteract the effects every night when she is through with her scene where she tempts Youth.

SLANDER (Frances Richards).—Essence of lemon. Didn't know you could make a perfume out of a lemon, eh? But the ancient Greeks mastered the trick. Essence of lemon is very old and seldom used, but is very strong in its effects upon the olfactory nerves. By some peculiar effect, it inspires bitterness. Miss Richards says it positively makes her hate every one when she is on the stage.

FASHION (Bess Ryan).—The most fashionable perfume in ancient times among the Romans was heliotropin, made from oil of camphor and mixed with vanillin, which is a production of oil of cloves. The blending of these two makes an exquisite odor, which was much liked by the smart set of Nero's time. Miss Ryan says she finds it an aristocratic and very acceptable perfume, the instinctive feeling after being sprayed with it being that one is in one's own drawing room on Fifth avenue with a butler bowing before you and a languid feeling that he is saying "The motorcar is at the door, madam."

LOVE (Miriam Collins).—Essence of white violets, the rarest and purest perfume known in all history. It takes 12,000 white violets, crushed, to make four fluid ounces of this charming extract, but the difficulty is collecting the white violets. Helen of Troy used this, but, then, white violets grow in sunny countries; grow in abundance in the East Indies, and fortunately enough were found in New York to spray Miss Collins with this subtle aroma. She says it makes her feel as though she is a child in the woods, picking arbutus blossoms, without a care or thought of trouble in the world.

"Experience" has been one of the biggest hits of the year in New York, and the Maxine Elliott Theater is the third playhouse to be the home of this remarkable attraction, which was crowded out of two other theaters after long runs. It is now in its seventh month in New York and will soon celebrate its three hundredth performance.

DENIES THAT CHINA HAS ASKED U. S. TO INTERVENE

Washington, May 6.—Flat denial that China has asked the United States to intervene in the Republic's present controversy with Japan was made today by Secretary of State Bryan. He refused to discuss the Chinese-Japanese imbroglio further.

It was said at the White House that no word had been received to indicate that Japan had served an ultimatum on Pekin and President Wilson apparently was in an optimistic frame of mind over the prospects of an amicable settlement of the dispute.

MRS. LESLIE CRANE ENTERTAINS LOCAL CLUB

Mrs. Leslie Crane, formerly of this city, and who recently removed to Elizabeth, entertained the members of the local sewing club of which she is a member at her home yesterday. It was an all day affair and was thoroughly enjoyed by all the participants. Luncheon was served at noon. Mr. and Mrs. Crane reside at North avenue and Jefferson street, having left Plainfield a month ago. Mrs. Crane was formerly Miss Cora Gano.

Those from this city who attended the affair were Mrs. Horace Huff, Mrs. Lorenzo Townley, Mrs. William Carhart, Miss Helen Crane, Mrs. Fred Willett, Mrs. H. R. Stafford, Mrs. Stephen Stover, Mrs. Harry Cook, Mrs. Chauncey Colthar, and Mrs. Fred Porter.

SOCIAL CLUB TO GIVE "POPPING THE QUESTION"

Plans for a playlet to be presented Tuesday evening, May 18, at T. A. B. Hall, were completed at the meeting of St. Mary's Social Club, which was held last night in the hall on West Fourth street. "Popping the Question" is the title of the sketch, and throughout the thirty minutes of playing, is replete with humor that will keep the audience in a continuous laugh. Six characters complete the cast. The committee selected last night for the entertainment was as follows: The Misses Mary Murray, Catherine Neylon, Annabel McAfee, Mary Smith, Helen Hagen, Eugine Brady and Melia Forristel.

Six new members were taken into the organization last night, and the club now boasts of 108 girls. Miss Emma Sullivan, president of the club, presided at the meeting. Tentative plans for a picnic in June were also discussed, but no definite date was decided upon. The next business meeting of the organization will be held May 25, in T. A. B. Hall.

STOLE HIS TROUSERS AND FOREIGN COIN COLLECTION

Max Durakoff, of 528 West Third street, reported to the local police this morning that his house had been entered by thieves sometime last night and clothes valued at $20 stolen. Other loot included a collection of Hungarian coins.

The articles of clothing consisted mostly of trousers. The local authorities have only meager clues to work with, but an effort is being made to establish the identity of the culprit.

Board of Health Acts on Protest Concerning Shows in Residential Sections.

In view of the protest of a resident of West Front street, in the neighborhood of Grant avenue, where a vacant lot is used for carnivals for more than one day, the Board of Health, at its May meeting last night, through the adoption of resolutions, went on record as opposed to this practice.

The resolutions cited that numerous complaints had been received by the Board of the unsanitary conditions and excessive noise created by the maintenance of carnivals and outdoor shows in the heart of the residential district, and recommended that the Mayor and Common Council be requested to pass an ordinance regulating such shows.

It was suggested that the proposed ordinance prescribe that a license to conduct outdoor performances which are to continue for more than one day be granted only on condition that they be located on the outskirts of the city on a plot approved by the Board of Health; also that the rules of the Board governing such shows be complied with strictly.

The Board adopted a resolution fixing $8,500 as the amount desired for the coming year, and a copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the Common Council. The Board wants to employ a nurse for public health work in the future.

Health Officer R. N. J. Chandler rendered a monthly report. Sixty-eight cases of communicable diseases were reported and thirty contagious disease cultures were examined. Applications for renewals of permits to sell milk and collect garbage were received. A total of 1,589 inspections were made.

During the past month there were seventy-three births, twenty-one marriages and twenty-eight deaths.

WAR NEWS

Nazionale. The latest warlike move on the part of Italy is the publication in the Gazetta Ufficiale of a royal decree authorizing the suspension of leave for either army officers or men.

Copenhagen, May 6.—News from Berlin is that the italian situation is regarded there as most serious. War is expected hourly.

Constantinople, May 6.—The following official statement was issued today: "The unfavorable situation of the enemy at the Dardanelles is unchanged. Reports from Athens and Mitylene regarding the occupation of Gallipoli and Nagara by landing troops of the Allies are untrue. Gallipoli Peninsula is entirely at our disposal for military movements. The enemy holds his own only at two points on the coast Avi Burnu and Sed El Bahr. As a result of the constant bombardment by his ships the encircling enemy is unable to move against the encircling Turkish forces. The Asiatic shore has been cleared of the enemy."

Glasgow, May 6.—Owners of the British steamship Cherbury, of 3,320 tons, were notified today that the ship had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the Atlantic, off Ireland, April 29.

Hartlepool, England, May 6.—The Grimsby trawler Stratton was sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea, Wednesday. Her crew was saved.

Plymouth, England, May 6.—The Spanish steamship Jose De Aramburu, of 2,388 tons, struck Rummelstone Rocks at Land's End today and was completely wrecked. The crew escaped.

INTERESTS OF CHILD WELFARE DISCUSSED

Final Session of Plainfield Federation Held at the High School.

The final session of the season of the Plainfield Federation of Child Welfare met in the library of the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon, and was well attended. Mrs. William M. Sandford presided at the meeting. Reports of the progress of the various agencies for children in this city were related by Dr. Clara DeHart Krans, who mentioned the dental clinic, the baby clinic, the school nurse, the clinic for expectant mothers and the Day Nursery on West Front street.

The Mothers' Association was represented by Mrs. C. J. Munro, who gave an account of the work the organization is doing in co-operation with the various parent-teacher associations in the city in providing wholesome lunches in the schools for the pupils at a nominal fee. She added that wherever installed the patronage has been unusually large, and seems to be quite popular with the mothers as well as the pupils.

Success seems to attend every innovation that the Parent-Teachers' Association of North Plainfield attempts, and the splendid work that that body has been doing was related by Mrs. William O. Taylor. Much enthusiasm is manifested in the different lines of work, particularly the cooking contests, the dressmaking class, the economic committee and the three dancing classes. The want of a new recreation hall was emphasized by the speaker, and she cited the excellent provisions that have been made thus far for providing and securing funds for the new building.

Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, a member of the Public Recreation Committee, read the number of activities that the committee has arranged in the different schools in the city. The list those present, and interest seems to be taken in every departement that the committee opens.

In conclusion Mrs. Juan A. Babcock, representing the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teachers' Association, told the meeting of the success that body has had in the recent subscripdances that were given in the Irving School. The final meeting of the West End Association will be held on Tuesday.

ITALIANS PROTEST AGAINST THE "DEAD HORSE FACTORY"

Theodore Glaser, one of South Plainfield's best known residents, was held up by two Italians on the outskirts of that municipality last night while he was bringing a dead horse to his fertilizer plant at that place. At least that is what Glaser says and he has signed warrants for the arrest of two Italians who are said to be the guilty culprits.

"Don't you dare to bring another dead horse into South Plainfield," said the men, "If you do we'll get revenge."

The sentiment of the Samptown people, most of whom are Italians, has been aroused to a boiling pitch by the presence of Glaser's fertilizer plant in their settlement and the proprietor has several times been threatened with bodily harm. Several weeks ago his place was set on fire and damage amounting to $2,000 was done by flames.

GRAND LODGE IS HOST AT MASONIC GATHERING

Delegations from the Masonic grand lodges of Pennsylvania and New Jersey attended the second session of the annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Masons, of the State of New York, in the Masonic Temple, New York, yesterday. The Grand Lodge adopted a resolution of sympathy for those of their brethren in the European conflict, and prayer was offered for peace.

J. Henry Williams, grand master; George W. Kendrick, past grand master; Charles F. Bower, deputy grand master, and John A. Perry, grand secretary, were among those who attended from Pennsylvania, while among those from New Jersey were M. Searing, grand master; Austin H. McGregor, past grand master, and Thomas B. Townley, grand secretary. Dinner was served in the Republican Club.

CHAPTER VI.

Lucene.

MRS. BLOUNT possessed the feminine trait of curiosity. She made a dawdling round of the room, scrutinizing every detail of its arrangement. At the very last she came to the little table, toward which Andrew had glanced to note the shimmer of blue light. By instinct her eyes went straight to the ring on the instant of her approach. As she beheld the lusters of the jewel her handsome face suddenly flamed with greed, and she uttered an ejaculation of delight. For long seconds she contemplated the glittering bauble with rapture, bending her face ever closer and closer as under a spell. Then, in a sudden realization of her avaricious thought, she started guiltily, and peered about the room with furtive glances, to make sure that none spied upon her. Again, she studied the stone with a sensuous ecstasy in its prismed brilliance; again, she tore her eyes from its charm, and now she moved from it in resolute effort to escape temptation. But the old habit of life dragged her back to the table, and she put forth a covetous hand, seized the ring, carried it to her bosom, smiling.

But very soon her mood veered. The smile vanished from her full lips. Her expression became that of poignant grief. By slow degrees the hand that held the ring moved from her breast, reached to the table, set the jewel back in its place. It was at this moment that Andrew re-entered. At sight of him Mrs. Blount realized with a shudder how narrow had been the margin of her escape from detection in the very act of theft. She pointed toward the little table and spoke with a catch in her voice:

"Andrew, just look at what you left on that table there. It's a good thing there haven't been any strangers in the house with that lying around loose."

Andrew crossed to the table and picked up the ring. There was a faint smile on his closely set lips as he turned and went to the woman. He extended the ring with a slight bow.

"Mrs. Blount," he said pleasantly, "allow me." Andrew nodded assent as he dropped the ring into her itching palm. "Only a word of counsel," he said. "Remember that who I am and what my exact intentions may be are of no interest to you. So be careful." Having thus admonished her he left her alone to her happiness.

And Mrs. Blount, watching the luxurious play of the varicolored rays from the diamond, murmured contentedly in the softest notes of her throaty voice:

"Gee! It sure pays to be honest."

The servant soon announced to Andrew the arrival of Miss Blount and was directed to show the young lady into the library as soon as she should be ready for an interview.

Andrew descended to the library with an eagerness of expectancy that was almost disconcerting to himself. He ordered Parker, whom he found already stationed in the hall, to maintain the privacy of the library, to bring Walter on hearing the bell. And at last a delicate rustling of draperies sounded at the door, and Lucene entered.

The girl stopped short at sight of the man, arrested for a moment by the stress of emotion. No least trace of Maggie Flint, nursemaid and convict, remained visible in the poised loveliness of this gentle maiden. The promise of her beauty had been most nobly fulfilled. She was of dainty fairness, with a golden crown of locks like corn silk in the sun, as lustrous, as finely spun. The exquisite features, set in the perfect oval of the face, were pearl pure of coloring, save where the blood tint blushed in cheeks and deepened winsomely in lips.

"Oh, at last!" she exclaimed.

His smile grew as he spoke:

"You're not going to be lonesome for France, are you, Lucene?"

"Indeed, no!" was the joyous answer, given with a half disdainful pout of the red lips. "I was happy enough there. But, after all, it wasn't America—it wasn't home."

Now, since her first strong emotion at the meeting was past, Lucene was constrained to astonishment over something strange and unexpected in the appearance of the man before her.

"Why, Mr. Andrew," she said, with some show of confusion over her own temerity, "how odd you look! What is it? Oh, yes, of course! It's your clothes. What can it mean? Tell me, please."

"It sure pays to be honest."

At the request the smile vanished from the face of the Master Mind.

"Patience, patience!" he admonished. "You shall know all about everything presently, but not quite yet. It isn't necessary now."

Then he continued:

"Tell me, instead, has our little girl left her heart in Paris or has she brought it back intact?" Though he put the question so lightly, it was of import to him in his scheme of vengeance.

"Oh, neither the one or the other," Lucene declared, with a moue of resentment against the idea. "I left my heart here, sir, when I went away. You should know that, for I told you all about my one very meager romance, which can never come to anything, of course."

"Never is a long time," Andrew suggested drily, aware of the intricacies he had set in motion by his mechanism for the coercing of destiny. "So, then, you have actually remained faithful to the old memory all this long time?"

"Does it surprise you?" She became grave. "I think that I have that virtue—faithfulness," she said, hesitatingly. "It's only an ideal, perhaps, but"— she was violently aroused by Andrew's next words:

"I fancy," he said deliberately, "that I'm going to surprise you a bit. You shall see him soon."

The girl started, and her eyes sought those of the speaker in amazed questioning.

"Oh, Mr. Andrew! You can't mean—you can't mean"—

"Yes," the man said with quiet emphasis, "I do mean just what I have said. You shall see that ideal of yours very soon. That I promise you, my dear girl. Yes, you are to meet the one that owes his life to you, yet doesn't even know your name. And you are to meet him speedily too."

Lucene's eyes were like stars now, shimmering with the gusty joy of her heart, and her lips wreathed to a smile of delight.

"Oh, when?" she cried. "Oh, tell me when! It can't be true. It's too wonderful to be true. Is he—quite well?"

"Quite."

"When they took him away in the ambulance," she continued pensively, "I was sure that he must die, in spite of what I had tried to do for him."

"And so he would have died," Andrew said gravely, "but for you."

"I did do the right thing, didn't I?" she said appealingly.

"Yes," Andrew agreed. "You did the only thing that could have saved him. But tell me, if you please, how did you ever learn to make a tourniquet?"

"Why, as to that," came the ready reply, "I'd seen pictures of them in those 'first aid' things on a placard in a train, and I studied them until I understood the principle just because I had nothing else to do at the time. And then," a tremor was in her voice at the memory, "when he was thrown from the automobile right there at my feet almost and lay bleeding so dreadfully, then somehow I remembered."

"And you never forgot him," the man exclaimed, betrayed into open expression of his wonder over this lightning welding of hearts. "And you never forgot," he repeated softly, with a half envious note in his voice. "You never forgot, though neither of you even so much as knew the other's name."

The suggestion in his words quickened the girl's curiosity.

"Oh," she begged, "who is he?"

Andrew regarded her quizzically.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

Glimpses of Married Life

By Mrs. Ina Leonard.

When Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Parsons escaped from the chattering crowd of women at Mrs. Ellson's luncheon and reached a secluded spot on the lawn, Mrs. Parsons said, "Now we are secure from interruption, tell me what you have heard about my friend, Mrs. Morton."

Mrs. Scott related what Mrs. Ellson had told her when she invited her to go and look at the sunset the day of the lawn party.

"She seemed very bitter toward Mrs. Morton; said she was a common flirt, intent on bringing every man of her acquaintance to her feet and that Mr. Morton had created a great scandal by running around with his stenographer."

Mrs. Parsons was silent for a time, then said, "It's terrible to say disagreeable things about a woman when enjoying her hospitality, but really, she sees through colored glasses. What little talk there was was started and fanned by Mrs. Ellson. Mr. Morton is a fine, clean fellow. It may carry a wrong impression to say she is jealous of Mrs. Morton, for one would not believe that a woman could be jealous if she had not the slightest cause, but it's the truth. People here know Mrs. Ellson so well that her reports do not make much impression. It's terribly hard for the doctor in his business to overcome such a handicap, but he is a fine physician and a very tactful man as well and he has succeeded so far."

"If this woman is a mischief maker, why do the ladies of her acquaintance recognize her? It is unthinkable to me that such a woman should be encouraged by being invited to respectable people's homes."

"All of us employ the doctor and it would be a pity to deprive ourselves of his lively companionship and take all society away from him on his wife's account."

"It truly would, but on the other hand none of you are safe a moment with her around."

"Would we be any safer if she were watching a few feet farther away? I think not." Mrs. Parsons stopped and traced letters in the gravel path with a branch she had broken from a nearby bush. "But we have a league in self-defense. If anyone falls under Mrs. Ellson's displeasure, the rest all rally around her and try to protect her from harm. I am following up the league code now." Mrs. Parsons smiled brightly into Mrs. Scott's face.

"Well, I am glad of that. One thing is certain, as we stay here only three months in the year, while father and Jack look over the business, I can keep entirely clear of her in the future, and I mean to do so. The doctor will continue to attend us when we need him, and that will end our relations."

"You are certainly in a position to be perfectly independent," said Mrs. Parsons, as they rose to enter the house.

"I want you and Mrs. Morton to come out and spend the day with me Saturday. Bring the children and Jack can bring the husbands out with him. I will send the auto in for you," said the young woman as they crossed the porch.

"LIKE UNTO A FLOWER."

A rose has evidently been the inspiration for the rich evening gown sketched here. Rose colored satin was the material and the full flaring skirt has been scalloped at the bottom to appear like the petals of that flower. This overskirt opens over a panel of pleated chiffon. The same material serves for the vest across which the main portion of the bodice is knotted. Shoulder and arm garlands of posies serve in lieu of sleeves and a nosegay of these is tucked into the girdle knot.

THE SMALL BOY IN SUMMER.

With the coming of the hot weather the little lads will all want to be dressed in cool, simple clothes. Because of the lack of desire a boy usually has for elaborote clothes, a mother's ingenuity is not often severely taxed in deciding on his recreation garb A very substantial and becoming style is the boys' suspender suit, cut by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8376. This pattern includes blouse, suspenders, and has trousers extending below the knee. Size 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 6 requires 2⅛ yards 36-inch material.

BABCOCK WILL RECOVER.

Dr. G. N. Endicott, of this city, who was called to Albany, N. Y., several days ago for a consultation regarding the condition of Dudley Babcock, son of former Mayor Wright Babcock, of Fanwood, stated today that the boy would recover although severely injured by a fall of 130 feet down the side of Storm King Mountains. Babcock is at present in a hospital in Albany and will probably be there for some time. At first there was doubt as to his recovery.

She Turned Poor Arachne Into a Spider.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Legend Of the First Spider Web.

"ALONG, long time ago," began daddy, "when people believed in gods and goddesses and fairies and gnomes and dragons, there lived in a country called Lydia a beautiful maiden named Arachne.

"Besides being beautiful, Arachne was clever. She could weave such fine lovely cloth that her fame went abroad through the country of Lydia, and people would come from ever so far off to see the cloth and to admire it.

"But Arachne grew vain from having so much admiration and began to boast of her skill. Why, kiddies, she even said she could weave better than a goddess!

"Of course this was a terrible thing to say, and Athena, the goddess who was supposed to preside over weaving and similar crafts, was very angry. She came down to Arachne's house from Mount Olympus, where she lived, in a terrible rage and ordered the young maiden to weave something for her that she might judge of her skill.

"Arachne did as she was bidden. She choose the finest threads and the most exquisite colors and began to weave. And do you know, kiddies, that she really had some reason for being proud, because when Athena saw how well she could weave the goddess knew it could not be done better even by one of the immortals, as the gods and goddesses were called.

"But Athena was angry—very angry—to think a earth maiden could excel her in weaving. So what does that naughty goddess do but snatch the cloth from the loom and tear it into tiny bits.

"Arachne felt so very badly at the wrath of the great goddess that she got a rope and hanged herself.

"Then Athena was sorry for what she had done. She did not want Arachne to die, because she saw how much the craft of weaving would suffer if one of the best weavers in the world should die, so she brought the girl back to life.

"But she meant to punish her in some way. There was a great meeting held upon Mount Olympus. All the gods and goddesses were there, and at last they decided to turn poor Arachne into a spider.

"And this Athena commanded to be done. This beautiful sunny haired, blue eyed girl was turned into a big, fat, brown spider, and so she spun the first spider web."

"Oh, daddy, what a naughty goddess!" cried the children.

And daddy only smiled and told them it was bedtime.

"Good night, daddy," said the children.

Household Hints

NEW WAYS OF COOKING CARROTS.

Carrots With Bacon—Cut four or five slices bacon in small pieces and fry. When brown, add to grease carrots cut into quarters and small onions (taking out the bacon). When onions and carrots are brown (not cooked) add water, one tablespoon extract of beef, salt and pepper. Now put back bacon and let the whole simmer half hour. Just before serving put in some chopped parsley.

Fried Carrots—Divide carrots in quarters, boil until tender in water slightly salted. Strain well and put into frying pan with butter and one finely chopped green onion. Fry until nicely browned; add pepper and serve.

Ragout of Carrots—Slice thin and put into water for five minutes. Strain and fry in butter, and when well cooked add some milk. When milk comes to a boil add yolks of several eggs. Season to taste and serve.

Scrambled Carrots—Cut carrots into strips and boil in salted water. When tender, strain off water. Put large lump butter and two tablespoons flour into another stewpan, add some chicken broth, or hot water, making a smooth sauce. Add carrots and yolks of two eggs with pinch of sugar.

Carrots With Gravy—Slice carrots very thin and put into boiling water five minutes. Strain and put into stewpan with good-sized lump butter, some stock and pinch of sugar. Cook slowly and, just before serving, add some finely chopped parsley. Serve with small squares of fried bread.

LEMON RECIPES.

Lemon Sandwiches—One cup sweet butter; beat into it raw yolk of one egg and one teaspoon made mustard (slightly softening butter if necessary). Take yolks two cold hard-boiled eggs, rub them smooth, then mix with them thoroughly one-fourth of the butter, then one teaspoon lemon juice and scant one-half teaspoon salt. Add another fourth of the butter, rubbing it in well, another teaspoon lemon juice, and so on and add last until all the butter and two tablespoons of lemon juice are used. Do not use more salt. Spread this prepared butter thinly on thin slices of bread and make sandwiches.

Lemon and Tomato Spread—To one can tomato (or the same quantity of fresh ones) add one lemon sliced thin, and two cups sugar. Simmer until thick. It is still nicer if rubbed through a sieve to remove seeds, etc., and makes a fine spread for sandwiches.

Lemon Turnovers—Three dessert spoons flour, one of powdered sugar, grated rind one lemon; add sweet milk to make consistency of butter. Then add two well-beaten eggs and two ounces butter. Spread thinly on well buttered small tins the size of saucers; bake in quick oven. When done, take out of tins, cut across, fold together and place on a napkin with sifted sugar sprinkled over them.

Lemon Rice—Cover one cup rice with boiling water and boil gently until done. Add grated rind of one lemon, the juice of two, and two scant cups sugar. Put in wet mold to cool. Serve with whipped cream.

FAVORITE FISH DISHES.

Baked Fish—Select a fresh, firm fish; leave whole. Scale, open and clean, then lay in roaster, rub in some salt. Make a stuffing of the following: two cups dry bread crumbs, one egg, minced parsely, salt and pepper to taste, a little lemon juice. Fill fish with this stuffing, then sew up as you would a chicken. Bake in moderate hot oven thirty minutes. Remove top of roaster and allow fish to brown a few minutes. Remove from oven, place on dish and garnish with parsley and lemon. Serve hot.

Fish Chowder—Cut in cubes and fry about a half cup salt pork. Brown one good-sized onion cut in two pieces after pork scraps are removed. Then add about four small potatoes (sliced thin) and cover with boiling water. When potatoes begin to get soft add fish (about two pounds), butter size of an egg, salt to taste and a shake of black pepper. Heat one quart of rich milk

Chatham.

The president of the Home and School League opened her beautiful home to the members of the league and a large number of their friends on the afternoon of April 27th. Music was provided and after an interesting and helpful talk on the uses of Parent-Teacher Associations by Mrs. William Sandford, of Plainfield, a fruit punch and sandwiches were served. A number of disinterested mothers were reached and many of them expressed their intention of joining the league for next year's work.

State Congress of Mothers.

The board of managers of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers held an all-day session in the Public Library at Camden, N. J., on May 1st. Reports showed the Congress work in all its departments to be in good condition and that clubs are being formed in rapidly increasing numbers throughout the State. The board recommends to all Parent-Teacher Associations the holding in May or June of peace meetings for the children in every school, with appropriate exercises, flowers music, etc., but without flags.

Junior Police of New York.

Three hundred boys from twelve to fifteen years of age are enrolled on the police force of one precinct in New York city. They are organized into companies with captains, lieutenants and sargeants. They drill and are taught the rules of the service three times a week by a regular police officer. They bind themselves not to smoke cigarettes, shoot craps, build bon-fires, steal or swear, to keep streets and fire escapes and garbage cans clean. They are not goody-goodies. They are the boys who would otherwise make city "gangs" and the wise police captain of that precinct has simply directed into good channels the same instinct, tendencies and capabilities that make criminals.

International Congress of Women.

Jane Addams was unanimously chosen chairman of the Congress of Women meeting at The Hague for the purpose of discussing the position of women in time of war. This meeting is in no way a peace conference, nor is it intended to touch upon the present war other than as it affects women. There are delegates from sixteen countries, including three from England. Germany has the largest contingent and America ranks next. Austria-Hungary has twenty-two delegates; Norway sixteen, and Sweden, fifteen. There are no flags of any nation displayed as is usual in international meetings. The keynote of every speech is woman's revulsion against the barbarity of war and her determination to work for the substitution of law for carnage. Dr. Lida Hermann, of Germany, said, "Worse than death, yes; worse than hellish, is the defenselessness of women in warfare and their violation by the invading soldiers."

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, of England, made four points in her address: First, that modern war affects non-combatants more than the soldiers in the field; second, that as mothers of the human race women are the natural custodians of human life and should use their endeavors to prevent men from destroying it; third, that women will be called upon to repair the awful ravages of war, and fourth, that women occupy the unique position of being able to protest against war without being called cowards.

Miss Florence Holbrook, of Chicago, spoke on woman's task of educating children by inculcating ideals of peace, and admiration for constructive ability and for beautiful arts, in place of adoration of historic war heroes.

There promises to be sharply divided sentiments among the British and German delegates on the resolution recommending the settlements of international disputes by other means than war. The German women, while favoring the resolution, object to the words "arbitration and conciliation" being used.

"Papa" said little Doris, "was it a very wise person who said, 'The good die young?'"

"Yes," replied the father, "I suppose he must have been very wise."

"Well," said the child after meditating for some time, "I'm not really as much surprised about you; but mummy—no, I don't see how mummy managed to get growed up!"

PLANNING A CONTEST.

The Parent-Teacher Association of North Plainfield, is planning another contest for the pupils of the schools which will be held during the fall, probably the last week in September. It will be a flower and vegetable contest, the object of which is to get the children interested in the making and care of gardens, both flower and vegetable. Miss Laura Sydenham, art teacher of the borough schools, has disposed of over $45 worth of seeds to the members of the various grades.

UNCLE SAM FIGHTS MOTHS.

Washington, May 6—The spread of the gypsy moths in New England has led the U. S. Department of Agriculture to call a public hearing here today on the subject. The moths have been found in a number of additional towns this spring, and the Department proposes to quarantine the areas infested. Millions of dollars have been spent by the New England States in an effort to stamp out the gypsy moth.

S. P. C. A. MEETING.

A meeting of the executive board of the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be held at the home of the president, Rev. Dr. William H. Neilson, 229 East Ninth street, this evening at 8 o'clock.

BUSY SESSION OF DISTRICT COURT HELD YESTERDAY

Judgments were rendered on the following cases at the session of the District Court, held yesterday morning: Joseph Stein against Morris Nathanson for wages due, $14.85; Jersey Metal Ceiling Company against Davis Steinman, $2.49; Frank Mobus against Little Farms Company, $301.87; Benjamin Weiner against Louis Fay, no cause for action; C. T. Rogers Company against Mary Hague, $478.24; Augustus J. Brunson against Mary H. Disborough, $81.25.

OFFERS TRACT FREE FOR INDUSTRIAL PLANT

Something unusual, even in a campaign to develop an industrial center, appears in the latest issue of the general timetable folder of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. P. H. Burnett, the road's industrial commissioner, makes the interesting announcement that he has a tract of land with 300 foot frontage on the railroad which may be had absolutely free by a reputable concern ready to erect a plant and install a live industry on the site. The tract is described as being in the Neighborhood of Both Bound Brook and Manville, the latter 36 miles west of New York.

108 PATIENTS IN BONNIE BURN ON APRIL 30

There were 109 patients in Bonnie Burn on April 1, 66 males and 43 females. During the month 27 patients were admitted, 17 males and 10 females. Of this number one male and two females were in the incipient stage, four males and four females in the moderately advanced stage, and twelve males and four females in the far advanced stage.

During the month 28 patients were discharged, twenty-one males and seven females. In this number there were twelve deaths, eleven men and one woman. There were 109 patients present on April 30, 62 males and 42 females. The largest number present at any time during the month was 111, smallest number 105, daily average, 106.9.

COLLEGE PLAY NOT OF "RAH, RAH" TYPE

The college comedy, "Drifting," which is to be presented by the Queen's Players of Rutgers College at the Plainfield High School Auditorium next Thursday night, May 13, portrays most effectively that air of quiet distinction surrounding every college campus. The production is not of the "Rah, Rah" type so commonly mistaken as representative of college atmosphere.

The acting of Messrs. McKenzie, Epper and Packard, who assume female roles, is a distinctive feature. Due to the excellent coaching of Miss Edna Barbour who is well known here as the talented daughter of E. Livingston Barbour, professor of public speaking and elocution at Rutgers, these gentlemen have captured large audiences by their "female" charms.

The entre-cates will be most delightfully filled by the double quartet of the Glee Club and the Mandolin Trio. These features alone have proven highly popu[illegible] in other places. Tickets m[illegible] ed at Hodge's drug [illegible]nt street and [illegible]

Corporation Notice.

ASSESSMENTS FOR STREET IMPROVEMENTS IN THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Notice of Hearing Before Commissioners.

The subscribers, being the commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, of the County of Union, by order of said Court, entered on the thirtieth day of April, 1915, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent improvement of streets under the ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement and to provide the Necessary Funds in advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," Approved July 6th, 1914, directing the permanent improvement of, with permanent and durable macadam pavement;

Geraud Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

West Fourth Street, from the macadam on Clinton Avenue to the City Line;

which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of an act of the Legislature, entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefitted thereby," approved June 13, 1898, and amendments and supplements thereto, to which ordinance reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The subscribers, the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union as aforesaid and for the purpose of performing the duties and executing the powers conferred by said acts of the Legislature, having duly qualified as required by law, do hereby, pursuant to the order of said Court, give notice that on Thursday, the twenty-seventh day of May, 1915, at eight o'clock P. M., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the said City of Plainfield, said Commissioners will proceed with the discharge of their said duties and hear any person or persons in interest who may present themselves to be heard, and at such time and place, and at such other times and places to which they may adjourn for that purpose, the said Commissioners will attend and give a public hearing to those persons who may desire to be heard.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., May 5, 1915.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

WANT VACANCY AT COUNTY JAIL FILLED

Board of Freeholders to Take Matter up With Civil Service Commission.

Elizabeth, May 7.—Dr. Norton L. Wilson, of Elizabeth, was reappointed a member of the board of managers of Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, Scotch Plains, by the Board of Freeholders at its meeting yesterday.

The Board will visit Bonnie Burn, Thursday morning, after a special meeting. The death of Warden Charles W. Dodd, warden of the county jail, will be brought to the attention of the Civil Service Commission so that the vacancy can be filled.

Fanwood residents must resort to the courts for relief from damages caused by defective drainage from a pipe which carries water from Cedar Brook in Plainfield to Fanwood, a committee which investigated this matter reported.

A ferry rate of eight tickets for twenty-five cents and children under ten years of age free, has been agreed upon by a freeholders' committee and the New Jersey and Staten Island Ferry Company, it was reported yesterday. An agitation for a reduction of fare from five to three cents is thus ended.

LOCAL REAL ESTATE MEN FORM AN INCORPORATION

In the Union county clerk's office in Elizabeth, this morning, papers of incorporation were filed by the Frederick E. Martin Company, of this city. The capitalization is placed at $5,000.

The incorporators are Francis J. Blatz, William L. Smalley, George F. Brown, Walter F. Manning, Julius Stahl and William R. Codington.

ALLEGES WITNESSES WERE INTIMIDATED

Mrs. Florence K. Roundey Granted a Rule to Show Cause by Judge Speer.

Appearing before Judge Speer in the Union County Court at Elizabeth this morning Richard Stockton, of Newark, counsel for Mrs. Florence K. Roundey, of this city, charged Police Chief Kiely and Sergeant Maurice Higgins, of the local force, with intimidating certain witnesses that his client has called in her alienation suit now before that court.

On behalf of the local police department members, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the local law firm of Reed & Hetfield, demanded that Judge Speer give the accusations a hearing in open court. His request to have the matter threshed out was granted by the court and next Friday was set down as the date for the hearing.

In defense of the charges Chief Kiely declares he was acting under instructions from Union County Prosecutor A. A. Stein's office. Chief Kiely has a letter in his possession coming from Prosecutor Stein which orders him to act for the prosecutor's office in examining witnesses in the case. The communication states that shortage of men in the prosecutor's office makes it imperative to call on the local police. This will be the principal point of defense advanced by Mr. Hetfield on behalf of his clients.

Today's allegations are only two of a long list made by Attorney Stockton on behalf of his client and it is said that Kiely and Higgins will have little difficulty in clearing themselves.

BRAWNY MARINES RUSHED INTRUDERS

Residents in the neighborhood of West Fourth street and Lee place were thrown into a turmoil of excitement at 11:30 last night by what appeared to be a riot taking place in the middle of West Fourth street. The dull, heavy thud of blows could be distinctly heard and all manner of cries that indicated ferocity made the night air hideous. Several residents who have police whistles began blowing them lustily and others telephoned headquarters, but no bluecoats showed up until everything quieted down. Three officers appeared later all at once, and departed without making any arrests.

Inquiry as to the cause of the rumpus revealed the following facts: A young matron living on West Fourth street, whose husband is a marine in the navy, and who is home on a furlough, invited a number of his battleship friends out for a party. Five or six husky marines responded, and the festivities were in full swing last night when several local young men with shady reputations attempted to break in on the affair. Their leader forced his way into the house and the naval men gave him the "bum's rush," not knowing that his companions were lurking outside. A battle followed that defies description, and when the intruders finally broke away to avoid arrest, something like twenty members of the party knew there had been a "regular" fight. Bystanders assert that the young matron plunged into the thickest of the fray with a hatpin as a weapon, doing awful execution. She did not escape unharmed, however, and this morning visited Muhlenberg Hospital to have a portion of one foot attended to where a vicious kick had been planted.

PEACE SOCIETY MEETS.

Washington, May 7.—The 87th annual meeting of the American Peace Society will be held today at the Hotel Raleigh. Many prominent peace advocates from all sections of the country have arrived for the meeting, and many local societies in the various states are represented. U. S. Senator Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, president of the Society, will preside. A general secretary will be elected to succeed Dr. Benjamin Trueblood.

COMMITTEE TO MEET.

The next meeting of the New York 1917 C. E. Convention Committee will be held at Hotel Imperial, Broadway and Sixty-second street, Neew York city, tomorrow evening, at 5 o'clock. The Merchants' League of New York will be represented at this meeing, which organization is co-operating with the committee in bringing the International C. E. Convention of 1917 to their city.

CITY IS GRIPPED BY CIRCUS MOBS

Schoolroom and Lunch Table Absentees Give Strong Evidence of This Fact.

LOCAL COLOR GALORE

Parade Viewed by Hundreds—Matinee Also a Big Drawing Card—New Features in This Year's Show Make It a Hummer.

Hundreds of red-blooded young Americans possessed of the circus "fever," crept from under the covers at sunrise this morning and sneaked away to the freight yard to welcome Frank A. Robbins' circus, which arrived from Elizabeth at an early hour. "Circus day" brought with it the usual number of schoolroom truants and absentees at the parental luncheon table. As far as the youngsters are concerned today is one of the season's biggest holidays, and not a few grown-ups were numbered among the enthusiasts along the line of the big street parade.

Local color added to the street demonstration, and the delegations representing the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts and other organizations, mingled with the circus exhibits in the line of march. Robbins' circus in itself is a feature dear to the heart of every pleasure-seeker, but the local talent served to inject ginger into the big event, and every indication points to a capacity audience at tonight's big show.

This afternoon the matinee catered principally to the young folks, and

MRS. N. A. MILLER CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Reports Show That City Union of King's Daughters Had Successful Year.

Much interest was manifested in the annual meeting of the King's Daughters, which was held in Vincent chapel, of the First M. E. church. A meeting of the trustees was held prior to the above in the Day Nursery, where the routine business of the organization for the month of May was discussed. Mrs. J. A. Peterkin presided at the gathering in the absence of the president, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller. The reports of the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Patterson and Mrs. A. M. Most, respectively, were most encouraging, and showed the organization to be in fine financial condition. Miss Helen Lovell, of the Nursery Bureau, told of the work that organization is doing in the community, and reported that 615 children had been received into the nursery during the month, and that the nurse, Miss Plummer, had been especially busy. Dr. Sidney L. Titsworth reported the work the clinic in connection with the Day Nursery is doing. Clinics were held three mornings a week. Two minute reports were given by representatives of the different circles in the city. Plans for a playground and summer work were discussed. It was brought to the attention of those present that the Nursery needs high chairs for the babies and also cribs.

At the meeting in the afternoon the various circles reported that during the year contributions of money and articles were made to the poor, and the following pledges were made for the Day Nursery:

Benevolent Circle, $150; Charity, $200; Cheerful Workers, $100; Daughters of the Crown, $200; Whatsoever, $25; Brightside, $30; Golden Rule, $35; Cup Bearers, $75; Silver Cross, $75; Loyal Daughters, $200; Emanuel, $20; In His Name, $35, and Unity, $75.

The following officers were elected for the coming twelve months: President, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; first vice-president, Mrs. J. A. Peterkin; second vice-president, Mrs. William C. Hubbard; recording secretary, Mrs. H. A. Robinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. L. Titsworth, and treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Most.

TORPEDO CUNARD LINER LUSITANIA

PASSENGERS RESCUED

Official Confirmation of the Disaster Received at Company's Offices in New York—Available Craft Dispatched to the Scene.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, May 7.—Official confirmation of the report that the steamship Lusitania had been torpedoed by a submarine off the coast of Ireland was received at the Cunard Line's offices here this afternoon. A communication from Queenstown said that the big ship had been beached on the Irish coast and that the passengers were safe.

An official statement from the Cunard Line says that two wireless messages have been received. One from Liverpool read: "Lands End wireless report: Distress calls made by the Lusitania as follows: 'Come at once.' Big list. Ten miles south Kinsale Island." A subsequent telegram from Queenstown says that all available craft in the harbor had been dispatched to the scene of the disaster.

Up to a late hour this afternoon only meager details concerning the fate of the steamship were available. The rumors caused general unsettlement of speculative conditions in the stock market. There was a rush to withdraw bids while selling orders came from many sources. Declines of two to four points were sustained in nearly all active issues.

It was stated semi-officially that the Lusitania carried 1,800 passengers and left New York last Saturday. Beautiful weather conditions prevailed in the latitude where the disaster occurred, fine, light southeast winds were blowing. A despatch from Kinsale says that about twenty boats of all sorts belonging to the Lusitania were off the Irish coast. Fifteen boats were sent out to the spot to render all possible assistance.

MRS. JOHN SMALLEY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Following an illness of several months, Mrs. Anna Smalley, wife of John Smalley, died shortly after midnight last night, at her home at 65 Somerset street. She was forty-four years old and was born at Easton, Pa., but had lived in Plainfield for the past thirty years. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Harry Barber. While her health permitted, Mrs. Smalley was an attendant at the First Baptist church. She had many friends throughout the city and borough and was regarded highly by all of them.

The funeral will be held at the late home Monday afternoon and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

ENTERTAIN CHORAL SOCIETY.

The members of the Choral Society and Plainfield Symphony Orchestra met in the Franklin School last night for an informal social and entertainment. The evening was pleasantly spent in singing old-fashioned songs, music and dancing. A feature of the affair was the participation of every member in the old Virginia reel, which was greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

WILL ELECT OFFICERS.

The last meeting of the Franklin Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the school auditorium next Tuesday night. Election of officers and routine business will take place. In conclusion refreshments will be served. It is hoped that a large attendance will be present.

N. P. H. S. RECEIVES GIFTS.

Principal Albert Earley, of the North Plainfield High School, has received two large framed pictures of the campus and college buildings of Rutgers College, of New Brunswick, and Stevens Institute of Technology, of Hoboken. They will be hung in the High School rooms.

MRS. ARMOR TO SPEAK.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Macon, Ga., will speak at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday night, and at Plainfield High School on Monday night. She will speak on "Temperance."

STEAMER TEST.

Chief Walter Chandler, of the borough fire department, will hold a steamer test Monday, May 10, at 7 o'clock, at Brook avenue and Elm street.

GENERAL STRIKE MAY BE CALLED

Failure of Masters to Meet Carpenters' Arbitrators Complicates Situation.

CONFERENCE TONIGHT

Allied Building Trades Will Be Involved if Order is Issued—Carpenters' Business Agent, William Lunger, Issues a Statement.

Failure on the part of representatives of the Master Builders' Association to meet with the journeymen carpenters last night to discuss the fifty cents a day increase as a joint arbitration board, may result in a general strike of the building trades being declared within the next twenty-four hours. Only four of the masters responded to the invitation given by Business Agent William Lunger, of the Carpenters' Local, and nothing was accomplished. The statement was made that the six hours intervening between the time bosses received word and the time for the meeting was too short, but, in refutation, the union men declare it has been done before, and is permissible under the circumstances.

Arrangements for the arbitration were made by Business Agent William Lunger, acting for the union, and President C. W. Krause, for the Master Builders. When only four of the latter organization responded the short notice argument was discussed, and it was finally agreed that the order for a general strike should be held off until after tonight. It is

LOCAL YOUNG MAN NOW A DRUGGIST

Albert F. Bryniarski Successfully Passes State Pharmaceutical Examination.

Albert F. Bryniarski, of West Second street, received official notification yesterday from Henry A. Jordan, secretary of the State Board of Pharmacy, to the effect that he had successfully passed his examination for the degree of registered pharmacist. The news came as a very agreeable surprise, as Mr. Bryniarski was examined at Trenton for the first time last month, and was given a thorough grilling in toxicology, materia medica, chemistry and pharmacy. Securing the degree after the initial effort is a rare occurrence, and the young Plainfielder is fully entitled to the congratulations conferred upon him by his many friends. He is now a full-fledged druggist in every respect, and can own, operate and conduct a pharmacy.

Mr. Bryniarski, who is only twenty-one years old, was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1913. During his scholastic term he successfully passed the business and scientific courses, winning the bookkeeping prize at the completion of the term. He was also prominent in school athletics and at the Y. M. C. A., being captain of the basketball team the past season. Mr. Bryniarski studied for his registered assistant degree under private tutoring from Professor George Parisen, of Perth Amboy, and afterward made preparation for his final examinations by home study. This is considered a remarkable record, as out of two hundred applicants last month he was the only one who had not taken a pharmaceutical college course. Mr. Bryniarski is at present employed by Frank Rowley at his Park avenue store, and has also been with Charles H. Hall, of Watchung avenue. He will receive his diploma on June 15.

MISS ALVERDA M. HOLLAND AND J. F. FISK, 3D, TO WED

Miss Alverda M. Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Holland, formerly of this city, but now of 449 Park avenue, New York city, will be married at the St. Regis Hotel at noon Wednesday, May 12, to John F. Fisk, 3d., of Philadelphia, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fisk, Jr., of Cincinnati, O. A reception will follow the ceremony. Miss Holland, during her residence here, was prominent in the younger set, in which she was popular. Her parents were also prominent in society here.

PERJURY CONVICTION YIELDS NEW MATTER

May Indict Again in Tanzer Case Following Safford's Fate.

Early next week the Federal Grand Jury which investigated the Tanzer-Osborne case and found indictments against seven persons will be called together again. Some of the testimony in the trial of Franklin D. Safford will be submitted, it is said, and it is expected that another indictment will be returned.

Safford was convicted of perjury in connection with his identification of James W. Osborne as the "Oliver Osborne" who went with Miss Rae Tanzer to the Kensington Hotel, in Plainfield.

Interest in the Federal Building yesterday centered chiefly on the possibility of action by Judge Hough in the matter of the fist fight on Wednesday night between Roger B. Wood, Assistant United States Attorney, and Benjamin Slade, counsel for Safford. Judge Hough, it was decided that nothing occurred which would warrant his notice as a judge.

Benjamin Slade bore no marks of the encounter. He declared that Mr. Wood struck him on the forehead. Mr. Wood, however, said that he doubted whether the blow he aimed had landed. Mr. Wood declared that the provocation for the blow was a sneer in the manner of a remark Mr. Slade addressed to him.

CHAMBER TO MAKE INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

J. B. Tygard Authorized to Ascertain Exact Conditions in This City.

With a view to ascertaining the exact status of industrial conditions in Plainfield, the Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly meeting last night named J. B. Tygard as a committee of one to conduct a survey through local concerns. Reports will be made in detail form and action on the data will be taken at the June meeting. Another matter of importance discussed was the possibility of inducing owners of vacant lots in Plainfield to rent their ground or donate it for the summer to persons out of employment who desire to cultivate crops. This plan is similar in many respects to the one attempted in Newark and New York. Irving Kunzman was named as a committee of one to consult with owners favorable to the scheme and to properly place the land in the hands of deserving applicants. It is anticipated that several strips of fertile land will be donated free of charge for the worthy cause and thus alleviate considerable of the present economic stress.

A. B. Wilson, chairman of the Industrial Committee, made a lengthy report at last night's session. His data was productive of much optimism and served to bring out a number of pertinent facts to the members present. The committee that attended the commercial exhibit conducted in the Plainfield High School auditorium recently made a favorable report. The resume resulted in the election of Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson as an honorary member and he will be duly notified of the appointment.

President Paul H. Burns presided and offered a report on behalf of the publicity committee stating that 100 letters had been sent to persons in New York carrying with them information concerning the advantages of Plainfield as an industrial and home center.

Another report was received from the garbage and ashes committee and it was said that the compilation of data was rapidly nearing completion and would be presented in a short time for approval. Included in the data is some gleaned from Commissioner Fetherston, of New York city.

KAISER SENDS A THREAT TO ROME

Warns Italian Government That Austria's Cause is Germany's.

GERMANS LEAVE ITALY

Battle on Ypres Front Resolves Itself Into Artillery Duel—Constantinople Dispatch Says That An Enemy Battalion Was Destroyed.

Rome, May 7.—The railway administration has announced the suspension of forty passenger trains on the main lines.

While no information is forthcoming, it is understood this action was taken to facilitate the movement of troops and munitions of war to the concentration bases.

Italy has been warned of the consequences of entering the war on the side of the Allies. Telegraphing from Berlin, to which he had returned after an inspection of both battle fronts, the Kaiser notified Prince von Buelow that the English troops in the west are useless and that within a fortnight the Russian troops will be driven out of Galicia.

Italy was warned, under direct instructions from the Kaiser, that Austria's cause is Germany's and that Austria's enemies must be Germany's. Because of this should Italy come into the war she will be opposed by a great German army.

The Italian Government continues its war preparations. The army is concentrated at stragetic points. The fleet is ready for action and the first thing to be done after war is declared will be the gazetting of the Duke of the Abruzzi as commander of the fleet. The Government has issued a decree authorizing the suspension of telegraphic and telephone service without notice.

Premier Salandra and Prince von Buelow were in almost constant conference yesterday. The German Ambassador is trying to persuade Italy to remain neutral, but it is admitted that he considers the attempt a very serious one. The Cabinet met again today. It was announced that the consideration was the parliamentary program, but this statement was not taken seriously.

By orders of the German Embassy the principal German schools, the German library and other German institutions heretofore open to the public have now been closed. The Government has sent a sharp note to Turkey questioning the truth of the report that the Turkish officers now command the rebels in Tripoli.

JAPAN SETS TIME LIMIT FOR PEKIN

Ultimatum is Accompanied by Additional Modifications of Demands.

New York, May 7.—A Tokio despatch states that Baron Kato, Japanese foreign minister, is understood to have informed the ambassadors of other powers that the ultimatum to China which will expire at 6 p. m. Sunday, was accompanied by additional modifications of Japan's demands, notably the questions relating to munitions and advisors which interest the United States. It is the general opinion in diplomatic circles in Tokio the despatch adds that China will submit.

Tien Tsin, China, May 7.—The Japanese minister to China, Ski Hioki, has prepared to leave Peking. Japanese troops are being moved toward the Manchurian Railway, which connects Pekin with the Trans-Siberian system. Russia has massed a big army in Mongolia, which would probably invade Northern China in co-operation with Japanese forces if war is declared.

Washington, May 7—The critical condition of affairs in the Orient was one of the principal subjects discusssed in the semi-weekly cabinet meeting today. Secretary Bryan laid before the members all the facts in his possession. It was said afterward, however, that none of the President's official family entertained the belief that war would result.

HELD SUCCESSFUL SALE.

The rummage sale held under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., held yesterday in the auditorium of the association building, was very successful, the majority of the goods being disposed of. A large sum was realized which will go into the treasury of the auxiliary. Mrs. James E. Kimball was chairman of the affair.

HOLY INNOCENT'S CHURCH NAMES BUILDING COMMITTEE

A representative congregation of Holy Innocents' Episcopal church, New Market road, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks-Barrow, Prospect avenue, Wednesday evening, and elected the following up-building committee: Mrs. Charles Day, Mrs. Hicks-Barrow, Mrs. Paul Carpenter Mrs. C. E. Richards, Miss Zella Kelly, Mr. Hicks-Barrow, chairman, and John Snyder, secretary.

The committee is to call on every Episcopalian in Dunellen and New Market who is a non-attendant and endeavor to create a much needed interest in the welfare of the church. A general meeting, to be held in the guild room of the church, will be called before June 1, and all those interested in the upbuilding of the church will be requested to attend and at the meeting every one will be given an opportunity to express their views and make suggestions as to the future. The question of organizing the church to confer with title IV Canon II will be voted upon as this law, recently passed by the Episcopal convention, gives the congregation this prerogative. Due notice of this general meeting will be given through the mail and press.

It was also decided to designate the first Sunday in June as "Rally Day," particulars of which will be announced later. The upbuilding committee will meet again Wednesday evening next to submit reports which will voice the sentiments of those visited. It will also decide upon the date for the general meeting.

Contractors Harris and Shively are redecorating the interior of the Stanley Day house on Lincoln avenue, tenanted by Borough Clerk and Mrs. William P. Deering.

Scout troops one and two will engage in their second game of baseball on Maurer Oval tomorrow afternoon.

Walter Penrose has acepted a position in the grocery store of T. A. Pierce, Jr., & Company.

Mrs. Charles S. Day is planning for two social events for the entertainment of her music pupils. She will have the younger pupils give a musicale at an early date and the older pupils will have a similar affair a little later.

State Councilor Rene R. F. Von Minden, of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, attended the anniversary celebration of Irvington Council at Newark today, and acted as one of the principal speakers. Next week he plans to attend a convention in Virginia.

Borough Engineer Churchill and force were engaged at Garwood today.

Plains & Fanwood.

The young people of the Baptist church will meet in that edifice tonight for their weekly social gathering. Considerable time at each social is now spent in rehearsing the hymns to be sung at the Sunday services.

The All Saints' Altar Guild will meet in the Episcopal church tomorrow.

In last night's account of the May meeting of the Borough Council it should have been stated that $80 was appropriated for the purchasing of a desk as well as a typewriter. The council has not yet passed any resolution concerning the police telephone, but is waiting for more information on the subject.

A meeting of the official board of the Methodist church will be held tonight following the prayer meeting, which will be in charge of the pastor.

William Longstaff, of Jersey City, will open a drug store in the Morrell building, on Park avenue, next week.

The pinochle tournament that has been in progress at Joe Albert's for several weeks has come to a close with Louis Wahl and Bryant Johnson at the top.

The Sabitinio building, on Park avenue, has been undergoing a number of repairs, including the replacing of the windows in the front by plate glass.

Willard Marston, of Terrill road, has resigned his position with the Plainfield Trust Company and has accepted a similar position in a New York bank.

After a reasonable length of time has been given for all borough residents to license their canines, the appointment of a special officer will be made to pick up all stray and unlicensed dogs.

Efforts are being made on the part of the borough authorities to find out who the persons are that are responsible for the misuse of the borough "dump." It has been reported that scavengers from Westfield, who have no right to come here for that purpose anyway, are dumping rubbish on upper North avenue, in the gutter and are not even bothering to go in from the road, and hopes are being entertained of catching them.

South Plainfield.

A spring entertainment which will comprise a euchre and dance with a pure food supper will be given under the auspices of the Sacred Heart parish tonight in Washington Hall at 8 o'clock. The Plainfield Transit Company will transport the people from Plainfield to the hall and return after the dance is over. The first bus will leave Plainfield at 8 o'clock.

William Everhardt has returned after being the guest of friends in New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Randolpn have been entertaining Mrs. Randolph's sister, Mrs. J. McMeheen, of New York.

Frank Valicinit, contractor, has just completed laying walks around the new homes which were recently erected by Charles Thornton.

Miss Helen Whitney, of Newark, is spending a few days with Miss Alice Snyder.

A social will be held under the auspices of the Baraca Class tonight in the Baptist church. A program of music, recitations and moving pictures will be given and refreshments served to all.

Ground was broken yesterday for the new four room addition to the public school. Mobus, of Plainfield has the contract for digging the cellar and doing the grading, while a Perth Amboy contractor received the contract for building the building. The amount appropriated for the new building was $12,500.

Watchung.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, held its monthly meeting in the Improvement Society Hall, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Charles C. Wheeler presided and after the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. George N. Mobus.

An invitation is extended to all to attend the weekly prayer meeting tonight in Wilson chapel. "The Bible, the World's Supreme Book," will be the topic and Miss Schmidt will be the leader. There will be special music.

Beginning with this Sunday, Sunday-school will be held in the morning at 9:15 in the Wilson Memorial Union chapel.

Master Harold Mobus was surprised by a number of his friends at his home, yesterday afternoon. The affair was in honor of his seventh birthday and the afternoon was pleasantly spent in playing games, after which a delightful birthday supper was served. Among those present were the Misses Mabel Snoden, Eleanor Bartels, Hermina Faldix, Mary Luerssen, Lois Rogers, and the Masters Ephraim S. Ackor, Jr., Hervey Mobus, Kenneth Schmidt, Joseph Bartels, David Mobus, Edward Snoden, Newton Mogey and Harold Mobus.

The Busy Bee Society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of their teacher, Miss Gladys Sullivan, at Sunny Slope Farm, yesterday.

YOUTH BREAKS LEG IN JUMP FROM FREIGHT CAR

Joseph Reinholdt, nineteen years old, of Newark, was received at Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, suffering from a broken leg sustained in an accident in South Plainfield, when he tried to elude Lehigh Valley railroad detectives. Reinholdt and a companion were riding on top of a freight car when they were noticed by Officers Everhardt and Summers. At the command of the officers, the two young men began running about and despite Everhardt's warning not to jump, both leaped from the roof of the box car to the ground, a distance of twelve feet. Reinholdt landed squarely on the rail of an opposite track, breaking his leg just above the ankle. His companion escaped unharmed.

Reinholdt calmly begged a cigarette while awaiting the ambulance from this city and told bystanders that he and his friend had started to beat their way to Toledo, Ohio. The companion was allowed to return to his home in Newark.

THORN WINS TWO.

Eddie Conshay dropped two out of three games to Art Thorn last night in the borough one-man tourney. The scores follow:

Conshay	176	133	193

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO TAKE A LONG AUTO TRIP

Members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will go to Phillipsburg, Sunday, to be present at the third degree ceremonies to be conferred on candidates in the council. The trip from Plainfield to Phillipsburg will be made in automobiles and it is expected that the better part of the day and evening will be consumed in the excursion.

Those contemplating making the trip will meet at the clubhouse for breakfast at 8:30 o'clock and enter a number of automobiles that have been chartered for the occasion.

PLAIFIELDERS TALKED TO MAN IN SAN FRANCISCO

A. B. Wilson and John J. Carty, of the local telephone exchange, were among a delegation of New York Telephone Company employes who conversed over the recently completed trans-continental connection between New York and San Francisco, during a gathering in Cortlandt exchange, Wednesday afternoon. William Hanlon was at the San Francisco end of the wire and told the Plainfielders that the sun was shining brightly on the Pacific coast, that his general health was good, that he would like to come East some day and meet them personally and a number of other things that make conversation, when you have nothing special to talk about.

According to Mr. Carty, Hanlon's voice was as distinct as though he was only a few feet away and there was no noise of any kind to mar the brief dialogue he held with him. The total length of the connection was 3,400 miles and is the greatest on record. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Carty were the second and third Plainfielders to talk from New York to San Francisco, the first being Paul H. Burns, now connected with the New York office of the company

LINEN "SHOWER" GIVEN TO MRS. GERTRUDE FIRSTBROOK

Mrs. Gertrude Firstbrook was, last evening, tendered a linen shower at the home of Mrs. George A. Ballantyne, of Westervelt avenue. The evening was spent in playing cards, while musical numbers interspersed the games. Mrs. Firstbrook, who is to be married to Herbert Smith, of West Fifth street, next month, was the recipient of a number of beautiful gifts.

At the conclusion of the evening luncheon was served by Mrs. Ballantyne. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. William Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gaffney, Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Miss Lulu Kugler, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ballantyne, Fred Ayers, Mrs. Raymond Bonham, Herbert Smith and Mrs. Firstbrook.

ADJUST FIRE LOSSES.

Through the agency of Harvey R. Linbarger, two recent fire losses have been satisfactorily adjusted. One of these was on the property of the estate of Charles G. Ross at 607 Berckman street, the amount of same being over $500, and the other on the property of Wilbur H. Schaefer at 315 East Sixth street, the latter fire having occurred on May 2.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR TO LECTURE IN LOCAL SCHOOL

There will be a meeting of the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teacher Association at the Irving School, May 11, at 3:30 p. m. The Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, Jr., formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church, now president and editor of the Education Magazine Publishing Company, of New York city, will give an illustrated lecture on "Ireland," using pictures taken by himself during his tour through that country. It is hoped a large number will be present to listen to this talk, which will undoubtedly be very interesting. Refreshments will be served.

MANY WOMEN ATTEND UNION COUNTY INSTITUTE

The Plainfield Union was largely represented at the sping institute of the Union County W. C. T. U., held in the First M. E. church, Roselle Park, yesterday. There were three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, the county president, presiding. Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of this city, read the journal of the executive committee.

Mrs. Mary K. Colvin, State vice president of the Woman's Suffrage League of Orange, spoke in the afternoon on the Suffrage movement. Miss Mary Mulford, president of the Woman's Political Union of the Roselles, also spoke on Suffrage, and Mrs. Tomlinson gave a chalk talk.

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN FOR MARJORIE COWLING

Marjorie Cowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cowling, of Regent street, the borough, entertained a number of her friends at her home yesterday afternoon at a party held in honor of her seventh birthday anniversary. The afternoon was spent in playing various kinds of games, and refreshments were served during the afternoon. The young hostess received many gifts with hearty congratulations and wishes of the day.

One of the features of the party was the presence of the celebrant's great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Boice, of Harlingen, and also her grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Irving, of Trenton.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The meeting of the New Jersey League of Mayors, scheduled to be held in Newark, yesterday, was postponed until June 16, owing to the small attendance present. At that time the mayors will convene in Trenton. During the short session held yesterday, Mayor Calkins presented Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed's opinion on the public utilities act of 1911.

ENTERTAINS FRIENDS.

Mrs. Neal MacKinnin, of East Second street, entertained the B. C. C. at her home, yesterday. Those present were: Mrs. Ira Vail, Mrs. T. Lyons, Mrs. Millard Bellis, Mrs. Russell Vail, Mrs. F. C. Cauldwell, Mrs. W. Welsh, Mrs. R. T. Kline and Mrs. Robert Chilton.

Help Others to Buy of You by Buying of Them

If the manufacturer can't sell goods, he can't buy labor.

If the workman can't sell his time, he can't buy so much to wear and to eat.

If the farmer can't sell his wheat to the workman, the farmer can't put money in the bank.

The more we all buy the more we can all sell. The quicker we start it, the sooner will come sunshine.

Let's all heave-ho together and begin at once to buy these immediate needs whose purchase we have been delaying. Start again the wheels of progress.

DOES IT MEAN WAR?

According to recent reports from Washington, the American people will be asked to re-elect Woodrow Wilson as "the great peace President, the man who steered the nation safely through a world at war and made possible the great commercial advantages that have flowed to the United States from the European struggle."

It looks now as if this plan may have to be abandoned and that, after all, Mr. Wilson may stand for re-election next year as a war President. Certainly the chances of remaining on nominally friendly terms with Germany seem to be rapidly narrowing.

On February 11, a week after the famous "war zone" announcement, our government made public a note to the authorities at Berlin declaring that Germany would be held to "strict accountability" for disregard of this country's rights on the seas, and that "if the commanders of German vessels of war should act upon the presumption that the flag of the United States was not being used in good faith and should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens, it would be difficult for the government of the United States to view the act in any other light than as an indefensible violation of neutral rights which it would be very hard indeed to reconcile with the friendly relations now so happily existing between the two governments."

What followed? On March 28 an American was killed when the British liner Falaba was torpedoed. On April 28 the Philadelphia oil ship Cushing bound for Rotterdam was attacked by German airmen and damaged by a bomb, although it displayed the American flag. On May 1 the American tanker Gulflight, with the Stars and Stripes flying, was torpedoed in the "war zone" by a German submarine and three lives were lost before the sinking vessel was beached. In addition to all this the German ambassador at Washington has more than once exhibited an astonishing lack of respect for our government in his public utterances and since being courteously rebuked by our State Department has continued to act as if under the impression that he and his country have nothing to fear but further harmless protests. The recall of many an ambassador has been requested for less.

In the midst of a situation so grave it would be appropriate for President Wilson's friends to defer consideration of the plan of "running" him on his peace record in 1916, and it would seem to be advisable for the President himself to inquire carefully into the correctness of Secretary Daniel's recent gratifying showing of the American navy's strength and preparedness for attack.

Cut out of a suburban correspondents copy yesterday: "Dr. Blank will open an office here next week. The fact that the doctor is single may be of interest to some of the young ladies of the town. He will board here." That's certainly "some" advance notice.

The contributed editorial for tomorrow's paper has been written by Miss Katherine Aller, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, who will discuss phases of the excellent work that organization is doing in Plainfield.

Don't fail to take in the benefit circus for three worthy local causes. You'll get more than your fifty cents worth in the pageant which has been prepared by the Public Recreation Committee. Tonight is the only chance.

Scurrilous and anonymous letters never receive any attention from the Daily Press. The only communications which are saved from the waste basket are those which are signed by the name of a person who gives a street address.

It has been suggested that City Tax Collector William R. Townsend could have made the hit of his life if he had led that circus parade down Fourth street this morning, distributing tax receipts to the populace.

Now that we have had a Pro-German meeting in the High School, why not a Pro-English, Pro-French, Pro-Allies, Pro-China, or some of the other countries. Some people's idea of neutrality is certainly strained.

Jess Willard, unable to make good in vaudeville, has taken a job with a wild west show. How the mighty have fallen! Think what Jack Johnson did in vaudeville.

"Sunday touched hearer's hearts" says a headline. He's touched a few of their pocketbooks, too.

The United States is certainly having a tough job trying to be neutral.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press.

I am in receipt of the following very interesting communication:

"Owing to the mild winter and the consequent shortage in ice, we find it necessary to make the price of ice 50 cents per hundred beginning May 1."

Curiosity compelled me to call up several dealers and I found that in some mysterious way, the weather, or something else, had affected the price of the manufactured product as well as the natural, in other words, Ice has gone up.

I asked one of the dealers with whom I talked if there was an understanding or agreement between the dealers regarding the raise in price, and was informed that there was no agreement or understanding.

Everybody in the ice business just happened to raise the price at the same time.

The price was 40 and is now 50. So there you are—If you don't like it, don't use ice.

One of the "Seven Sisters"

"A trust is a combination or agreement between corporations, firms or persons, any two or more of them, for the following purposes, and such trust is hereby declared to be illegal and indictable;

"1. To create or carry out restrictions in trade or to acquire a monopoly, either in intrastate or interstate business or commerce.

"2. To limit or reduce the production or increase the price of merchandise or of any commodity.

Ask your doctor if these things are important:

Wood Brook Farms maintains clean, concrete stables; washes all utensils and cows clean before milking; chills the milk quickly and packs it in ice; sterilizes all bottles and utensils daily; milk all packed in ice in delivery wagons.

the entertainment provided was of the top-notch variety. Plainfield characters, playing the roles of Charlie Chaplins, Rastus Johnstons and other comical make-ups furnished entertainment on the side for the circusgoers. This morning additional names were added to the big list of localites who will lend their services to booming the charity affair, and it was announced that the following would dispose of hump-back, double-jointed peanuts during the performances: Robert DeGraff, Allen and Fred Stevenson, Orton Dale, Kenneth Runyon, Lawrence Snyder, Gresham Sharp, Billy Brandegee, Robert Millard and David Fitch.

The circus grounds at Grant avenue and West Front street prove to be the Mecca for hundreds of youngsters prepared to "camp out" for the day. Within a few hours after the arrival of the equipment this morning practically the entire lot was under canvas. Curious persons watched the work with awe, speculating on the mysterious contents of the gaudily-painted wagons, getting acquainted with the clowns, giving the elephants their daily portion of peanuts, and some venturesome admirers of the juvenile type crawled under the tent flaps to see what the enclosures contained.

The throngs that visited the tents in Elizabeth yesterday afternoon and last night give credence to the fact that it is just as much of an attraction as it ever was.

The show is of the old-time one-ring variety. It contains many new features this year, and includes Hillary Long, head balancer; Robbins' elephants; Price and Price, aerialists; the Aerial Lesters, the Farro Brothers, acrobats; Miss Robbins and her high school horses, and many others. There is also a side show, with a variety of "freaks," and a number of smaller concessions.

MAY CALL GENERAL STRIKE

hoped that there will be a full attendance of the masters, but, if no definite conclusion regarding the increase can be arrived at, the general order will follow. The action of the carpenters, so far, has not been what is construed as a strike, but when one is formally declared it will involve all the allied trades in the district and tie up all building work. It has been the earnest wish of the union, however, to keep away from this, and it will not be done until all other attempts have proved futile.

In connection with the journeymen's action up to present time, the following statement was issued this morning by Business Agent Lunger in behalf of the local union: "The Carpenters' Local wishes at this time to inform the public that the members do not mean to check any work that may be under way. When we notified our employers in November, 1914, prospects seemed in our favor, and we feel that the matter could have been adjusted last month or our masters could have appointed a committee to confer with the committee from the Carpenters' Local to adjust increase. The employers and employes have always worked in harmony, and we are now out only to better our condition and to earn an extra dollar for our families; also to earn an honest dollar for our employers. We feel that we are selling our labor, just the same as the material men sell their supplies, and when prices in building materials increase, the builders must pay the same and charge it up to the owner, thus giving builder and journeyman more money to place in circulation. When a circus or amusement comes to our city, take notice of the thousands of dollars that are taken away in one day. The wages of our men are all exchanged with the local merchants, as is evidenced by the fact that the New York department wagons udo not stop at our doors. Business Agent Lunger feels sure that the masters will fulfil their agreement and meet to-night, which will possibly mean much saving of time and money to master builders and journeymen. We ask for a fair and just deal, and we will be on the jab again serving the people, although no carpenters are working throughout the city, the members are orderly and quiet, joining together morning and afternoon in meeting rooms."

DECLARES AMERICA HAS BEEN FOOLED

Dr. Thomas C. Hall, of Union Theological Seminary, Gives German View.

Several hundred persons, largely of the German-American type, heard Dr. Thomas C. Hall, of the Union Theological Seminary, discourse on the "German Side of the War" in the Plainfield High School Auditorium last night. The audience gave evidence of being keenly sympathetic, and the pointed remarks were productive of frequent outbursts of approval. Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann presided, and introduced Dr. Hall, who said, in part:

"America has been hood-winked, and the 'London yellow press' has flung a veil over our eyes, giving us a distorted vision of the European conflict. The hateful pictures misrepresenting Germany must be wiped from our slate, and woe be to the newspapers who break windows in our home country. The American regard of the war is primarily out of place.

"Germany drew the sword only after seven long days of watching, waiting and hoping to avoid a conflict. If she really wanted war why didn't she start it during the Russian-Japanese conflict?"

Mr. Hall stated that the "hysterical" condition in this country—the feeling against Germany—had been "produced by a newspaper trust, dominated, as we believe, but do not know, by foreign influences."

"The Russian oligarchy wanted the Dardanelles," said Mr. Hall, "and dear little Servia, poor little Servia, damned to the lowest by England three years ago! Oh, the screaming hypocrisy of it all! It ought to make us so ashamed of ourselves that we would turn off the lights.

"Then big, good-natured Austria said to poor little Servia: 'Now, you dirty little Arab, you stop breaking into my kitchen and stealing.' That was Russia's chance.

"It is that conspiracy against the peace of Germany and of the world that all will protest against when the whole truth and real truth comes to be written Germany is not anti-English save only for a traitorous group and that sinister liar, Sir Edward Gray, who has betrayed the best interests of his country and staked her fortune on a lying adventure. He deceived his Cabinet, lied to Parliament and to the British people.

"These United States belong by right to Germany. The blood and valor of her soldiers saved the colonies from English oppression. We wouldn't today be a republic except for the militarism and drill work of Prussia. The next time you hear that diatribe about German militarism just think what it did for this republic. The roll of honor teems with names that the dirty yellow press of today would spit upon as hyphens.'

"We stand face to face not only with a grave German issue, but a great American moral issue as well. Germany is one of our best customers, and 25,000,000 of our population have some extraction of her blood. Are we so stupid we cannot see that we carry death and destruction to our best friend across the sea when we ship our ammunition and arms to England? It is high time to stop and consider. Can we afford to say to Germany, 'We treat you as an enemy?' Not on the field of battle, but hiding behind the bulwark of our commercialism?"

"CHIEF RAIN-IN-THE-FACE" TO GIVE DEMONSTRATION

The Boy Scouts of Troop II, of Dunellen, have arranged to have "Chief Rain-in-the-Face," a Cherokee Indian, give them a practical demonstration in out-door activities tomorrow morning. The Indian will accompany the scouts on a hike to the mountains and there will show the boys many interesting phases of Indian life and life in modern camps. Cooking will be featured.

The troop is under the supervision of Clarence Eder, and he will have full charge of the trip. Chief Rain-in-the-Face resides, at present, in Perth Amboy, having left his original home in Oklahoma some years ago.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP WAS THE KEYNOTE

Enthusiasm Reigned Supreme at Annual Dinner of Boys' Bible Class.

The annual banquet of the Tuckahatchee class of the Congregational church was held last evening in the parish house. It was a most successful and happy occasion. Twenty-five young men of this popular class were present, and also a number of invited guests.

When the diners had done ample justice to the dinner, prepared and served by a committee of ladies, a program of songs and speeches held the interest of the company.

Donald Hylan, a popular member of the "Tucks," started the speech-making with some well-chosen and well-delivered remarks on "What I Would Do As a Teacher."

Philip S. Suffern, associate superintendent of the school, called attention to "What a Teacher Had a Right to Expect from a Class of Young Men." Andrew N. Nielsen, a close friend of this class, gave some very pointed suggestions, which should prove most helpful, on "Where Young Men Fail Down in Business."

The pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, spoke in appreciation of the work of *the boys, and urged loyalty and co-*operation. John M. Whiton, superintendent of the school, spoke on "The Place of the Young Men's Class in the School." The responsibility of such a class as an example to the younger boys was dwelt upon.

The boys refused to bring the festive occasion to a close without hearing from R. D. Rice and J. McClymont, teachers of the class. Mr. Rice has a small group of young men in the school whose interests and activities are identical with the Tuckahatchees, and in the course of his remarks he urged the consolidation of these two classes.

Mr. McClymont gave warning of the dangers of a large class built up around the personality of a teacher. He pointed out that to insure the permanency of such a class the responsibilities must be shared equally by teacher and class.

Great hopes and ambitions are entertained for the future work of this group of young men, and its influence for good is bound to be felt in the community.

The ladies who made possible this banquet, and to whom the boys feel so greatly indebted, are; Mrs. D. F. Updike, assisted by Mrs. Hylan, Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. McClymont, Mrs. Doane, Miss Hague, Miss Engstrand, Miss Decker, Miss Morgan, Miss McIntosh.

Paris, May 7.—The great battle between the Germans and the Allies on the Ypres front in West Flanders has resolved itself into an artillery duel, it is stated in official communiques issued by French war officers today. Another violent artillery duel is raging on the Vauquois front. The Germans attempted to storm the French positions at Bagatelle in the Argonne last night, but the attack broke down.

Berlin, by wireless, May 7.—The following official statement was issued here today: The Russians were taken completely by surprise. Our concentration of troops had been completed on April 30. Our airmen and artillery were favored with fine weather and dry roads, enabling them to display full activity. On May 1 we began to bombard the Russian positions. As many as seven lines of trenches had been dug by the Russians at some important points. During the night preceding the attack our infantry had seized positions close to the enemy's line."

Liverpool, May 7.—The liner Centurion has been torpedoed by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

London, May 7.—The Harrison Line steamer Candidate, of 5,858 tons, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine yesterday in the Irish Sea, off Waterford, Ireland. The crew was rescued.

Athens, May 7.—Three Russian aviators, operating from the Russian Black Sea fleet, flew over Constantinople, bombarding the city, according to despatches received here today. Great damage is believed to have been inflicted. Shells fired from Russian warships against the Turkish forts upon the Bosphorus fell within ten miles of the Turkish capital.

Constantinople, May 7.—In the Dardanelles fighting an enemy battalion was annihilated on May 5, as a result of our attack against the Allies' left wing near Avi Burnu. Part of their strong intrenchments were taken. In our operations on the night of May 5 against Seddel Bahr the Turks inflicted heavy losses upon the English. Three machine guns and a quantity of ammunition were captured, although we captured 10 machine guns in all.

Mrs. Oliver B. Hill, of New York, has returned, after visiting her sister, Mrs. Frank Pearson, of Mountain avenue.

COUNTY C. E. RALLY HELD IN ELIZABETH

Officers Are Elected and the New District Secretary is Presented to Endeavorers.

J. Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth, was re-elected president of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union at the annual rally held in the Third Presbyterian church of Elizabeth last night. Miss Mabel D. Cronce, of the First Baptist church of this city, was elected first vice-president, and the other officers elected were Desmond Heyliger, First Baptist church, of Elizabeth, second vice-president; Gregg Frost, Springdale Presbyterian church, third vice-president; Miss Ruth E. Bobwell, First Baptist church, of Rahway, fourth vice president; Harold L. Gray, Second Presbyterian church, of Rahway, secretary and, and Ralph Barton, Third Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, treasurer.

Dr. William R. Shaw, of Boston, secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, was the chief speaker of the evening. J. T. Sproull, of Arlington, State president, also spoke, and Rev. A. C. VanRaalte, of the Reformed church of Linden, who is the new district secretary, was introduced to the endeavorers.

The attendance banner, which is awarded to the society having the greatest per centage of members present at the annual rally, was presented to the society from the First Methodist church of Elizabeth. That society had about ninety per cent. of its total membership present. The churches of this city that were represented are the First Presbyterian, First Baptist, Trinity Reformed and Evona chapel.

MEN'S CLUB WILL GIVE LADIES' NIGHT AFFAIR

The Men's Club, of Grace church, will have a "ladies' night" at the parish house, Monday night, May 10. An elaborate musical program is being arranged for the occasion, and lovers of good music will have an opportunity to hear a number of local artists. The church quartet will reder several solos. Members of the club will give a number of recitations, and refreshments will be served in conclusion. Mrs. James Gilbert, the newly appointed soloist of the First Presbyterian church, will sing. The affair is open to the women of the church, and a good time is assured to all who attende.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE.

State Councilor R. P. F. Von Minden, of this city; State Treasurer W. B. LaRue, of Bound Brook; State Secretary W. H. Miers, of Trenton; Junior Past State Council F. K. Muta, of Bridgeton, and State Vice Councilor Theodore Buttenbaum, of Jersey City, will represent the State Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., at a meeting of the general executive board to be held at Lynchburg, Va., next Wednesday.

ATTEND CEREMONIAL SESSION.

William Floresch, Joseph E. Lane, Arthur Wadley and Fred Lynn accompanied a party of forty of the Shriners, of Plainfield, who attended the ceremonial session of Salaam Temple in Newark last night. The attendants walked the sands of the deserts and feel that they got all that was coming to them. Following the session a judicial banquet was served. The Plainfielders made the trip by automobiles.

A. E. SMITH A BIDDER.

Arthur E. Smith, of this city, was one of the bidders for the work of building the new Baltic street bridge at Elizabeth, yesterday. His bid was $37,850. The contract was awarded to the Long-Broadhurst Company, of Hackensack, for $36,843. There were thirteen bids in all.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue, Netherwood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Harrigan, to Samuel S. Adams, of this city. The wedding will take place on Thursday, May 20.

ATTENDED COUNTY MEETING.

Thomas Farrell, president of the local Division, No. 4, Ancient Order of Hibernians, attended the county board meeting of representatives of the various Union county divisions of this order, held last night in Elizabeth. The meeting was well attended.

MRS. CHARLES HURLING.

Mrs. Mary Hurling, wife of Charles Hurling, of East Fourth street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning. She was thirty years old, and had been a patient at the institution since May 3. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

ALL-DAY FAIR.

The little workers of the Little People's Circle of Kings' Daughters will give an all-day fair at the residence of Mrs. Titsworth, Hillside and Evergreen avenues. Fancy articles, cake and candy will be on sale.

The Men's Bible class of the Congregational church will have charge of the services at the Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue, left yesterday for a brief visit in Albany and Boston.

HOPE CHAPEL TEAM TO START SEASON

Will Play First Scheduled Game on Clinton Avenue Field Tomorrow.

The Hope chapel baseball team will open its season tomorrow afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds with the Park Avenue Baptist aggregation as its opponents. The game will probably start about 3:30 o'clock and a good exhibition is expected. "Dick" Schott and "Rope" VanZandt will be the opposing pitchers and from past performances already this year, both teams will have to work for runs, provided the slabmen are given any kind of support.

The Park team has already played several scheduled games while the Fourth street players have had one practice engagement. Moulton will do the backstop work for Park avenue while Hand will receive Schott. The teams will probably lineup as follows:

PRINCETON APPOLLOS VS. PLAINFIELD TOMORROW

The Plainfield High School baseball team faces a hard proposition tomorrow afternoon, when the Appollos, of Princeton, will invade Parker Field for nine innings of the national pastime. The team from Princeton represents an independent club which has a good reputation for putting out ball teams and they will probably send the best team here.

Plainfield has won five out of the last six games played and are anxious to keep up a good record all season. It will probably fall to Brick's lot to toss the ball over as Denny has worked once this week. O'Leary, who has been out since the Battin game when he sprained his ankle in practice, may be able to play but if not Dunham is a very able substitute.

The match will probably start at 10 o'clock. The local team will probably be composed of Hoyt Tomkinson, Elmer French, singles and doubles; Sherman Chandler, singles, with Dunning and Force subs.

FIRST BAPTISTS AT B. B.

The First Baptist nine will lineup against the Bound Brook baseball team, formerly the St. Joseph's, of Bound Brook, at that place tomorrow afternoon. The contest will be called at 3:30 o'clock and the local team will leave town on the 2:15 trolley. Patterson and Banks will form the battery for the Baptists.

P. H. S. VS. MONTCLAIR.

The P. H. S. tennis team is scheduled to go to Montclair tomorrow for matches with the high school racquet wielders of that place. The following players will probably take the trip: Curtis Dall, Rodman Parvin, Roscoe Blanchard and John Cottrell.

PARK CLUB OPENS.

Tennis and golf activities for the season will commence tomorrow afternoon, at the Park Golf Club.

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this season.

Arthur E. O'Leary, P. H. S.

Arthur O'Leary has been a member of the Plainfield School squad for three years, and is a born second baseman. He has always played around the keystone sack, getting his first experience with the West Ends and Y. M. H. A. He is a good batter and runner.

Two years ago he acted as a substitute on the team and played second in several of the games, including two of the big ones. Last year there was nothing to kick about in his playing, and he is back on the job at present, with one more year before him. He throws right handed and bats the same. O'Leary is eighteen years old and tips the scales at 145, and the best part of it all is he hails from Dunellen.

Ronald O. Conroy, N. P. H. S.

With three years yet before him in High School, Ronald Conroy, who held down second base last year, has a great chance to make good before him. "Connie" is a good all-around ball player, and is at present holding down the keystone sack to the satisfaction of all the borough supporters. In 1913 he was a "sub" on the team and played right field in several games, and also was given opportunity to play the infield in two of the P. H. S. games.

Last year, when Burner was shifted to first base, Conroy took second, and played there all season. He batted the ball for an average of .270. He first played ball with the Fairview C. C. team six years ago. He bats and throws right handed, is only sixteen years old and weighs 154 pounds.

SPORTING NOTES

Charley Cutler and Yussif Hussane meet on the mat in Louisville tonight for the wrestling title.

Ted Meredith, the "iron man" of the cinder path, will race in the Exposition meet at Frisco in August.

London has another 20-round bout next Monday, when Bandsman Blake will swap blows with Pat O'Keefe, who showed good form in America two years ago.

The New York State League opened its season yesterday, with Utica at Albany, Syracuse at Troy, Scranton at Binghamton, and Wilkesbarre at Elmira.

The annual dual track meet between the University of Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson College took place at Pittsburg today.

Twenty-seven miles of seats are provided for the new Sheepshead Bay motordrome, work on which is now under-way.

Eleven pitchers now in the big leagues have pitched no-hit games. Mathewson turned the trick twice and Rube Marquard is the latest recruit to the bunch.

Sport is reviving fast in England. The sporting papers are again being published, and the ban on sport is being gradually lifted.

The Stanford crew will journey from the Pacific coast to the regatta at Poughkeepsie to meet the crack college crews of the east.

Horsemen are gathering in Louisville for Derby Day, which is tomorrow. The biggest field in the history of the classic is expected to start.

Joe Mandot meets Len Rowlands, of Milwaukee, in a 10-round bout in New Orleans next Monday night, and fights Johnny Griffiths at Memphis a week later.

The three cornered race between Columbia, Pennsylvania and Princeton will be rowed at Princeton tomorrow. A week later, Cornell, Yale and Princeton row at Ithaca.

The auto speeders gather at Salem, Ore., tomorrow for a big track meet, and a week later will show their speed at Vancouver, Wash.

The Boston Braves do not look so formidable this spring as they did last fall. Stallings is not worrying, but awaits hot weather when the real race begins.

P. C. C. GOLF.

At the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow afternoon, an 18-hole handicap match play will be held.

N. P. H. S. MEETS KEARNY ON HYDE OVAL TOMORROW

Kearny and North Plainfield High School ball tossers will meet for the first time this season on Hyde Oval, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The team from the suburbs of Newark has defeated some strong teams already this season and will come here in a revengeful mood for the 17 to 14 beating they received at Kearny last season in the rain and mud.

Hebert, who was injured in Monday's game with High Bridge, will probably be on the bench with Kirch in the left garden, while Ernest Stahl will do the twirling. He will probably be opposed by Higginbothem, Kearny's star slabman. Stahl has had several days' good rest and should be in his best condition.

ROSY OUTLOOK FOR RUNYON IN BIG NEWARK MEETING

Ralph Runyon, the Plainfield High School athlete, will compete against a classy field of schoolboy athletes at the Princeton Club games, which will be held on the Newark Academy Field tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Runyon has been entered in two events, the running high jump and the pole vault. By those who have been following up the entry list, Runyon is conceded the pole vault event before he starts and he may also show the way in the high jump.

In the pole vault, which is Runyon's specialty, he has a fine chance of breaking the record, which is 10 feet, 10¾ inches, made in 1910 by E. A. Hill, of Newark Academy. The record for the high jump is 5 feet, 10¾ inches.

BRANTINGHAM VICTOR IN "RUBBER" SHOOTING SETTO

Thomas Brantingham, of Park avenue, and Thomas Howard, of Peapack, held a "rubber" shoot at Brantingham's traps, yesterday afternoon, which was won by the local man by three birds. The score was 80 to 77. This concludes the competition between these two men who were shooting for a fifty-dollar cash prize. Brantingham won two out of three shoots.

In the quoit match, for $10, Howard won by ten points, the score being 50 to 40. He won all three of the quoit matches, which were held in connection with the shoots. Another series of shoots may be arranged between these two.

BRUGGY IN N. Y. STATE LEAGUE.

Frank Bruggy, formerly of this city, who was released by the Boston Braves last week, made his appearance in the lineup of the Troy Club, of the New York State League, in the opening game against Syracuse Wednesday. Though Frank is a catcher, he performed at first base for the Trojans, and accepted eleven out of twelve chances. He did not get a hit, but scored a run after receiving a base on balls. Bruggy played with Gloversville, in the New York State Basketball League, until the organization became defunct toward the end of last season.

GERARD LOSES TO YALE.

Heavy and timely hitting, aided by daring base running, enabled Yale to defeat Lafayette at New Haven, yesterday, by a score of 5 to 2 with Gerard, the former High Bridge High School twirler, pitching for the losers. Gerard allowed eight hits and pitched better ball than his opponent, Dumpelly, who was wild and in bad places several times. Lafayette collected nine safeties off his delivery. Gerard made two hits out of three trips to the plate, and also made one putout and one assist.

WESTFIELD TEAM LOSES.

The Westfield women's golf team, playing in the consolation division of the championship tournament being held by the Metropolitan Women's Golf Association, lost to the Essex County team on the latter's course, yesterday, the score being 7 to 1. Mrs. Mettlach scored the lone point for Westfield. The members of the Westfield team were Mrs. Mettlach, Mrs. M. T. E. Manvel, Mrs. H. Gardiner and Mrs. A. P. Clement.

KAUFF REINSTATED.

French Lick, May 7—Benny Kauff will be reinstated and will play with the Brooklyn Federals, beginning today, according ton an announcement made here tonight by James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal League.

COLLEGE BASEBALL.

CLIFF RANDOLPH WILL HEAVE AGAINST YANKEES

One of the best games of the year for Perth Amboy fans is scheduled for Sunday, between the New York Yankees and the Perth Amboy club. "Cliff" Randolph, of this city, who has pitched and won three elegant games for Perth Amboy this season, is slated to pitch against the Highlanders. Randolph is likely to give the "big leaguers" the battle of their lives and if the Perth Amboy club gives him good backing he might succeed in defeating them. Randolph is the most popular pitcher who has ever twirled ball in Amboy and the fans will root hard for him Sunday.

The Yankees will send all of their first string players, including Captain Peckinpaugh, Lute Boone, Charley Mullen, Peddy Baumann, Roy Hartzell, "Doc" Cook, High, Nunamaker, Warhop and Brown.

NO GAME FOR LEAL.

According to the Leal baseball schedule the private school team is due for an idle day tomorrow. The Columbia Grammar School, of New York, is the next game booked, and it will take place on Crescent Oval.

PLAYERS WANT SWEATERS.

The Boys' Athletic Association, of the Plainfield High School, will meet tomorrow to decide whether or not the members of the basketball team will be awarded sweaters.

BERRY ALL AROUND CHAMP.

Nineteen-year-old Lad Has Made Great Name For Himself.

A sturdy youngster representing the University of Pennsylvania named Howard Berry proved himself the best collegiate athlete in America and may be the best in the world when he won the pentathlon, the all around contest, at the Penn relay championships

He weighs 155 pounds and is rather small, being only five feet eight and one-half inches in height, but despite his youth and small build he outsped, outjumped and outthrew a quintet of opponents, every one of whom was a giant in comparison.

REMARKABLE WATER FEAT.

Frank Wood, Toronto University Student, Wins Four Swimming Titles.

Frank Wood of the University of Toronto recently captured four swimming races in the Canadian championships, decided in the Central Y. M. C. A. pool, Toronto. He won the 50 yards, 100 yards, 500 yards and 1,000 yards back.

Cobb Is at It Again.

Ty Cobb is still playing the brand of baseball that made him famous as the world's greatest ball player. In a recent game he was up three times, made a triple and double, scored three runs, had four putouts and one assist.

STARTLING FINISH OF TWO-MILE RELAY RACE AT PHILADELPHIA ATHLETIC MEET

THE effect of the acting in "Trilby," an eight star presentation of a play famous twenty years ago, is one of the most notable in the history of the American stage. That there is no lack of interest in a drama with romantic, wholesome human appeal is shown by capacity audiences that crowd the Shubert theater, in New York, from top to bottom at every performance. Appreciation of the artistic characterizations is proved by demonstrations of enthusiasm such as are rare in the modern theater. As one writer of national renown has well expressed it: "'Trilby' is twenty years old. Shavians, highbrows, Ibsenites, Hauptmannites, Sudermannites, Granvillebarkerites and other improvers and elevators of the drama are respectfully invited to walk around New York to see if they can find any more legitimate use of the stage in its various functions than they can find in the presentation of 'Trilby.'"

It is an adroit association of famous stars that Joseph Brooks and the Messrs. Shubert have effected in the present revival. There is combined the brilliant accomplishment of players who represent two generations—the polished art of veterans and the buoyant spirit of youth. Phyllis Neilson-Terry, who was barely out of her cradle when Du Maurier wrote his romance of the Quartier Latin, gives the the first true stage presentation of the character of Trilby as the author imagined and described it. Physically, spiritually and in her altogether unique revelation of acting and singing she completely realizes the role of the model. Wilton Lackaye, the original Svengali, acts the swarthy, sinister hypnotist with ripened art, with commanding power, with marvelous visualization of the half mad musician and with a thrilling intensity. Two others of the original cast appear, Leo Ditrichstein as the mercurial, cynical Zou-Zou, a very cameo of great characterization and Burr McIntosh as big brawny Taffy, who is as lovable as ever. There is splendid realization of Du Maurier types by Taylor Holmes, a popular young comedian who moves to tears by the pathos of the devoted Gecko; by Brandon Tynan, who thrills and vibrates with the youthful intensity of Little Billee, and by George MacFarlane, whose rugged humor as the Laird o' Cockpen is supplemented by delightful singing of ballads. Rose Coghlan as Mme. Vinard sustains the best traditions of the stage with which she has been identified for half a century. One of the great novelties of this revival of an eternal love story, aglow with passion and humanity, is the new staging of the concert scene. From between red velvet curtains, as in the story, Miss Terry, in classic robe, is led upon the stage by Mr. Lackaye as Svengali. She follows his baton with the fixed stare of hypnotic suggestion as he descends into the orchestra pit and conducts her music. It is the real Trilby who interprets the plaintive ballad "Ben Bolt" and rouses the audience to storms of applause with her trills and phrasing and phenomenal high note—nothing less than G in alt—in a florid operatic selection. She is the one actress of the period who combines great dramatic and musical gifts. Naturally this situation is electric in its effect, for it has an element of surprise.

THE NATION'S CAPITOL.

Main Dimensions of Our Beautiful Building In Washington.

Our national capitol at Washington is a beautiful and impressive building. It fronts east and stands on a plateau eighty-eight feet above the level of the Potomac. The entire length of the building from north to south is 751 feet 4 inches, and its greatest dimension from east to west is 350 feet. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

The dome of the original central building was constructed of wood, covered with copper. This was replaced in 1856 by the present structure of cast iron. It was completed in 1865. The entire weight of iron used is 8,909,200 pounds. The dome is crowned by a bronze statue of Freedom, which is 10 feet 6 inches high and weighs 14,985 pounds.

The height of the dome above the base line of the east front is 287 feet 5 inches. The height from the top of the balustrade of the building is 217 feet 11 inches. The greatest diameter at the base is 135 feet 5 inches. The rotunda is 97 feet 6 inches in diameter and its height from the floor to the top of the canopy is 180 feet 3 inches.

The senate chamber is 113 feet 3 inches in length by 83 feet 3 inches in width and 36 feet in height. The galleries will accommodate 1,000 persons. The representatives' hall is 139 feet in length by 93 feet in width and 36 feet in height.—Philadelphia Press.

PLANETS AND OUR WEATHER.

Despite Popular Belief There Is No Connection Between Them.

That the planets and the moon have an effect upon the weather on the earth is a common belief. This belief is baseless, for all changes of weather depend upon differences in temperature.

Rainfall is due to the accumulation of water in the atmosphere. This water can accumulate only by being evaporated from the surface of the earth. And evaporation requires heat. Winds also are due to heat—greater warmth in one place than in another causing the air to rush toward where the warm air is rising.

If the moon and the planets could furnish heat they might affect the weather. But the heat they furnish is so infinitesimally small that it is not enough to change the temperature an appreciable fraction of a degree. The amount of heat they send us has actually been measured, but it needed the most delicately sensitive of instruments to perceive it.

Another proof that neither the planets nor the moon have any effect upon our weather is that careful comparisons of the weather with the positions of the planets and the moon show that there is no relation between them. If there were we should have the same weather when the planets were in the same position, which is not the case.—New York World.

Japan's Good Roads.

Japan is peculiarly well off in respect of good highways. The Tokaido, which runs from Kioto to Tokyo, is over 300 miles in length and, as the writer can testify, is admirably constructed. There is also the Nakasendo, which is even longer and passes through some of the finest scenery in the world. The reason of Japan's excellence in the matter of roads is that in the old days, not so very long ago, the daimios, or territorial nobles, had to journey to Tokyo once a year in order to pay their respects to the sovereign. They traveled by road, with great retinues, and if the highways were not in perfect condition, feudal justice was meted out to the delinquents.—London Spectator.

Good Company.

As friends and companions, as teachers and consolers, as recreators and amusers, books are always with us and always ready to respond to our wants. We can take them with us in our wanderings or gather them around us at our firesides. In the lonely wilderness and the crowded city their spirit will be with us, giving a meaning to the seemingly confused movements of humanity and peopling the desert with their own bright creations.—John Alfred Langford.

Rescued by Nature.

"Were you ever lost in the woods?"

"Almost."

"Who rescued you?"

"Nature."

"What do you mean?"

"The wind was blowing so hard that the girl didn't hear me when I proposed."—London Standard.

Smoked Ceilings.

Smoke from a lamp or gas often soils a ceiling in the one particular spot, while the rest remains beautifully white. It is useful to know that soiled ceilings caused by lamp and gas will be rendered less conspicuous if rubbed over with dry whiting.

Just What He Meant.

"Is the rain still keeping up?"

"Why, what d'ye mean? I haven't seen any rain."

"That's what I asked you, if it was still keeping up?"—Exchange.

Cheap.

"Mrs. Gabby just loves to indulge in cheap talk."

"Then let her try a little conversation on the line between New York and San Francisco."—New York Times.

Children of Today.

"If you don't give me a piece of your chocolate, Edith, I'll tell mamma that you are secretly engaged."—Fliegende Blatter (Munich).

Thanks to the popularity of the stylish new "putty" or sand color, Chinese pongee is fashion's favorite fabric for the Spring and Summer season of 1915.

Anticipating the demand months ago, we increased our importations of this unique Oriental material, and offer for selection the most comprehensive stock of genuine Chinese pongee we have ever carried.

Included is the natural colored pongee in a variety of weights to suit all purposes, and printed pongee in all of the season's most popular colors and designs.

For tailored suits, for afternoon frocks, or for room costumes, there is nothing smarter than Chinese pongee, while for sport suits, waists, children's dresses and play suits, it is the ideal fabric.

Mail orders filled promptly. Samples mailed upon request.

situations and there will be plenty of entertainment provided for each type of play lover.

Harold Davis
"Arthur Gower"

The action is laid in London in the early "sixties." The story depicts Miss Dorothy Simons, taking the role of an "actress" falling in love with the son of a wealthy Londoner.

Miss Dorothy Simons
"Rose Trelawny"

This fussy old gentleman objects to the match when the couple are spending the days previous to the marriage at the old man's house in Cavinish Square. There are so many rules to observe that "Rose," the bride-to-be, is driven to dispair. That night, in a terrible thunder-storm, "Rose" is visited by her gay friends of the theatre who awake the old man. They are chased out of the house and "Rose" goes with them, promising never to return. Her fiance, "Arthur Gower," is so angered by his father's action that he goes on the stage. In his son's absence the old man becomes reconciled to Rose through a peculiar incident. Later, Rose and Arthur meet at a rehearsal for a new play. At the same time Arthur's father comes in, and after a little trouble, they all go home to Cavinish Square, and live happily forever after.

Library Notes.

Furnished by the Directors of Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room.

Published Every Friday.

One hears, now and then, of national prejudice extending itself to books. For instance books of German origin are not supposed to be very popular just now in England. It appears, however, that the literary taste of the German soldier at the front is not limited by the question of nationality. The Publishers Weekly states that in the demand for fiction from the German troops, Dickens heads the list. This report, based on statistics from German publishing houses, classifies the reading of the German soldier as follows: 48 % fiction and 19 % serious reading, the balance being made up of miscellaneous material.

Winston Churchill has written a new book on sociological questions just as his last novel, "The Inside of the Cup," was concerned with religious controversies. He has taken for his title a quotation from the parable of "The Prodigal Son" and his book, entitled, "A Far Country," is expected to come out early in June.

At the head of nearly all book lists during the last two or three months, has been Booth Tarkington's book, "The Turmoil." This is a story of a midland city of the middle west, but the author has evidently intended that it shall not portray any particular place but shall be a composite picture. It is a story of a town where wealth is better loved than higher things, and where the rush for money has overcome simplicity and other virtues. The story is a protest against the materialistic spirit which animates much of our city civilization, and against that cheap form of advertisement, municipal and otherwise, which at the bottom is common and vulgar. Notwithstanding the purpose which is back of it, the story is as simple and fresh as a fairy story and the hero and heroine are very attractive figures. It is a story to be read and enjoyed.

How many of these authors do you know? A writer who has been widely quoted for his essays on the new English authors, has prepared a list of English writers now living whose names and books every English speaking person is supposed to know. This list, which is confined to the single realm of fiction, includes no less than seventy-six British novelists. These are divided into two classes, first, those whose names and places may be considered as established and fixed. This list includes the following:

Thomas Hardy, Arnold Bennett, Henry James, H. G. Wells, Rudyard Kipling, John Galsworthy, W. J. Locke, George Moore, Joseph Conrad, A. Conan Doyle, Gilbert Parker, Maurice Hewlett, Bernard Shaw, Gilbert Chesterton, Israel Zangwill, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Horace Annesley Vachell, James M. Barrie, Leonard Merrick, May Sinclair, A. E. W. Mason, Francis Grierson, George Birmingham, Frank Harris, William De Morgan, Baroness Orczy, Robert Hichens, Eden Phillpotts, Marie Corelli, Hall Caine, Florence Barclay, E. P. Oppenheim, Charles Garvice, Algernon Blackwood, E. F. Benson, W. W. Jacobs, J. J. Bell, Arthur Quiller-Couch, Richard Dehan, Lucas Malet, Justin H. McCarthy, Anthony Hope, The Castles, The Williamsons, E. W. Hornung, H. Belloc.

The second list comprises the names of those who, while they have achieved distinction, cannot be regarded as fixed stars in the constellation of authors:

Hugh Walpole, Oliver Onions, Compton Mackenzie, Gilbert Cannan, J. D. Beresford, Frank Swinnerton, F. Tennyson Jesse, D. H. Lawrence, John Trevana, J. Macdougall Hay, W. S. Maugham, W. Dane Bank, W. B. Maxwell, W. L. George, Coningsby Dawson, Morley Roberts, Pett Ridge, James Stephens, Horace Newte, Barry Pain, Cosmo Hamilton, Perceval Gibbon, Edgar Wallace, A. M. Hutchinson, Jeffery Farnol, Patrick MacGill, H. C. Bailey, J. C. Snaith, Charles Marriott, John Palmer.

It would be interesting perhaps to some readers to check off the names of those whose works they are familiar with, and perhaps to secure the books of some of those with whom they are not yet acquainted.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

THEATREGOERS TO ENJOY RARE TREAT

Three of Charles Frohman's Stars Coming in Revival of "Diplomacy."

A trio of famous stars, made up of such distinguished favorites as William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro, is Charles Frohman's alluring announcement as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre on Thursday, May 13. This triumvirate will be seen in Mr. Frohman's revival of Victorien Sardou's "Diplomacy." The coming of even one of the Frohman players in a theatrical year is an event to local playgoers, but the arrival of three in one production must be admitted as an important occasion, to say the least. Added importance is attached to the association of these players since it marks the return to the stage of Mr. Gillette after a retirement of four years. Mr. Frohman's success in inducing the famous portrayer of "Sherlock Holmes" to appear again is a matter of hearty congratulation among theatregoers. The actor's last appearances were in 1910, in revivals of his "Secret Service," "The Private Secretary" and "Sherlock Holmes." The event also brings about the return to America of Miss Doro after a lengthy season in London. In the British metropolis she was seen in the same role she is to play here. Her final English triumph came when she was "Commanded" to appear in "Diplomacy" before the King and Queen at Windsor. Miss Bates, in the role of Countess Zicka, has met with one of the most emphatic successes of her distinguished career. Sardou's character gives her ample opportunities for the display of those magnetic and forceful qualities to which she owes her renown.

Victorien Sardou's play needs no extended comment on its inherent worth. Since its first performance in America in 1878 it has become a classic, renowned for its vivid characterizations, crispness of dialogue, subtlety of plot and the enthralling interest with which the author holds his hearers' attention as he unfolds a gripping and absorbing story.

For surrounding roles Mr. Frohman has supplied such capable players as Bertha Fordyce, Jeffreys Lewis, Malise Sheridan, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Elliott Dexter, Norman Tharp, Giogio Majeroni, Henry Dornton and Ellis Smedley.

THAMATURGY TO MYSTIFY PATRONS

Mrs. Eva Fay Will Exhibit Her Wonderful Powers at Proctor's Next Week.

Mrs. Eva Fay, the high priestess of the weird art of "Thaumaturgy," heading the bill, and another long list of unusually fine attractions backing her up, the patrons of Proctor's Theatre look forward to a notable engagement beginning next Monday. Mrs. Fay is perhaps too well known in Plainfield to require any great explanation of her wonderful demonstrations. Her visit last year, when she broke the Proctor Theatre's record for attendance, introduced this world-famed daughter of mystery to our theatre-goers and one is not apt to forget the impressive nature of her work. Seated on a raised dais, Mrs. Fay rapidly calls the names of those who have written questions either on their programs or on paper otherwise supplied, and in short terse sentences answers the most personal questions that have been troubling the seekers of knowledge, and eighty per cent. of the answers are correct. Mrs. Fay is one of the most learned persons in the world in the psychic and occult lines. A real daughter of India and her absolutely puzzling and astounding powers were taught her by the Indian Yogis. Years and years of concentration and study are required before any advancement can be made in the science and while something like ten years of her life have been devoted to deep study, the strides she has made surpasses that of many Yogis who have spent their entire lives in attaining the desired pinnacle. Mrs. Fay possesses natural gifts that make her seem uncanny, yet claims nothing for her work, other than to give entertainment. If you have any question on your mind that you need help in solving ask Mrs. Fay; it may be possible that she can show you the light.

GIMBEL Cold-Air Fur Storage---2 Per Cent.

An Afternoon Coat by Bernard
The model that is considered his best this season

Reproduced in Callot Satin, $29.50

To combine the ideas of two of the leading Paris couturiers is unusual at such a moderate price, is it not? Drecoll's model is considered a masterpiece in lines, and Callot has stood sponsor for this new satin with a very high lustre. We adopted this silk because its brilliance emphasizes the beauty of the coat's lines.

Silk Jersey Coats, Trimmed with Fur, $25 to $47.50

The Sport Coats at $25 are stunning with linen frocks; the Russian Coats at $27.50 to $47.50 are exceedingly attractive with afternoon frocks. Every Coat is trimmed with White Iceland Fox, which is so effective and summery. In green, gold and other new colors.

Coats of the New "Waterfall Silk," $25 to $50

$14.50 "Waterfall" Coats
The new Sport model, with patch pockets and sash; collar and facings of checked, striped or flowered silk. Stunning colors.

$3.75 Corduroy Coats
In the new colors. Predictions promise that these will be the most popular coats this Summer for beach and country wear.

BROADWAY AND THIRTY-THIRD STREET

THE MASTER MIND

Novelized by Marvin Dana, author of "Within the Law," from the successful play by Daniel D. Carter

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

"It was a small chance, a mighty small one, that you two should ever meet again, the little, friendless waif of the city and the brilliant man of the world. Yet so it was to be. Yes; it was for this purpose that I took the house here. For this same purpose I have created a family for you, Lucene, to take the place of the one you lost when you were a mere child. I have provided for you a father, a mother, a brother. Even I have made for you a blameless past—a past that will stand all the scrutiny it is ever likely to receive and more."

Nevertheless the girl, even in the face of these astonishing revelations, held her chief interest on that ideal around which had clustered the dearest reveries of her heart through the years. So now she made no comment, only:

"Does he remember me?"

"Much more than that," Andrew asserted briskly. "He has tried again and again to find you. Since my having you in charge it has been, of course, impossible for him to learn anything of you. But now the time has come to reveal you."

The girl's face darkened a little.

"Oh," she cried, grieved, "why didn't you let him find me, when you knew that I?" Her voice broke piteously.

"In order, first, to educate and train you, so that there could be no question as to your fitness, your standing as a woman of refinement and breeding; and, secondly, to gain time for the blotting out of a past which, though you yourself were absolutely innocent, would have forever kept you apart from him."

The girl acquiesced by silence in the justice of her guardian's reasoning.

"And you really—really do know him?" she questioned.

"At least I have seen him, and I know that he exists right here in this very city just now," Andrew replied, smiling again.

"Oh! And don't you, too, admire him—ever so much?"

Fortunately for the girl's peace of mind she did not see the unlovely hardening of the man's face. But his self control was strong.

"Why, once he unknowingly rendered me a great service, and I—well, I desire to return it in kind."

"You mean, without letting him know?" In her eagerness the girl looked up into Andrew's face.

"Yes," came the glib explanation. "You see, Lucene, that's what these old clothes of mine mean. You will please remember that for the present I am merely Andrew Watkins, your brother's valet and confidential man."

"Oh, Mr. Andrew," she objected with some embarrassment, "don't you see that you're asking me to deceive him?"

"My dear little girl," he declared gently, "I am only doing my best to give you a fair chance of happiness."

The Master Mind walked away from his ward to where the call button was set in the wall. He pushed it to notify Parker that it was time for Walter's presence in the library.

Walter came into the room with curiosity writ large on his boyish face.

Andrew addressed the girl suavely.

"Permit me, Lucene, to introduce to you your brother, Mr. Walter Blount."

Walter strode forward and heartily shook the hand she reluctantly yielded to his proffered clasp.

"How do you do, Luce?" he exclaimed, with a brotherly familiarity highly distasteful to her.

Andrew frowned as he watched the airy intimacy of manner assumed by Walter. He again touched the bell call and spoke to Lucene.

"Parker will take you to Mrs. Blount," he said.

The girl went rather hastily out of the room.

The face of Andrew was forbidding as he spoke to Walter.

"You perceive," he said sharply, "that this young lady is not of your class. You must understand that thoroughly, and you must remember it, sir. Never presume."

The thief scowled heavily.

Andrew continued:

"When Wainwright comes and the conversation begins, you must bear in mind my written directions for your guidance." He went close to the door into the hall. "Now, if I stand in the position corresponding to this in the drawing room, then, according to your instructions, in my memorandum for you, what form of conversation must you adopt?"

Walter answered with the alert confidence of a schoolboy, sure that his lesson has been well conned:

"The lonely stranger gag."

Andrew moved to the end of the library table and paused there.

"And if I stand by the large table there?" he demanded.

"The gay White Way."

The teacher went to one of the windows at the end of the room.

"And here?"

"The hard to get acquainted gag. But just the same, you'll find this work all for nothing," Walter declared aggressively, in a new access of rebellion.

Parker appeared in the doorway, announcing visitors.

"Mr. Wainwright, sir, and Dr. Forbes, asking for Mr. Walter Blount."

CHAPTER VII.

In the Toils.

As Wainwright and his friend, Dr. Forbes, sat waiting in the house of which the titular head was Mr. Walter Blount of Laramie, Wyo., Andrew entered the drawing room, wearing his deferential aspect of the old family retainer, somewhat inclined to garrulity.

"Mr. Blount has been informed of your call, sirs," he said. "He will see you, sirs, at once." He bowed again. "I hope, sirs, you won't mind if I go on with a few bits of my work here, as it's so late."

"Oh, certainly not," Wainwright said, indifferently. Next came the entrance of Walter, who halted just within the doorway, and looked from one to the other of his guests, in obvious perplexity between the two as to which might be Mr. Wainwright. That gentleman, standing up and smiling, went forward with his hand outstretched.

"I am Mr. Wainwright," he said, as he shook hands with his host, "and I must tell you that I'm mighty glad to meet you—again!" The emphasis on the last word was significant. Then, he turned toward the physician: "This is Dr. Forbes, a particular friend of mine, who was good enough to accompany me. He is the superintendent of the Powhattan asylum for the insane."

The three men were seated near one another.

"I called," Wainwright explained simply, "in order to deliver in person the thanks you were at such pains to escape last night."

Walter beamed pleasantly.

"Oh, that's all right," he exclaimed, breezily. "Of course, I knew you tonight the minute I caught sight of your face, though the name didn't explain anything to me when your card was brought. I only did what any one would. It's not worth mentioning."

"My dear sir," Wainwright returned earnestly, "I must insist on mentioning it. Why, but for you I should surely have been shot. You struck up that fellow's hand just in time."

"Awfully glad I happened along as I did," Walter said genially. "Have they caught the man?" he inquired interestedly after Andrew had served lights to the smokers.

Wainwright shook his head.

"No, I'm sorry to say, they have not," he replied with disgust in his voice. "The scoundrel really made a wonderful getaway. And that reminds me, Mr. Blount—how did you contrive to disappear so soon?"

"Why, the fact is," he said with an assumption of great candor, "I'm a stranger in New York, and I knew, of course, there'd be a big hullabaloo about a thing like this, and I hate notoriety—police courts and so on, you understand—newspapers too. So when I saw the fellow that attacked you had skipped I had the idea that I'd do the same thing, though for a different reason. I just mixed in the crowd a minute and then slipped around the corner into the next block and came home." He chuckled complacently and then added, in order to change the topic, "But how'd you manage to find me?"

"Well, now," Wainwright answered, "that's a bit odd too. An anonymous person called me up on the telephone at my place last night after I got back, said he'd been among those present at my little adventure, had seen my rescuer and had guessed afterward that I might like to know who it was, and he gave me your name and address."

NEW COIFFURE COMBS CLING TO THE HEAD.

Not half so smart, is the comb that stands out from the hair in conspicuous alertness, as the new "clinging comb" which becomes part of the graceful line of the coiffure. One of these new curved combs is pictured here. An oddly shaped affair it is of tortoise-shell and white metal with an inset design of tiny rhinestones. The curve of the shell comb corresponds with the curve of the head and the three prongs of white metal and rheinstones are most effective against the soft waves of hair. Such a comb demands a very simple coiffure; the hair is waved and drawn back close to the head, not tightly, but absolutely without any artificial aid to bouffancy underneath.

UNDERWEAR FOR THE SPRING WARDROBE.

No. 8604.

The delight of comfort cannot be reckoned in words. Who has not experienced that sweet sense of satisfaction that comes from the realization that one has been so comfortable as to have been entirely oblivious of one's physical self? Satisfaction of this kind is due, in a large measure—particularly during the hot humid summer months—to the clothes one wears. It is important that, first of all, the underwear be right. Ladies' Home Journal pattern No. 8604 shown above is a pleasing illustration of correct design. It is a combination corset cover and closed drawers, and cuts in sizes 32 to 44. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material, 3¼ yards of beading, 4½ yards of edging and 5¾ yards of ribbon.

With Ladies' Home Journal transfer pattern No. 14509, a very attractive embroidery design may be worked on the garment in solid stitch or eyelets. This is most attractive embroidered on crepe-de-chine, lawn or batiste. The opening at the side of the leg may be finished with a bow of ribbon to match that in the neck of the garment. The pattern for this corset-cover and drawer combination comes in sizes 32 to 44 inches, bust measure, and the embroidery pattern comes in one size only.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"What are you giving that baby?" asked Dick in irritated tones, picking up and reading the label. "Surely not soothing syrup!"

"Now, don't get excited over what you know nothing about," retorted Nell, who was trembling with weariness, for the last two hours of strain had utterly unnerved her. "It's far better to give him this than to have him scream himself hoarse and perhaps do himself terrible injury."

"If he is sick, call the doctor; don't go to experimenting on him. I would not have believed it of you."

"Do you think I would do anything to hurt him?" gasped Nell, sinking down on the side of the bed. "There, he is quieter already. Mrs. Brown said she used it with all her children; that all mothers did. It never hurts them."

"Mrs. Brown!" snorted Dick. "I tell you I will not have the baby put to sleep with laudanum. That's what it is. Do you suppose a baby can be doped with stuff like that and not be injured by it? It dulls the brain."

"How do you know there is laudanum in it?" asked Nell. "I do not believe it."

"The formula is known. Mothers give it to save themselves trouble."

"Dick Morton, that's not fair," said Nell, tears springing to her eyes. "Mrs. Brown heard him crying away over at her house this morning and came to see what was the matter. She said he might hurt himself permanently and——"

"Why didn't you call the doctor, then?"

"The last time he had such a crying spell the doctor did him no good. He said it was acute indigestion. Besides, I dislike to call him often since you told me your interpretation of Mrs. Ellson's dislike for me."

"Do you mean her jealousy? I think I'd let a thing like that keep me from calling a doctor to see a sick baby! I'm surprised at you, Nell, and as for this——" He took the bottle of soothing syrup and hurled it out of the door. "Now that's the last of that stuff. You agree to that, don't you?"

Nell had thrown herself across the bed and was crying softly.

"Poor little girl, you are all used up. Now get right to bed and have a good sleep while the little fellow is quiet," said Dick, smoothing the tumbled hair. She did not move, she was crying with her face buried in the pillow.

"Come, dear," urged Dick, "I'll help you to bed." He lifted her and saw the tear-stained face. "Now, don't cry, dear. You have no strength to waste in tears. I am looking everywhere for a maid. You must have help."

"It surely doesn't help to be told that I am thinking only of myself and doing what will hurt the baby to save myself trouble," sobbed Nell.

"I didn't say that, dear. What I did say was that some mothers used the stuff to save themselves trouble."

"And I had used it. It's the same thing."

"There now, you are all used up; you must not talk. Put your kimona on and I will read you a story. That will quiet you and refresh me. We haven't read a thing together since the little rascal came." He helped her into the kimona, half carried her to the living room and sat down with her in a big easy chair, shading her eyes from the light. She could feel the smooth white collar against her forehead, and the comforting roughness of his coat as she dozed off, lulled by the smooth intoning of his voice as he read.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Why Endymion Always Sleeps.

She Fell In Love With Him.

"I'M going to tell you another Greek myth tonight, kiddies," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn.

"Oh, good!" cried the small ones. "We liked the one about Apollo, the sun god."

"Well, this one is about Endymion, who, so we have been told, was a shepherd lad of great beauty, who used to tend great flocks of sheep on Mount Latmus.

"The goddess of the moon, Artemis, or Selene, as she is sometimes called, saw Endymion lying asleep one evening. She fell in love with him and would visit him every evening after that and sit beside him and talk and laugh and help him tend his sheep.

"Zeus, the great god of the wide hung sky, hearing of this, condemned Endymion to death. This was the usual punishment of a mortal who was so unfortunate as to win the love of an immortal.

"But Artemis begged a favor of the great god Zeus. She asked that instead of death Endymion might be given eternal sleep. Her plea was granted, and now the youth sleeps on forever young and fair, while Artemis tends his flocks and looks upon his beautiful face with tender memories.

"Now, of course, Endymion is the setting sun in Greek mythology, and Artemis is the moon, the young and slender moon of the western sky, looking with eyes of love at the tender beauty of the twilight hour, and the flocks of sheep are the fleecy clouds.

"You see, kiddies, the Greeks were very clever in the way they told their stories. They saw that the setting sun was only going to sleep, that the next day would see it back again in all its glory, and so when the god Zeus condemned Endymion to death the writer of the myth was obliged to have his sentence changed to sleep.

"So you see, kiddies, that the great Greek myths are only little bits of everyday life put into story forms to make life more interesting.

"A great English writer, Keats, wrote a poem and called it 'Endymion,' and a Mr. H. O. Walker painted a picture which was inspired by Keats' poem. This picture is now in the Congressional library at Washington.

"The Greeks loved Nature, and certainly we know from the Greek literature that they knew how to write about her.

"Thunder was the voice of Zeus, and the lightning was his destructive bolts. So you see, kiddies, the people were instructed as well as amused by these fascinating Greek myths, as millions have been and will be."

Household Hints

ALMOND FLOUR CAKES

Almonds and other oily nuts have the advantage of containing very little objectionable material, and at the same time very good cakes and biscuits may be made from them when reduced to a state of flour. Almond flour may be bought, but is not sufficiently fine to produce the best results, and it is also often not quite fresh. The best method of preparing almonds: Blanch as usual, and rub them through a wire sieve. It will be found that the almonds will pass through much better some little time after blanching, as at first they are soft and moist.

A little of each almond remains; these bits may be used for putting on the tops of cakes, and it is not worth while trying to rub them through.

Brazil nuts may also be reduced sufficiently fine for making cakes. Shell them, remove all the brown skin with a knife, and rub through sieve, as for almonds. They are very troublesome to rub, owing to their excessive oiliness, but cakes made with the flour are better than those made of almond flour.

Any other oily nuts may be treated the same way.

Spiced Almond Cakes—Take two eggs, beat yolks and whites separately; mix one teaspoon mixed spice with tablespoon of milk and add it to yolks; stir in three teaspoons almond flour and one tablespoon sugar, adding whites of eggs last. Bake some blanched bitter almonds in hot oven till brown, then chop them coarsely. Bake cakes in patty pans, with bitter almonds sprinkled on top of each.

Almond Cakes—Take half pound almonds, pound them fine as possible in a mortar; three eggs, whip very well, whites and yolks separately. Shake almonds into yolks of eggs, beating quickly all the time; add pinch of salt and whites of the eggs. Butter some patty pans well and with two forks drop mixture on them. Bake in moderate oven until crisp. If these cakes are preferred sweet, use sugar instead of salt.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Telephone Calls—One member of a family works in a business office where detail has been systematized, that has worked very well in the home—a telephone blank to be filled out with the name and message of the person calling. At the office, of course, printed forms were used, but we use typewritten blanks, which work as well. The form is:

Telephone calls for .....
From .....
Times .....
Message .....

When a call comes the person answering the phone fills out the blank and puts it on a small hook near the phone to await the coming of the person for whom the information is intended. As we come in from work, school or social calls, we inspect the telephone spindle to see if there are any blanks for us. It saves trouble and the embarrassment of forgotten numbers.

Good Soap to Clean and Brighten Dingy-Looking Rugs and Carpets—Six quarts rainwater, one cake good white soap, two ounces borax, two ounces salsoda, one handful salt. Allow this to come to boiling point and add one ounce glycerin. Remove from fire, let cool and add two ounces aqua ammonia. Dissolve one cup soap in one quart boiling water. Apply to carpet with scrub brush. Sponge off with sponge or cloth wrung from clean warm water.

ORANGE MARMALADE

This is the last month to make this marmalade. It is especially good to use in summer luncheons.

Use two oranges, two lemons, one grapefruit. Use peel of oranges and lemons and one-half peel of grapefruit. Chop fine. Cut pulp of fruit fine. Cover peel and pulp with three quarts water, let stand twenty-four hours, then add equal quantity sugar. Let stand another twenty-four hours, then cook like jelly. Pour in glasses.

New Jersey's Greatest Store

HAHNE & CO.
NEWARK

Homeward Bound From Newark

Well, Jack, I hoped I'd get your train. Tired? Not a bit. I've had a most satisfactory day at Hahne's. I've purchased the dearest things for the children, and in no time. None of that old frenzied rushing from store to store in search of the best and cheapest, when I'd come home tired out, having spent all my money and hating everything I'd bought. Hahne's has solved that problem. Wait till you see little Jack in his "Middy" suit—he's a duck. Then, when I finished with the children's clothes I wanted to get their Imperial Granum, and, Jack, they now sell it right there in the Infant Wear Department. Think of that! They have a trained nurse—she weighs babies, and while I was there gave us a little lecture on feeding. Would you like to hear what she said? As near as I can remember it went this way:

"The foundation of the adult constitution is laid in infancy, and depends largely on proper feeding and care at that time. With rare exceptions it is decidedly best for the mother to nurse her own baby. Where this is impossible, owing to the lack of breast milk, Imperial Granum is wonderfully successful in increasing the milk flow. A good bowlful taken hot four times daily will increase the quantity and improve the quality of her milk.

"As a substitute for mother's milk, Imperial Granum is invaluable. It is used to modify cow's milk, and through its effect on the milk proteids forms a food rich in nourishment, which can be easily digested by the most delicate stomach.

"Condensed milk used alone is dangerous for continuous baby feeding, but may be rendered safe by the addition of Imperial Granum, as it supplies the lacking elements necessary to make good bone and muscle.

"Some healthy babies, and many sick babies, cannot take milk in any form. For such Imperial Granum may be used with water alone, and this method is especially successful in treating diarrhoea.

"An 'Imperial Granum baby' is a healthy baby. He is sure to develop that soundness of body and mental alertness which promise an efficient citizenship.

"Invaluable as Imperial Granum is in the nursery, it is also extremely serviceable in the sick room, for convalescents and invalids, and is a great boon for old and feeble.

"Imperial Granum, because of its concentration, is by far the most economical food to use."

Of course I know that our kiddies are thriving on Imperial Granum, but it was interesting to hear more about it.

IMPERIAL GRANUM, the Unsweetened Food for Nursing Mothers, Infants and Adults, is sold in four sizes at Hahne's Infant Wear Department, second floor. Ask for a free copy of "The Care of Babies," a book every mother should own. If unable to call, write to Hahne & Co.'s Infant Wear Department and a copy will be sent you, free of charge.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Washington—Today is the first aniversary of the wedding of Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, daughter of the President, to Hon. William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury in her father's cabinet. Great interest in the couple is again manifested because of the announcement that the White House expects a little McAdoo stranger to arrive this month. The President became a grandfather last February, when a son was born to the Sayres at the White House. Although Mr. McAdoo is in his fifty-second year and his wife is but twenty-four, the couple have been extremely happy, and the President is manifesting much interest in the expected event in their household.

Detroit—Under the direction of Mrs. John L. Austin, chairman of the conservation department of the Federation of Women's Clubs, an exhibit of bird houses built by Detroit boys was opened here today. The Federation is actively encouraging the protection of birds, and will award prizes in the form of tools to the boys who make the best shelters, houses and feeders for the feathered creatures.

Atlantic City—The twenty-first annual meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs opened here today, and will extend until Saturday night. The local clubs are entertaining the visitors, and headquarters are provided on the steel pier. Mrs. William T. Ropes, of Montclair, president, is the principal speaker today. Mrs. H. W. Hemphill, of Atlantic City, made the address of welcome. Among the new clubs admitted today are a Catholic and a Jewish club.

Tallahassee, Fla.—Through the interest aroused by Mrs. Minnie Moore-Wilson in the legislation in aid of the Seminole Indians, it is expected the Florida Legislature will approve a measure granting to the Seminoles a tract for a permanent home. Mrs. Wilson has written a book on the Seminole tribe, and is the author of other tales bearing upon Indian lore and legend.

Stockholm, Sweden—One of the most unique gifts ever received by a Queen of Sweden was that recently presented by a committee of eleven ladies in Stockholm. Stacked in a huge pile in one of the largest rooms of the royal palace were 70,000 woolen articles, the gift of the women of Sweden to Her Majesty Queen Victoria. The gift included 56,000 pairs of woolen socks knitted by Swedish women for use of the army.

San Francisco—A gift of $100,000 has been received by the University of California from Miss Ellen B. Scripps, for the further equipment of the Scripps Institution for Biological Research. Already famous as a marine biological station, the institute, which is located at La Jolla, near San Diego, will become unexcelled in America for its facilities for the study of animal and plant life of the sea. Miss Scripps had previously given $300,000 for the establishment of the institute. The new fund will provide a library and museum building and a big pier, at which the Alexander Agassiz, the dredging ship used by the institute, can dock.

Louisville, Ky—With the announcement by Miss Anne Vauclain, of Philadelphia, that she will manage her own farm and supervise the mating and breeding of horses, by which she hopes to raise champions, two American women are this summer striving in this unusual field for women's endeavors. Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, of Kentucky, manager of the Kingston Farm, one of the most noted breeding places in the blue grass region, has already achieved success. She supervises all the stock on her farm, some 100 head, and her advice is sought by many famous breeders of race horses. She is the daughter of the late Major Foxhall Daingerfield, who was the right hand man of the late James R. Keen in the management of Keene's famous stock farm in Kentucky. As her father's constant companion, she mastered the mysteries of racing strains, and she has put her knowledge of thoroughbreds to good use.

London—Recent pamphlets on the labor situation in England show the enormous development which has taken place within recent years in the proportion of women employed. Nearly three-quarters of the clerks are women, more than half the telegraphers and telephone operators, one-quarter of the photographers, and other light trades show similar proportions.

The Board of Education has discovered it cannot complete the new High School for the $100,000 appropriated by the voters, so a special school meeting will be called, at which the Board will ask the voters for $14,000 more.

DON'T BUY "JUST GAS"

STANDARD Motor Gasoline is so much better than "just gas" that it is worth while to be particular when you are having your tank filled.

"Just gas" makes trouble in the form of constant carburetor adjustments necessitated by varying grades of fuel. "Just gas" makes further trouble in the form of cylinder carbon. Much of the carbon trouble that comes to the repair man is caused by the use of an inferior and varying gasoline.

Standard Motor Gasoline is a straight-distilled, homogeneous product—every drop like every other drop. It is absolutely uniform wherever you buy it, and it is cheaper because there are more miles in a gallon.

Use Polarine, the Standard Oil for Motors. Obtainable wherever you see the "Standard Motor Gasoline Service Station" sign.

To Edward W. Requa and Edna Requa:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Daniel H. Manning is complainant and William F. Cory, et ux, et als. (including yourselves), are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the Seventh day of June next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by William S. Cory and Bella R. Cory, his wife, William F. Cory, unmarried, Bertha M. Requa and Edward W. Requa, her husband, heirs at law of Mary Jane Cory, deceased, to Daniel H. Manning dated the First day of September, Eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, on lands in the Township of Fanwood, Union county, New Jersey, and you Edward W. Requa, are made a defendant because you were the husband of Bertha M. Requa, who departed this life intestate, seized of an equal undivided one-half interest in the premises under consideration, and that you as her husband claim or might claim to have a right of curtesy or some other right in said mortgaged premises; and you Edna Requa are made a defendant because you are the child of, and one of the heirs at law of Bertha M. Requa, who departed this life intestate, seized of an undivided one-half interest in the premises under consideration and that you therefore claim or may claim to have an undivided one-half interest or other interest in said mortgaged premises.

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — THE BOSS PREPARES FOR THE WORST — BY "HOP"

THOMAS A. EDISON WORLD BENEFACTOR

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort and Others Laud the Great Inventor.

"Inventor and World Benefactor" was the inscription on the gold medal of the Civic Forum which was presented to Thomas A. Edison last night in Carnegie Hall, New York, as a national testimonial. President Butler, of Columbia University, presided, and made the presentation. Among those who lauded Mr. Edison in speeches was former Governor J. Franklin Fort, while letters were received from Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Alexander Graham Bell and many others.

Former Governor Fort, in speaking of the great inventor, said, in part:

"It is difficult to talk about Mr. Edison in ten minutes, and yet I shall try to only take five. Usually a speaker, in talking upon a testimonial occasion, has to be careful not to overstate his words of praise, but in Mr. Edison's case no caution is necessary, as it is impossible to exaggerate in speaking of him or his works.

"Notwithstanding all his wonderful skill and genius, he is, in my opinion, one of the most modest of the really great men of the past or present. His simplicity is also most striking. If he lives to be an hundred (and we all hope he may), he will always be young. Youthful spirits seem perennial with him.

"He is always happy and optimistic. He is not a fault finder or a pessimist. He is admittedly great in his special field of scientific research and discovery, but he would have been great in any vocation, for he is a worker—indefatigable in every endeavor. The people laugh and learn because of him. He has created methods through which to furnish more amusements for the human race than any other man.

"He cares nothing for self or for personal wealth; he devotes his energies to helping others. He works and studies to aid the manufacturer, to lighten the burdens of the laborer, and to provide more of the comforts and conveniences of domestic life; to promote the ease and speed of travel and to annihilate time and space.

"It would be a work of supererogation to talk of what he has accomplished. All men know the story.

"His home is in West Orange, New Jersey; he is a citizen of the United States of America, but he belongs to the world. In intelligent achievement, in scientific discovery and in universal public benefaction, he is an uncrowned king among men."

IMPRESSED WITH PROGRESSIVE WEST

Gerald Varley Returns From An Eight Weeks' Trip to Pacific Coast.

Gerald Varley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Varley, of West Front street, who returned this week from an eight weeks' trip through the West and Southwest, having made stops at both the expositions on the Pacific coast, has returned home with glowing accounts of the progressiveness of the Western cities, and the citizens and business men of that section of the country.

Mr. Varley, in an interview with a Daily Press reporter, has this to say in illustrating the way in which the real estate men go after business: During the course of the trip I took occasion to stop off for a few days at Los Angeles to visit an aunt, and had been at her home but a few days when I received a letter from a land dealer indicating that, if I were interested, he would be more than pleased to show me about the city, and especially those plots of land which he had to sell. I was afterward informed that the baggage transfers and expressmen work hand-in-hand with the real estate dealers. The man who had taken my trunk from the railroad station to my aunt's home had been instrumental in securing my name for a hustling and up-to-the-minute real estate man.

"The same spirit of progressiveness," continued Mr. Varley, "is prevalent in San Francisco, where the big fair is being held. The merchants in all lines of business are closely following the hotel registers, and it is nothing out of the ordinary to receive an engraved invitation to visit a department store in the latter city. As regards to the fair itself, it is a wonderful sight, and well worth the investment of both time and money it takes for the Easterner to view the scene."

Mr. Varley also had many other things to say concerning the West, and referred especially to the Indian schools and exhibits which he visited while passing through New Mexico, from which he brought a number of souvenirs.

A BANK ACCOUNT IS A MATTER OF WILL POWER RATHER THAN OF INCOME.

There are few people who could not save something out of each week's receipts. Just make up your mind that you can save money and the battle is won, but remember that the important thing is not so much the size of the deposits as the regularity with which they are made. The 4% compound interest which we pay on accounts in our Special Department is a great help to the systematic saver.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing business demands a progressive bank. The progressive, expanding business requires for its banking a bank that realizes that growth is a sign of health; a bank that will accommodate it with credit when it needs this accommodation; a bank whose officers and directors are themselves up to date business men.

We believe in ourselves as a progressive bank. We welcome accounts from progressive business men.

Few classified advertising tasks are easier to accomplish than the renting of desirable property.

Plan to have your classified advertising campaign end when the result desired is secured—otherwise, do not undertake it at all.

Money has been wasted in large amounts in advertising articles that the people do not want, and also in telling in the wrong way about things the people do want.

MAX LEVINE DEAD, AGED 110 YEARS

Plainfield's Oldest Citizen Passes Away at Home of His Son.

A NATIVE OF RUSSIA

Had Lived in This City for Forty Years—Leaves 7 Children, 31 Grandchildren, 2 Great Grandchildren—Burial in Gatevolle.

Max Levine, the oldest resident of Plainfield, and undoubtedly the oldest in New Jersey, died last night at the home of his son, Aaron Levine, of 206 West Fourth street. According to his relatives, he was 110 years old, a fact not only established by his own memory, but by papers made out when he came to this country fifty years ago. He was able to be about and attend to business until three years ago when he suffered a slight paralytic stroke, since which time he had been more or less confined to the house. He had been in very poor health for the past few months and the end came at 7 o'clock last evening.

Mr. Levine was born in Warsaw, Russian Poland, in 1805. He emigrated to this country at the age of sixty-five. After a few years in New York he came to Plainfield and had made his home here ever since. For a long time he conducted a custom tailoring business in various parts of the city, once on West Second street, another time at 432 West Front street and still another at 226 Grove street.

In many ways, Mr. Levine was one of the most remarkable men of advanced age Plainfielders have ever known. He never knew what it was to have a headache or a toothache and until the paralysis came never had a sick day in his life, except once at the age of 79, when he contracted pneumonia. His eyesight remained good until a few years ago and he never knew what it was to wear glasses. For all this, he read papers without any trouble until sometime after he had passed his one hundredth milestone. Another thing about him was that he had always walked without using a cane.

Mr. Levine is survived by five daughters and two sons all living in this city; also thirty-one grand-children and two great-grandchildren. His second wife also survives. The children are the following: Mrs. Rochel Goldstein, of Sycamore avenue; Mrs. Becky Rothstein, of Grove street; Mrs. Jennie Rosalsky and Mrs. Florence Fertig, of West Fourth street; Mrs. Rebecca Gould, of Summit avenue; Aaron Levine, of West Fourth street, and Henry Levine, of Warren street.

Mr. Levine was a member of the Children of Israel Synagogue and had been active in the congregation for many years. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock and burial will be in the Gateville cemetery, Bound Brook.

ROSEWELL ROLSTON TO WED MISS MARGERY MUNSON

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Margery Jean Munson, of Wallingford, Conn., and Rosewell Rolston, brother of Brown Rolston, of North Plainfield. The ceremony will take place Saturday afternoon, May 15, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride-elect. The wedding and reception will be attended by a large number of guests. After a honeymoon the couple will reside in Englewood.

Mr. Rolston lived in the borough for a time where he is well-known. He has been prominent in amateur dramatic affairs at the Park Club. Brown Rolston will be his brother's best man. There will be a large bridal party.

WILL SING A DUET.

Mrs. Grace Robinson and daughter, Miss Marjorie Robinson, will sing a duet at the morning service in the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will preach in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Dr. Hudson.

RECITAL AT Y. M. C. A.

A free entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections, will be given in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday night at 8:15, by Madame Gebhardt. A silver offering will be taken.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR FOR MISS FLANDERS

Tea and Bridge Whist Party Given for Prospective Bride.

Mrs. Brown Rolston, of the borough, and her sister, Mrs. Edward P. Sharretts, of Noroton, Conn., gave a delightful tea and bridge whist party at 70 Rockview avenue, the borough, yesterday afternoon, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Flanders, whose marriage to Frederick C. Staples, of Southborough, Mass., will take place in June. There were about forty guests, all intimate friends of Miss Flanders. The house was attractively decorated with spring flowers.

Mrs. Rolston and Mrs. Sharretts were assisted by Mrs. Maxwell Perkins and Mrs. Gifford W. Cooley, who poured tea which was served in the dining-room.

Miss Flanders is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who was for fifty years pastor of the First Baptist church. She is well-known to the younger society set.

"ABSENT TREATMENT" ACCORDED A CITIZEN

Borough Council Fails to Comment on Points of Interest Brought Before It.

Appearing before the North Plainfield Council at its monthly meeting, last night, Ernest K. Powlison, of Summit avenue, in an open declaration alleged that the contractors laying the sewer trunk lines in North Plainfield have not been living up to the specifications. Mr. Powlison, who is connected with the local street department, made specific charges of apparent neglect on the part of the contractors in charge of the work and while his remarks carried with them a seemingly large amount of substantial proof, the Council failed to take action on the subject. He placed his data before the Council at the request of Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., who called for an open discussion on the topic. He was the only one to respond and several councilmen after the meeting expressed regret concerning the "absent treatment" he received. The sewer committee was not instructed by the Mayor, who was the presiding officer, to investigate the charges.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Powlison cited instances where the contractors had exhibited neglect in the "back-filling" of trenches, this being the most important topic brought out. He alleged that the proper number of men have not been doing the "ramming" work, the specifications fixing the proportionate number of "rammers" and shovellers to be used. His conception was that if this phase of the work was not properly executed, within the next three or four years the earth would settle and cause irregularities in the streets. This latter feature would eventually cost the borough considerable money for refilling.

PETER TERRY IS SENT TO THE REFORM SCHOOL

Peter Terry, 13 years of age, who lives on Race street, the borough, was taken to Somerville, yesterday, to appear before the Juvenile Court on a charge of incorrigibility. He was committed to the Jamesburg Reform School. This is the third time Terry has been committed to Jamesburg, being released from that place about six weeks ago.

He returned to the borough school where he was in the fourth grade. He was a constant truant and refused to go to his home nights, sleeping in barns, under porches and other places. He was beyond the control of his parents, who applied to have him returned to the reformatory.

STATE PRISON TERM FOR ALBERT ROGERS

Local Negro Will Have to Serve From Three to Fifteen Years in Trenton.

Convicted in the Union County Court of Special Sessions, Albert Rogers, colored, keeper of a poolroom in this city, was yesterday sentenced by Judge James C. Connolly to State Prison for a term of from three to fifteen years. He was found guilty of a serious offense, Margaret Richardson, also colored, being the complainant. Her age was given as fourteen years. In sentencing the court again took occasion to condemn poolrooms as a place for the indiscriminate mixing of race. Rogers and several friends petitioned the court for leniency.

Rogers was arrested at his home in Plainfield early in April and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the local police court made a positive denial of the allegation. After being indicted by the Union County Grand Jury he entered a plea of not guilty, but was convicted last week.

FIREWORKS ORDINANCE FOR NORTH PLAINFIELD

Councilman Allan Cowperthwaite, at the meeting of the Borough Council, last night, introduced a new fireworks ordinance, which was passed on two readings and will come up at the June session for the final passage. Contrary to expectations, no opposition to the measure was offered by either the councilman's colleagues or the audience of taxpayers present. When a simflar ordinance was offered two years ago it was voted down and it was anticipated that some difficulty would be experienced in getting it through.

The ordinance is almost an exact duplicate of the one in force in Plainfield and cites many specific regulations for private individuals and storekeepers.

ANNUAL MEETING JUNE 4.

The monthly meeting of the Epworth League, of the First Methodist church, was held in Vincent chapel, last night. Routine business was transacted and the president, Burnett Doane, was authorized to appoint a nominating committee to submit a list of officers at the annual meeting of the organization, which will be held on Friday night, June 4, the regular meeting night. Reports from all departments were heard last night.

PLAN DEDICATION OF ST. BERNARD'S CHAPEL

Imposing Celebration of Event to Include Parade of Catholic Societies.

St. Bernard's chapel, which was recently completed on Emerson avenue, as a branch of St. Mary's church, will be dedicated with appropriate exercises one week from tomorrow, May 16. Elaborate preparations have been made to celebrate the event, one of which will be a parade of all the Catholic societies connected with St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes and the Holy Name Societies of Stony Hill and Dunellen and other places.

The first mass to be celebrated in the new edifice will take place at 9:30 Sunday morning and will be followed by public exercises at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. During the latter there will be the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the congregation joining in the usual hymns. A distinguished list of clergy from all parts of the State will participate.

The parade of the various societies will be in two divisions, the first leaving St. Mary's church at 2:15 in the afternoon, preceded by St. Mary's Fife Drum& Corps. This contingent will be joined at Richmond street by a delegation of East End residents marshalled by Jeremiah Callahan. The procession will then continue to the chapel which is located on Emerson avenue one block east of the trolley line.

St. Bernard's chapel was primarily intended for the members of St. Mary's parish living in the Netherwood section and has a seating capacity of 350. It is of frame construction and has a beautiful interior finish of golden oak, embellished with wainscoting window high and ornamental plaster work. Michael D. O'Keeffe, of West Fourth street, was the general contractor.

MRS. HYDE IMPROVED.

Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, who has been seriously ill with heart trouble, has shown signs of improvement during the past few days and the family is quite hopeful for her recovery.

The practical Christianity meeting will be held at the Waldorf, 134 Crescent avenue, at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon. Walter Weston, of New York city, will speak at the meeting. His subject will be "Healing." All are invited.

LOCAL WOMAN ON FATED STEAMSHIP

Mrs. Annie Williams and Six Children Among the Lusitania's Missing.

Among those who probably lost their lives in yesterday's marine disaster off the Irish coast, were Mrs. Annie Williams and her six children, of 726 West Third street. The local woman and children, whose ages range from three months to eleven years, sailed on the Lusitania as second-class passengers last Saturday and their names are not included among those reported rescued. Inquiries made by Mrs. Cornelia C. Terwilliger, with whom Mrs. Williams made her home before leaving for the other side, have brought no information.

Charles Williams, her husband, sailed for Liverpool aboard the same steamer on its trip before this one, and was awaiting the arrival of his wife and children on the other side. He was a machinist by trade and for five years had worked in local shops. They lived, until recently, in East Third street.

SHOEMAKER GETS FROM THREE TO SEVEN YEARS

Having changed his plea of not guilty to one of non vult, William Shoemaker, of South Plainfield, was yesterday sentenced to serve a term of from three to seven years in State Prison, by Judg Daly, in New Brunswick, following his conviction on an arson charge. He was charged with setting fire to the barns of Eva L. Campbell, at Oak Tree, on April 17, entailing a loss of about $15,000. His motive was said to be revenge, growing out of previous trouble with the Campbell family.

In making a statement to a Daily Press reporter shortly after his arrest on April 17, Shoemaker attempted to prove an alibi, but became badly confused. This statement was used against him in his trial yesterday. It was broukht out at yesterday's court session that Shoemaker was the person who set fire to Charles Blackford's place in South Plainfield eight years ago.

DANCE AND SOCIAL.

The bus will leave the corner of Front street and Watchung avenue, Wednesday night at 8:15 for Stony Hill, where the monthly dance and social will take place in St. Mary's Hall.

ONLY 658 PASSENGERS FROM LUSITANIA ARE BROUGHT TO LAND, 51 AMERICANS SAFE—136 LOST

VICTIMS OF GERMAN "FRIGHTFULNESS" INCLUDE ALFRED VANDERBILT, CHARLES FROHMAN AND ELBERT HUBBARD.

PLAINFIELD WOMAN AND 6 CHILDREN ON VESSEL

Mrs. Annie Williams Was to Join Husband Abroad—William Edgar Also on Boat—Assemblyman O. H. Hammond Reported Rescued but Wife's Name Does Not Appear in List Given Out by Line Officials.

With every known rescuing vessel returned to port with survivors or bodies, the English Admiralty at London today announced that 658 persons of the 2100 on the Cunarder Lusitania, which was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday, had been located. A number of bodies have been brought into towns along the Irish coast, near the scene of the disaster, and vessels are searching for others.

Fifty-one Americans out of 187 on board are reported safe. Fully a hundred of the rescued may die from the wounds they received when the torpedo tore such a hole in the side of the great steamship.

The Admiralty announcement says:

"Torpedo boats, tugs and armed trawlers from Queenstown are all in except the Heron. Landed from these were 595 survivors and 40 dead; landed from steamers, 52 survivors; landed at Kinsdale, 11 survivors and five dead, a total of 658 living and 45 bodies. These numbers will be verified later. Possibly the Kinsdale fishing boats may have a few more. Only a few first class passengers have been saved. It is understood they thought the ship would ficat. She sank in from 15 to 25 minutes. Reported she was struck by two torpedoes. In addition it has been signalled that an armed trawler, possibly the Heron, and two fishing trawlers are bringing in one hundred bodies."

The list of survivors contains the name of O. H. Hammond, but not of Mrs. Hammond. Mr. Hammond is a resident of Bernardsville, and is the representative from Somerset county in the House of Assembly of the present New Jersey Legislature. He has a large number of friends and acquaintances in Plainfield, especially in the borough.

The only Plainfielders known to be on the vessel were Mrs. Annie Williams, who sailed with her six children, ranging from three months to eleven years, and William Edgar, who was night watchman for former Mayor Percy H. Stewart. Their names do not appear with those of the rescued.

Among the prominent men who lost their lives were Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Charles Frohman, Elbert Hubbard and his wife, Justus Miles Forman and Charles Klein. A cabin steward said today that Mr. Vanderbilt went down with the ship, and the names of none of the others appear in the lists of survivors given out at the Cunard offices in New York.

The deliberate sinking of the huge passenger steamship has brought about for this country a crisis which, it is feared in many quarters, may involve it in the great world conflict. There is a distinct impression in official circles in Washington that President Wilson may call an extra session of Congress. It is expected that the Germans will contend that the Lusitania was an armed vessel, making her liable to attack without visit and search.

Captain Turner remained at his post and went down with his ship, but was rescued three hours later.

That the sinking of the Lusitania was deliberately schemed and carried out as the climax to the German campaign of "frightfulness," is generally believed. On Thursday afternoon there were reports that a German submarine was lurking in Dunmanus Bay, eighty miles west of Cork.

The publication of a warning from the German Embassy throughout the United States that travellers embarked on British vessels a ttheir own risk also shows that the sinking of the Lusitania was not the result of a chance meeting between the steamship and a German submarine. The London Morning Post says it is evident that the exact course which the Lusitania would follow was known to the German naval authorities.

The passengers of the Lusitania were at luncheon when she was torpedoed, the submarine, according to several of the passengers, firing at about a thousand yards range. The Lusitania seems to have been hit twice, the torpedoes tearing huge holes in her. She began immediately to list, making difficult the task of dropping the boats, although they were already swung outboard. The point where she was destroyed was off the Old Head of Kinsdale as she was nearing St. George's Channel, between Ireland and England. Before she went down there was just time to send out a wireless call for aid.

That the Lusitania was not adequately guarded against such an attack has caused the greatest consternation in England. Lord Charles Beresford declared that the disaster was due to a shortage of British cruisers to protect the British trade routes.

Much depends upon the attitude in which the German government will receive any effort of the United States to place upon it responsibility for the deaths of Americans aboard the Lusitania.

New York, May 8.—The list of survivors from the Lusitania as compiled thus far follows: Captain W. T. Turner, first cabin passengers: A. T. Mathews, Montreal; Mrs. A. S. Witherbee, New York; Lady Mackworth, Cardiff, Wales; Mrs. Henry Adams, Boston; Robert Rankin, Michael G. Byrne, New York; A. B. Cross, Philip Young, Montreal; W. A. F. Vassar, London; Fred J. Gauntlett, New York; D. A. Thomas, Cardiff, A. R. Clarke, Toronto; H. G. Burgess, J. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamley were accompanied by a niece, Miss Esther Hamley, of Phillipsburg, who has been spending the past four or five weeks at their home. They will return tomorrow night, remaining over night with Miss Esther's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hamley.

Charles A. Coriell, Jr., and W. S. Frederick and family enjoyed a trip to Princeton this week in Mr. Coriell's touring car. While in Princeton they visited Cleveland's old home.

VICTIM OF KING ALCOHOL.

Harvey Reser, of Phillipsburg, was arrested by Marshal Patrick Tarpey on North avenue, midnight Thursday. When arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell in the Borough Hall, yesterday morning, Reser claimed to be a printer who was looking for a job. He admitted having drank too freely of the fluid that inebriates, and that when he got here he didn't know whether he was in Dunellen or somewhere else. The court took pity on the wayfarer and suspended sentence.

Dr. T. H. Platt and A. J. Hamley attended a lodge meeting at Newark, Thursday night.

S. M. Kookogey, of New Market road, has received his new automobile.

MANY ON SICK LIST.

'Plains & Fanwood.

When brought up in the county court, at Elizabeth, the application of Ralph Venizia, of Terrill road, for a renewal of his wholesale liquor license, was laid over until Monday. He is the only local dealer seeking a license this year.

After spending the past six months in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hall have returned to their home on South avenue.

Sidney and William Lidgate, of North avenue, are spending the week-end with their aunt, Mrs. William Baxter, of New Cannon, Conn.

The young people of the borough enjoyed a dance in the Fanwood firehouse last night. About thirty couple, with a number of guests from Plainfield and Westfield, danced until a late hour, music being furnished by an Elizabeth trio.

Word has been received from Fort Hamilton; near New York city, that Maurice Hall, a borough boy, who joined the army several months ago, is in the hospital with a broken arm and mindr injuries as the result of being thrown heavily from a horse while drilling.

The local Boy Scouts are making considerable progress in rehearsing for their minstrel show and will be ready for the staging of it during the first week in June. Besides the usual opening scene with the latest song hits and the end men and chorus, there will probably be two sketches. One of them, entitled "The King's Wardrobe," has been decided on and parts assigned.

The Rifle Club meets this afternoon with the president, Wright McAneny, on North avenue.

"Rogation Sunday" will be observed at All Saints' Episcopal church tomorrow and Rev. Oscar Michaels will take "The Use of Prayer" as the theme of his sermon. Sunday-school will be at 10 o'clock and morning service at 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Sheelen, of North avenue, are entertaining their niece, Miss Clara Vreeland, of Greenville.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Fanwood Public Library it was decided to discontinue the Friday night openings for circulation purposes owing to the lack of interest and patronage displayed by the borough residents. It is possible that the plan will be tried again in July although it has not been definitely decided. A number of new books have been placed on the shelves.

Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, left yesterday on a two days' ride with the mounted officers of the First Brigade, New Jersey National Guard. Camp was pitched last night at Dyer's farm, Cloister. Dr. Hare is chaplain of the Fourth regiment, having served with that regiment for six years, and has been a chaplain in the New Jersey National Guard for sixteen years in all. Mr. Hare returns in time for services tomorrow.

DESCRIBES BEAUTY OF HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Mrs. Edward White Returns From a Pleasant Four Months' Trip.

Enthusiastic over the wonderful climate and scenery of the Hawaiian Islands and the country surrounding Honolulu, one of the largest cities of the Islands of the Pacific, Mrs. Edward White, of East Fifth street, has returned home after a four months' trip to the islands as well as the Western States.

Mrs. White, in referring to her visit to the Pacific possessions of the United States, spoke highly of both the climate and scenery, which, in her opinion, exceed those of California as a winter resort. Mrs. White made special efforts to visit the volcano zone on the island, and was within viewing distance of the craters of the most active, where eruptions are almost a daily occurrence.

The two Expositions now running in California were visited by Mrs. White during her travels, thus completing a most pleasant trip. It is expected that the buildings of the San Diego fair, which are of the mission type, will, in all probability, remain standing after the fair is over, while practically all of the buildings of the San Francisco fair will be demolished at the close of the Exposition. Mrs. White was greatly impressed by the color schemes of the structures of the fair at the latter place.

WILL COLLECT DONATIONS.

If persons have no way of sending flowers, fruit, vegetables and delicacies to the Plant Flower and Fruit Guild, will notify Robert Love, 138 Grove street, or Joseph M. Harper, 237 East Sixth street, not later than Monday morning, a member of the Boys' Auxiliary will call for them. The W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue, Babcock building, will be open to receive donations Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, and Tuesday morning from 9 to 10:30 o'clock.

GOOD BACKS FOR BAD.

Plainfield Residents Are Learning How to Exchange the Old Back For a Stronger One.

Does your back ache, feel weak and painful?

Do you suffer headaches, languor and depression?

Is the urine discolored, passages irregular?

The kidneys may be calling for help.

Weak kidneys cannot do the work. Give them the help they need.

To cure a kidney backache you must cure the kidneys.

Use a tested and proven kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test.

Convincing proof of merit in Plainfield endorsement.

Mrs. C. B. Coriell, 60 Manning avenue, Plainfield, says: "I suffered from kidney disorders for years and the principal symptom was a severe backache. Since I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I have taken them off and on and they have always acted like magic, giving me prompt relief."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Coriell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

London, May 8.—Confident that the sailing of British steamers, despite the warning issued through the German Embassy at Washington, was entirely safe, the Cunard Line announced that the Mauretania would positively be put into service running from Liverpool to New York.

FRENCH STATEMENT.

Paris, May 8.—The French War Office gave out the following statement this afternoon: "In Belgium at dawn on Friday, the Germans violently attacked the English lines near St. Julien. That attack was repulsed. The enemy suffered heavy losses. To the south of Ypres at Hill No. 60 the British troops have recaptured part of the trenches lost by them three days ago. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

WILLIAM EDGAR ON FATED CUNARD LINER

Feared in This City That He Was Transferred to the Lusitania.

Friends in this city are anxiously awaiting news concerning William Edgar, until last week employed as night-watchman in the home of former Mayor Percy H. Stewart on West Eighth street, who is thought to have been on the ill-fated Lusitania which went to the bottom off the coast of Ireland, yesterday. According to several acquaintances in this city he had engaged passage aboard the Cameronia and was one of the 163 passengers transferred from that ship to the Lusitania, Saturday.

Edgar had been in this country for five years and had been employed at the Stewart home for several months prior to his departure. He was en route back to Scotland to join his wife and two children. The Cameronia was chartered at the last minute by the British Admiralty and its passengers had to be put on the Lusitania passenger list.

"BILLY" SUNDAY MAY SPEAK IN THIS CITY

Local Ministers Present Signed Invitation to Evangelist Today.

The ministers of Plainfield have prepared a signed invitation to "Billy" Sunday to visit this city on one of his rest days before leaving Paterson, and the invitation will be presented to the evangelist at Paterson today. The majority of the local clergy have heartily endorsed the plan and strong efforts will be made to bring Mr. Sunday here. The day would have to be Monday as that is the evangelist's only day off.

Should Mr. Sunday accept the invitation the meeting would probably be held at the Plainfield High School, although that auditorium would probably not be large enough to accommodate half the number of people who would want to hear the evangelist. A few days ago Mr. Sunday announced that upon completing his work at Paterson he would leave for Oregon to visit his mother.

CRISIS TONIGHT IN CARPENTERS' INCREASE

Although something definite was expected at last night's conference between the arbitration boards, representing the master builders and journeymen carpenters, the situation regarding an order for a general strike among the local building trades was not given today. The master builders asked for an adjournment of time last night, for the purpose of holding a meeting among themselves this evening, and it was granted. A committee from the journeymen will be in readiness if they should be called upon to take part in the discussion.

It is quite certain that the crisis will be reached tonight and that either some concessions will be made regarding the increase in pay or the general strike order will be issued. It was stated by the journeymen carpenters today, that in this event no building work would be affected where no carpentry work is being done.

INTERSCHOLASTIC TENNIS MATCH ENDS IN A TIE

The first tennis match for the city interscholastic title and Collier trophy, played between the Plainfield High School and Leal School teams, yesterday afternoon, on the Park Club courts, ended in a tie, the score being 2-2. P. H. S. took the doubles match and one of the three singles. The results follow:

Singles, Garrigues (Leal), defeated Blanchard (P. H. S.), 6-4, 6-4; Parvin (P. H. S.), defeated Stewart (Leal), 5-7, 6-4, 6-4; doubles, Dall and Parvin (P. H. S.), defeated Lyon and Garrigues (Leal), 6-3, 6-2.

25TH ANNIVERSARY AN ENJOYABLE EVENT

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, Observe Wedding Day.

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, entertained two hundred friends at their home, last night, the guests coming from Bernardsville, Mendham, Morristown, Millington, Stirling, South Stirling, Plainfield, Martinsville, Mt. Horeb, Springdale, Watchung, Coontown, Mt. Bethel and New York. Dinner was served at 9:30, after which games, music and dancing were enjoyed until after midnight. Harley's orchestra of four pieces, violin, piano, banjo and mandolin, played throughout the evening. Mrs. Cooper was the recipient of many handsome presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper were married at the bride's home on May 7, 1890. Mrs. Cooper was Miss Clara M. Bowers, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George Bowers, of Warrenville. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. Nicholas Bowers, pastor of the Stirling Presbyterian church, and an uncle of the bride. Both of the contracting parties were born at Warrenville and have always lived there. Mr. Cooper has been prominent in Warren township political circles and is also widely known throughout Somerset and Union counties. He is a brother to former sheriff Edward Cooper, at the present time chairman of the Somerset County Republican Committee. Mr. Cooper at various times has been on the Warren Township Committee, justice of the peace, treasurer of the township, recorder, and a member of the School Board for nine years. All his friends in this city and the borough join in extending both him and Mrs. Cooper hearty congratulations. The couple have six children, the Misses Edith L., Myrtle E., Jessie May Cooper, and the Messrs. John Harrison Cooper, William McKinley Cooper and Edward Roosevelt Cooper.

NATIONAL SUFFRAGE BOARD TO MEET IN CHICAGO

The national board of the National Woman Suffrage Association issued today a call for a conference of suffrage leaders to be held in Chicago, June 6 to 9, for the purpose of discussing the sixty-fourth Congress.

Among those expected to be present are: Mrs. Winston Churchill, of New Hampshire; Miss M. Carey Thomas, of Bryn Mawr; Mrs. Raymond Brown, of New York; Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert and Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, of New Jersey; Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Archibald Henderson, of North Carolina; Miss Jean Gordon and Mrs. E. M. Kahn, of Louisiana; Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, of Kentucky; Mrs. Charles E. Elliott, of Maryland; Mrs. B. B. Valentine, of Virginia; Mrs. Pattie R. Jacobs, of Alabama, State Senator Frances W. Munds, of Arizona; Miss Anne Martin, of Nevada, and Senator Helen Ring Robinson, of Colorado.

BOYS FINGER AMPUTATED FOLLOWING AN ACCIDENT

Riding his wheel on East Seventh street, near Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, John Drayton, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiswall Drayton, of Crescent avenue, collided with a carryall belonging to the Hartridge School. A wheel of the vehicle ran over the boy's hand and injured it so badly he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital. Doctor M. L. Clawson found it necessary to amputate one finger, while two others will be crippled for some time.

The little fellow had fully recovered from the effects of the operation this morning and will probably be discharged this afternoon. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hand.

YOUNG FRIENDS' ASS'N DEBATE WAR QUESTION

A lively discussion took place at the meeting of the Young Friends' Society at the Friends' meeting-house on Watchung avenue, last night, when the following resolution was offered for debate: 'Resolved, An armed nation is conducive to peace." The affirmative side was awarded the winning honors. The following members took part: Horace Vail, Miss Evon Jones and Miss Winifred Stringham, affirmative; Miss Mabel Vail, Miss DeCamp and Palmer Davis, negative.

Richard Williams and Harry Vail acted as judges for the decision. Following the debate a social hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served.

"THE MISSION GUILD" SOCIETY'S NEW NAME

Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Church Changes Title.

The Young Woman's Mission Band, which has been one of the most active organizations in Trinity Reformed church for the past eighteen years, will hereafter be known as The Mission Guild. The change in name was decided upon at the monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. B. Carhart on Church street. The customary devotional exercises, which open every meeting, were in charge of Mrs. Schlereth.

In the business session, the constitution was amended to permit the change of title, the committees of the year were named by the president, Mrs. A. B. Cole, and arrangements were made to hold a tea in connection with the last meeting of the year on Friday, June 4. No gatherings are held during the summer. The tea will take place at the home of the president. After the business had been concluded, the members took up the reading of "The Red Man's Land," which the guild has been studying through the winter and which was finished yesterday. The committees named by Mrs. Cole for the ensuing year are as follows:

Devotional, Miss Elizabeth Brokaw, chairman; Mrs. Henry Seader and Mrs. Leonard Smith; program, Miss Winifred Rapalje, chairman; Miss Mabel Wilson, Miss Ethel Van Zandt, Mrs. H. Stafford and Mrs. Arthur B. Cole; finance, Miss Mabel Wilson, chairman; Mrs. Will F. Williams and Mrs. Leonard Smith; foreign and dorestic missions, Miss Lillian A. Force, chairman; Mrs. Leonard Smith, Mrs. Fred A. Cutler, Mrs. William H. Olmstead, Mrs. Peter B. Hodge, Mrs. George Mantz and Mrs. Will F. Williams; paper, Mrs. Harry M. Cooke, chairman; Mrs. Lorenzo D. Townley and Mrs. Schlereth; birthday, Mrs. Corra Ryno, chairman, Mrs. Harry M. Cooke and Mrs. Aivah Porter; flower and visiting, Mrs. Lindlaw M. Leek, chairman; Mrs. Anna Zimmer, Mrs. Arthur Stevens, Mrs. H. Stafford and Miss Ethel Van Zandt; social, Mrs. John Carhart, chairman; Miss Helen Crane, Mrs. Russell Doeringer, Miss Adelaide Cole and Miss Winifred Rapalje; membership, Mrs. Arthur Stevens, chairman; Mrs. Lorenzo D. Townley and Miss Elizabeth Brokaw.

The guild made arrangements to attend the anniversary of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, which will be held on Tuesday, May 11, in the First Reformed church, New Brunswick. Sessions will be at 11 and 2 o'clock. There will be greetings from the missionaries and addresses by Mrs. George Sheerwood Eddy on the recent evangelistic campaign in China; Miss Jean K. MacKenzie, formerly of Africa, Dr. Ida S. Scudder, of the Mary Taber Schell Hospital, Vellore; Miss Hiwali, a native of India, and Miss Bessie M. Ogsbury, of the Amoy Mission.

DECISION TO BE ANNOUNCED BEFORE EVENING SERMON

An interesting debate was held in the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of that church, the question being, "Resolved, That the elder son had just cause for complaint," the subject being taken from the story of the Prodigal Son. The affirmative side was taken by Charles Hellyer, Arthur Mosher and John Lindabury, while H. C. Runyon, William Sebring and Burton Casner upheld the negative.

Both sides had some strong arguments and the debate was interesting to a large audience. The judges were D. M. Runyon, George Place and John Groendyke, but the decision was reserved. It will be given out tomorrow night, just before the evening service, when Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson will preach on "The Elder Brother." During the evening the old Sunday-school orchestra rendered several pleasing selections.

George Schoonmaker, formerly of this city, and father of Mrs. Clifford W. McGee, of North Plainfield, is seriously ill at Asheville, N. C., where he has been for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Brom, who formerly resided with Mrs. Brom's parents, of East Third street, have removed to their newly furnished home on Wegman court, Jersey City. Mr. Brom was employed by Alex Milne, but has secured a position with a New York firm.

The Daily Press will be glad to have its attention called to any misleading or untrue statement, if such should appear at any time in an advertisement in its columns.

The John Wanamaker Store

Broadway at Ninth, New York

SPECIAL NOTICE

The response to our announcement of

The Reduction Sale of $100,000 Worth of Wanamaker Furniture

has been very large, and we feel it due to those of our customers who haven't yet shared in the benefits of this sale, to inform them of that fact. Some people came a long way. The stocks are going down.

The amount of furniture reduced is limited to $100,000 worth, Wanamaker regular prices. Some of it is reduced a quarter, some 40 per cent., some a half.

Certain plans for the future make the operation desirable, in the face of the fact that we cannot go out into the market today and buy such furniture to sell at the new prices of this $100,000 worth.

There is furniture for every room, in a variety of designs and finishes; much of it is our own moderate-price furniture; some of it consists of small groups not to be reordered—these small groups are all at half.

Summer Rugs

Cool and Colorful

"You have by far the largest and most attractive showing of summer rugs I've seen," said a woman yesterday. Grays, pinks, blues, lavenders, greens, light browns, dark blues, mulberry—rugs to fit in with any scheme of decoration, or provide pleasing contrast to the furniture and walls.

You can scarcely know how delightful your house may be made for the summer until you have seen these old-fashioned

FUNERAL OF CHARLES HAKEN.

The funeral of Charles Haken was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Samuel Lee, on Rock avenue, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, officiated at the service. The floral tributes were unusually numerous and beautiful, set pieces being sent from the Bible class of the church and from Trafalgar Lodge, Sons of St. George, of which Mr. Haken was a member. Burial was in Hillside cemetery, four members of the Sons of St. George acting as pall bearers. These were George Bridge, James W. Hallard, Albert Marsh and Samuel Watson.

THE LAND OF TOMORROW.

Are you satisfied that the best that you have ever done or been is the best that you ever can do or be? No? Then you are counting on tomorrow, aren't you, in which to do or be that which is your heart's desire?

Is there one of us who has not dreamed of and counted on, yes, and even demanded as his right, that "land of tomorrow?"

It may be nearer or farther as our ambitions and ages differ, but oh, it is a fair, fair country and so much will be possible there that is impossible here. Why impossible here and now? Well, just because it is today. Nothing golden or glorious has happened today, and therefore it cannot happen today. (This is the way most of us reason). And anyway if it did happen today it would not be fitting, somehow. We should not be ready for it.

Today is such an ordinary day; it has no rainbow hue at all. But, tomorrow—why tomorrow any thing may happen!

With such logic do we cheat ourselves of so much of the joy of living. For the real joy of living lies in a realization of the significance of EACH DAY AS A FACTOR OF THE GREAT ETERNITY.

Most of us can not see the value of the near and familiar. The ten spare minutes seem too short for any worth while thing. And yet ten minutes given even fragmentarily to the letter we meant to write, the book we marked to read, the upward look that girds the spirit, make hours of rare and precious communion.

How shall we meet the tomorrow of which we dream if these have had no place in our today?

Many of us are prolonging "today" out of sheer cowardice because we will not choose a cause. We have no definite goal toward which to work, and so we keep postponing our program. If the veil could be lifted from the inner life of a great many people, the outlines of character thereby revealed would probably be about as clear cut as the scenery obscured from view when the curtain rises upon the first act of a Nibelung drama!

We are waiting for something to sweep us right off our feet before we will pledge our allegiance anywhere, and then we are quite ready for said something to carry us pleasantly along on its momentum or we might stop moving at all.

It is a curious phase of our apathy that we are "simply crazy" about the last thing we hear of. When will we learn that a quiet, genuine and sustained interest is worth more than all the spasmodic enthusiasm that ever burst into being, only to dissipate thereupon by the very force of it's own false vitality?

An odd conceit is again the cause why we often fail to enter into our "promised land." We refuse to attempt anything because we know we shall probably do it only as well as the person next to us. Oh, we wouldn't like to admit it, but it's so. Many and many of us would rather fail gloriously than succeed unnoticeably; we women especially who are so personal about everything.

We cannot lose sight of the individual in the greatness of the enterprise. Face us with a fair question and we immediately look for the personal implication. Instead of recognizing in an honest challenge the open window which may command a new view of the whole situation, we stupidly mistake it for a mirror into which we peer, fully expecting to see a distorted image of our own already too familiar outlines.

And so with our shortsightedness, our timid if not lazy procrastination, or our vain introspection we are in danger of losing the real perspective of life. To see life in it's true proportions we need to give equal value to the inheritance of the past, the significance of the present and the possibilities of the future.

"But," some one says, "I thought we lived entirely too much in the present anyway, and ought to live more for the future!" Yes, but not in the meagre, cramped and spiritually economical way that many of us are living. If we are unworthy of the past and unprepared for the future, how dare we despise the present as "the day of small things?"

No situation can be more heroic or more ideal than the one which faces us today. How can we expect more joy tomorrow than we have the capacity for today? We shall never know the fulness of life which belongs to those who walk at home in the far country of our dreams until we are willing to pay the price of life. "If I told you earthly things and ye believed not, how shall ye believe if I tell you heavenly things?"

It takes a cultivated courage and a definite faith to do it, and yet there are times when we must walk off the seeming precipice to prove that all the natural law is included in spiritual truth. And yet we want to see the end before we will make a beginning.

The One who lived as a simple peasant in Galilee centuries ago has proved that the victorious life needs no curtain fall or sound of applause to proclaim it. On the eve of betrayal at the hands of his near friend, he could say to his few hardly convinced and wholly fearful followers—"Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world."

Victory is a condition of the spirit, not a counting of the spoils. And the joy and the power of it may be ours even while we stand in the midst of the struggle of today.

Why linger for any further endowment when all that we have is not yet fully invested? We cannot afford to loiter at the portal when we should already be far sped upon the soul's great adventure. Let us serve and suffer and rejoice and expect great things today. Let us recognize that borders are not barriers, that even while it is today we may reach our "Land of tomorrow," and standing on its well won heights may gaze with glad and earnest eyes at "a new heaven and a new earth!"

KATHARINE LEWIS ALLER.

MOTHER'S DAY TO BE GENERALLY OBSERVED

Outward Sign of Appreciation Will Be Shown in the Wearing of Carnations.

People throughout the country will, tomorrow, honor the name of mother, and as a significance of the occasion will wear a white carnation. Mothers' Day came into being only within the last few years, as an expression of love of a daughter for the mother who has gone before. From such a beginning the movement of an observance of the day has spread throughout the world.

Ten years ago, Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, lost her mother. Realizing how much had gone out of her life, the young woman decided that every year she would set aside the anniversary of her mother's death as a sacred memorial to her. From this expression came the thought, why not honor the mothers of the land, dead or living, on a special day. In her own feeble way, a movement was started, letters were written to clergymen, men in public life and many other prominent people, that the second Sunday in May should be set aside as a day on which the mothers in the land, dead or living, should be honored. The idea met with a sympathetic response and now it is shared in by thousands throughout the world. Miss Jarvis in instituting Mothers' Day wished people to "honor the best mother who ever lived—your mother" and on the second Sunday in May she urges that all shall pay tribute to their mother—or her memory—through some distinct act of kindness. It is one day set aside as "an international honor day for sons and daughters, and homes of every country, class and creed." The day may be observed as a "home coming." Where this is impossible, through a visit, letter, gift, message or at least a loving thought for "few persons are too busy or too poor to write home."

As an outward sign of evidence of Mothers' Day every one is asked to wear the flower chosen, a white carnation, as an emblem of purity and fidelity. This was selected as a special flower because, as Miss Jarvis says, "Its whiteness stands for purity; its form for beauty; its fragrance, love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, fidelity—an emblem of pure bond between you and the best mother who ever lived—the mother of your heart."

PAYMENT OF SEWER BILLS AUTHORIZED

Boro Council Transacts Much Routine Business at May Meeting.

Bills presented by George W. Fuller, the engineer in charge of the construction of the joint sewer line, were ordered paid by the Borough Council at its May meeting held last night. These included: Harrison-Burton Company, $4,803.48; Frank Puglio, $8,498.54, and George W. Fuller, $938.95. Councilman Tingley, chairman of the sewer committee, introduced a resolution authorizing the payment of $1,959.22 to William F. Arnold, treasurer of the joint sewer committee, this being twenty-five per cent., or the borough's share in expenses accured during the month. Mr. Tingley, as chairman of the finance committee, also introduced a resolution providing for the drawing of a $2,000 note to meet current expenses. These were both passed by the Council.

The investigation that has been conducted in an effort to trace two checks that were sent to the New York Telephone Company in December has proven futile and the Council has stopped payment on the same. New checks were drawn last night and forwarded to the company.

Recorder Fred Hand issued a report for April and May showing that thirty-five arrests had been made during the two months and $57 in fines collected. A petition received from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, asking for the annual appropriation to go toward defraying the expenses of the Memorial Day celebration was received and $50 was set aside for this purpose. This appropriation is similar to the one authorized by the Plainfield Common Council. Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker was ganted a $300 advance on the poor account; fire department expenses for the month totaled $493.41, and the police department's amounted to $640.28.

A petition was received from residents of Howard street, asking that a sidewalk be laid on the southern side of the thoroughfare, running west from Somerset street. The sewer committee reported that the sewer inspectors appointed recently had assumed their duties. These are Charles F. Stahl and Cornelius Sheats.

It was announced that property-owners in the vicinity of Greenbrook road and West End avenue had granted the borough the right to construct a pumping station in that section, provided that no assessment would be placed on their property. Harrison avenue residents presented a petition asking for a sidewalk to be laid from the bridge to Greenbrook road. Freeholder George Kirch, of Somerset county, was present at last night's session prepared to furnish the Council with data concerning the construction of a new bridge over Greenbrook at Grove street by the Boards of Somerset and Union counties. In this matter Councilman Stahl introduced a resolution giving the borough's consent to the establishment of a new grade to extend about 200 feet into the borough from the centre of the bridge.

The borough engineer and the chairman of the street committee during the past week has investigated the condition of Watchung avenue, above Codington avenue, in response to complaints received, and a resolution was passed to authorize the acceptance of bids for the construction of a storm sewer on this street from Codington avenue to the brook.

PAGEANT ARTISTIC SUCCESS IN CIRCUS

Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A. Leaders, Local Clowns Add to Anti-T. B. Show.

Attendance at the Frank A. Robbins circus, given under the auspices of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, Visiting Nurse Association and Public Recreation Committee, was not so large last night, as was the case in the afternoon. Shortly before the time for the evening performance the wind began to blow, and rain threatened, which kept many people away.

From an artistic point of view the health pageant, presented by about 140 women and children identified with the recreation committee, was one of the most attractive things ever seen in this city. The costuming, dances and marches were all carefully thought out and executed, and showed untiring effort on the part of Miss Lamson, the recreation supervisor, and her assistant, Miss Brownlee, both of whom took leading parts.

Another feature was the work by the Boy Scouts for prizes offered by M. C. Van Arsdale. Charles E. Rice, of troop 5, made fire without matches in 1½ minutes; Harold Keiderling mounted the top of a pyramid made by comrades in troop 9, and spelled five letters in a signalling drill in nine seconds; Engineer's Patrol, of troop 5, erected their bridge in 27 seconds, and a patrol from troop 9, under Leader Caryl Dunavan, erected tents in 4½ minutes. Assistant Scoutmaster Clinton Berrien, of troop 11, won the prize for having the most scouts present. In the bandaging competition, because of the fact that there has been a misunderstanding about the rules, the prize winners cannot be announced until Monday, Scout Cohmmissioner Beals being out of the city.

There were a large number of local clowns in the show, and they added much to the gayety of the occasion. Messrs. Van Norden and Engler, of the Y. M. C. A., did an acrobatic act on the mat, and the leaders corp, of the Y. M. C. A., also gave a splendid exhibition. Ticket sellers and takers were all local men, and several of them acted as judges for the Boy Scout activities.

The Robbins show was better than for many years past. Hillery Long, an upside down actor, who leaps the gap and slides one hundred feet on a wire on his head, in addition to walking downstairs, thrilled the spectators as nothing of the kind has done here for many years. The other performers were excellent and received well merited applause. The order around the show was excellent, and Mr. Robbins and the employes co-operated in every way to make things pleasant for the local participants. The police had no trouble whatsoever, largely due to the presence of Joseph H. Hughes and William Vavanaugh, detectives with the show.

REQUESTS BOROUGH POLICE TO ENFORCE THE LAW

Chief George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, has received a set of the new traffic laws of New Jersey from William L. Dill, State commissioner of motor vehicles, with instructions to strictly enforce them.

There are several changes in the laws which were announced in these columns in Thursday's issue. The speed limit in the borough is eight miles per hour and for turning corner four miles. Pedestrians have the right of way over vehicles at crossings, but cross the street at their own risk in the middle of blocks.

Chief Weiss will have the full set of laws printed and posted in fifteen or twenty places in the borough to give everyone fair warning before he starts enforcing them.

RECENT COUNTY CONTRACTS REACH TOTAL OF $133,820

Thirty-nine construction contracts of various sizes, and calling for the erection of buildings of all sorts have been recently filed at the offices of County Clerk James C. Calvert, calling for the expenditure of $133,820. These figures appear to indicate that conditions in the building world in this general vicinity are rapidly improving and that the present season will be close to normal.

The following contracts from this end of the county were among those filed:

Same with Hugh Reilly, plumbing work, $1,082.

Same with William H. Dennick, mason work, $425.

Same with George D. Wilson, carpenter work, $1,991.

Alfonso Cloci with Guillio Donato, entire work new building, West Third street, $2,800.

Pearsall Company with Miller & Tobin, painting work new building, Prospect street, Westfield, $260.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD BOOM KEEPING UP

Surprising Amount of Work Now Going on in the Rapidly Growing Village.

The building boom in South Plainfield still keeps up. John Cohn, of New York, is erecting a large bungalow on New York avenue, south of the Lehigh tracks. There are also three other bungalows and a six room house being erected south of the tracks by New York parties. Thursday, Samuel Schwartz, president of the Merchants' and Traders' Realty Company, who owns a number of acres on each side of the Lehigh tracks, broke ground for three six-room houses. Mr. Schwartz is also erecting a six-room house for Alber Kordak.

A force of about 150 men began the work of excavating for a large factory to be built near South Plainfield by Calissano Brothers, bankers of New York, who will use the building as a storehouse and a place for bottling wines.

Another event of importance to the South Plainfield building world occurred this week when Mobus Brothers, of this city, started to excavate the cellar for the $12,500 addition to the village school. The work on the latter building will be pushed as rapidly as possible, as the room to be thus provided for will be needed at the opening of the fall term.

IN THE SUBURBS

Dunellen.

Contractor Alberne H. Burdick is planning further activities in the building line in Dunellen, where he has had such excellent success in disposing of houses which he has erected during the past few years. He has not decided upon which of his lots he will build, as he owns several, but expects to make a start on one of them before long.

If you are thinking of investing in Dunellen real estate, or building a home for yourself or a house for investment, now is the time to put your good thoughts into working order and get busy. After the sewerage system is installed and in working order it is morally certain that there will be an appreciable advance in realty values and the forehanded man who gets in now, on the ground floor, will thank his stars later on.

The former Walter Vliet house on Front street was sold last week by Mr. Stevens, who moved here from Pennsylvania some months ago, to John P. Fenner. The latter has since sold the place to Theodore W. Day, Jr.

Further developments in the Columbia Park tract are planned for the present season by the proprietor, Frederick Harrington. He is going to have the roads brought to grade at once and hopes to soon have things booming in that section of the borough.

Through the agency of John Fedderman, the new house on Washington avenue recently completed for investment by Contractor Alberne H. Burdick has been sold to N. C. Forman, of Jersey City. The new owner will take possession about May 20.

The handsome new stucco house on Washington avenue built during the past winter by Contractor Alberne H. Burdick, of New Market, has been sold by him to Carl C. Bache, of Brooklyn. Mr. Bache is in the office of the J. P. Morgan Company. The new owner will take possession the latter part of the month.

A new garage is to be erected at once in the rear of the residence of Samuel M. Kookogey. The contract has been awarded to Contractor H. B. Eckert.

Charles E. Tinsman, the real estate man, who has been conducting his business for some time in his home, has secured desk room in the office of the Park Hotel Stables and Dunellen Ice Company and installed his equipment there last Friday, also placing the necessary signs in front of the building.

South Plainfield.

The Merchants' and Traders' Realty Company, of New York, have entered into a contract with Cohen & Israelsky, of Plainfield, for the erection by the latter of a two and a half story frame building on Oakland avenue, South Plainfield, before June 15. The architect is R. L. Robinson, of Plainfield. The contract price is $1,585.

New Market.

The several contractors are still busily at work at the M. Eiseman place, which is to be turned into a summer hotel for the coming season.

INCORPORATION PAPERS.

Concrete Construction Company, Inc., Murray Hill, N. J.; capital stock, $100,000; to construct fireproof reinforced buildings; incorporators, A. J. Tharp, A. B. Waythaler, W. H. Warner, all of New York city, and W. H. Mears, Murray Hill.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Instead of reducing our prices as we advertised a week ago to 5c for matinees and 10c in the evening for all seats, we have come to the conclusion that after the success we have had the past week in presenting big feature attractions, that the Public appreciate the same and are willing to pay the same prices that will allow us to present the biggest and best on the market.

OUR PRICES
In the future will be,
Except for special occasions,
Matinee, all seats 5c
Evening ..... 10c and 15c

We appreciate the way the people are now supporting this up-to-date place of amusement.

It was hard at first for us to convince the Public that the U. S. Astor Theatre was offering the biggest and best photo-play attractions obtainable.

It was hard for us to make the people believe that the projection of our pictures was the best in Plainfield.

You can ask anyone now who attends our performances, they will tell you what bright, clear and steady pictures we project.

All that we ask, so that we can continue to offer pictures that are different than has ever before been shown in this City is, the co-operation of our patrons by telling their friends where to see a good show.

We have booked the most expensive pictures that are now being made, which will be announced from week to week in the columns of this paper.

Very soon you will see that great

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this season.

Warren Townley, N. P. H. S. '16.

Warren Townley earned his place on the borough High School team while in the eighth grade and has never played any position but third base. He is at present in his fourth season for the maroon and black cause and has been on one championship team, last year. Third base is one of the hardest positions on the team to take care of, but Wren has never flinched at the hard hit balls that go down his way from the bat. He has a beautiful throw to first base and covers much ground in the infield.

Last season he finished at the top of the batting list, having an average of .365, and is at present hitting about .330. He first learned to play with the old Somerset Field Club nine, which was in action five and six years ago. Townley tips the scales at 140 and is 17 years old. He is right handed.

William Victorson, P. H. S. '16.

William "Bill" Victorson, who claims Dunellen as his home town, has been in the game for five years, first playing with the Dunellen Grammar School aggregation. "Bill" was at one time a pitcher but gave that up to play one of the bases. Last season he occupied the initial sack on the red and blue team and had a good fielding record all season. He has a steady, accurate and speedy throw to all of the bases, dooming the base runner practically every time he handles the ball perfectly.

At the beginning of the present season third base was open and "Bill" switched across the infield, where he is playing the same good game he did on first. He has one more year in High School. He weighs 148 pounds, claims to be 17 years old and is right handed.

PASTEING THE PILL WITH THE JUVENILE SWATTERS

BY JOSEPH A. GALLAGHER.

St. Mary's School is well supplied with ballists this year. The Cadets, St. Aloysius and the T. A. B. S., all are teams of recognized strength and are made up, at least in part, of boys from St. Mary's.

The Mt. Olive Sunday-school is thinking seriously of organizing a baseball nine. If they carry out their intentions, "Sid" Butler, "Moo" Kline, "Gums" Venable and "Bill" Reasoner are sure to occupy the more important berths on the team.

CARLSTROM GETS TWO.

Playing third base on the Buffalo team, of the International League, against the Richmond club at the latter place, yesterday, Albin Carlstrom made two hits, two runs and one assist. One of his bingles went for three bases, the longest drive of the game. Buffalo won 8 to 3.

TIED FOR FIRST.

In the 18-hole medal play handicap event that marked the opening of the women's golf schedule of the Plainfield Country Club, Thursday afternoon, Mrs. C. B. Lawrence and Mrs. A. M. Collens tied for first place. The best net score was 102.

NONPAREIL BALL CLUB.

The Nonpareil Social Club, a local colored organization, has organized a baseball nine under the management of Ralph Greene. The manager would like to hear from local teams in regard to arranging games.

MARY PICKFORD WEEK AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Admirers of Mary Pickford, the "Queen of Photoplay" stars, who has won her way into the hearts of many thousands of Americans, have a treat in store for them next week when she will be seen in the feature production at the Plainfield Theatre every day but one. The only exception is on Thursday, when Charles Frohman's production of "Diplomacy" will hold the boards. Manager Shannon has designated the coming period as Mary Pickford week and every lady attending the Monday, Wednesday and Friday matinees will receive a handsome souvenir.

All the pictures in which Miss Pickford will be seen will be the latest Paramount releases, as the following announcement will show: Monday, "Caprice;" Tuesday, "The Eagle's Mate;" Wednesday, "Tess of the Storm Country;" Friday, "Hearts Adrift," and Saturday, "A Good Little Devil." Theatregoers will recognize all these plays as being the very best and the kind that enabled Miss Pickford to display her talents. The theatre is given over today to the legitimate production of "Martha by the Day," in which Miss May Robson is appearing in the leading role.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Stimulating in the highest degree is Charles Frohman's announcement of the coming to the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, May 13, of his tri-star revival of Victorian Sardou's "Diplomacy," with a cast headed by the distinguished trio, William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro. The interest of local playgoers has been kept active with the news of the success of this "triple alliance" in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, and the local engagement gives all promise of being something of an event. The arrival of any one of Mr. Frohman's stars is always an occasion of significance in the theatrical season, but the coming of three at once is somewhat remarkable, to say the least. The association of Gillette, Bates and Doro is something of a tribute to Mr. Frohman's own diplomacy, tact and powers of persuasion, for to make the cast complete it was necessary to bring Mr.

Gillette out of a retirement which promised at one time to be permanent. He has not acted since 1910 when he was seen in revivals of his "Sherlock Homes," "Secret Service" and "The Private Secretary." The engagement also marks the return to America of Miss Doro, after a lengthy season in London. In the British metropolis she was seen in the same role—"Dora," the heroine—she is to play here, capping the climax of her triumph abroad when she was commanded to give a performance before the King and Queen. Miss Bates in the role of "Countess Zicka" is credited with having scored something of a personal triumph, adding another to her long list of artistic and brilliant stage conceptions. Victorien Sardou's play needs no introduction to American theatre-goers. Since its premiere in 1878, frequent presentations of it have made it a classic. Few plays even from Sardou's pen, contain such gripping and absorbing elements, its story holding one's interest fascinatingly to the end. Mr. Frohman has surrounded his three stars with a company comprising such distinguished players as Bertha Fordyce, Jeffreys Lewis, Malise Sheridan, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Giogio Majeroni, Norman Tharp, Elliott Dexter, Henry Dornton and Ellis Smedley. The play has been mounted with the customary Frohman good taste.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Mrs. Fay is a skilled and scientific manipulator of the arts of the East Indian and famed Mahatmas, being a daughter of India. She will begin her engagement at Proctor's Theatre Monday. Her wonderful exhibition, adroitness and dexterity comprise the most finished performance ever offered to the American people, and it is necessarily mysterious. She is not a spiritualistic medium and there is nothing supernatural about her work. In the answering of questions, identifications and descriptions, not all of Mrs. Fay's answers are correct—about eighty per cent. it has been found—but the proportion is such as to make it a truly wonderful exhibition.

Mrs. Fay positively gives no private audience to any person, she is not a fortune teller, palmist or pretender of any kind and it is not supposed that any person in the audience will be influenced by her exhibition in any way beyond the moment and it is for this purpose that this exhibition is given. The address of Mrs. Fay's assistant like that of any entertainer must not be taken too seriously, as it is his business to entertain and the more convincing his talk the better he accomplishes his end.

MOOSE TO PLAY.

The local Moose baseball team will play the Marions, of Lincoln, at that place, tomorrow afternoon. The game will probably start at 3 o'clock.

ASSESSORS MEET WITH UNION COUNTY BOARD

Elizabeth, May 8—County assessors met with the Board for the Equalization of Taxes at the courthouse yesterday afternoon, thirty-five out of the forty-two assessors being present. William A. Coddington, of Plainfield, and John J. Collins, of Elizabeth, members of the County Board, instructed them in their duties, particularly with regard to market valuations. The assessors also had some useful suggestions to make.

FLORIDA CLUB HELD SUCCESSFUL DANCE

The Florida Club, of this city, gave a shirtwaist dance in Saengerbund Hall last night. The affair was attended by about seventy-five couple and was a success. Music was furnished by Halbfoerster's Tango Band, of Elizabeth, and dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock.

The feature of the evening was a novelty dance for $2.50. There were but two contestants and the prize was awarded to Lidnen Journeau and Miss M. Day.

TO SELL GROVE STREET BRIDGE ON MAY 28

Councilman Julius Stahl, at the May meeting of the Borough Council, last night, offered a resolution giving the Somerset County Board of Freeholders the right to use the North Plainfield Council chambers for the public sale of the Grove street bridge on May 28. The resolution was passed and afterwards broadened so that it will allow the Union and Somerset freeholders to use the chambers for meetings during the period consumed in the erection of the new bridge on Grove street.

ONE TIME WALTZ KING IS NOW A COMMON LABORER

"BIG JOHN" MOVING ONE OF THE 108 WILD ANIMAL DENS OF RINGLING BROS' CIRCUS.

Once the premier dancer of his class but now reduced to the role of a common laborer—that in a sentence is the life story of "Big John," one of the mightiest of the Ringling Brothers' circus elephants and the acknowledged Samson of the animal kingdom.

Thirty years ago, when John's present owners were just becoming known in the world of arenic achievement, they purchased the giant from an African trader. After months of training Ringling Brothers introduced him to the public and for more than two decades he held his laurels as America's foremost dancing elephant. But time ages even pachyderm joints and for several years past John has lived apart from the glamour of the rings. He marches with some forty of his fellows in the circus parade and covered with red plush robes takes part in the new 1,250-character spectacle of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, but he no longer holds the title of "actor." He and his partner, Jennie, another veteran in the Ringling service, are the "working elephants." John does the work of a hundred men with apparently no effort at all. In Ringling Brothers' menagerie are 108 cages of wild animals. Some, such as those containing the armored or double horned rhinoceros or Saidee, the seven-ton hippopotamus, are of tremendous weight. With the assistance of Jennie, John moves the entire collection each time the menagerie tent is erected or torn down. When the heavy pole-wagon or the giraffe car sticks in a rut John is called into action. He places his massive forehead against the stubborn vehicle and, presto, it moves. He follows his keeper around like a dog and to see him striding across the grounds or propelling a heavy wagon will be one of the many novel sights to be seen when the circus comes to town, Wednesday, May 19. During the hours when the main tent is filled with people, John stands in the menagerie silently munching his hay. What his thoughts may be when troupes of his fellows shuffle by on their way to the rings, none can say. Perhaps he dreams of the time when he, too, went forth to win the plaudits of the multitudes. But John can never "come back." He is merely a laborer now—a relic of the days when elephants danced the polka and schottish and when such creations as the tango now performed by the modern Ringling jungle dancers were unknown.

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

DEALERS REPORT TURN IN PRICES

Building Material Dealers in Metropolitan District Are Optimistic.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED

An Actual Gain In Building Construction of 20.4 Per Cent. Indicated By the Increased Consumption of Brick.

New York, May 8—Building material dealers throughout the metropolitan district believe that the turn in the price situation has come. Common Hudson brick moved up 25 cents a thousand, wholesale, this week. Portland cement companies, with the exception of two or three, have been showing a tendency to get to levels higher than $1.23. Linseed oil advanced another cent a gallon, leading paint manufacturers to believe that a higher quotation would be necessary before long in view of the high price of lead and colors. Copper and sheet brass were quoted this week at 24 cents base for the former and 21¼ and 20½ for the latter. Copper was 18 cents and brass 17½ cents a few weeks ago. It is being held stiff and high, and the result is that art metal manufacturers, especially those making andirons and fireplace fixtures, have had to consider further advancing their quotations to the trade.

The name of the Knickerbocker Portland Cement Company was mentioned this week as the New York State unit in the Edward M. Hager chain of cement factories that he plans to establish throughout the country in areas of 200 miles each. President Bassett said, however, that Mr. Hager was not at present negotiating with the company. The fact that the new concern was about to be incorporated, and the further fact that the man who probably will be the president of the new concern, has gone to Chicago to attend the manufacturers' convention, to begin next week, leads many to believe that negotiations are all closed and that the company is about ready for launching. It is to be incorporated for $25,000,000.

An actual gain in building construction of 20.4 per cent. is indicated by the increased consumption of common brick from the Hudson river district alone for the first four months of 1915 over the same period in 1914. This barometer is particularly reliable this year because of the fact that few dealers are stacking owing to their anxiety to store as much cement at the low prices that have been prevailing as possible. Reports from the suburbs indicate that there is a notable improvement for building materials, although the yard prices for common brick in Newark is still between $6.75 and $7.

Advices from the manufacturing centers of the Hudson brick industry indicate that what looked like a possible over-supply will barely fill out the season on current demand to June 12, when new brick is expected to arrive. There was on January 1, 300,000,000 common brick up the Hudson. To day there are only 117,375,000, and there is a current demand of 18,750,000 brick a week. The price of Raritan brick has advanced from $6 to $6.25, to match the advance made in the price of Hudson.

The condition of the lumber market is such as to give considerable hope to dealers for better prices. The stocks at the mills are getting low. The terrific demand for rifle stocks is sapping certain grades of hardwood to the extent that hardwood panels and mantels are likely to be higher in price unless the present demand eases off. Heavy shoring timber is in the bulk of the business moving in this city today, while in the suburbs building grades are slow, but strong on figuring. The low price of cement, brick and lime and other basic materials used in making fire resistive structures is said by some of the dealers to be responsible for the marked falling off in the demand for lumber, and the gain in the call for brick, cement and general concrete ingredients.

In some places in the East there has developed a decided campaign opposing the further use of wood shingles. This is beleng discussed by lumber interests of the jobbing trade in New York with the idea of combating this tendency. The feeling is that once this movement gets under way it will sweep throughout the East, where there are many cities of moderate population, and cause a run on slate and composition material, and the ruination of the shingle industry.

A ROOMY BUNGALOW

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

THIS bungalow that we are illustrating is 36 ft. wide by 43 ft. in depth and is suited in arrangement to a south or east frontage. There are five good ..... on the main floor and two rooms on the second floor. The entrance at the right is through a roomy porch that comes under the main roof. The square central hall opens into the front living room 20 ft. by 13 ft. and into dining room 14 ft. by 12 ft. The hall also opens into two bed rooms on the right with a bath room in the rear and the kitchen on the left immediately back of the dining room. The width of the house admits of a low spreading roof and two rooms on the second floor which could not be had in a narrow house.

It is designed to be of frame construction with concrete foundation and cemented basement under the main part of house. The exterior is sheathed and covered with heavy building paper and sided with wide Washington fir or redwood drop siding, giving an artistic appearance. This siding may be stained with a light brown mission shade and all the trimmings, casings, cornices, etc., painted either white or a very light cream color. All of the roof shingles stained dark brown, or red, to suit the taste of the owner. With some surroundings a green shade to the roof will look very pleasing. It is estimated to build this bungalow for $4,000 to $4,800, exclusive of heating and plumbing.

The main floor is finished in Washington fir for casings, base, doors, etc., stained brown and the floors laid with oak or birch varnished or waxed and left in the natural color. The rooms in the second story are finished in natural pine with birch or maple floor. There are large ample closets provided and the low spaces under the roof are used for storage. A third room could be provided on the second floor if desired. The exterior treatment of the roof with its outward curve and extra wide overhang to the cornice gives a very pretty and artistic effect.

$5,000 BUILDING FOR THE WEST END

The far West End is to have another business building in the near future, according to plans filed with Inspector T. O. Doane this week by the K. and G., Inc., of Newark. The detailed drawings of the proposed structure call for the erection of a two-story frame building at 1352-4-6 West Front street, just beyond the local plant of the International Motor Company. The property is on the corner of Johannis place. The estimated cost is placed at $5,000.

The building, measuring 18 by 65 feet, with a width of 29 feet in the rear, will have two stores on the first floor, both having a frontage on Front street of eighteen feet, six inches one with a depth of 46 feet, and the other of 52 feet. Each of the stores will have rooms partitioned off in the rear. The details of the second floor call for sixteen lodging rooms, a laundry, and two baths. It is expected that the lodging rooms are to be conducted in conjunction with a restaurant which is to occupy one of the stores of the ground floor. A modern steam heating system is included in the plans.

With the filing of these drawings, it has also been announced in certain quarters that the same concern will, in the near future, file plans for another building in the same general vicinity, for a large building which will run the entire distance from West Front street to Bradford avenue, and facing on DeKalb avenue.

It is expected that work on the building, for which plans have already been filed, will be started during the forepart of next week, providing the existing trouble between the carpenters and the masters does not develop into anything serious before that time. M. J. Nadel, of Newark, is the architect of the proposed building, while the Anchor Construction Company, also of Newark, has the general contracts.

STATE PERMITS.

The New Jersey Tenement House Commission granted twenty-nine permits for new work costing $407,700 during the week ending last Saturday, an increase of $115,500 over the previous week. Permits were eight each for Jersey City and Newark, three for West New York, two for Passaic and one each for North Bergen, Summit, Paterson, Hoboken, Nutley, East Orange, Kearny and Phillipsburg. New Jersey Building Department issued thirty permits for new construction work costing $78,785, a decrease of $15,235.

RECORD TO MAY 1 INDICATES PROGRESS

Nine New Buildings and Alterations Started Since First of Year.

Figures compiled showing the various types of buildings for which permits were issued from January 1 to April 30 by Inspector T. O. Doane indicate that twenty-four dwellings, with a total value of $89,700 have been or are now in the course of construction in this city. The table below shows the number of the various types of buildings together with their values, and show that a total of $196,518 have been invested in this city since the first of the present year.

These figures are indeed encouraging, when compared with the record of the first four months of last year. Added to these figures, it should be borne in mind that two schools, one in the city and one in the borough, with a combined value of over $100,000, and a postoffice building on Watchung avenue, the cost of which will be considerably over $80,000, are now engaging the attention of local working-men.

The record up to May 1 is as noted below:

Type of Bldg.	No.	Value.
Dwellings	24	$ 89,700
Business	5	22,600
Apartments	1	45,000
Garages	18	4,580
Barns and stables	2	4,600
Miscellaneous	9	2,413
Alteration jobs	20	27,625
Totals	79	$196,518

MORE MONEY FOR SCHOOL.

Westfield, May 8.—The announcement that the new $100,000 High School building could not be completed unless there is an additional appropriation of at least $10,000 was made to the Board of Education, Tuesday night, by Trustee Dennis, who stated that about $6,000 would be needed for furniture, $1,000 for grading and $4,000 for equipment. The Board will meet on Tuesday evening next to issue a call for a special school meeting.

BUYS EIGHTY ACRE FARM.

Mrs. Lent Hoerster, of Somerset street, has completed negotiations for the purchase of the Coddington farm in Warren township, which is sold to close an estate. The property consists of eighty acres and the purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

TWO PERMITS ISSUED DURING PAST WEEK

One Dwelling and One Garage Covered by Documents From Inspector's Office.

The Second ward cornered the two building permits issued during the course of the past week by Inspector T. O. Doane, calling for the erection of one garage and one dwelling. The total expenditures for the week amount to $1,680. Several permits are being held in abeyance, and it is expected that another week will witness the issuing of a number of permits for local construction work.

Local labor conditions, as concerning the situation between the master and journeymen carpenters, is possibly holding back the awarding of contracts in some quarters, but this condition, it is believed, will not long exist. The breaking of ground for the new Federal postoffice building looms up as the feature of the local building world for the past week.

The permits as issued this week are as noted below:

Lionel Cruickshank is to erect a one-story 20x24 foot frame dwelling of the bungalow type at Prospect and Locust avenues. The cost has been placed at $1,500. Louis Vieth is the contractor.

Benjamin W. Evans, of Madison avenue, is to erect a frame 12x18 foot frame garage on the property he recently purchased on Prospect avenue, west of Edgewood avenue. The cost is placed at $180. Charles L. Force, of the borough, is the contractor.

FORMER WILLS' RESIDENCE UNDERGOING OVERHAULING

The former Wills residence, which was recently swung around from its original location on East Seventh street to the rear of the lot facing East Sixth street, is now undergoing a general overhauling. The Crescent Realty Company, which is now the owner, has decided to keep it as a one-family structure and make it strictly modern. New plumbing is to be installed, the kitchen and bathrooms tiled and a new system of lighting put in. The house has twelve rooms in all.

Work still progresses on the Crescent Court Apartment building, which occupies the site made vacant by the removal of the Wills residence, and which is being erected by the Crescent Realty Company. Armstrong Mulford, of North avenue, has been made agent for the building and has already made many rentals. It was originally planned to have the structure ready in the fall, but whether this can be done or not depends on how long the present carpenters' strike lasts.

ENGINEER RELATES VALUE OF CONCRETE TO FARMERS

The growing use of concrete by farmers was brought out a few nights ago in a lecture given to the Students' Agricultural Club, Rutgers College, by S. Frank Butler, district engineer for the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers.

Mr. Butler said: "The distinguishing characteristic of concrete is its extreme economy, concrete being synonomous with durability and permanency. Concrete is the best modern fire resisting material, as was shown recently in the fire at the Edison plant at Orange.

"Concrete is reasonable in first cost and enduring under stress of time and weather as to mean the practical elimination of bills for painting and repairs. It is a solid, seamless and sanitary material and once built a concrete structure lasts for all time, as is shown by the surviving edifices and roads the Romans built centuries ago.

"Concrete being rotproof, fireproof, requiring practically no repairs and being of such a nature that anybody by using a small amount of ingenuity and care, can make many things with it, it is becoming very popular with the farmer, as he can build his own walks, steps, walls, floors, etc., in his spare time at very reasonable cost."

ROSELLE PARK TO VOTE.

Roselle Park, May 8.—Resolutions were passed last Tuesday night at the meeting of the Board of Education to hold a special election May 25, when the following resolution will be voted on: "Resolved, That the resolutions adopted at the meeting of February 9, 1915, providing for the building of a $65,000 High School as per the ballot used at such special meeting of February 9, 1915, be and is hereby rescinded."

(Other building news on page 5.)

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company for today is as follows: 9 a. m., 70 degrees; 11 a. m., 74 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 77 degrees.

The Week's Work In Brief

Plant porch and window boxes.
Sow sweet corn, squash and bush lima beans.
Set out bedding plants, such as salvia, verbena, petunias, geranium.
Prune flowering shrubs when the blossoms pass.
Set out dahlias.
Spray roses with arsenate of lead.

THE choice of material for use in porch and window boxes depends, naturally, on exposure. Situations with nothern exposure, where the sun never strikes, are the most difficult to supply. But, in such positions attractive boxes can be made up from the following list: Ferns, ivy, geraniums, vincas, asparagus, glechoma, trailing fuchsias and begonias. Flowers, of course, will not be numerous, but excellent foliage effects can be obtained from these plants and combinations of them. Vincas, to trail down the sides, with asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri, ferns and fuchsias make an attractive box that will do well in such situations. Boxes with southern exposure may be planted with geraniums, lantana (weeping and upright), crotons, abutilons, coleus, antirrhinums and varieties of hydrangea hortensis. For boxes on the east and west, where shade prevails to a greater extent than on the south, the plants suggested for both north and south exposures will usually thrive.

In setting out the plants, avoid bringing the level of the soil in the box too near the top edge of the box. It should be at least an inch—an inch and a half is better—lower. This allows for watering. It will be found best, also, to soak the soil thoroughly with water before setting out the plants. Unless this is done, after planting there will be a settling that will oftentimes pull the surface lower than was intended. If the plants come in pots, do not disturb the balls of earth in transplanting. Empty the pots carefully and set the plants at once. When all are in their places, water thoroughly. Be sure that the boxes themselves do not rest directly on the floor. They should be supported sufficiently to insure good drainage. Do not plant too thickly—remember the plants must have room to grow. It is the greatest mistake—too frequently made—to plant the boxes for immediate effects. Make allowance for subsequent development. When large plants are set out in the beginning, by mid-summer the boxes as a rule are past their prime. It is then, though, that they should be approaching their prime, provided still with room for further development and growth during August and September. On this account, best results usually are obtained by planting young plants. These may not look as attractive at first, but later they will surpass those in which larger plants were employed. The younger and smaller stock, moreover, has the additional advantage of being far cheaper.

Dividing Old Dahlia Stool.
A—Tuberous Roots (a); Crown, (b); Old Stem, (c).
B—Divided So Each Root Had Adhering To It A Piece Of The Old Crown.
The Roots, (d); crown bud, (e).

In the vegetable garden, plant corn. The "warmest" and quickest section of the garden should be selected for its growth, and the soil should be rich and well and deeply dug. Ordinarily, corn is raised in hills, but where space is limited and cultivation can be at frequent intervals, plant in drills. The crop will be larger. For the dwarf varieties, the rows need be only twenty inches apart and the plants a foot apart in the rows. The first sowing should be at a depth of one inch; later sowings should be at a depth of one and one-half or even two inches. For succession, plant as often as every two weeks. Good varieties are Golden Bantam, Stabler's Early, Country Gentleman and Stowell's Evergreen.

The bush lima beans may be planted much earlier than the pole varieties. The soil, however, should be warm and dry rather than wet when the planting is made. Plant two inches deep in rows two feet apart and thin to four inches apart. If a late frost threatens, cover the seedlings with paper or cloth. Never brush against the vines when they are wet—there will be no crop if you do.

Two Forms Of The Dahlia. Single Cactus On The Left, Pompon On The Right.

Varieties of squash are numerous. It is only necessary to remember, however, that the bush squashes are chiefly summer varieties and the running sorts are chiefly late. The late keep best. The bush selection is the best, everything considered, for the small city or suburban garden. Sow the seed one inch deep in hills three feet apart each way. Drop eight or ten seeds to a hill and, later, thin to three plants to the hill. For best results, cultivate frequently, preserving the surface mulch. The crop is greatly improved if, after two or three fruits have set, no other blossoms are permitted to mature and all ends are pinched back. Ceaseless warfare must be waged against insect pests. Spray frequently with arsenate of lead, an ounce to a gallon of water, and also with Bordeaux mixture. To repel attacks of the borer, distribute a handful of tobacco powder close around the plants.

Flowering shrubs, as a rule, need little pruning. But if, as in the case of the spiraea, for instance, blossom has been scarce, it may be well to cut away some of the older wood to give the young shoots a better chance to mature. Avoid too formal pruning; allow the shrub to grow in natural form. Cutting out the older wood and sprawling growth that threatens to encroach too much on the surrounding space will generally suffice.

Earliest flowers from dahlia tubers come from those started indoors under glass and grown on until the season for outdoor planting has arrived. If the old roots are set out before they have been divided or sprouted, the flowers will be late and, very likely, small. It is a mistake to plant a heavy clump. Divide it by cutting up, with a sharp knife, through the old crown, leaving a piece of it attached to each tuber. Dahlias do not sprout from eyes or buds as do potatoes. Varieties reach into the hundreds and in order to choose those most desirable it is well to obtain the catalogue of nurseries dealing in them. The descriptions can usually be relied upon as trustworthy.

Give the roses a protective spraying of arsenate of lead, an ounce to one gallon of water and an additional spraying a few days later with sulphide of potassium at the rate of one-half ounce to a gallon of water.

THE MASTER MIND

Novelized by Marvin Dana, author of "Within the Law," from the successful play by Daniel D. Carter

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly Company.

Walter perceived that Andrew was now occupied in rearranging some magazines on the large table, and he recalled the memorandum prepared for his guidance. Yes, the Great White Way! That must be introduced next. He spoke mechanically.

"Funny," he commented. "You see, I know so few people in New York."

Dr. Forbes peered with curiosity at the young man.

"You're a stranger here, you say, Mr. Blount?"

"Yes," was the answer, very cheerfully given, for now the thief saw his way to carry out the required instruction. "And I can't say that I like your town very much. Of course there are some things right enough. I'll admit that the first month I spent along the Great White Way passed off lively enough. But, you know, a man soon gets enough of that. When dad and mother came on east to meet sister, who's just got back from Europe, I took this place so we could all be together for awhile. Dad's been joshing me about getting homesick," he added, with a shamefaced grin that acknowledged some justice in the charge. "He says I won't be able to stick it out for a year, but I think I will—maybe—just for a stunt."

"Where is your home, may I ask?" Wainwright inquired.

"My home town is Laramie, Wyo. Of course I'll have to admit that it's a dinky little place, but I like it at that. You see, everybody's your friend out there." Andrew had gone to a window at the far end of the room—a fact duly observed by his pupil. "Yes; everybody's your friend out there," he repeated, with a hint of emotion in his voice, "but here it's so hard to get acquainted—that is, with the right sort."

"If I can be of service to you in any way"— Wainwright suggested.

"Oh, I don't mean to butt in," Walter declared modestly.

Wainwright smiled in friendly fashion.

"I'm glad you did last night," he said emphatically.

"Oh, that! But, say, have you got any idea why this particular man tried to kill you or who he was or anything?"

"Nothing definite," Wainwright replied. "I dare say it was just some one with a grievance. You may happen to know, Mr. Blount, that I was for some years district attorney here. During my term of service I was compelled to send a good many men to prison, first and last, and some even to the electric chair." As the last words were spoken Andrew, who had been surreptitiously watching the speaker, turned his face instinctively to hide from view the distortion of hate that transformed it. "Yes," Wainwright continued, unwitting the feeling aroused in one of his hearers; "a good many criminals have come to hate me."

"Gee," Walter ejaculated, "it gives me a chill just to think of it!"

"Oh, you'd soon get used to it!" Wainwright returned indifferently.

Walter shook his head violently.

"Yes," he agreed, "I suppose it's all in the day's work; but, just the same, the idea of receiving threatening letters and all that sort of dope"—

Wainwright interrupted, "My secretary usually destroys them at once."

"There is one notable exception," Dr. Forbes observed in his characteristically precise manner of speech as he refolded his hands carefully and smiled a wintry smile. "I refer to the white card episode."

"The white card episode?" Walter repeated.

Wainwright's face lost its rather bored aspect.

"Ah, the white card!" he said thoughtfully. "Yes, that is something different. And the white card is still coming—coming from some very mysterious person, a sort of genius in his way." He put a hand into the breast pocket of his coat and drew forth a bit of white cardboard, which he extended toward his host. "This is one I received yesterday."

Walter, who had examined the card curiously, looked up in disappointment as he returned it to its recipient.

"Why, there's nothing on it," he complained. "What's the idea? Is it from somebody you sent up?"

"It carries a message in spite of its being blank," Wainwright said somberly. "As to your question, no, it is not from some one I sent up. I've never seen the man that sent me this and the others like it, and promises to send me more, of different colors."

Wainwright then proceeded to describe the Allen murder, the sentence and the threatening developments thereafter.

Walter's desire for details concerning the curious situation outlined by Wainwright was thwarted by the entrance of Mr. and Mrs. Blount, pursuant to Andrew's privately conveyed instructions to them. Husband and wife were in evening dress. He sprang up, as his guests rose, and introduced the twain as his father and mother.

"I'm right glad to meet any friend of my son's," the husband affirmed.

"He proved himself my friend last night," Wainwright said. Blount chuckled.

"Yes, he happened to be right on the job, didn't he?"

Mrs. Blount, who did not approve of being left out of any conversation in her neighborhood, interposed hospitably, as she arranged her ample form in a chair near the guests.

"Now, do sit down," she urged, and beamed on first the one visitor and then the other. She felt a triumphant pride in her position here as hostess in metropolitan society and wished that the members of the Mothers' club of Laramie, Wyo., might see her now, entertaining thus intimately two distinguished gentlemen of New York city. Wainwright remarked, as he seated himself in a chair facing his hostess "I fear we are detaining you."

"Not a bit, you ain't," Mrs. Blount asserted, with forcefulness. "Father and Lucene and I were just going out to have dinner at some restaurant, and we ain't in any hurry at all."

Mr. Blount re-enforced his wife's statement.

"No, siree, we ain't in any rush. We've got a taxi waiting," the westerner went on as he opened a cigar case. "Let it wait, I say. Mother and I don't come to New York often, and, when we do come why, darn the expense! Eh? Ain't that right, mother?"

Dr. Forbes made an effort to sustain a share in the conversation by addressing Blount. "You come from the cattle country, I hear."

"It used to be a real cattle country," was the answer, "but nowadays it's all sheep. It's good business, too, all right, though the smell of those critters is something awful. The last few years have been wonderful, I tell you, sir. Why, I can remember when 11 cents for wool was considered a very good price. But two years ago we got 27. That's some price for raw wool, believe me. But of course no one knows what this new tariff"—

Walter interrupted the speaker with an admirable imitation of the pert son's rude manner toward the father.

"Now, dad, for heaven's sake, don't you get started on the tariff."

"No, John," Mrs. Blount tittered. "I wish I had a dollar for every hour I've had to listen to that stuff." She turned her eyes on Walter. "I wish, my dear," she said in tones expressive of deepest maternal pride, "that you'd go and ask Lucene to please hurry."

Walter stood up obediently.

"Yes, mother," he said, "if you will excuse me to our guests." And he hurried from the room.

Blount took advantage of the reference to the daughter of the house to enter again into the conversational arena.

"Yes, Mr. Wainwright, and you, doctor, we're just naturally some proud of that girl of ours. You might think four years in France would spoil a girl. So it might—some of them, I guess. But not our girl! Why, Lucene is just crazy to get home again—out to Laramie, Wyo."

"I don't know, father," the wife said doubtfully. "I'm afraid she'll never be really satisfied here in her own country any more."

"I guess that's right," said Walter, who had re-entered in time to hear his mother's remark.

Blount waved an arm in vehement denial.

Then the visitors stood up quickly, looking toward the doorway. Lucene had paused there, and her blue eyes, now darkly lustrous, were fixed on Wainwright in a gaze that penetrated to his soul.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

WHEN THE DAYS GROW WARMER.

An exceedingly pretty model for a simple summer frock of muslin or embroidery is shown here. Very wide flouncing may be used for this, serving as the lower portion of the skirt and attached to a yoke of plain batiste. The piping of the flounce heading with white satin produces a very pretty effect. A broad band of white satin serves to lengthen the skirt. The girdles have grown so wide as to become the main portion of the bodices, often reaching, as in the example above, to the arm pits. This girdle was of white satin; lengths of embroidery cross the shoulders and complete the body of the bodice. The sleeves are of chiffon.

DRESSES FOR LARGE WOMEN.

No. 8761.

To successfully dress a figure that deviates from the normal in height or breadth is an art. Perhaps no clothes problem is more interesting than that of the stout woman, and nowhere has this problem been better coped with than in Ladies Home Journal designs. There are a number of excellent patterns cut in special schedules, and among these is a coat-dress that is delightfully distinctive. This pattern, No. 8761, shown above has a four piece skirt and a waist in coat effect with a generous peplum. The pattern cuts in sizes 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49 and 51 inches bust measure, requiring in size 43, 6½ yards 36-inch material with ¾-yard 18-inch contrasting goods.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Good afternoon," said Nell coldly, when she opened the door and saw Miss Rudolph standing on the porch. She had merely bowed distantly to the girl on the street since Dick had returned the silly letter that had made so much trouble. The girl had taken great pains to avoid a meeting with Nell and had scarcely spoken to Dick. Nell stood silently waiting for Miss Rudolph to make known her errand.

"Please, Mrs. Morton, may I come in?" She was very pale. Nell held the door wide and she silently entered.

"Mr. Scott sent me over here, the bearer of evil tidings." She was steadying herself by holding the back of a chair. "He did not know that he could not have chosen a more unwelcome messenger. He sent me because he thought a woman could better break the news that your husband is badly hurt."

Nell dropped into a chair by which she was standing, and gripped the arms. "What is it; tell me," she breathed.

"He was struck by a falling timber. His leg is broken, I believe. I did not get the particulars. Mr. Scott hurried me away so that the shock of seeing him brought home would not be so great. Let me help you get ready for him." She rose and laid her hand on Nell's arm. "Let me prove that there is something of the woman in me after all."

Nell hardly heard her, but she rose with the girl's assistance and they soon had everything ready for the injured man.

Miss Rudolph was cool and capable. Nell steadied herself by clinging to the door when she saw them bringing Dick in, pale but smiling. Dr. Ellson was with him and said encouragingly, "It's nothing very serious, Mrs. Morton. Do not be alarmed." Dick stretched out his hand and, clasping it convulsively, she walked by the side of the stretcher to the bedroom.

The baby waked and began to cry. "I'll take care of him, Mrs. Morton," said Miss Rudolph, picking him up. "I'm used to babies." And she must have been, for not another sound was heard from the little fellow while they were settling the injured man on the bed and putting his leg in a plaster cast. When Nell came into the kitchen the baby was propped up in his buggy intently watching a colored ball that she had fastened to the carriage top.

"Thank you so much for amusing him," said Nell, sinking into a chair utterly spent from the nervous strain.

"It was a great pleasure. I have taken care of younger brothers and sisters, so I am at home with babies. Now let me make you a cup of tea and a slice of toast. You do not look able to move."

Nell hesitated. "Just to show me you do not harbor resentment," urged the girl. Nell smiled her consent and the girl's face lit up with pleasure.

"After all," thought Nell, "when her affected ways are peeled off and we get right down to the girl, she is kindly and human."

They drank a cup of tea together in neighborly fashion by the kitchen table. Then as Mrs. Parsons came in Miss Rudolph took her leave.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— Sweeping the Cobwebs Away Like The Little Witch.

And, Last of All, the Floor Was Swept.

"'JEANIE, I'm going away today, and I am going to leave you to do the housework,' said Mamma Dean one bright summer day. Daddy was telling the evening story, and the kiddies were cuddled up before the fire, listening with all their ears.

"Jeanie had just got out of bed," continued daddy, "and she was like another little girl I know of." Daddy looked very intently at Evelyn. "She was very cross when she first got up.

"'I don't want to sweep and dust and wash dishes. I want to go out in the woods this morning,' whined Jeanie.

"'I'm sorry, Jeanie,' said her mother, 'but I must go and see poor, sick Mrs. Lee. I might get the old woman that sweeps the cobwebs out of the sky, but I don't believe she has a telephone.'

"This remark set Jeanie to thinking, and she forgot all about being cross. She put on her clothes in no time at all and then combed her hair and braided it tightly and wound it around her head.

"Then she got a piece of white paper and shaped it into a tall peaked cap. Then this cap she placed upon her head. She found a little black and red checked shawl in her mother's room. This she folded cornerwise and pinned it around her neck. Then she went down into the kitchen.

"First she ate her breakfast and fed Blackie, her kittie. Then she took the broom and started in. And such a sweeping as Mamma Dean's kitchen got that day! The walls were all brushed down with a long handled brush. The stovepipe was carefully dusted, then the floor was swept.

"Then Jeanie washed the dishes and dried them very carefully and polished the silver before she put it away. Then the stove was blackened until she could see her face in it, and, lastly, the floor was scrubbed to such a whiteness that it was as clean as the kitchen table.

"And what do you suppose Jeanie was playing, kiddies? Why, that she was a witch and that she had come down out of the sky upon her broomstick to do all that work for Mamma Dean!

"And Blackie, of course, had come with her because every witch must have a black cat."

"Why does every witch have a black cat, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Oh, because they always do," replied daddy laughingly.

"'Because' isn't a reason at all, daddy!" cried Jack.

"Well, you must go to bed because"— began daddy.

"Because it's late. We know all about that 'because,'" laughed the kiddies.

Household Hints

COOKIES

Nut Cookies—Mix together one scant cup shortening and two cups sugar (light brown preferred), add two eggs, four tablespoons sour milk in which dissolve soda, two and one-half cups rolled oats, two and one-half cups flour sifted with one teaspoon cinnamon. Mix well and let stand over night. The next morning roll out and bake as other cookies.

Baker's Cookies—Two tincups sugar, one-half tincup lard, one-fourth tincup sour cream, three-fourths tincup sweet milk, four eggs, one scant teaspoon soda, two heaping teaspoons baking powder, flour enough to make a soft dough. This is a very large recipe, but can easily be divided and only half of the recipe used by taking a cup to measure the ingredients instead of a tincup, and using only two eggs.

Oatmeal Drop Cakes—One cup sugar, one-half cup shortening, one-half cup buttermilk, two cups rolled oats, two cups flour, one cup chopped raisins, two eggs, one teaspoon soda dissolved in buttermilk.

Cookies—Two cups sugar, two eggs, one and one-half cups lard, one cup sweet milk, three teaspoons baking powder sifted in the flour. Use enough flour to roll out. When the cookies are baked, put in stone crock. Put a slice of bread on top of them and cover with a plate; they will stay nice and soft.

Fruit Cookies—Two cups brown sugar, one cup butter and lard mixed, one cup cold coffee, one cup chopped raisins, two eggs, one heaping teaspoon soda dissolved in hot water, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon nutmeg, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon baking powder sifted with three cups flour. Bake in square pans. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Let stand until cold, cut in squares with sharp knife.

Ginger Cookies—Two eggs, one cup granulated sugar, one cup lard (or lard and butter), two cups baking molasses, one cup sour milk (or buttermilk), three teaspoons soda dissolved in milk, one tablespoon ginger, three teaspoons baking powder in flour, just flour enough to make a very soft dough. The secret with good cookies is not to get the dough too stiff. Sprinkle with sugar before baking in a very hot oven.

ARRANGE YOUR KITCHEN AS A MAN COOK WOULD HAVE IT.

Probably nothing can save more steps and fatigue than a compact arrangement of the cooking utensils, by placing them in the work table drawers and in the wall cabinet, which should be as near the table as possible. This arrangement is insisted on by all chefs and man cooks in perfectly arranged hotel and club kitchens, as they know how to reduce cooking to a science and do it methodically and without waste of energy.

The model kitchen should be fully equipped with utensils. Do not use breakable articles. Buy an outfit of tin, granite or porcelain, and thereby save expense and the nicked and broken things too often seen. Have a zinc top to your working table, because hot dishes will always stick to the usual white oilcloth.

When a task is unpleasant to a housekeeper, let her try to get one of the latest devices for doing that work. A heavy mitten will protect the hand when blackeneing the stove is the dreaded duty. A new hair-brush, with bristles cut to a point makes the sweeping of carpeted stairs easier. There are sink brushes and ash sifters, and many other contrivances that help to lighten labor. A dishwasher and a clothes-washer are valuable labor-saving devices.

MADE OF LEFTOVER PIE CRUST

Fruit Tarts—Roll pie crust, cut in rounds, turn up edges, fill with preserves or jam, bake and serve with spoonful of whipped cream on each.

Cinnamon Rolls—Roll crust thin, spread with melted butter, sprinkle with sugar, then cinnamon; commence at edge and roll; slice off in rounds about one-fourth inch thick, and bake.

Marshmallow Trifles—Cut crust in squares, press four marshmallows on each square, cover with another square and bake.

Nut Crusties — Cut crusts in rounds, sprinkle with ground nuts, cover with round, place two half nuts on top, bake in hot oven.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The Lesson of the Last Chicago Election.

The following article from the Woman's Protest, taken, as it largely is, from papers in sympathy with suffrage, calls for serious consideration on the part of the men who are to vote on this question on October 19. A few unnecessary statistics are omitted:

The eyes of the country were on Chicago when, on April 6, its 485,000 registered men and 282,000 registered women were entitled to vote in the Mayoralty election.

* * * * * * * * * * *

We quote a portion of an editorial in the New York Evening Sun, April 7, which sums it up as follows:

"The vote of the women proved to be essentially insignificant. A great many women voted; but for all the effect they had on the result they might as well have stayed at home. Such small effect as can be traced in the most accurate figures now available was helpful to Thompson, but he didn't need any help.

* * * * * * * * * * *

"Thus the result seems to support the view very generally held that votes for women will have not perceptible effect on elections except the increased expense, and that all the results of the pending change will be of the reflex kind, the modifications in social relations due to the entrance of women into politics. But it is too soon as yet to feel sure of this."

An interesting side-light on the campaign is this quotation from the (Suffrage) Chicago Tribune: "The election was the culmination of the most intense and bitter campaign in Chicago's history. Injection of the religious question was the chief cause for the bitterness."

Since women had no real effect upon the election it will be interesting to see what effect the election and the campaign had upon women. The day after the election the New York Times said:

"A tour of various polling places today by the New York Times correspondent revealed the fact, however, that the chivalry on the part of the male election officials and political workers in the few elections held since women obtained the franchise in Illinois has worn off. Smoking in the polling places, which was tabooed last fall out of respect to the women, was resumed in full force today."

The Chicago papers show a determination to avoid criticizing the Suffragists. Hence the following statement signed by Henry M. Hyde, presumably of the Chicago Tribune staff, is very pertinent and eminently trustworthy. It is reproduced from the April 7 issue of that newspaper, a suffrage journal owneed by a suffrage leader.

In explaining his temerity, the writer says:

"Not the bravest man in Chicago would dare to criticize, no matter how mildly, any of the manifold manifestations of feminism. But perhaps a newspaper reporter may venture to set down some of the things he saw—particularly since he is planning to go out of town immediately."

His illuminating story is in part as follows:

"She was a woman approaching middle age, with touches of silver in her hair. She was well but not expensively dressed. Her face was gentle and there were soft lines in it which seemed to indicate a thoughtful mind. She was standing on the sidewalk in front of the Thompson headquarters on Randolph street, close up to the building. In both hands she clutched a big megaphone.

"She was trying hard to make herself heard above the wild storm of sound, but the voice which came from the trumpet was neither shrill not overloud. It sounded like a vastly exaggerated coo.

"'Everybody vote for Thompson. We want Big Bill! We want Big Bill!'

"The whole sidewalk for a block was swarming with a shifting, changing mass of yelling people, old and young of both sexes.

"Through it all the lady with the megaohone stood close to the building in front of the Thompson headquarters and bleated impotently through her huge mouthpiece. One had to be within two feet to distinguish the words.

"Men forcing their way through the jam stopped and looked at her and smiled. It was rather like seeing one's maiden aunt leaning up against the bar in a saloon.

"She would not be worth notice but for the fact that during the week of irrational hysteria which preceded election day she was many times multiplied. She may stand as a type of a surprisingly large class.

"The first Mayoralty campaign in which women voters participated somehow failed to develope th refining and elevating influence which the sex was expected to exert.

"It was at the downtown meeting of a club organized and presided over by a woman that the nearest approach to a real riot broke out. And women partisans took a leading part in the yelling, catcalling and general disorder which prevented either men or women speakers from making themselves heard from the stage.

"hen one sees a woman of dignified presence and cultivated appearance greeted with torrents of hisses and insults from the frenzied lips of both men and other women, when one sees her finally driven from the platform with no chance of speaking a word, one is tempted to retire to some quiet spot for a moment and mediate on what it all means.

"When one watches a venerable lady, with snowy hair and gracious presence, trying to quell the tumult by waving a flag and almost dancing in the same rhythm, while 1,200 shrieking men and women order her to sit down and chase herself, one remembers his own grandmother and makes a feeble effort to blush.

"One is almost tempted to pick that discarded and discredited old relic once known as masculine chivalry out of the scrap heap and see how many people would recognize it.

"The first riot was at a Sweitzer meeting. By way of being entirely impartial it may be said that the next day exactly the same thing hppened in the same place at a Thompson meeting.

"At the big political headquarters other things of somewhat the same complexion were to be seen. Masculine politicians were in supreme charge. But each had opened subsidiary headquarters for women voters.

"'Yes,' said one of the cynical male chiefs, 'we've got two headquarters for the ladies. We put them at opposite ends of the building because the two old girls we've got in charge of them would pull each other's hair out if they ever met.'"

And this is the uplifting influence of women in politics.

REV. DR. STRONG TO DISCUSS EVOLUTION

Will Present the Subject From a Variety of Different Standpoints.

The service tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church promises to be very largely attended, interest having been aroused by the anouncement that Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong is to preach upon the theme, 'Why I Am Not An Evolutionist." The speaker will approach the subject from a variety of standpoints, but his main argument will be along the line of the absolute failure of evolution to answer pertinent questions concerning descent and species and the increasingly strong trend away from every form of evolution by the leading scientists of the world, the crowning testimony against it being the recent utterance of Dr. William Baeson, of England, the world's leading authority on heredity. As previously stated a special invitation has been extended to the pupils and teachers of public schools to be present and seats will be specially reserved for them in the gallery. As this discourse will occupy a longer time than the usual sermon the ordinary sermonette to children will be omitted tomorrow.

Dr. Strong has just received a telegram from Albert J. Saunders, of Scranton, who was one of the four Billy Sunday "team-workers" who recently visited our city, that he will be present to conduct special services Wednesday evening, the 19th, and Sunday, the 23d. This early announcement is made that the people of Plainfield may know of this important series of services and so far as possible plan accordingly. Mr. Saunders is a man of unusual parts and power who has already been the instrument of turning many from a life of sin to a life of righteousness.

TO OBSERVE "CHURCH DAY."

The first "Church Day" at the First M. E. church will be held Tuesday. The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at 11:30 and an hour later the members will gather for lunch. At 1:30 o'clock the Woman's Home Missionary Society will meet and afterward the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will gather for its meeting. A feature of the program will be a paper by Miss Helen Joy.

"SINKING OF LUSITANIA."

"The Sinking of the Lusitania," will be the subject of Rev. Edward S. Ralston's sermon at 7:45 tomorrow night, at the Netherwood Reformed church. The morning sermon at 11 o'clock will be "The One Thing Lacking." A hearty welcome to all.

MORTGAGES AS INVESTMENTS FOR IDLE FUNDS

There is no better form of investment for those who desire a higher rate than the 4% paid in our Special Department, than mortgages on well selected property on a 50% basis.

This Company invests a certain portion of its funds in gilt edge mortgages and is willing to sell these mortgages from time to time to persons desiring conservative investments.

We are always pleased to talk over investments with persons having idle funds in an endeavor to be of service and will be glad to submit our offerings to any one who may be interested.

ANOTHER AERIAL RAID ON ENGLAND

Zeppelins Drop Bombs Within Twenty-five Miles of London.

ITALY READY FOR WAR?

Rome Said to Have Set Midnight Tonight as Final Time for Answer From Austria—More Boats Torpedoed—Berlin Pessimistic.

London, May 10.—Zeppelins today dropped between 60 and 70 bombs within twenty-miles miles of London, killing one woman, wounding one man and starting many fires. They flew over Southend, Essex, and neighboring towns, at the mouth of the Thames. Many bombs were dropped and extensive property damage was done, many buildings either being wholly demolished or set on fire.

The woman known to have been killed was Mrs. Agnes Whitwell, who jumped from a window. There are unconfirmed rumors of further loss of life. The authorities report to the officials here that thirty-eight bombs fell around Queen Mary's Hospital, but fortunately none hit the structure.

The raiders proceeded as far as Benfleet and then turned seaward, heading back to Germany.

Bombs were dropped on Southend and vicinity at Leigh-on-Sea. Eight buildings were set on fire at Southend. The forts at the mouth of the Thames fired a fusilade of shells at the air craft, finally driving them off. The gas works at Leigh-on-Sea was the object of their attack there, but it failed utterly.

Rome, May 10.—Circumstantial reports are in circulation in government circles that Italy's time limit during which Austria must make a satisfactory reply to her demands expires at midnight (6 p. m., New York time).

If Austria has not conceded everything asked for by that time the reports say all negotiations will be broken off.

The Italian officials refuse to confirm the reports, but it is certain that matters are again approaching a crisis.

Copenhagen, May 10.—Private advices received from Berlin state that the sentiment in both private and official circles is growing more and more pessimistic, especialy in regard to the Italian situation. Italy is already looked upon virtually as an enemy, as it is considered that Prince Von Buelow has failed in his attempt to gain Italy's neutrality, and will not much longer be able to avert definite action in Rome.

Blythe, England, May 10.—The British steamer Wilnelmina was torpedoed by a German submarine Saturday. The vessel kept afloat and was beached at Sauxley Bay.

Grimsby, England, May 10.—The trawler Hellenic was blown up and sunk by a mine eighty-five miles east of Spurnhead, in the North Sea, Sunday. Three members of her crew were killed.

Berlin, May 10.—The following official statement was issued at the War Office today:

"General Von Mackensen's army

CARPENTERS' SITUATION STILL THE SAME TODAY

No official statement was issued today by either the Master Builders' Association or the journeyman carpenters regarding the threatened general strike order to be issued by the latter. The joint arbitration boards of the two organizations met Saturday night, but the result was not given out. It is understood, however, that the master builders have not consented to give the fifty cents per day increase and will declare a lock-out if the men do not return to work.

A session of the jorneymen carpenters has been calleld for this afternoon and it is probable that a public statement will be made before tomorrow. There is also a prospect of a joint arbitration board conference again tonight.

TO CELEBRATE MASS.

WILL GIVE DINNER FOR BOROUGH COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Debele to Be Guests at Anniversary Affair.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Debele, of Somerset street, who were married twenty-five years ago on Saturday, will be the guest of honor at a dinner party to be given this evening by their daughter, Mrs. Charles McVicker, of Duer street. The couple did not plan to have any special celebration this year so their daughter arranged for a dinner party tonight, to which the members of the family will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Debele were married at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winckler, of Park place, the borough, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, officiating. The couple has always lived in the borough. Both Mr. and Mrs. Debele are widely known in the borough and city, where they have a host of acquaintances.

Mr. Debele has been engaged in the confectionery business in the borough for many years, being a member of the firm of Debele & Stahl, his partner, Julius J. Stahl, being a member of the Borough Council. Mr. Debele and Mr. Stahl have both been prominently identified with the progress and growth of North Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Debele have four children, Mrs. Charles McVicker, of Duer street; Miss Elsie Debele, Howard and Walter Debele, who live at home.

JUDGES DECIDE THAT PRESS IS THE BETTER

Debaters Present Arguments Showing Educational Value of Stage and Press.

In the second debate on the proposition: "Resolved: That the Press is a Better Educator Than the Stage," held under the auspices of St. Mary's Holy Name Society, in Social Hall, yesterday afternoon, the judges awarded the decision to the affirmative side, or those supporting the press. The event yesterday afternoon grew out of the previous one which culminated in a "no-decision" affair two weeks ago. At that time the arguments on both sides were so convincing that the judges declared themselves unqualified to express an opinion concerning the winner.

Supporting the winning side yesterday afternoon were Timothy J. Meaney and Paul H. Burns, and on the negative side were Peter J. McDonough and J. J. McCann. A large gathering of members and their friends attended the debate and the affair was a thoroughly enjoyable and successful event.

Arguments presented by both sides were convincing and well-chosen and at times the speakers engaged in heated discussions over the validity of points brought out. The debate had its humorous as well as serious side and this afforded much amusement to the listeners.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES JOSEPH SCHERANO'S LIFE

Joseph Scherano, aged 15 years, of 13 Harmony street, the borough, had a miraculous escape from being killed on Somerset street, this morning, when he jumped off the rear of a wagon on which he was "catching" a ride, and ran into the front of a trolley car. He was dragged for nearly a block, before the motorman could bring his car to a standstill. It was the lad's presence of mind that saved his life, for he grabbed the fender and held on until the car was stopped.

The lad's clothing was nearly torn off him and he also received scratches and bruises about the face and body, the result of being dragged such a long distance. After securing his release from his perilous position the boy was assisted to his home.

P. H. S. SENIOR CLASS PLAY WELL ACTED

High School Pupils Presented "Trelawney of the Wells" Saturday Night.

The senior class of the Plainfield High School presented its annual senior play, "Trelawny of the Wells," in the High School Auditorium, Saturday night before a crowded house of enthusiastic people. Credit must be given to everyone of the players for the way in which they portrayed their respective parts. The leading roles were acted with the snap and ginger that would prove creditable to professionals.

The success of the show reflected with credit upon the work of the two coaches, Harold F. Biddle and Miss Kathryn Sminck. By diligent work they staged a show which was thought impossible by critics. They were each presented with a small token by the class.

Miss Sadie Rothberg and Miss Dorothy Simons were the two leading ladies of the play, and they both showed their remarkable genius in that line. Harold Davis, Arthur McKay and Randolph Stelle ably acted the leading roles of the male parts. The audience was kept in good spirits throughout the four acts by the many comedy parts.

During the intermissions music was furnished by the High School Orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. J. C. Evans. Many young couples took advantage of this and danced in the back of the auditorium and in the halls.

INSISTENCY SAVED THIS MAN'S LIFE

Allan Sullicant Cancelled Lusitania Passage When Murray Remained Obdurate.

Allan Sulivant, a New York man, who has local relatives and various connections in this city, has Robert Murray, the West Front street auctioneer, to thank for not being on board the Cunard liner, Lusitania, when she was torpedoed, last Friday. Mr. Sullivant had engaged passage on the big ship and had completed all preparations to go abroad last Wednesday when he came to Plainfield to see Mr. Murray about selling some household goods that belonged to his mother. They had been in storage here for a long time and the auctioneer has planned to dispose of them at an auction the coming Wednesday.

When Mr. Sullivant stated that he was going abroad on the Lusitania, Mr. Murray objected on the ground that he would prefer to have the owner of the goods in attendance when they were sold. There was a lengthy discussion over the matter at the conclusion of which the New York man remarked:

"I guess you're right Mr. Murray, and I believe it would be better for me to go abroad a week or so later. I will concel my passage and be at the sale."

The Lusitania sailed without Mr. Sullivant. Those who read these lines can draw their own inferences as to what might have happened if the auctioneer had not insisted on his being at the sale.

A coincidence in connection with the discussion of the two men and the sinking of the Lusitania, is that Mr. Murray has had a magnificent picture of the ill-fated liner on exhibition in his store window for the past week. He secured it from an Elizabeth family several months ago and has had it on display merely as a work of art.

PRESENTATION OF Y. M. H. A. CHARTER MADE LAST NIGHT

The charter evening of the Young Women's Hebrew Association, of Plainfield, was very fittingly celebrated in the Young Men's Hebrew Association rooms, last evening. The presentation of the charter was made by Irving Kunzman, president of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, who also made a very interesting address, and was followed by Dr. M. D. Moledzky and Henry Rosenbaum.

Miss Anna Moledzky, president of the Young Women's Hebrew Association, received the charter in the name of her organization and was chairlady of the proceedings. Following this, refreshments were served. About seventy-five guests were present.

SAFFORD GETS OFF WITH SHORT TERM

Former Local Hotel Clerk Sentenced to Nine Months in Penitentiary.

New York, May 10.—Judge Hough, in the United States District Court, this morning sentenced Franklin D. Safford, former clerk in Hotel Kensington, Plainfield, to serve a term of nine months in the New York county penitentiary and to pay a fine of $1. Safford was last week adjudged guilty on an indictment charging him with conspiracy in identifying James W. Osborne as "Oliver Osborne" in Rae Tanzer's $50,000 breach of promise suit against the prominent New York attorney.

Safford testified that James W. Osborne registered at Hotel Kensington, Plainfield, with Rae Tanzer on October 18, 1914, when he was employed as a clerk in the hostelry. He was afterwards arrested in Brooklyn and has since been confined in the Tombs. His transfer to the penitentiary will probably be delayed until after the trial of the Slade brothers on similar indictments.

PLAINFIELDERS DRAWN ON PETIT JURY PANEL

The following Plainfielders will be called to serve on a new panel of the Petit Jury, drawn this morning, and to begin sessions next Monday:

Joseph Noonan, John K. Large, Herman Theiss, Leslie E. Palmer, Bernard M. Brady, James S. Ellis, Oscar M. Dunham, Frances A. Martin, H. Reed Martin and Luther S. Ayers.

LOCAL KNIGHTS ON AUTO TRIP TO PHILLIPSBURG

Thirty members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, No. 552, made an automobile trip to Phillipsburg yesterday to be present at the exemplification of the third degree on members of Warren Council at that place. Five auto loads of local Knights visited the Phillipsburgh clubhouse and assisted in the ceremonies.

District Deputy Joseph F. O'Keefe and State Warden H. P. Greenwood, both of this city, were included in the officers who assisted in the exemplification work. A reception followed.

"CALL TO ACTION" TO BE URGED BY INDIVIDUALS

On another page of this issue there appears an advertisement paid for by Samuel W. Rushmore, with the caption "Call to Action." This is in the nature of an appeal to local citizens to exert their individual efforts toward demanding a special session to Congress to take immediate steps to create a powerful army, to enlarge the navy and prepare for any emergency that might arise.

The action is based primarily on the marine disaster of Friday last and the appeal will be forwarded to Congressman John H. Capstick, of the Fifth district. A coupon is attached with space provided for the endorsement of citizens.

THE PRESS HAS A BIRTHDAY.

The Plainfield Daily Press is twenty-eight years old today, during which time it has been a progressive newspaper, always striving to keep abreast of the times and to present to its readers all the news in an attractive and concise form. The Press, which has always stood for that which is for the best interest of Plainfield, was established by the late A. L. and W. L. Force, who for many years were important factors in the community.

COLLEGE PLAY POSTPONED.

"Drifting," which was to have been given at the Plainfield High School, Thursday night, by the Queens Players of Rutgers Collelge, has been postponed indefinitely by those who had charge of the affair. It is possible that the play may be given at some future date.

INFANT BAPTISMS.

There were a number of baptisms at St. Mary's church, yesterday afternoon, the following presenting their children at that time: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bohem, Mr. and Mrs. Clark M. Hammill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Chamberlain.

WAGON'S AXLE BROKEN.

While driving a grocery delivery wagon on Watchung avenue, Saturday night, Fred Crook, a South avenue grocer, was hit by a trolley car. The axle of the wagon was snapped off, but the driver was uninjured.

BOY SCOUTS PLAN "BE KIND" WEEK

Council Will Hold First of Scoutmaster's Conferences at Y. M. C. A. Tonight.

When the Boy Scout Council meets on Monday night arrangements will be made for the Boy Scouts of this city to participate in the naion-wide celebraion of "Be Kind" Week. This will be observed everywhere in the country as a period when special reference will be given to the scout law that prescribes thoughtfulness of others and special kindness to animals. Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, district agent for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is planning to have special observances of the week in Plainfield and vicinity and she has a prize competition plan in which she has invited the scouts to participate. The week that has been set aside is that ending Sunday May 23.

Monday night's council meeting will introduce the first of the Scoutmaster's conferences. It will be held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. The topic for general discussion will be "What the Boy Scout Expects." Deputy Commissioners A. V. Searing, Jr., and E. A. Sprowl will outline the methods employed in Troops 5 and 11 and Commissioner Allen E. Beals will speak briefly on the "Boy Problem in Second Class Cities." The meeting will be thrown open to scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters. The Council meeting will open at 8 o'clock and close at 9. Applications for examination in first class and merit badge proficiency will be received at that time.

BOUND BROOK ASKED TO WITNESS DANCE

Exponent of Graceful Dances of Ancient Greece Offers Open-air Program.

Seventeen-year-old Elizabeth Pardoe, the shapely and charming Bound Brook High School junior, who last week so shocked the Interborough Association of Women Teachers at their annual reception held in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York city, has offered to interpret the same Grecian dance number on the lawn of the Bound Brook school. Perturbation among the good people of that town is rife over the possibility, but her fellow classmates and even some of the teachers are greatly interested in the proposition.

Miss Pardoe has studied long and conscientiously the art of reproducing the graceful dances of ancient Greece. Upon her appearance at the Waldorf-Astoria she wore only a single-piece garment. There was no covering for her twinkling toes or her dimpled knees, while her pink shoulders and well-filled arms were quite bare.

By some the possibility of seeing the graceful maiden, clad only in a thin film of air, portray her specialty dances is looked upon as quite probable. By others it is believed, however, that Bound Brook is not sufficiently well-versed in the lost and found arts to endure the spectacle. Her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pardoe, is justly proud of her daughter's accomplishments and is staunch in her belief that the townspeople will be interested in seeing the exhibition.

While the lawn in Bound Brook doesn't happen to be steam-heated the dancer's nimbleness is thought to be sufficient to ward off the chills of the May atmosphere and some immediate action on the offer is looked forward too.

FAMOUS "TEXAS" CHAPLAIN TO ADDRESS LOCAL ELKS

Rev. Dr. H. W. Jones, of Oswego, New York, who was for many years chaplain of the United States battleship Texas, has been secured by Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., to address the members on Wednesday night, May 19. He will give his famous lecture, entitled: "Personal Reminiscences of Our Navy In Time of Peace and War On the Texas Under Fire."

Chaplain Jones was on board the Texas at the time it participated in the historic battle of Santiago Harbor in 1898, when the Spanish fleet was practically annihilated. He is a member of the Elks order and has spoken in lodges throughout the United States, making a great impression everywhere. In nearly every instance he has been asked to return and it is hoped that there will be a big turnout of members when he comes to this city.

1149 LOST INCLUDING 115 AMERICANS ON THE LUSITANIA—REWARD FOR VANDERBILT BODY

FAMILY OFFERS $5,000 FOR FNIANCIER'S CORPSE AND ORDERS ATTORNEY TO STOP AT NO EXPENSE.

CAPTAIN SURE TWO TORPEDOES HIT THE SHIP

Coroner Will Ask for Murder Verdict—Von Bernstoff "Expresses Regret" Over Loss of Americans in Call Upon Secretary Bryan—List of Survivors is Increased, Includes Two Williams Children, William Edgar and Mrs. and Mrs. O. H. Hammond.

Queenstown, May 10.—1149 persons, including 115 Americans lost is the final toll in the sinking of the Lusitania, when she was hit by a torpedo fired by a German submarine. The list of saved numbers 767, of whom 465 were passengers and 302 crew. The bodies of 144 have been recovered.

Although there is still doubt as to whether two torpedoes exploded or whether the first detonation caused the big boilers to let go, Captain Turner says that he is sure that at least two torpedoes reached the ship.

"I am not certain whether the two explosions—and there were two—resulted from torpedoes or whether one was a boiler explosion," said Captain Turner today. "I am sure, however, that I saw the first torpedo strike the vessel on her starboard side. I also saw a second torpedo apparently headed straight for the steamship's hull, directly below that suite occupied by Alfred G. Vanderbilt. That is all that I can say until I have made by official report to the court of inquiry which has been called and over which Lord Mersey is to preside."

The Cunard tugs which were sent to the scene of the disaster to endeavor to recover some additional bodies have returned. They report the water so rough off Kinsale that it is impossible to do anything in the line of dragging for bodies.

A reward of $5,000 was offered today for the recovery of the body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who gave his life to save that of a woman, when the Lusitania was destroyed. The search for the body will be directed by Webb Ware, the London solicitor of the Vanderbilt family, who arrived last night. He has been instructed to find the body regardless of how great an effort or how much time is necessary. Boats will be chartered to search the waters and the coast near where the Lusitania sank, and divers will be employed to try to reach the sunken liner.

Kinsale, Ireland—Coroner Horgan will ask for a verdict of willful murder against the crew of the submarine that sank the Lusitania.

Washington, May 10—Count Johan Von Bernstorff, German ambassador to the United States, called at the State Department today and expressed deep regret over the loss of American life in the Lusitania disaster. The official representative of the nation whose submarine sunk the Lusitania conferred with Secretary Bryan for 15 minutes.

A cablegram dated at 8 o'clock this morning, was received at the State Department today from United States Consul Frost at Queenstown. The message read:

"Add to survivors, Dr. Howard Fisher, Mrs. H. Bretherton and child, Dorothy; Cannon, 8-year-old brother of Edith Williams. Add to identified dead: Mrs. W. W. Watson, Mrs. Schymer, Mrs. Rose. Funeral of the unidentified American dead Monday at 3 p. m. Naval and military escort. American officials will attend as a compliment. American corpses in cases where embalming is unwarranted will be photographed and sealed in lead caskets for shipment to American. Captains Castle and Miller here from embassy and rendering additional aid as needed."

New York May 10—The following is a list of survivors as checked up and received by the Cunard Line this morning: A. H. Adams, M. Adams, Mrs. A. Baxter, Mr. Booth and baby, J. Rankmon, W. Beauchamp, Allan Barnes, Miss Bessie Barbor, Mrs. Chapman, W. G. Cooke, Mrs. A. W. Elliott, Andrew Faulds, Mrs. Marguerite Faulds, Mrs. Ferrier, P. Hebden, Mrs. Jane Hogian, Thomas Home, Mrs. Ruth Logan, Miss C. M. Lerthold, R. R. Lockhart, J. J. Leary, Rr. R. J. McCreedy, Mathew Muir, Misc Mollie Mainman, Miss Bettie Mainman, Master Teddie Mainman, Joseph Meyers; Andrew McDermott, Mrs. Morrell, Miss Alice Middleton, L. McMurray, Miss L. Pavy, Miss Laura Ryerson, Mrs. Florence I. Sullivan, T. Sandell, We Tiajon, Marguerite Tuohy, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Weeking Smith and child, Mr. Web-

LOCAL CHILDREN ARE AMONG THE SURVIVORS

Mrs. Williams and Four Others Dead—Mrs. Hammond Safe—Wm. Edgar Lost.

Official confirmation of the report circulated yesterday that Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond, wife of Assemblyman Hammond, of Somerset county, was among the survivors of the Lusitania disaster was received here this morning. The rumor that she had been saved reached relatives in Bernardsville yesterday, but when they made inquiries for definite information they were told that the report was erroneous.

Edith Williams, eleven years old, and her eight-year-old brother, who, together with their mother, Mrs. Annie Williams, and four other children, sailed aboard the Lusitania, are alive, according to today's reports. The mother and four other children, who lived at 627 West Third street, are in all likelihood dead. The orphans are being cared for by the authorities at Queenstown and efforts are being made to locate the father who sailed for Liverpool aboard the Lusitania the trip before the fatal one.

William Edgar, who, until he sailed Saturday, May 1, was employed as night watchman by former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, is also among those passengers who have not been accounted for.

Included in the Lusitania's cargo, now under sixty fathoms of water off the Irish coast, are twenty-eight Saurer trucks and twenty Mack trucks, part of which were made in the local shops of the International Motor Company on West Front street.

SALE ON MAY 20, 21, 22.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another part of the Daily Press offering for sale ninety-three little farms on Clinton avenue. George G. Baker, auctioneer, of New York, will sell these lots at auction on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 20, 21 and 22, and not on May 13, 14 and 15 as previously advertised. The sale will take place at Clinton and Rockview avenues.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will give an illustrated lecture at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Irving School under the auspices of the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teacher Association. All interested are invited to attend.

REPORTED KIDNAPPING CAUSES EXCITEMENT IN THE BORO

Quite some little excitement was occasioned on North avenue, Saturday evening, by the straying away of little three-year-old Louise Schneiderwind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Schneiderwind, of Prospect avenue, who had been taken over town in a cart by her eleven-year-old brother, Rachel, and left outside of a fruit and candy store. When Rachel came out he was greeted by the empty cart. Word reached Mrs. Schneiderwind that her child had been kipnapped and soon the frantic mother and the rest of her family had hurried over to town and scattered along the thoroughfare, searching hither and thither.

Police headquarters soon became a bustle of activity and Marshal Shugars put in a busy five minutes. The excitement ended as abruptly as it had started when little Louise was found near Taylor's Hotel, a block and a half away, by Walter, her seven-year-old brother.

EVERETT NOBLE DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

Everett Noble the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Noble, of 412 Front street, died in a Philadelphia hospital, Saturday, following an operation on Wednesday. Word of their son's death came as a terrible shock to the parents as they had been told by the physicians that the operation was not a serious one.

When the boy was about a year old he was stricken with infantile paralysis, which left him lame in one foot. In the hope of correcting this he was sent shortly after to Philadelphia to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Noble, so as to be near a hospital which specializes in limb troubles. After numerous visits with his grandmother at the hospital the doctors finally decided to operate upon the lad and he was left in the hospital to get in condition for the operation about ten days ago. Everett is survived by four sisters and four brothers, Lois, Mazelle, Ruth, Evelyn, Harold, Carl, Fred and Ronald. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

A REAL INDIAN GIVES INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION

Chief Rain In the Face, a Cherokee Indian, whose grandfather fought as a scout under Custer, showed fourteen Bound Brook Boy Scouts and twenty members of the local scout organization at Washington Rock, Saturday morning, how the Indians trailed the white man in the olden days. He also gave several war dances, taught the boys the second Indian alphabet, and spoke to them in seventeen different Indian dialects. The scouts, with their lunches, left for the Rock at 8:30. Returning they left the Rock at 1:30 and arrived here in time to participate in or attend the ball game between the Dunellen A. C. and Scout Troop No. 2. All of the scouts said that they had had a most enjoyable and instructable time.

Chief Rain in the Face is a chief in name only, his name having been handed down to him from his father, a famous Cherokee chief. He came to the East from the Cherokee reservation in Oklahoma when he was sixteen years old. He is now 49. He is at present living in Perth Amboy and makes his living by traveling around amongst the Boy Scouts, duplicating his entertaining program of Saturday morning, giving lectures and selling postal cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hamley, of Washington avenue, returned on Saturday from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Barton, of New York city.

CHRISTENED INFANT.

The two-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Tarpey, of Front street, was christened in St. John's church at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. E. J. Dunphy, the rector of the church. The little girl was named Beatrice. Following the christening a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tarpey, at which twenty guests from this place, Plainfield and New York were present. A bountiful supper was served in the late afternoon and the evening spent with music and in a general social way.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Society, of the Presbyterian church, will meet with Mrs. George Caskey, of Clinton avenue, Plainfield, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All going by trolley will take the 2 o'clock car.

A meeting of the Sabbath School Union will be held in the First Baptist church this Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

MUSIC RECITAL.

A musical recital will be given tomorrow evening in the First Baptist church by A. C. LaRue, violinist, and Miss Helen Cressingham, soprano soloist. This is given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church and a silver offering will be taken at the door. Ice cream will be on sale in the chapel after the entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dayton and family, of Plainfield, were entertained by Mr. Dayton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dayton, of Main street, yesterday.

Walter Penrose, who recently resigned his position in the postoffice, has accepted a position with T. A. Pierce, Jr., & Company.

Irving Halburt has resigned his position as bartender in the hotel of Rudolph Kampf, on Main street, and has accepted a similar position in the hostelry of William H. Taylor.

Contractor and Mrs. C. D. Nonemaker have moved into their new house on Front street, near Jefferson avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Hague, of Jackson avenue, is reported as being quite ill again.

The Apgar Construction Company is erecting a building for the Industrial Service Company at Lincoln. The dimensions of the building are 25x30 feet. When it is completed the Service Company's plant at Lincoln will comprise four buildings.

William E. Terry, of Washington avenue, is suffering from tonsilitis.

Theodore W. Day, Jr., of North avenue, is laid up with lumbago.

Mrs. J. Newton Apgar, who has been confined to her home on New Market road for the past four weeks, suffering from pleurisy and the grip, is reported as being better.

GETS CONTRACT.

The Apgar Construction Company has been awarded the contract of erecting a house for Henry Wrage and Arthur J. Hamley, cashier of the local bank, on Duer street, North Plainfield. The house will be of medium size and will have all improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Barton, of New York city, spent the week-end in the borough as the guests of Mrs. Barton's father, Adam Herlich, of Front street.

Mrs. Lewis T. Churchill, of Fourth street, visited friends in New York city, Saturday.

CELEBRATION ON JUNE 5.

At the meeting of the Sabbath School Union held in the Holy Innocent's church, Thursday evening, the date for the Sunday-school day celebration was changed from Taursday, June 3, to Saturday, June 5. The Sabbath schools of the borough and New Market were well represented and great interest is being manifested in the Union.

O. Z. T. ELECTS OFFICERS.

A meeting of the Omega Zeta Theta Fraternity was held at the home of Alfred Day on Front street, Friday evening. This was a reorganization meeting and the election of officers resulted as follows: B. W. Dodwell, president; H. E. Giddes, vice president; A. M. Frederick, secretary; B. A. Cole, Jr., treasurer. After a very interesting meeting refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

ENTERTAINS S. N. M. P. CLUB.

The S. N. M. P. Club was entertained by former Councilman and Mrs. William Shively at their home on Whittier avenue, Saturday evening. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing whist and "500," after which refreshments were served.

KILLS LARGE BLACK SNAKE.

While distributing sewer pipe on Jefferson avenue, near Rajotte's brickyard, Friday afternoon, Edward Green had a narrow escape from being bitten by a black snake fully five feet long. He came within an ace of stepping on the reptile. The reptile curled in a heap and prepared to strike while Green leaped bark and grabbed a club which happened to be lying on the ground nearby. Suffice to say that Green insured the reptile's death by sundow with lusty blows.

'Plains & Fanwood.

From the latest reports coming from Albany, N. Y., it is believed that Dudley Babcock, of the borough, who has been hovering between life and death in a hospital in that city for several weeks following a fall while surveying in the Adirondack mountains, will recover, although it will be several months before he will be able to be about.

The Fanwood Township Sunday School Association will conduct an "open meeting" in the Methodist church tonight. Rev. Edward S. Ralson, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, and the Rev. Geo. H. Trull have been secured as speakers. It is expected that men prominent throughout the county as Sunday-school workers will be present.

The cast has held its last rehearsal and everything is now ready for the presentation of "Aunt Dinah's Quiltying Party" tomorrow night under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church.

Yesterday was generally observed in the local churches as Mother's Day. At the Baptist and Methodist churches special sermons were preached by the pastors and following the services at the Baptist church a dedication of children was held. Mrs. Ira G. Walker sang several solos at the Methodist church and at the Episcopal church the choir rendered special selections.

The members of the Tuesday Afternoon Literary Club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the "Homestead" on Martine avenue with Mrs. James Otto. Until the outbreak of the European war Mr. Otto was German consul at Kingston, Jamaica.

The May meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the All Saints' Episcopal church is being held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Hudson Thompson, on Martine avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Betts, of LaGrande avenue, entertained Mr Betts' brothers and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Betts, of New York, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Whitney, of Roselle, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. S. G. VanHosen, of North avenue.

At a meeting of the Rifle Club held at the home of Wright McAnneny, of North avenue, on Saturday afternoon the constitution and bylaws of the club were adopted. Efforts are being made on the part of Louis Tuzo, who has long been active in military circles, to secure some of the rifles formerly used in the U. S. Army that are being distributed by the government.

Arrangements are being completed by the members of the Sunshine Weavers for a supper for themselves and friends at the next meeting on May 27.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hyer, of North avenue, is recovering from an attack of measles.

Real estate in the borough has showed its first activity in several weeks by the report from H. C. Lockwood & Co. that a two and a half story stucco dwelling on Hunter avenue has been sold by them to a New York doctor. As far as can be learned he will not be a local practitioner but will have his office in New York.

A. A. Storr and family, of the borough, spent the week end with relatives in Bound Brook.

After appealing to both the local authorities and the Union County Board of Freeholders, the residents of the western end of the borough have come to the conclusion that they will have to go to the parties directly responsible if they want any relief from the defective drainage. The matter arose out of the owners of what is known as Chelsea Park, just across Terrill road and in Plainfield, plugging up a large drain pipe where it came over the line. It drained a considerable section of the water and there being no other outlet the water backs onto the property of residents in the vicinity of Farley avenue. The Borough Council several months ago and the Board of Freeholders last week recommended a civil suit against those directly responsible as the only relief.

Bound Brook.

The May meeting of the Board of Education of the Borough of Middlesex will be held in the Pierce School building, East Bound Brook, this evening.

At the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Bound Brook Building Loan Association the following officers were elected: President, W. B. R. Mason; vice president, W. W. Smalley; secretary, H. G. Herbert, treasurer, R. H. Brokaw; directors for three years, E. H. Castorlin, H. F. Gillespie, A. S. Newberry, for two years, Joseph V. D. Field, for one year, Charles Byer. Auditing committee, William E. Sperling, Jr., Henry F. Rugen, William G. Betsch.

Watchung.

The annual business meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society will be held tonight in Improvement Hall.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold its monthly meeting May 20 instead of Thursday evening, May 13.

The North Plainfield Township Committee will hold its monthly meeting Thursday evening. The evening meeting will be open to all taxpayers.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, of Plainfield, preached yesterday morning in the Mary E. Wilson Memorial Union church. Dr. Shaw's interesting sermon was "Mistakes in Supposing." The evening service was a laymen's service in charge of Ephriam S. Ackor. The girls' chorus rendered two selections.

Parties from here went to hear "Billy" Sunday in Paterson, Saturday and Sunday.

DISCUSSED EVOLUTION.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the morning service, yesterday, preached a very scholarly sermon on the subject, "Why I Am Not an Evolutionist." Dr. Strong presented the subject from a scientific viewpoint and then gave his views to disprove the theory. The sermon was heard by a large congregation including many teachers and students. Next Sunday Dr. Strong will preach on the subject, "Do Animals Have Reason?"

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The Plainfield Theatre management will present Miss Mary Pickford in feature photoplays every day except Thursday, when the legitimate presentation of "Diplomacy" will hold the boards at the West Second street house. The week has been designated as Mary Pickford week and every lady attending the performance Monday, Wednesday or Friday afternoon will receive a handsome souvenir. Monday, Miss Pickford will be seen in the Paramount release, "Caprice." Miss Pickford is said to be utterly fascinating in this role—a sparkling quaint originality that is absolutely irresistible. The company has surrounded the star with a splendid and well balanced cast. Tuesday, the young star will be seen in "The Eagle's Mate," and on Wednesday "Tess of the Storm Country" will be the feature in which Mary gives a pathetic charm and winsome grace to the dainty little fisher girl, who is the heroine of "Tess of the Storm Country," the charming drama of fisher people's life. As "Tess," Mary Pickford stirs the pulse and grips the heart and gives one of the best screen productions of her career. On Friday, "Hearts Adrift," and on Saturday, "A Good Little Devil" will be the feature productions, both of which present the young actress at her best. The next episode of "The Black Box," the serial film, will be continued at the theatre tomorrow.

Marie Doro, who comes to the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night, as a co-star with William Gillette and Blanche Bates, in Charles Frohman's brilliant revival of Sardou's comedy, "Diplomacy," has taken giant strides in her profession within the past two seasons—if the London and New York critics, who have ecstatically praised her acting as Dora, may be relied upon. Miss Doro was once regarded merely as a beautiful girl. Now she seems to have developed into an actress of infinite art and charms, and still a beauty. Her exquisite personality—a dream of youthful poetry—is summed up in eyes that glow with soft wonder and a voice of velvet sweetness. As the heroine of "Diplomacy," Miss Doro is declared to be womanly and lovable and all who are familiar with the Sardou play know that the actress who essays the role of "Dora" must rise to real dramatic heights. Playgoers may look forward to seeing a new Marie Doro—an emotional actress of tensity and power and an artist to be reckoned with. Her success in London last season, where she appeared with Gerald du Maurier, did not turn the beautiful head of Miss Doro. She took her London triumph modestly and returned to her native shores with fresh enthusiasm for her stage work. Those who have seen "Diplomacy" in New York, where the comedy delighted all true lovers of the theatre, say that Miss Doro has held her own with her associate stars, William Gillette and Blanche Bates.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

George Barr McCutcheon's thrilling and romantic story, "Graustark," dealing with a love affair behind a throne in a mythical kingdom, will be the dramatic feature on the screen of the U. S. Astor Theatre today and tomorrow. Much stress has been laid upon the picturesque element of the play with considerable success, there being a decided semblance of reality in the doings of these highly placed personages. The outside views have been taken amid surroundings of much beauty. Francis X. Bushman has the role of the handsome young American who becomes so romantically involved with the lovely princess, centre of so many plots and counter-plots, while the role of the enchanting young woman is admirably portrayed by Miss Beverly Bayne. Political intrigue, crime and love enter into the unfolding of the picture. "Graustark" was produced by the V. L. S. E. Company, a combination of the four largest producing concerns in the world. Another feature for today will be the first episode of "Diamond From the Sky," the $10,000 prize picture for which Roy McCardell, of the New York Evening World, wrote the scenario. This is one of the most thrilling serials yet released. It abounds in thrills and heart-throbs. Wilton Lackaye, in Israel Zangwill's "Children of the Ghetto," will make his Plainfield screen debut at the Astor Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday. Plainfield theatregoers are strong admirers of Mr. Lackaye, who is probably one of the best known dramatic actors in America. It will indeed be pleasant to find that he plays his film role with all his old-time spirit. The story is woven about the life of Rabbi Samuel Jacobs, a sternly religious old patriarch, who insists that the customs of his forefathers be observed by his grown-up son and daughter. Changing conditions have affected the young people, however, and affairs, other than spiritual, occupy their time and fill their lives. The first blow falls when his son leaves home to be an actor. And then his daughter marries a man forbidden to her, according to the rabbinical law. Then his beloved wife dies. But after all these tribulations, the sun shines again and the final climax sends the audience home happy. There is no doubting the appeal of this powerful drama which won Mr. Zangwill early fame.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Twenty members of the New York National Training School are guests of the local association today. They are enjoying a picnic and hike on the mountains.

Tennis practice has been going on every Wednesday afternoon. Any member of the Y. W. C. A. is invited to come out and learn the game.

The first rehearsal of the pageant and festival which is to be given the latter part of month at the association will be held tomorrow night. All wishing to take part are urged to attend.

PARENT-TEACHING MEETING.

The final meeting of the Franklin Parent Teacher Association will be held in the auditorium of the Franklin School, tomorrow night. Election of officers will take place and routine business will be transacted. In conclusion a social time will follow with music and refreshments. Solos will be rendered by the following well-known local people: Miss Mary E. Wilkins, piano; Miss Marjorie Robinson, contralto; Miss Van Zandt, piano; Mrs. John B. Cottrell, soprano; D. C. Patterson, tenor; Elizabeth Schuck, violin; Charles E. Lewis, baritone, and the Grace church quartet.

CALL TO ACTION

Now Is the Time To Act If American Independence and Prestige Are Long To Survive

This appeal is made to the patriotic citizens of Plainfield to one and all demand a special session of Congress to take immediate steps to create a powerful army, to enlarge the navy and prepare for any emergency which may arise.

We can no longer remain neutral when American citizens are the victims of premeditated murder.

The Lusitania massacre would have been averted had we Americans taken drastic action when the laws of humanity were outraged and the American flag insulted.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ACT

Our Congressman, Hon. John H. Capstick, may be depended upon to carry out the wishes of his constituents. Sign the appeal below and mail it to him at once.

SAMUEL W. RUSHMORE

TO THE HONORABLE JOHN H. CAPSTICK, BOONTON, N. J.:

As a citizen of the City of Plainfield I urge that you use your influence to have Congress called in special session to take immediate steps to create a powerful army, to enlarge the navy and to take whatever action may be necessary to protect the lives of American citizens wherever they may be, and to maintain the prestige of our country.

Signed .....

MAY 10TH IN HISTORY.

1632—De Marillac, marechal of France, beheaded for conspiring against Richelieu, to whom he owed his good fortune.
1775—Callen and Arnold took Fort Ticonderoga by surprise, without loss of life.
1779—Portsmouth and Norfolk, Va., taken by the British.
1794—Battle of Tournay, French defeated by English and Austrians under Duke of York.
1796—Bonaparte defeated the Austrians in the battle of Lodi. In this engagement Napoleon received the cognomen "the little corporal."
1810—First agricultural exhibition in the United States opened at Georgetown, D. C.
1837—New York banks stopped specie payments; other American banks adopted same course.
1853—The Pope prohibited circulation of Uncle Tom's Cabin in his dominions.
1871—Alsace-Lorraine ceded by France to Germany; a valuable tract which Fance is now trying to regain by force of arms.
1876—Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia opened by General Grant.
1914—Death of Lillian Nordica, famous singer, in Java.

KEEP THEM OFF THE STREETS.

Some steps should be taken by the Board of Education to keep a more careful supervision on the younger pupils, especially those in the primary grades. Attention has frequently been called to the manner in which children, some of whom are barely able to walk, are allowed to play in the streets, but there has been no apparent bettering of conditions. Each one of the local public schools has its own play-yard and some one should see to it that the younger pupils keep within that space. For the most part the yards are adequate to take care of the children and there is no reason why the pupils should not be made to come directly to the yard before school instead of loitering and playing in the streets and on the curbs.

Especially is this practice dangerous in the heart of the city. Numerous automobiles pass the school-yards at noon and before school in the mornings. Dozens of children are allowed to romp and play in the streets, especially on West Fourth and Fifth streets near Arlington avenue, and on East Fifth street, where many commuters pass in automobiles between 8 and 9 o'clock each morning, and some narrow escapes have been recorded. Janitors, apparently, take little interest in keeping the youngsters from cutting across the thoroughfares and using them for playgrounds.

TIME FOR ACTION.

If the German people had the sympathy of any real Americans prior to the murder of the passengers on the Lusitania, they have lost it now. That much is evident from the outspoken comments in the newspapers, on the streets, and wherever people congregate. Men who have upheld President Wilson's policy of going the limit to keep the country out of the trouble abroad are now beginning to feel that the Germans are deliberately courting our entrance into the struggle, a belief which other millions of Americans have held for many months.

It was all well enough to be willing to concede that the destruction of American freight vessels by floating mines was accidental, but when American lives have been lost by the deliberate torpedoing of an unarmed passenger carrying vessel, without an opportunity being given the passengers to leave the ship, the time has come for action. The mere fact that she was a vessel flying the flag of one of the nations at war, and that warning was given before she sailed from this country, does not excuse the action.

But it is not only the destruction of the vessel, with the lives of hundreds of innocent men, women and children that makes the blood of Americans boil. It is the insolent attitude of justification, without any apparent regret, that is adopted by the German government and the German people in this country, that stirs up our people. On Saturday it is said that at a certain local manufacturing plant which is owned by Germans and employes many Americans, that the former expressed extreme pleasure and satisfaction over the destruction of the boat, declaring that everyone who sailed on her got what they deserved for not heeding the warning given out by the German ambassador. Such talk makes not only those who hear it want to fight, but in the retelling, the story becomes exaggerated, and is liable to cause racial troubles in the present condition of mind of the American peoples.

Americans have learned, long ago, that the only kind of neutrality that the Germans expect of this country is the neutrality which favors their cause. There is no use trying to satisfy those who live in this country. Thousands of them have shown by their attitude since the war broke out that the Fatherland comes before the United States. They have shown it by refusing to heed the President's request for neutrality; they have shown it by the organization of pro-German meetings, such as the one which disgraced the clergyman who spoke at the High School last Thursday night, and in scores of other ways.

The things which have been done, which the German authorities have tried to justify since the war broke out, culminating in the cold blooded murder of the men, women and children on the Lusitania have finally shown that German "kultur" means nothing more than organized murder, incendiarism, and everything else that is revolting to decent people.

President Wilson will have the backing of a united nation in whatever action he now takes, except, of course, those who have come from Germany.

Some criticism has arisen from the fact that a liquor advertisement was displayed in the circus parade in connection with the show given under the auspices of three local charities. The contracts for these advertisements were made by persons who purchased the privilege from the show, and no intimation was given to either the show owners or the local promoters as to the character of the advertising which would be displayed until it was too late to make a change.

If Dr. Thomas Hall had come to Plainfield to deliver his address on "The German Side of the War" twenty-four hours later he would have probably been treated to a ride on a rail, after a bath in the tar which is decorating the streets.

DR. EATON SAYS "WE MUST NOT STAND ASIDE."

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York city, said in his morning sermon yesterday:

"This nation stands at the moment at one of the great crisis in its history. It is not simply a matter of peace or war. It is, Are we willing to accept a place of spiritual leadership among the nations of the earth, and pay the price which acceptance involves? We are in the birth pangs of a new age. If America stands aside, anxious chiefly for her material prosperity, she will be left behind, and will miss her opportunity for moral and spiritual leadership. She must not stand aside."

GEORGE B. SCHOONMAKER DIES IN NORTH CAROLINA

George B. Schoonmaker, a former Plainfield resident, who had been living in New York for the past twelve years, died this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. James A. Brown, of Asheville, N. C., whom he had been visiting. He was taken ill shortly after his arrival there and his death came as a great shock to his relatives and friends.

Mr. Schoonmaker resided on Madison avenue when living here and was widely known throughout the city. Beside Mrs. Brown, he is survived by two other sisters, three brothers and two daughters, the latter being Mrs. Clifford W. McGee, of the borough, and Mrs. J. L. Wilson, of New York.

The funeral service will be strictly private and the body will afterward be brought to this city for burial in Hillside cemetery.

FEDERATION APPRECIATES JUDGE BEEKMAN'S ACTION

The Federation of Men's Church Clubs and Religious Organizations comprising the majority of the churches of Plainfield and vicinity, adopted a resolution on May 2, conveying its appreciation of the action of Judge Daniel H. Beekman, of the Somerset County Court, in refusing the applications of Charles J. Jensen and Morris Latzko for inn and tavern licenses in the borough.

The resolution was drafted by a committee comprising Leslie R. Fort, Robert R. Pentecost and A. B. Cole, and set forth that "the men comprising the federation cannot too highly commend your administration of this matter, and your fearless attitude and just decision has evoked the admiration not alone of our federation, but to our community in general.

BOROUGH COURT NOTES.

H. Zagaria, of Rock avenue and West Fourth street, was arrested in the borough, Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock, for driving a wagon without a light. He will appear before Recorder Hand tomorrow morning. William Garrugal, of the borough, who was arrested some time ago and given two weeks' time to pay the $5 fine imposed upon him, failed to settle and is now serving seven days in the borough jail. Tony Bernardi, the Italian who attacked his boss with a pick axe last week, was released this morning on payment of his $50 fine.

RETURN FROM LONG TRIP.

Mrs. T. Logan Murphy and her daughter, Miss Annie M. Murphy, of this city, returned home Saturday night from a nine weeks' trip to the Pacific coast. During their trip they went through the Grand Canyon in Arizona, attended the San Diego Exposition, spent five weeks in Passadena, where they visited Mrs. Murphy's sister-in-law, Mrs. David Mixsell, of Easton, Pa., who has been living there for sometime, and spent ten days in San Francisco, where they enjoyed the sights of the Panama Exposition.

MR. WENDELL'S NEW POSITION.

Charles Wendell, of Arlington avenue, left this morning for West End, Long Branch, where he has taken a position for the summer as assistant manager of the Sacco Drug Company, which has a large pharmacy on Ocean avenue that place. Mr. Wendell was recently admitted as a registered pharmacist by the New Jersey State Board and has been employed by Frank Rowley and other local druggists. The position Mr. Wendell takes is a very responsible one and his local friends extend congratulations.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Gladys Harlow, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Harlow, of 815 West Fourth street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday, after a brief illness. The funeral will be held at the parents home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. C. S. Mallery. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery. Mr. Harlow is in the United States naval service attached to the battleship Arkansas, and is at present home on a furlough. Mrs. Harlow was formerly Miss Margaret Overland.

DISASTER NOT COVERED BY INTERNATIONAL LAW

"The Sinking of the Lusitania" was the subject of Rev. Edward S. Ralston's sermon at the Netherwood Reformed church yesterday, in which he referred to the importance of international law. He said that the terrible catastrophe was not covered by any international law now in force owing to the fact that the framers of such a law never dreamed that an occasion of this kind would arise.

Mr. Ralston pictured the attack on the Lusitania with its subsequent frightful loss of life which included so many women and children and other non-combatants who were defenseless in the face of such an awful calamity.

CHILD PLAYED WITH MATCHES, HER LIFE NOW IN BALANCE

Etta Sharkey, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sharkey, of Scotch Plains, is in Muhlenberg Hospital today, suffering from frightful burns that may cause her death. The child got hold of some matches at her home when no one was about and in playing with them set fire to her clothing. Before she was discovered and the flames smothered out she had been terribly burned about the lower part of the body.

Physicians were called but they found that the little girl's injuries were close to the fatal point and had her removed to Muhlenberg Hospital as speedily as possible. At the institution today it was stated that she was slightly better than when first received, but the outcome at this time is in doubt.

DR. RANDOLPH, OF MONTCLAIR, ACCEPTS WILMINGTON CALL

Wilmington, Del., May 10—Rev. Dr. Herbert F. Randolph, of Montclair, N. J., and formerly pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, N. J., has been tendered a call by Grace Methodist Episcopal church, of this city, the wealthiest demomination in Delaware. It is stated that he has accepted the call, and will begin his new work shortly. The officials of Grace church will not as yet, however, make a formal statement on the subject. The salary approximates $3,500 a year.

Dr. Randolph was recently the guest of the trustees of Grace church at a luncheon. It was then that the call was given him. He will succeed Rev. Dr. George Edward Reed, a noted clergyman, who recently retired, and is now residing at Harrisburg, Pa. Dr. Reed, who was pastor of Grace church for three years, was for twenty-two years president of Dickinson College and is a former State librarian of Pennsylvania. Dr. Randolph was last week extended an invitation by his church at Montclair to remain another year.

THROWN FROM HORSE.

Edward Jeffcott, of Franklin place, was received at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday, suffering from injuries about the head and face caused by being thrown from a horse. While horeback riding with a number of companions. Jeffcott's animal suddenly bolted and collided with another rider, causing him to lose his seat. His injuries are not serious and he will be able to return home within a short time.

AUTO HITS CYCLIST.

John McNeely, fourteen years old, of 442 West Sixth street, was knocked from his bicycle at the corner of Westfield avenue and Cherry avenue, Elizabeth, yesterday, in a collision with an automobile. The car was driven by William F. Dehnest, of Newark. Beyond a shaking up McNeely escaped unharmed and his wheel was only slightly damaged.

LAST PARK CLUB DANCE.

The last dance for the season was held at the Park Club, Saturday evening, the affair being under the auspices of the entertainment committee. The function was largely attended by members of the club and their friends. The orchestral music was a feature, the program being a popular one. This will be the last dance for this season at the club.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Bayard Hamilton, of Sherman avenue, whose automobile hit a peddler's wagon belonging to Meyer Rabinowitz at Watchung avenue and Second street, last week, was arraigned for a hearing before City Judge DeMeza, this morning. He was absolved from blame and sentence was suspended.

TAKEN TO MONTCLAIR.

The local police yesterday arrested Antonio Coppola on a warrant issued by the Montclair police. He recently came to Plainfield from that city and located on Cottage place. He is wanted on an assault charge.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 55 degrees; 11 a. m., 66 degrees; 1 p. m., 68 degrees.

CUT OUT HIS RIBS TO SEW UP HEART

Surgeons' Most Daring Operation Proves Successful.

LUNG COLLAPSE PREVENTED

Patient Is Kept Alive by Electrical Machine, Which Pumps Through Throat Mixture of Air and Ether While Chest Is Opened and Silk Stitches Are Put In Deep Wound.

A remarkable operation, involving the sewing up of a wound in a man's heart, has just been performed successfully at the Beth Israel hospital, New York city.

The injured man, Israel Ziff, runs a pushcart near the hospital, selling slices of cocoanut to passersby. He is in the habit of slicing the cocoanut himself with a knife more than a foot long, whose wide blade tapers down to a sharp point.

Several months ago Ziff, who is forty-eight years old, cut himself badly while cutting up his wares, and his wife and children begged him to give up his occupation and find some other method of earning a living. He tried to do it, but he could find nothing else. His pushcart was well known in the neighborhood, and his business was good, so he continued at it.

Business was brisk on a recent night, and the cocoanuts were going fast. Every few minutes found Ziff bending over with his knife at work. Presently the thing he had always feared happened—the knife slipped and cut through his left breast, a deep wound.

Pluckily Walks to Hospital.

Ziff knew he was badly hurt, so he straightened up, laid down his knife and started for the Beth Israel hospital, about a block and a half away. How he got there is a mystery to the surgeons, but he did get there. He walked into the office looking as if nothing much was the matter.

Dr. George Levy, who received him, saw that his injuries were serious and notified Dr. Alfred A. Schwartz, the house surgeon. Dr. Schwartz's examination disclosed a wound at least an inch and a half long at the outer surface and going far down in.

Dr. Schwartz called up Dr. Charles Goodman, the attending surgeon, and told him that he was badly needed at once. Dr. Simon D. Ehrlich, the hospital's anaesthetist, also was notified, and Ziff was carried to the operating room. Here Dr. Schwartz packed the wound with gauze and stopped the flow of blood, and everything was made ready to start work when Dr. Goodman arrived.

The operating surgeon arrived in record time, and then began some quick work. The flow of blood had to be stopped in the first place and the patient anaesthetized for the operation. But if the chest were cut open to check the hemorrhage the lungs would have collapsed from the air pressure on the outside, so air had to be pumped in until the inflation was sufficient to resist the pressure from without.

This process was combined with the application of the anaesthetic by the method known as intertracheal anaesthesia. By means of an apparatus operated by electricity, ether was mixed in a jar with air in the proportion considered advisable, and the resultant mixture forced through a tube far down into the patient's throat. By this means anaesthesia was produced and the air within the lungs was raised to double the normal pressure.

Electrical Pump Used.

The electrical machine used is so designed that it mixes ether with air in the proper proportions, and supplies it in little gasps through a tube passing through the throat into the lungs, just as if the lungs had taken it in by normal functioning.

With the patient anaesthetized and the lungs secured against danger of collapse, Dr. Goodman laid open the chest. The incision was ten inches long. The surgeon cut away three ribs and a piece of the breastbone. He found the chest full of blood, and this had to be drawn off before anything more could be done. When the blood was cleared away Dr. Goodman found that the knife had made a big cut in the pericardium and that the point had gone down nearly three-eighths of an inch into the heart.

The most ticklish part of the operation followed—sewing up the heart while it was palpitating. One stitch was sufficient to close the wound in the heart itself, three more did the work with the pericardium. Dr. Goodman sewed the skin together over the wound, and Ziff was put away to recover. He came out of the operation as rapidly as could have been expected, and except that the protection of the ribs over the heart will be missing, he is likely to be in no way the worse for his experience. He will leave the hospital in a few days.

Had the point of the knife gone a millimeter or so farther in Ziff never would have lived to get to the hospital, as the consequent hemorrhage would have been almost instantly fatal. The hospital authorities at first supposed from the nature and depth of the wound that he had been stabbed in a fight, and it was not until a day or two later that Ziff recovered sufficiently to tell them how he had been injured.

New York, May 10—J. Pierpont Morgan on returning from Europe on the American liner St. Louis, said he was overcome with horror by the sinking of the Lusitania, with its toll of American lives. Regarding the comments made in the House of Commons on his profits on British war contracts he said: "That is not an attack. You would not construe that as an attack, would you."

Warrenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison entertained Miss Ida Lockwood, of Jersey City, over the week-end.

Steve and Dave Levitz have returned to their home in New York, after spending several days with their parents of Mt. Bethel.

Harry Guschard, who was driving his automobile up the Warrenville hill, Saturday afternoon, was run into by an automobile driven by Hugh Isler, of Mt. Bethel. Mr. Girschard was accompanied by his two little children. His son was thrown in the ditch and Mr. Guschard was thrown through the windshield, but neither was seriously injured. The occupants in the other car were not injured.

Eugene Williams, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams, who has been seriously ill, is slowly recovering.

Miss Rose Zipp, of Newark, spent the week-end with her parents.

G. Hill, who recently rented the Harry Woods farm, is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Aumon, of Plainfield, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, Sunday.

WAR NEWS

has reached Rymanow, and is nearing the crossing of the important army roads at Brzozow, just below the northern slope, east of the Beskides. The Russian front runs along the Carpathian forests toward Uszok Pass. The eighth Russian army, under General Brussilow, which has been between Uszok and Lupkow Passes, has been pressed back by the Austro-Hungarian army, which has shortened its front considerably."

Paris, May 10.—The French war statement issued today says:

"Bombardment of Dunkirk was resumed by the Germans early today. Two shells fired from the monster cannon stationed twenty-two miles from the French port fell into the city. It is apparent that their efforts to destroy it with bombs failed. The gun is supposed to be somewhere between Westende and Nieuport Belgium. Every possible effort is being made to drive the Germans back in this section. French sea forces have been landed to aid in the offensive movement south of Nieuport."

Constantinople, May 10.—The following, in part, is the official statement today:

"Attacks by the enemy from Ariburnu and Sedul Bahr, under protection of his naval guns, were repulsed with heavy losses. The fleet of the enemy at the Dardanelles is at present inactive."

Washington, May 10.—Secretary Bryan today admitted he had received official notice of the acceptance by China of the Japanese ultimatum as modified.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Unless those Saurer baseballers start their Saturday sphere rolling pretty soon they'll have to "jitneyize" baseball in this burg. The fans are getting so used to going without the stuff that they'll never get used to shelling out two-bits again.

Didn't happen to see any of those Plainfield stars in the classic Saturday afternoon. Must have had some suspicions that the little Finn was going to torpedo their chances.

"Duke" VanMater closed his eyes and batted the first ball pitched for a triple decker on Hyde Oval Saturday afternoon. He did the same stunt against Kearny when a Freshie, but the average person would think that "Duke" would be educated not to do such things by the time he climbed into his senior year.

Outfielder Kirch, the infant prodigy in the N. P. H. S. fold, is making a classy record for himself both in the field and at the bat. The youngster gives every indication of becoming a "regular" bawler some one of these days.

Barring war North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools will come together on the baseball lot this week. In the event of a declaration of international warfare the schoolboys may oppose each other in a running match to the tall timbers.

George, alias "Fuzzy" Firstbrook, blew into Plainfield Saturday night looking for a sport "scoop." Firstbrook used to hand out baseball dope to Plainfield fans and when told that Ernie Dorflinger had retired from the managerial game he averred that the national pastime had hit the toboggan in this village. Can't help but agree with you, Gawge, old man.

"Some article of baseball those Newark Federals are putting up this year," remarked a fan to Firstbrook.

"Not big league stuff, though," returned George, "it's an inferior calibre.

Taking the shot-to-pieces clubs such as Johnny McGraw and Connie Mack are chaperoning around the big circuits as examples we're of the opinion that even the "O. B." clubs are not playing "big league ball."

VanDeventer stopped a horsehide rocket with his dome on Hyde Field Saturday afternoon. Those individuals who happened to be awake on the other side of the creek had temporary visions of a forty-two centimeter gun exploding.

Jack Martin writes that he is satisfied to stay with the St. Paul club. Why wouldn't he be, drawing a Philly salary, escaping the daily newspaper knocks, and really getting his name in the box-score once in a while?

Why not hold a race-meet for taxi-cabs here this spring? Giving the taxi pilots the once-over as they take the corner of Park and North avenues on two wheels the casual observer might be led to believe that Barney Oldfield was conducting a training school in Plainfield.

THREE FIRSTS FOR RUNYON OF P. H. S.

Tall, Lanky Youth From Plainfield the Star in Princeton Meet.

Newark, May 10.—Scoring first places in four of the thirteen events, Central High School's batch of athletic aspirants carried off the honors in the Princeton Club's interscholastic games at the Academy Field, Newark, Saturday afternoon. The Central boys captured 38 points and easily won the second "leg" on the Roland Ross trophy, which becomes the permanent property of the school winning it three times.

The big performance of the day was by a rather tall youth answering to the name of Ralph Runyon, who sported the regalia of the Plainfield High School. Ralph was a team in himself and had he brought a few more capable performers with him Plainfield High probably would have given the Newarkers the battle of their young careers.

Two records were smashed and Mr. Runyon was right there as a record-breaker. The Plainfield athlete scored 14 points, capturing first place and establishing a new record in the pole vault, won the broad jump and brought his day's work to a close by tieing Norton Pratt, of the Pingry School, of Elizabeth, for a gold medal in the high jump. Runyon evidently carried a rabbit's foot, for he had the good fortune to win the medal from Pratt, the ownership of the trophy being decided by the toss of a coin.

Ralph's best work was done in pole vaulting. Had there been a longer pole he might have bumped into a drifting cloud. When it came time to take the cross stick down the Plainfield High School entrant had cleared something like 10 feet. 11¾ inches, which was just one inch better than the record made by Eddie Hill, who performed for the Newark Academy in 1910, and who is now furthering his education at Cornell.

Point score—Central High School, 38; East Orange High School, 22; Bloomfield High School, 15½; Plainfield High School, 14; South Side High School, 11½; Newark Academy, 10½; Barringer High School, 8½; Montclair High School, 6; Pingry High School, 4; Kingsley School, 3; Morris Academy, 3; Blair Academy, 2; Woodbridge High School, 2; Lincoln High School, 1; East Side High School, 1.

PARK GOLF CLUB OPENS THE SEASON

Royle T. Phillips Wins First Honors for the President's Cup.

The formal opening of the active season at the Park Golf Club on Saturday was an auspicious one, the golfers having an ideal day for the event while the course was found to be in unusual good condition for this time of the year. Throughout the day the course was crowded with players and between thirty and forty took part in the initial competition for the President's Cup, the conditions for which are the same as last year.

Royle T. Phillips returned the lowest net score a 83, scoring three points, while J. V. Beekman being second received two points, and H. H. Woodland third getting one point. These scores were posted in the competition:

Royle T. Phillips, 90, 7-83; J. V. Beekman, 105, 17-85; H. H. Woodland, 95, 8-87; Walter Whitehead, 101, 12-89; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 95, 5-90; H. E. Blazier, 96, 6-90; William Nischwitz, 103, 12-91. Harry DeMeza, 108, 15-93; F. I. Collins, 109, 15-94; J. A. Wilson, 105, 10-95; C. J. Hand, 110, 12-98; A. A. Cannon, 114, 15-99.

MATCH PLAY EVENT AGAINST PAR SCORE

A. M. Tweedy All Even in Competition at the Country Club.

Although there was a large field out at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, but few scores were returned in the two competitions arranged for the day, one of which was an 18 holes match play handicap against par. The leading scores posted in this event were as follows:

A. M. Tweedy, all even; L. G. Carman, 1 down; James P. Murray, 6 down; C. E. Lipscomb, 6 down.

There was also weekly competition for the Golf Committee Cup, in which C. E. Lipscomb took first honors with a net score of 73. These cards were posted:

C. E. Lipscomb, 94, 21-73; L. G. Carman, 86, 12-74; Arthur Murphy, 87, 9-78.

In the evening there was the weekly dinner-dance which was largely patronized by the members of the club. The dinner was an excellent one and fine music was furnished for the dance which followed.

MARTIN AVERAGES NINE AND ONE-HALF CHANCES A GAME

A St. Paul (Minn.) sport scribe has the following to say of Jack Martin:

"Since the Saints have been camping on their home lot, they have played eight games there and one battle has been staged in Minneapolis. In these nine contests Jack Martin has had fifty-eight chances and has accepted fifty-seven of them, a fielding average of .982 which is better than most first basemen enjoy. He has taken part in five double plays in that time and has made nine hits for an average of exactly .300.

"There is no computing the energy he has expended in the incessant stream of chatter he maintains in order to help keep everyone up on his toes. That he is fast on his feet is shown by the fact that he has averaged nearly nine and a half chances for every game he has been in."

MATTY THE VICTOR.

"Hank" Mathewson pitched a winning game for the Hunts Point Athletics against Phillipsburg, yesterday afternoon, at Bronx Oval, New York. The score was 12 to 5. Matty hit for a double, made one putout and three assists. He fanned seven and passed three.

KEARNY VICTIM OF N. P. H. S. BALLISTS

Visitors Lose Second Battle of Season to Boroughites on Hyde Oval.

North Plainfield High School ran away from the Kearny High School boys on Saturday, at Hyde Oval, with a score of 9 to 1.

The game was characterized by Stahl's unusually good pitching. He allowed but six short hits and passed only two men, while Kearny's two twirlers gave out eight passes and were batted for ten hits.

Dilts and Smalley sticked best for the home team, making three apiece out of four times at bat.

VanMater started the game with a three bagger and went home on a passed ball. VanDeventer walked and stole second. Dilts walked and went to second on another passed ball that allowed VanDeventer to score. Dilts scored on a fielder's error, ending up the inning with a three run tally. The locals did not score again until the fifth round, when three more came across the plate by two singles, a free trip to first and a pretty two bagger by Kirch over the center fielder's head. They scored two more in the seventh in spite of the three strike-outs put over in that inning, and VanMater put the finishing touch on the score when he tagged up on a fly and beat the fielder's throw to home.

Kearny scored their single run in the sixth inning on one of Stahl's passes, a stolen base and a hit.

LUDLOW VANDEVENTER WINS FOR PRINCETON

The playing of Ludlow VanDeventer, of this city, who is a member of the Princeton University tennis team, was a feature in the match with the University of Pennsylvania team at Princeton, Saturday, which was won by the orange and black players, 5 to 1. The local player won a singles match in straight sets, defeating Disston by scores of 7-5 and 6-1.

Playing with Cooper in the doubles match, VanDeventer scored another victory over the Penn team, winning from Disston and Replogle in straight sets, 6-3 and 6-4. This is the second year VanDeventer has been a member of the Princeton team.

PLAINFIELD LOST.

The baseball team that goes under the name of Plainfield, lost a hard fought twelve-inning game to the Union Course nine at Woodhaven, L. I., yesterday, the final count being 4 to 3. McMahon and Voight were in the points for the Plainfield aggregation. The score by innings follow:

LIDGATE PLAYED WELL.

Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, and "Bill" Stallings, formerly a member of the Plainfield Pets, played with the Hoboken team in a nip-and-tuck game with the Bushwicks, yesterday afternoon, at Ridgewood. The Hobokens won the game by a score of 6 to 4. Lidgate caught the entire game and had eight putouts and one assist to his credit. He also pounded out a two bagger. Stallings covered first base, made five putouts, one error and a run. Joe Harter played left field.

HOPE CHAPEL WON A 10-INNING GAME

Park Avenue Baptist Team Yields Necessary Tally in Extra Round of Play.

The Hope Chapel-Park Avenue Baptist baseball game, which was the first of the season for the Hope aggregation, went into extra innings before the Fourth street boys won the decision, the score being 4 to 3. At the end of the ninth the teams were deadlocked, but one extra session was enough for Hope. The winning run came after Clark, playing centre field for the Parks, had dropped Luthman's fly hit. Hand's single sending Luthman to third, and he scored on Overland's timely single.

The game was well played, Hope taking the lead in the first with one run, which was overcome in the fifth when Schott went bad and the Parks scored all their runs. The Chapel team scored its second run in the sixth and tied matters up in the ninth. Dixon, Maller and Stevens were each credited with a two-base hit.

MRS. WEAVER IS GAINING GROUND IN TOURNAMENT

Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver, formerly of this city, had a good day in the West Side Tennis Club tennis tournament, Saturday, winning two matches and qualifying for the final round of the mixed doubles tourney. Mrs. Weaver played with Charles M. Bull, Jr., and in the second round defeated Mrs. R. A. Pope and Hugh Tallant in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2.

In the semi-final round Mr. and Mrs. Lyle E. Mahan were easily defeated, the score being 6-4, 6-4.

INTERSCHOLASTIC TENNIS.

North Plainfield High School and Leal tennis players will meet in an interscholastic match tomorrow afternoon on the Park Club courts. Three matches of singles and one of doubles will be played. Those who will probably take part in the matches are: Leal, Lyon, Garrigues, Stewart; North Plainfield, Tomkinson, French, Dunning and S. Chandler. Wednesday afternoon the borough team will entertain the West Orange team on their home courts on Mountain avenue.

THIS IS THE WEEK FOR TITLE MATCH

City and Borough Baseball Forces Meet on Hyde Oval Saturday Afternoon.

The Plainfield and North Plainfield High School baseball teams will spend this week in putting on the finishing touches for the first big battle of the season, which is scheduled to take place Saturday afternoon on Hyde Oval, for the interscholastic championship of this city and the Collier Trophy that goes with the title. North Plainfield will play the role of defender and is confident of retaining the laurels won last season after such a hard series; while the red and blue players are equally as confident that they will outscore the boroughites.

Plainfield has two games on the schedule before Saturday, while the "Canucks" will probably only play one. With clear weather, practice will be held every day with the possible exception of Friday, when the coaches may let their men rest until the curtain rises at 3:30 on Saturday. Both teams have disposed of Leal, the third member of the league, and the difference in the showings of the teams puts Plainfield at odds.

LOCALS' AMBITION KNOWS NO BOUNDS

Plainfield High School Met a Snag in Encountering Princeton.

When a High School team reaches a point when it thinks it can play college ball teams, it is time to seek a head specialist. At Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, the Plainfield High School team tried to tackle the Princeton Apollos, a team made up of some varsity players, and consequently were forced to accept the lower end of the score, 10-4. Every time one of their men (and they were men) came to bat, the ball took a long ride, and had it not been for the good fielding of Plainfield's gardeners, the score would have been a great deal worse.

Brick did not seem to be in his best form Saturday for "Art" Lewis' team banged him unmercifully. The other pitcher, Rutherford, had everything on the ball that was necessary. The Plainfield bat wielders either struck out or made weak attempts at hitting the ball. Only four hits were made off him, one of which was of the scratch variety. Rosenson and Peacock were the only local players who could connect with the offerings.

The Apollos started their rallying in the first inning and kept it up until the fifth, and from then on Brick held them to three hits and two runs. Two of Plainfield's runs were given to them on errors, but the other two were made in regular baseball style. One of them was helped in by "Benny" Rosenson's triple, and the other came in on Victorson's long single.

Plainfield has again changed its batting order and it is hoped that this will be final. Apgar has taken first base because of Hirsch's absence from school. Dunham replaced Apgar in right field and O'Leary has resumed his position at second. Whether this change had anything to do with their playing or not, the team made some "boneheaded" errors. However, they played together well and this line-up will no doubt be kept as it seems to be the best yet.

Some of the Princeton players have gained renown in previous seasons and are well-known to localites. Ames, who played centre field, was quarterback on Princeton's football team, and Dickerman, who played third, was Ames' side partner at fullback. O'Kane, their second baseman, is the regular second sacker on Princeton's 'varsity. He is also well known by last year's basketball team of P. H. S. for he refereed a basketball game between Princeton High School and the locals. He also plays guard on Princeton's 'varsity basketball team.

LOCAL WOMEN GOLFERS PLACED AT "2" IN RATING

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton and Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of this city, were given a handicap of 2 in the official handicap list of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association recently announced. Because of her excellent showing last year, Miss Lillian B. Hyde, of South Shore, was placed in all the tournaments from scratch.

Miss M. VanBoskerck, also of this city, was placed in the 10 point class, while the following Westfield women were also placed: Mrs. D. C. Arnold, 7, Mrs. H. A. Manvel, 8, Mrs. A. E. Mattach 9, Mrs. Barr, 10, Mrs. Perkins, 10, and Miss Gertrude Roe, 10.

BAPTISTS LOST TO BOUND BROOK TEAM

Local Aggregation Forced to Take a 5 to 0 Defeat at Bound Brook.

The First Baptist baseball team went to Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, and was shut-out by a score of 5 to 0, by the Bound Brook team, formerly the St. Joseph's. Tomery, the Bound Brook pitcher, held the local players to a pair of hits, Compton and Downs being credited with those. The visitors made six errors which helped the home team make runs.

After the first two innings, in which the home team scored four runs, the result of the game was never in doubt and throughout the nine innings the church boys were at the mercy of Tomery. Patterson pitched fairly good ball, but he was found by the Brookers' heavy hitters for a dozen safeties.

BOY SCOUTS WIN BY LARGE SCORE

Defeat Dunellen A. C. in Uninteresting Contest 15 to 1.

Minus the services of Reusch, Huff and Lewis, three of its stars, the Dunellen A. C. was decisively and overwhelmingly defeated on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, by the crack team of Scout Troop No. 2. Maskell, the Scout pitcher, who is proving the sensation of the season, had another good day, holding the Dunellen A. C. batsmen to one clean hit and two scratches. He struck out eleven batsmen and gave but two free passes.

"Bantam" Dealaman, who was on the mound for the Dunellen A. C., was pounded hard, nineteen hits being made off of his delivery. A number of hits, however, came as the result of poor support. Third Baseman Fritz had a bad day in the field, accepting only one of seven chances.

The feature of the game was three double plays made by the Scout aggregation. The score:

COMPARING RIVALS IN THE BIG SERIES

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this season.

Ernest C. Stahl, N. P. H. S., '18.

"Ernie," "Germany," "Dutch" and "Smoke" Stahl made the North Plainfield High School team while in the seventh grade and has been pitching for the maroon and black's cause ever since. This makes his third season in a borough suit and at present it looks as if he will toss the balls over in all of the interscholastic contests. Stahl's steam has made him a sticker, for before this year he had been in need of control. He now has a combination of speed, control and curves, and with good support should give a good account of himself.

Stahl learned to pitch with the Highlanders, a borough team, and delighted in fanning eighteen or twenty "kids" every Saturday morning before dinner. He is now only a freshman and has three more years to look forward to. He weighs 170 pounds and is 17 years old. Pitches and bats right handed.

Arthur Brick, P. H. S., '15.

Arthur Brick, a member of the Plainfield High School team's pitching staff, is a new man in the game and in the two years he has played has made a creditable record. Before the spring of 1914 Brick knew very little about the national pastime, but when the team needed a speed artist he took up the game and is now to be considered as one of the dangerous players of the coming series.

Brick will undoubtedly get a chance in the game on May 15 to prove his ability. He is 20 years of age, weighs 150 pounds and throws with his right hand. He has a large amount of speed and plenty of good curves. He was a member of the pitching staff last season. Brick is to be graduated from the Ninth street institution in June.

WINDUP OF THE MASONIC LEAGUE BOWLING SEASON

Members of the Masonic Bowling League, including delegates from the Anchor and Jerusalem lodges in Plainfield, wound up their season's activities in the Grand Union Hotel, Elizabeth, last night, when a banquet was tendered to the bowlers and their friends. Major William L. Martin, secretary of the league, was the presiding officer, and former Congressman Charles N. Fowler was the speaker of the evening.

During the evening, Mr. Fowler presented the team trophy to the Tyrian lodge pinners, of Elizabeth, and each member of the winning quintet received gold monogramed stickpins set with diamonds.

During the course of his remarks, Mr. Fowler took occasion to laud the league and Major Martin for their good work. Major Martin also made congratulatory remarks on the season.

WIND BOTHERED RANDOLPH IN GAME AT PERTH AMBOY

Cliff Randolph, of this city, pitched against the New York Yankees at Perth Amboy, yesterday afternoon, and lost by a score of 15 to 10. The game was a swatfest for both teams, New York getting fourteen hits off "Cliff" and the Amboyans hitting two "big league" pitchers for an even dozen. There was a strong wind blowing constantly, which was a great disadvantage to the pitchers and gave the batters many an unearned hit.

Both teams made five errors. One home run was made off Randolph, while three of the Yanks scored doubles. Randolph made one run, one assist and one error. Harry Kingman, of Springfield Training School, who coached George Townley and "Hub" Stine last fall, played center field for the Yankees. He made three runs, two hits, four putouts and one error. The score by innings follow:

New York	0	3	5	2	2	0	2	1	0	15
Perth Amboy	0	8	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	10

Batteries—Pieh, Ring and Schwert; Randolph and Plate.

BOROUGH BOWLING.

The following schedule for this week will be run off in the Borough One Man Tourney Tuesday: Kunzman vs. Miller, Howe vs. Ferrero. Wednesday: Voorhees vs. Squires, Smalley vs. McKenzie. Thursday: Menzenback vs. Conshay, Snyder vs. G. Conover.

BOWLING MATCH IN BORO.

The North Plainfield bowling team will play a match with the Dunellen five tonight on the Somerset street alleys.

—RECRUITS TO THE RANKS of classified advertisers are coming all the time. And they are winning "the victories of peace" every day.

HAROLD SCHENCK BREAKS ANKLE PLAYING BASEBALL

Harold Schenck, of West Front street, who is a student in the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, sustained a broken ankle last Thursday afternoon, while practicing with the college baseball team. Schenck played right field on the team for the past three years.

During the practice last week he was running after a long fly ball and stumbled, breaking the ankle. He is now in the Wells Memorial Hospital in New Brunswick, resting comfortably and improving slowly. He will probably be laid up for six weeks.

SCHEDULE OF GAMES OF FIRST BAPTIST TEAM

Manager Downs, of the First Baptist baseball team, has partially completed his schedule for the season. Games have been booked through July with several open dates. The manager is at present in communication with other clubs and the team will play all summer.

The Baptists will use the West End avenue field this year for their home grounds and five of the eight games booked are at home. Next Saturday the T. A. B. aggregation will visit the Baptist field. The schedule follows:

MAY.

15—T. A. B. at West End avenue.

P. H. S. WAS BEATEN.

The Plainfield High School tennis team lost to the Montclair High School team, at Montclair, Saturday morning, by a score of 4 to 0. The local wielders did not get one match, losing three singles and the doubles match. The scores follow: Singles, Davis (Montclair), defeated Blanchard (P. H. S.), 3-6, 6-2, 6-1; Osbourne (Montclair), defeated Parvin (P. H. S.), 6-1, 6-2; Taylor (Montclair), defeated Case (P. H. S.), 6-3, 7-9, 6-1; doubles, Davis and Osbourne (Montclair), defeated Dall and Parvin (P. H. S.), 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

LOCAL MOOSE WINNERS.

The Plainfield Moose baseball team won from the Marion Field Club, at Lincoln, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 3. The local team made all their runs in the initial innings on hits and errors. Matty Coughlin started to pitch for the Moose but was relieved by Stites. Each team made seven hits. The score by innings follow:

Moose	4	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	4

Batteries—Coughlin, Stites and Dodd; Hamilton and Miller.

PHYSICIANS PLAN BIG OUTDOOR SHOW

Games of all Kind to Be Given for Benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital.

The physicians of Plainfield are making elaborate plans for their annual out-of-door entertainment for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, which this year will be held at the Plainfield Horse Show grounds, on Saturday afternoon, June 19. Instead of playing the usual game of baseball with the dentists or lawyers of the city, the program of athletic events will include all sorts of games, including pig and pony races, tug-o-war, wrestling matches, potato race, climbing a greased pole and many other sports which will afford no end of amusement to the spectators. The committee in charge of the affair, of which Dr. F. C. Ard is the chairman, is now busy at work on the details of the program.

The horse show grounds is considered an ideal place for such an affair, there being ample grandstand accommodation for all who wish to attend, and the track is just long enough for the several races and other events to be offered.

This annual affair is arranged by the doctors as a means of raising a certain amount of money to support the hospital and in past years the public has been generous in its patronage. It is also proposed to have society women act as ushers in the grandstand and also sell peanuts, candy, ice cream cones, cigars and cigarettes as a means of swelling the total receipts.

LEEK AND MOGENSON GET FIRST AID CONTEST PRIZES

Howard Leek, of troop 10, and Allan Mogenson, of troop 5, received the awards in the boy scout competition in bandaging, which was held in connection with the circus last Friday. Leek placed a head and arm bandage on another boy in tour and a half minutes, and Mogenson bandaged the head of a companion in two minutes.

ARRESTED FOR VAGRANCY.

Charged with vagrancy, a man who gave his name as William Mansville, and who said that his home was at Easton, Pa., was arrested by Marshal Logan at Fanwood, yesterday. The man had been loitering about the borough for several days. Arraigned before Recorder Sheelen in the afternoon, he was given his choice of paying a $5 fine or spending thirty days in Elizabeth. He took the days.

VEHICLES COLLIDE.

Joseph Downs, of Brooklyn, riding a motorcycle on Somerset street, near Front, Saturday night, collided with an automobile delivery wagon owned by Hogan Hansen, the Park avenue baker. Mr. Hansen assumed the responsibility in the matter and agreed to stand for the expense entailed in putting Downs' cycle back in shape.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Marion C. Mortimer, of Park avenue, to Ray Webster Fuller, of Arlington avenue, which will take place at the home of the bride-elect's brother, Francis R. Mortimer, of Prospect avenue, on Saturday, the twenty-ninth of May, at 5 o'clock.

CHURCH OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Rev. J. Y. Brock, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, installed the following as deacons and elders at the morning service yesterday: Robert Clark, Jr., H. E. Gayle, T. R. VanZandt, E. F. Sheppard, elders; A. K. Willett, W. R. Kriney, F. S. Cutter and Jesse S. Miller, deacons.

PATTERN MAKERS TO MEET.

The Pattern Makers' Association, of this city, will hold an open meeting at Trades' Council Hall, tomorrow night. All pattern makers in Plainfield are earnestly requested to be present whether members or not, as matters of vital importance to them will be discussed.

MRS. MATILDA STOKES.

Mrs. Matilda Stokes, mother of Mrs. Moses Cary, of 313 Filmore avenue, died yesterday at her home in New York. She was fifty-five years old. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from Mrs. Cary's home and burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

CLAN MEETS TONIGHT.

Clan Mackenzie 204, O. S. C., will meet this evening at their lodge rooms in Firemen's Hall, 109 Park avenue. Several candidates will be initiated and other matters of importance will come before the meeting. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

H. R. HUBBARD ELECTED.

H. R. Hubbard, of the Plainfield High School faculty, was elected a member of the executive committee of the New Jersey Science Teachers' Association at its annual meeting held in the Newark State Normal School Saturday.

—Jacob Cornett, newsdealer, Somerville sells the Daily Press or will deliver it to your home each day.

THESPIAN SOCIETY WILL APPEAR IN PRODUCTION

What promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season is the production of George Ade's great comedy, "Father and the Boys," by the Thespian Society, Friday evening, May 21, in the High School Auditorium, under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee. Unusual care has been given the preparation of the play and a great treat is promised the theatre-going public. Burnett Doane will interpret the part of "Father" the character originally portrayed by William Crane in the New York professional production. The sympathy, delicacy, and quaint humor of this kindly old man is well brought out by Mr. Doane.

Those who see his version of the way "Father" behaved at the race track will never forget it. Other characters are in equally good hands, some of the work even at this stage of rehearsal coming up to the standard of professionals.

The play is to be followed by a dance, Van Eps' orchestra furnishing the music. It is hoped that a large crowd will turn out as this affair is given for the purpose of furthering the work of the Public Recreation Committee. Many of the most known society women of Plainfield are to be patronesses.

Refreshments will be served by Ritz during the dancing. The cast of the play includes some of the most popular members of the younger set of Plainfield. Principal parts will be taken by the Misses Marie Sullivan, Madeline Durar, Esther Brownlee, Jessie Billings, Loraine Dunne and Lillian Lamson. Among the young men in the cast are Philip Schuyler, Harold Williams, Burnet Doane, Jack Britton, William Anderson, Paul Westergaude, John Uhler, Alva Brownlee and Bob Megay.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A surprise party was given in honor of Miss Ehelma Cook at her home on Clinton avenue, Saturday night. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Ella Cook and Nathan Boylan. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Those present were as follows: The Misses Ehelma Cook, Evelyn Meeker, Margaret Crouzer, Madelyn Apgar, Margaret Adams, Ella Cook, Ella May Stitcher, Catherine MacClymont, LeRoy Apgar, Albert Dealaman, Harold Eckert, Arthur Force, Charles Belden, Nathan Boylan, Edward Morrella, George Stitcher, Andrew Crouzer, James Stranson, George Hall and John Wendell.

TO GIVE MAY PARTY.

The May party to be given tomorrow night by the members of the choir of the Congregational church promises to be a most enjobale event for all who attend. The program arranged for the affair consists of glees, pianologues, solos, assisted by Miss Virginia Powell, pianologues; Miss Kathleen Phillips, soprano; W. Marlow Jones, tenor, and Malcolm B. Barnes, baritone. The proceeds of the entertainment will be added to the church fund.

GET CARNIVAL PERMIT.

Charles E. Kling, secretary of the local lodge of Moose, this morning, was granted a permit by Mayor Leighton Calkins, to hold a five days' carnival beginning next Monday, on the lot at West Front street and Grant avenue. The new set of Health Board regulations were also provided and these will have to be strictly adhered to by the carnival promoters.

TO ADDRESS MACHINISTS.

Vice-president J. J. Kepler, of New York city, will address the International Machinists' Union, local No. 167, in the Building Trades' Council Hall, on West Front street, at 8 o'clock tonight. His subject will be "Uniform Contracts in the Printing Press Business," and he will have with him several representatives from the New York city local, No. 434.

AUTOS IN A COLLISION.

A taxicab driven by John R. Hopler collided with an automobile owned and driven by Dr. Edward Good at Fourth street and Madison avenue, yesterday morning, both cars being slightly damaged.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Lovers' Meeting.

LUCENE was in an evening gown of a white filminess that revealed with modest truth the gracious lines of the slender, lissome form. A deeper rose blossomed warmly in her cheeks, the tender bow of the lips was slightly parted to a tremulous smile of rapture. On the man, too, a spell was laid, like unto hers, yet unlike, for where she knew him in the first instant his memory did not stir as yet, though the exquisite charm of her there thrilled him with longings new and masterful. The voluminous voice of Blount, making the introductions, freed the twain, in part at least, from the enchantment fallen upon them.

Wainwright managed artfully to be beside the girl as the general exodus was begun. He was filled with an unreasoning indignation that wholly obscured his sense of humor as he heard the dialogue between Dr. Forbes and Mrs. Blount as they passed on their way toward the door.

"Your daughter is a dainty creature, Mrs. Blount," the physician was saying with enthusiasm.

Mrs. Blount swept an approving look over her own majestic frame.

"Yes. All our family are just like that."

"Really, the woman is indecent!" was Wainwright's angry thought.

"Come on, Cortland," Forbes called over his shoulder as he reached the doorway. Wainwright turned again to the girl beside him. The others were all out of the room now, and she looked up at him with a little smile, so wistful that it set his pulses bounding in a wild longing to comfort her—why, for what, he knew not.

"Shall we go now?" she asked timidly.

"Yes—no—that is, wait, just a moment." Then, as she faced him with a certain shrinking bravery born of long yearning, their eyes met and held in a lingering look that stirred each to the deeps. And, in that look, the man's memory stirred and leaped to life.

Amazement crept into the lines of his face, and awe glowed in his piercing expression. The girl stood rigid, pale from stress, waiting patiently of body, with an infinite impatience of the heart.

"I—I can't be mistaken," Wainwright murmured. His voice grew firmer, vibrant with conviction, subtly caressing: "Surely it's the same little girl. Oh, surely it's my little savior of the Chicago street, isn't it? Tell me! But—I know!" The final words rang triumphantly, though uttered so softly.

The girl's words came falteringly, for her heart raced with happiness.

"Then you—you remember me?"

Impulsively Wainwright put out his hands. With equal impulsiveness Lucene laid her slim fingers within his warm clasp.

"Remember you?" he cried, with a laugh of sheer joy. "Well, yes, I think I do."

The words sounded a melody of bliss in the depths of the girl's being.

"After all these years!" she breathed. The rigidity of her pose relaxed.

"Yes, after all these years," he half whispered. "It is wonderful—wonderful!"

"Yes," she agreed simply, nor dared to lift her eyes to meet the warm regard that reached to her heart.

"Not wonderful that I should remember you," the man explained inanely, quite unaware of his words in contemplation of her loveliness. "Only wonderful that we should at last meet again like this."

She spoke sedately enough, though with a happy quaver in the music of her voice.

"They will be waiting. We must go."

But the glamour was still on the man, and he spoke again, his tones full of a reverent tenderness:

"What a princess you've grown to be!"

The girl turned away resolutely, though her heart was listening to the singing of his praise for her.

"We must go," she commanded.

Wainwright aroused himself.

"Yes," he said very softly as he walked beside her, "we must go." And then he added still more low, "Together."

* * * * * * *

The days that followed this first meeting were halcyon ones for the lovers—for lovers they were. Lovers they had been, in a fanciful, dreamy, altogether extravagant fashion, since the few seconds together in Chicago years ago, with never a word exchanged between them.

Lovers they were of a different sort, from the instant of the association brought about by the machinations of the Master Mind. There was never any tiniest suggestion of doubt on the part of either. The love that had been no more than a romantic chimera was sprung into full, glorious life—the single reality in the universe, the beginning and the end of all things.

Little by little Wainwright, self conscious, fearful as never before, dared to profess his adoration. And, by so much as he dared to speak, she shyly dared to listen, until at last the supreme confession set them brimming with ecstasy. For once, it seemed that there was no obstacle to prevent the smooth running of the course of true love. The Blounts, concisely advised by Andrew, welcomed Wainwright as a suitor for Lucene's hand. For the rest the young man was his own master, the possessor of an ample fortune. There was nothing to occasion delay, and, as soon as a sufficient trousseau could be assembled, the marriage took place.

After a heavenly honeymoon season, the bride and groom established themselves joyously in a country place near New York, with the admirable Andrew in charge of a considerable staff of servants. The arrangement was satisfactory to the Blounts, as they were invited to a long visit with their daughter and son-in-law, before leaving for their home in the west.

Of the various persons concerned in this strange menage Wainwright was most wholesomely happy, though even his happiness was qualified. Yet the element of peril, the threat of impermanence which he faced, gave even an added zest to the delights of love.

That which menaced him was the familiar dread of the mysterious vengeance to be visited upon him, but this dread was swollen to dimensions newly ominous. It was the very morning following the wedding, in a remote hotel, whither the bridal pair had gone secretly lest any one know their whereabouts, that the blow fell.

As Wainwright passed along the hallway of their suit he perceived something white under the outer door. On examining this he found it to be an envelope bearing a typewritten address to himself. Something in the look of the unexpected missive sickened the man, nauseated him with nervous apprehension of disaster. And his emotion was, indeed, justified, for on opening the envelope he plucked forth from it a red card.

The day of doom, then, was near at hand.

It took all the lover's strength of will to hide from his bride the shock he had sustained, but somehow he carried the effort through to success, and Lucene had no suspicion that all was not well with the man she so worshiped. But, at once on his return from the wedding journey, Wainwright summoned Marshall, the Pinkerton agent, and directed the detective to use every resource in an endeavor to discover the mysterious foe.

Nevertheless he was happy in his life, happy beyond aught that he had ever conceived as possible, for the love between him and his wife was a perfect love. The vengeance that threatened him was not one to make a brave man weaken, for it was undeserved. He had no sin on his conscience. He could hold fast to his happiness undismayed.

It was otherwise with Lucene. The burden of guilt drained her forces. She had pleaded with Andrew in vain for the privilege of open confession, of the whole truth concerning her past life, to her husband. Such candor had been the instinct of her innocence, and that instinct was never slain, though choked to silence by the specious sophistries of the Master Mind. He succeeded, however, in convincing her superficially that perfect frankness to her husband would repel, would drive the lover from her arms.

COOL AND COMFORTABLE NEGLIGEE FOR LOUNGING.

Nearly six weeks have passed since spring was ushered back to give new life and joy to the world. Many times it was to be wondered whether this season of seasons had lost its foothold and had given up in despair.

The evidences of spring are now too strong, however, to leave any doubt as to its triumphant victory; but with the coming of warmer weather, day by day, the question of comfortable negligee wear becomes paramount. Not only must it be comfortable; but to be truly satisfying it must be dainty and pretty.

Such a garment is the Ladies' and Misses' Draped Negligee, cut by Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8682. It opens at the side-front, has a V-neck and sleeves fitted with box-pleated ruffles. The drapery is held in place by two buttons and can be laid out flat to iron. Sizes 32, 36, 40, 44. Size 36 requires 5⅝ yards 30-inch or 5½ yards 36-inch material and 1 yard 30-inch or ⅞ yard 36-inch contrasting goods for neck and sleeve frills.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force and Company.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"We'd better send for mother, dear," said Dick, when everything had quieted down for the night.

"We can't do that. She is a busy woman. We simply can't ask her to drop everything and come to our relief every time we get into trouble."

"I have not been able to find a maid, and you can't get along and be nurse and housekeeper too." Dick was evidently worried.

"I suppose we could have the little nurse girl stay all night, so as to have her here in an emergency," said Nell. "That will be better than nothing."

"Write to mother and tell her what has happened. I know she will come if she possibly can." And he was right. The second day after the accident the bus set the elder Mrs. Morton down at the door.

"How good of you to drop everything and come to us," said Nell, kissing her. "How will they get along without you at home?"

"They are working in the south field near Mrs. Walters, our next door neighbor, and she consented to board them while I am gone. I feel quite easy about them. We knew you were not strong and had no help. Pa urged me to come. 'We'll get along without you,' he said. 'That little girl can't take care of a sick man and a baby too.' So he drove me to the train this morning."

"How dear of both of you," said Nell with moist eyes. "Dick is awake; come and see him."

"Well, this certainly is good of you," said Dick, reaching out his hand.

"That's what mothers are for," said Dick's mother.

"Well, this certainly is good of you," said Dick, reaching out his hand.

"That's what mothers are for," to Dick's mother.

"Help out," she said in a matter of fact way, pecking at his cheek. "You were always great for breaking bones. You must have broken nearly all the handy ones first and last."

Dick laughed. "Broken bones are not like most children's afflictions. You can have them twice."

"Oh, you are all right. You can joke."

"Here's the baby," she said, extending her arms to take him from Nell, who entered the room with the little fellow. "He certainly looks well, in spite of the hot weather. What are you feeding him?"

"Something the doctor recommended. We have had an awful time getting anything to agree with him. I've been very regular in feeding him."

"Nonsense! In my time babies were fed when they were hungry and they grew like little animals. Mothers could feed their babies in those days. Now they are fed by the clock, slept by the clock, bathed by the clock." She shook her head disdainfully.

"Your babies turned out to be pretty nice, too, didn't they?" said Nell, stroking Dick's forehead.

"He might be worse," she said, smiling over the top of her spectacles.

"Even if I am rather brittle," laughed Dick. "You will always be able to identify me by my complete set of mended bones, now that we have X-rays."

"Were you much upset when you heard the news?" asked grandma as she pinched the baby's cheeks.

"Miss Rudolph brought the word," began Nell.

"Miss Rudolph, that silly stenographer!" snapped Mrs. Morton.

"Yes, she asked in such a sincere womanly fashion to be allowed to help me that I was greatly surprised. And she did help. She took care of the baby while I was so busy assisting the doctor. It seems she had young brothers and sisters to care for at home. I think she is very much humiliated over that letter."

"It is to be hoped so," grunted Dick's mother.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—What the Orang Ontangs Can Do.

It Is a Very Funny Sight to Watch Barney Button Up Estella's Dress.

"KIDDIES, I'm going to tell you a story about two orang outangs that live and travel with a circus. Their names are Estella and Barney," daddy had begun the evening story.

"These animals are very full of fun. They play and frolic all the time. They will take off the hat of a visitor and try it on their own heads. They will examine your watch or steal your handkerchief and pinch you and pull your hair, not so very much different from children.

"They wear clothes, too, and it is a very funny sight to watch Barney buttoning up Estella's dress.

"They have a big square table on which they play. This table is rigged up like the mast of a ship, from which ropes dangle, and Estella and Barney have heaps of fun running up and down these ropes and swinging. You see they have four hands instead of two, so they can do as much again mischief as you kiddies can.

"They chew gum, too, and like it very much. It's a funny sight to watch one chew up a stick of gum and then pass it along to the other one and their stringing it back and forth between them.

"But there is another way they are like human children. They do not like to be separated. If Estella is carried away where Barney cannot see her he will bump his head on the floor and cry very pitifully, and Estella will do the same.

Estella is a great mischief, and sometimes to vex Barney she will hide from him, and then such a rumpus you never heard. Barney runs all over the place and squeals and cries, and at last, after he has searched a long time, if he doesn't chance to find her, Estella will appear and actually laugh at poor Barney.

"Then they pretend to fight, but they never harm each other, and they are gentle with visitors, too, and will bite the hand of a visitor only very, very gently.

"Once when a man was hunting in the Malayan peninsula he accidentally shot and killed a mamma orang outang. In her arms she was carrying a little baby orang outang, which, of course, she dropped upon the ground when she was shot.

"The baby orang outang cried and cried all the way to the man's house, where he carried it, and after he reached home with it he fed it, and then one of the servants had to rock it to sleep."

Household Hints

DELICIOUS MORSELS MADE IN A MINUTE

Cheesies—Grate or chop cheese in fine bits. Scatter it over butter crackers or salt wafers and sprinkle with dash of red pepper. Heat about two minutes in moderate oven.

Snowdrifts—Spread honey or jelly lightly on square graham crackers and put one or two marshmallows on each. Place in a pan and set in moderate oven about a minute until marshmallows are puffed and slightly browned.

Cracker Bonbons — Split small plump oyster crackers, insert a filling of peanut butter or melted chocolate and put the two halves together again. The children love these.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To pour liquid from vegetables or other foods without removing solids from kettle. This is easily accomplished if small holes are punched in cover near the edge. Make four in first row, then three in next and so on till you have a triangle. The kettle can be tilted and the liquid drains through the holes. Further, the steam from cooking food can escape, thus preventing cover from vibrating or the contents from boiling over.

When hot dishes or hot pans stick to oilcloth, take a cloth, on it put a little fresh lard, rub it on oilcloth, then take a clean cloth and dry and rub all over it again; will have no more trouble.

After you have used vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper on carpet, remove brush from sweeper, saturate it with gasoline, replace brush and go over carpet with the sweeper; repeat as brush becomes dry. You will be surprised how bright and clean your carpet will look.

To clean straw matting, put two tablespoons ammonia in one gallon warm water; wash and dry immediately.

To destroy house flies, take half teaspoon black pepper, one teaspoon brown sugar, one teaspoon cream; mix well together, place mixture in the room where flies are troublesome.

When working buttonholes in bias material or goods which ravels, first starch the material stiff and then iron dry. The material will neither stretch nor ravel.

After polishing kitchen faucets and pipes with a good metal polish, apply a thin coat of the oil which is used for making gold paint.

To counteract odor of onions, chew and swallow a few leaves of parsley after eating onions; magic breath sweetener.

THE TABLE

Escaloped Veal—Chop cold cooked veal fine, put layer in baking dish, then layer of crushed crackers, salt, pepper and butter, and so on, till dish is full. Save water in which veal was boiled and moisten each layer. Put bits of butter over top; pour over all 1½ cups milk and four tablespoons cream.

Banana Salad — Cut bananas lengthwise in half, dip in mayonnaise dressing that is rather sweet, roll in crushed peanuts, coyer with whipped cream, then place several maraschine cherries on top; serve on lettuce leaf.

Delicious Soft Gingerbread—Half cup sugar, cup molasses, half cup butter or lard, one teaspoon each of ginger, cinnamon and cloves (scant), two teaspoons soda dissolved in one cup hot water, 2½ cups flour; add two beaten eggs at the last.

Maple Sirup Icing—Boil one and one-half cups maple sirup to a soft wax, then let it get cool; add a little milk and stir; if it becomes hard add more milk—about a teaspoon or maybe more.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Mrs. Eva Fay, who begins an engagement at Proctor's Theatre today, is a skilled and scientific manipulator of the arts of the East Indian Yogi and famous Mahamtas, being a daughter of India. Her wonderful exhibition, adroitness and dexterity comprises the most finished performance ever offered to the American people and it is necessarily mysterious. She is not a spiritualistic medium and there is nothing supernatural about her work. In the answering of the questions, identifications and desriptions, about all of Mrs. Fay's answers were correct—about eighty per cent., it has been found—but the proportion is such as to make it truly wonderful. Mrs. Fay positively gives no private audiences to any person. She is not a fortune teller, palmist or pretender of any kind and it is not supposed that any person in the audience will be influenced by her exhibition in any way beyond the moment, and it is for this purpose that this exhibition is given. The address of Mrs. Fay's assistant, like that of any other entertainer, must not be taken too seriously, as it is his business to entertain and the more convincing his talk the better he accomplishes his end.

The World Film Corporation releases the five-part photo-drama, "Hearts In Exile," which will be shown at Proctor's Theatre, today and tomorrow, founded on a novel of the same name by the late John Oxenham. Clara Kimball Young plays the part, in this drama, of Hope Ivonovna, a beautiful Russian girl in the tragic position of being lawfully married to two men, both of whom are sincere in their attachment to her. But irrespective of its purely dramatic interest, the picture makes a wide appeal to those who are interested in the aspects which the vast European-Asiatic Empire presents to them. The Great Northern Empire still, it is said, condemns its political and other prisoners to exile in Siberia. Life in its convict stations is hard and tyrannous. We see Cossack fights and a real wolf chase. Many of the scenes were taken with snow on the ground and ice on the water and the frigid aspects of Russo-Siberian life are shown in the film. One of the most sensational incidents of the story is the pursuit of one horseman by another on a frozen river. There is a fissure in the ice and the foremost horseman plunges headlong into the water and is followed by his pursuer. When this part of the picture was being made, the two men and the horses were almost drowned and frozen to death by the terrible experiences through which they passed.

LACK OF KNOWLEDGE CAUSES DESTRUCTION

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor Gives Stirring Talk on Temperance.

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge," was the subject of an interesting talk given by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, national lecturer for the W. C. T. U., in Trinity Reformed church, last night. She was heard by a large congregation. Mrs. Armor is known as "The Georgia Cyclone," and those who heard her last night were convinced that the title is rightly applied, judging by the way she handled the liquor question. She will speak again at the Plainfield High School tonight.

The speaker said that any one who favored the liquor traffic did so for one or two reasons, ignorance or meanness. She declared that people are ignorant of the destruction caused by the traffic and while people join humane societies and pay $1 a year dues to help save cats and dogs they are oblivious to the great destruction being caused daily by the liquor traffic and are growing used to hearing that 100,000 people fill a drunkard's grave every year.

Mrs. Armor went on to tell of the evil effects of alcohol and said that she would like to place a sign over the entrance to every saloon reading "What fools these mortals be." She told of many instances where men crazed by drink had committed murder. She said that it was an established fact that a person's feet might be sober and their head drunk with liquor. She recalled a railroad accident caused by an intoxicated engineer which cost the railroad a round million dollars and asked her audience if they thought the traffic paid.

It was the opinion of Mrs. Armor that it is the business of the church to supply the knowledge to ignorant people and impress upon them the evil influence of the liquor traffic. She said that the fundamental principal of prohibition is that it is wrong to legalize a wrong and she contended that it is wrong to make a saloon as legal an institution as a church or school. She declared that there is no such thing as personal liberty, but that it's civil liberty that the people want. Adam and Robinson Crusoe, she said, were the only two people who ever had personal liberty. In conclusion the speaker impressed upon her audience not to blame God for their failure to accomplish certain things. She believed that with God's help liquor would be banished from the land, and she urged everyone present to join in the movement.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, the pastor, presided at the service and Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, county president of the W. C. T. U., introduced the speaker, Mrs. Armor.

BE A LITTLE FARMER

George Eliot, the famous English author, said:

"No great deed is ever done by Falterers, who ask for Certainty."

Such are the words of one who was wise in the ways of the world, and in human nature.

YOUR GREATEST DEED IS TO ESTABLISH A HOME

The wealth of a nation lies entirely in its people..

There is more money in the scientific breeding of human creatures than in bovine, and more money in the proper equipment and care of the young than in running a railway.

The Welfare of Yourself and of Your Family

Can best be served in all times by owning one of these

MORTGAGES AS INVESTMENTS FOR IDLE FUNDS

There is no better form of investment for those who desire a higher rate than the 4% paid in our Special Department, than mortgages on well selected property on a 50% basis.

This Company invests a certain portion of its funds in gilt edge mortgages and is willing to sell these mortgages from time to time to persons desiring conservative investments.

We are always pleased to talk over investments with persons having idle funds in an endeavor to be of service and will be glad to submit our offerings to any one who may be interested.

CLINCHING THE CHILDREN'S SHOE TRADE.

The biggest, steadiest and most frequent shoe customers any shoe house has, are the growing boys and girls. Between hard play that wears shoes out quickly and growing feet which demand constantly larger sizes, there's no end to the children's shoe demands.

BUT these demands are MINIMIZED to the relief of the hard-pressed parent, when the young folks' shoes are bought at Van Arsdale's. We claim to know how to get the RIGHT STUFF into our shoes —results prove that!

If you are not one of our regular patrons— TRY US.

SEEK RECOGNITION FOR A SCOUT HERO

Harvey Kiederling's Companions Think He is Entitled to Life-saving Medal.

WITNESSES LAUD BOY

Chief Doane and Lad's Father Among Those Who Saw Him Save Infant from Horse's Hoofs at Circus Grounds.

Application is to be made by the Plainfield Boy Scout Council to the National Court of Honor for a bronze life-saving hero's medal for Tenderfoot Scout Harvey Kiederling, of 133 East Second street, for saving the life of a little girl from being crushed out by the feet of an unmanageable four-in-hand team of horses last Friday morning at Front street and Grant avenue. Initial action looking toward the award to Keiderling was taken by Scout Irving D. Manley, of Troop 11.

Young Keiderling was in Scout uniform and had reported at the circus grounds to participate in the parade. He was alone and just as one of the big wagons turned to enter the grounds, a woman with two small children on the sidewalk got in the way of the four-horse truck as it dashed for the curb to haul the heavy wagon up the slight incline. Seeing her danger the mother picked up one child and reached for the other. Before she could rescue the older baby the leading off horse knocked the child down and the pair of horses following would doubtless have crushed the little one had not Keiderling dashed under the plunging horse and, applying one of the carrying holds learned in Scoutcraft, brought the child out safely and returned it unharmed to its mother.

Among the eye-witnesses of the act was Fire Chief T. O. Doane and the boy's father, who is chauffeur for the chief. About fifty other persons saw the act of heroism and roundly applauded and cheered the lad.

MR. AND MRS. W. G. DEBELE GUESTS AT DINNER PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Debele, of Somerset street, the borough, were the guests of honor at a dinner given by their daughter, Mrs. Charles McVickor, at her home on Duer street, last night. The event was in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Debele's twenty-fifth wedding anniversary which occurred on Saturday. Covers were laid for eighteen, which included only immediate relatives. The evening was spent in a social way, every one having a pleasant time. Mrs. Debele was the recipient of many gifts in honor of the occasion.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Debele, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McVicker, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Weseman and children, of Sixth street; Miss Elsie Debele, Miss Hermina Lightheuzser, of Fifth street; the Misses Stella, Mamie and Nellie Winckler, of the borough, and Howard and Walter Debele.

DR. PROBASCO BREAKS WRIST CRANKING CAR

While in the act of cranking his car, yesterday afternoon, Dr. Norman H. Probasco was struck on the right wrist through a back-fire and sustained a broken bone. The injury was set by Dr. C. B. Lufborrow, and the physician will be partially incapacitated for several weeks.

Dr. Probasco had been making a hurry call to a patient and was running the car himself in the absence of his chauffeur. The break in the wrist is a very clean one, and no complications are probable.

PLAN TWO PLAYS.

The Young People's Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church, the borough, will hold its monthly business meeting Friday evening at the home of Dr. Ida B. Hunt, of Prospect avenue. Plans will be made for the presentation of two playlets in the near future. Other matters of importance are to be discussed.

REALTY CHANGES.

Harry Dreier, of West Front street, has purchased the residential property at West Front street and Lafayette place, formerly occupied by Winfield S. Angleman, and Jacob Sachar has purchased a tract of adjoining land.

PREDICTS DEATH OF "KING ALCOHOL"

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor Tells Why Prohibition Will Come in 1920.

Under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. a meeting was held in the Plainfield High School Auditorium last night, at which Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, better known as the "Georgia Cyclone," spoke to a large audience on the subject of "National Prohibition in 1920 and Why." Mrs. Armor gave the history of the fight against the liquor traffic in this and other countries and took her audience back a few years, when a handful of women first mentioned this subject and were laughed at, hooted and jeered by everyone.

The reasons given by Mrs. Armor that this country would be totally "dry" in 1920 were very convincing, and she emphasized the fact that the great progress that has been made in the past few years is due to enlightenment on the subject of the liquor traffic. The speaker took for her text, "All Power is Given Unto Me in Heaven and in Earth." She said friends of temperance are now getting ready for prohibition and the death of "King Alcohol," and the W. C. T. U. is now an organization which is leading in this great work.

In one of her recent visit to Washington Mrs. Armor said that while talking with Secretary of State Bryan she asked him his opinion, and he answered that he was against prohibition only because he did not believe the country was yet ready for it. At that time there were only nine States in the Union "dry," and now there are eighteen. Mrs. Armor gave a good illustration of how the fight progressed in Kentucky. In their campaigns for election, the candiates for Governor of that State tried to prove that each was a better prohibitionist than his rival, and the one that was the most securely seated on the "water wagon" had the majority.

The speaker challenged the point that the Government claims that the revenue realized from the liquor tax is a necessary income, the total sum being about $500,000,000 per year. If the people believe in the liquor traffic they also believe that the best thing for this country is drunkenness which leads to crime, disaster and other things.

The laws of this land regarding the liquor traffic, hand a young man, when he has reached the age of twenty-one, to the saloon keepers as prey to keep their business going instead of preventing young men from falling into that path which always leads the wrong way. Mrs. Armor also gave interesting statements from saloon keepers in which they admitted that the end of the liquor traffic is near and that within five or six years they will have to look for other kinds of work.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of this city, presided at the meeting; Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, of the First Methodist church, made the opening prayer, and Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, welcomed Mrs. Armor. The W. C. T. U., Tomlinson "Y" and Lawson Union were represented.

MISS NELLIE L. GILES BRIDE OF JOHN DILTS

Miss Nellie Louise Giles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac R. Giles, of Fairview avenue, the borough, and John C. Dilts, of this city, were married Saturday evening, at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Only the immediate relatives witnessed the ceremony. There were no attendants.

The bride is well-known in the city and borough, having a large acquaintance. She is a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Mr. Dilts is also well-known here. He is employed by the Thomas A. Edison Company and will be located in Pittsburgh, Pa., for which place he left on Sunday. Mrs. Dilts will join her husband about June 1.

T. J. COLE IS WANTED.

The local police are trying to locate a man by the name of T. J. Cole, who is said to be living somewhere in Plainfield. The search is being made at the request of the St. Vincent Hospital authorities, of New York city, who claim that his sister-in-law is in a serious condition at that institution, and is anxious to hear from him.

ENSIGN BURTIS HOME.

Ensign William Burtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, is visiting his parents, being on a short furlough. He is on the U. S. battleship New Jersey, which is at present stationed in the Boston Navy Yard.

MUSIC AND MIRTH FOR BIG AUDIENCE

Capacity Crowds Indicated by Advance Sale for T. A. B. Minstrel Show.

From the advance sale of seats that has already been made, St. Mary's T. A. B. Hall will hold capacity audiences tonight and tomorrow night, when St. Mary's T. A. B. minstrel troupe gives it minstrel performance in celebration of the forty third anniversary of the organization. The show each night will be followed by a reception and dance and young people from all over the city and borough are looking forward to a most pleasing event.

The troupe has been rehearsing for the past six weeks under the direction of Lawrence F. Barrett, Jr., who will also be an end man. A program of up-to-date musical numbers will be rendered by the principals and the comedians are primed with a bunch of "red hot" gags, many of them being local hits. A feature musical number will be the rendition of a topical song by William Clarkson entitled, "St. Mary's T. A. B." The verses were composed by Albert LaRock and as he is thoroughly familiar with local topics, the audiences are certain to get something good. A delegation of 100 members of the Elizabeth T. A. B. society will be among the spectators at tomorrow night's performance, coming to Plainfield by a special trolley. John J. Hines is chairman of the minstrel committee and he has been ably assisted in the preparations by Michael D. O'Keefe and Joseph T. McCue. An orchestra of four pieces, in charge of Frank L. Manchester, will accompany the singers.

The musical numbers to be given are the following: Overture, Manchester's orchestra; opening chorus, medley of popular airs, entire company; end song, "Dancing at the Cotton Ball," Joseph Carroll; ballad, "I Hear You Calling Me, Tennessee," Master Louis Montferrante; end song, "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield," L. F. Barrett, Jr.; ballad, (a) "I Hear You Calling Me," (b) "When It's Moonlight In Mayo," Albert F. LaRock; end song, "Dancing Underneath the Irish Moon," Russell Feiring; ballad, "Irish Eyes of Love," Patrick Powers; end song, "Good Night," William Mahoney; topical song, "St. Mary's T. A. B. S.," William Clarkson; closing chorus, "The Red, White and Blue," entire company.

PLAN NOVEL FEATURES FOR SECOND NIGHT CLUB DANCE

Invitations have been issued for the second annual reception and dance of the Second Night Club to be held in the Columbus Club Auditorium, Tuesday night, May 25. A number of active committees are working on the details for the event and it is proposed to make it a monster affair with a number of pleasing attractions.

Special features of a novel nature are being worked out and music will be furnished by "Al" Squires' orchestra. John Kyle is the chairman of the general committee.

HIS CONVINCING ARGUMENT COST PRISONER JUST $20

Hostilities which developed at a Polish wedding on South Second street, Sunday night, resulted seriously for Mike Mizarack when he was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court, this morning, to plead to a charge of assault and battery preferred against him by one Joe Cozariski. The prisoner, who lives at 657 South Second street, got into an argument with the complainant and words failing to properly drive home his sentiments, he introduced a beer bottle which he used with telling effect on Cozariski's countenance.

In court this morning the complainant exhibited a badly disfigured face and his testimony drew $20 worth of sympathy from the court; at least that was the fine Mizarack had to liquidate in order to gain his liberty.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

An alarm from box 52 at noon today called the fire department to the residence at 369 Cottage place, where it was thought a bad blaze was in progress. The trouble proved to be an ordinary chimney fire and was put out in a few minutes with chemicals.

WAR SPIRIT IN ITALY INTENSE

Persistently Rumored in Paris That Italians Will Soon Join Allies.

WITHDRAW OPPOSITION

Government, it is Said, Will Not Interfere With War Plans—French Reported to Have Made Gains in Face of German Counter Attacks.

Paris, May 11—It is being persistly rumored in Paris, Germany and Austria-Hungary have already declared or are about to declare war on Italy in anticipation of such action on her part directed against themselves. This report, however, has received no confirmation.

Another rumor on the bourse is the Italian government has signed an agreement with Great Britain, Russia and France to take part in the war not later than May 26. This rumor also is without confirmation.

French observers of the political situation in Italy infer from the audience yesterday between King Victor Emmanuel and former Premier Giolitti that the non-intervention party has determined to withdraw all war opposition.

Consequently the Italian parties would be united in support of a war policy in the judgment of French observers based upon two fundamental considerations, namely, that wrongs have been done Serbia and Belgium, and the racial aspiroaions of the Italians on the eastern shore of the Adriatic and Mediterranean now can be satisfied.

Military writers are presenting the argument that war from Germany and Austria on a third frontier undoubtedly will make the resistance of the central empire on their other

EIGHT MORE BODIES WASHED TO SURFACE

Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond Now Officially Reported to Be Among the Lost.

All hope that Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond, of Bernardsville, was among those saved in the Lusitania disaster was abandoned today, following the receipt of a cablegram by relatives in Hoboken. Information of the cablegram being received was given out by a secretary and indicated that previous dispatches stating that Mrs. Hammond had been thrown into sea when a lifeboat, in which she was a passenger, capsized, confused her with Mrs. Hammond from Toronto, Canada. Relatives still remain hopeful, however. Her husband, Assemblyman Ogden H. Hammond, of Somerset county, is among the survivors and is at present in a Queenstown hospital. Soon after his arrival at the hospital he made inquiries concerning his wife and was told that there was a Mrs. Hammond in the building. This woman, however, proved to be a steerage passenger who had lost her husband. He sent her money to buy clothes and reach home under the impression that she was his wife.

The body of Albert Thompson, of Toronto, brought into Queenstown today by an Admiralty trawler, was found drifting with wreckage near the cost not far from the scene of the Lusitania disaster, which leads to the hope that additional bodies might be found there. Seven unidentified bodies also were landed at Ballimore, forty-seven miles southwest of Cork, but the weather conditions are such it is not considered probable many more will be found in that immediate vicinity, and all hope of finding further survivors has now been abandoned.

A current of from two and one-half to three knots races around Old Head Kinsdale, and this has been augmented by a stiff east wind, which at the end of eight or nine days may carry bodies ashore around Cape Clear on the west Irish coast.

TALKS ON "INDIA."

The final meeting of the Westminster Guild of the Crescent Avenue church was held in the church parlors yesterday afternoon, a large number of members and their friends being in attendance. Following the business session, Mrs. E. S. Ralston, president of the Federation of Missionary Societies of Plainfield, gave an unusually interesting talk on the Indian, his life, customs and characteristics. Mrs. Ralston spent some time visiting the reservations in Oklahoma and is fully conversant with the ways of the Red Man. She exhibited a number of dolls dressed in the native costumes. Tea was served in conclusion.

GIVEN A DINNER IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY

James H. Searing Celebrates Seventy-fifth Anniversary at Family Gathering.

In celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birthday, James H. Searing, of Watchung avenue, was the guest of honor at a family gathering at his home last night. The feature of the affair was the sumptuous dinner prepared by his daughters, Mrs. Annie Zimmer and Miss Sadie Searing. It was attended only by relatives, but numerous friends called throughout the evening to extend congratulations. He was also the recipient of a postal card shower and numerous presents befitting a man of his years. The celebrant was in his usual good health and spirits and acted anything but like a man who has well passed the three score and ten mark.

Mr. Searing was born at Union, this county, not far from the old Meeker Inn, on May 10, 1840. When a young man he engaged in the coal and lumber business at Cranford and had one of the largest concerns in that vicinity for many years. He afterward disposed of the business and after a short stay in Westfield removed to Plainfield in 1880. He has resided here ever since with the exception of a few years at East Orange. In the days of the volunteer fire department in Plainfield, Gazelle Engine Company had no more active member than "Jim" Searing as all his friends called him. No matter what time of the day or night or how cold or warm it was he was always among the first to respond when an alarm was given. Today he holds one of the best records of any one of the local exempt firemen.

He is still in possession of all his youthful energies and attends to his business, that of an insurance representative, every day. He is a faithful reader of the Daily Press and anyone who wants to argue politics or local topics with him, had better read up thoroughly before broaching a subject. He has a ready flow of conversation and an excellent memory, a combination that is always a delight to those who love to hear reminiscences.

Besides his two daughters, Mrs. Zimmer and Miss Sadie Searing, with whom he lives, Mr. Searing has one son, Edward C. Searing, of Park avenue, foreman of the Daily Press composing room.

ELKS RECEPTION TONIGHT WILL BE PLEASING EVENT

An informal dance and reception, one of the number of winter and spring social features, will be held in the Elks' Club on Watchung avenue, tonight. The affair is of an invitational nature and Elks and their friends are the invited guests.

This event is the second one to be held under the auspices of the new entertainment committee and several extra treats are promised on this occasion. Music will be furnished by VanEps' banjo orchestra, the same musicians who have made themselves popular at previous dances in the local club. Refreshments will be served during the intermissions by the committee.

EXCAVATING PROPERTY FOR MOVING PICTURE AIRDROME

The excavation of the property located at 203 East Front street, corner Watchung avenue, where Messrs. Counihan and Shannon, managers of the Plainfield Theatre, expect to conduct a moving picture airdrome this summer, is being filled in today. Mobus Brothers, of the borough, are doing the work, taking dirt and gravel from the cellar of the new postoffice building at Watchung avenue and East Second street to accomplish the Front street work.

Should the license for the airdrome be granted by Mayor Leighton Calkins, the present billboad on the Watchung avenue side of the property is to be extended a number of feet in the direction of Green brook, while a number of old trees will have to be felled. The work of filling the excavation will probably be completed today, while the other improvements will be held up until such times as the license is issued.

NOONDAY MEETING.

The men's noonday Gospel service will be held at the Rescue Mission Hall tomorrow from 12:30 to 1 p. m. All men are cordially invited. J. D. Loizeaux will be the speaker at the meeting.

Winfield S. Angleman and family have removed from West Front street and Lafayette place to Prospect avenue.

COUNTRY AWAITS ACTION OF PRESIDENT AND HIS CABINET— TO DISCUSS SINKING OF LUSITANIA

OFFICIALS APPEAR TO BE MUCH PLEASED WITH PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE AS SHOWN IN PHILADELPHIA SPEECH.

VIGOROUS DEMAND FOR REPARATION EXPECTED

Germany Places Responsibility for Death of Innocent Neutrals and Non-combatants Upon Great Britain—Foreign Press Urges United States to Take Drastic Action—Appeal to President by Prominent Men for Protection.

Washington, May 11.—President Wilson will lay the Lusitania incident before his cabinet today. Then, for the first time, the men who are supposed to be his advisers and particularly in the case of the Secretary of State might be expected to be very closely connected with official action, will hear for the first time what the President has decided to do.

Officials before the meeting this morning appeared to be much pleased with the President's attitude, as displayed in his speech last night to the naturalized citizens in Philadelphia. While the President did not refer specificially to the Lusitania sinking, his speech was interpreted to mean that while the United States would remain at peace, measures will be taken to make Germany understand that her course was wrong and must not be continued.

This, together with a vigorous demand for reparation, is expected to be the tenor of the President's note. In any event, a man close to the administration said today that the chief aim of the American policy would be "humanity above all else."

Much plain speaking is heard around the Capitol, and although Count von Bernstoff has expressed his personal regrets at the loss of many American lives, and the Berlin foreign office is unofficially reported to have directed some such message to the State Department, the general feeling is today as strong for vigorous action as it was yesterday.

There is considerable comment over the practical elimination of Secretary Bryan from the work of the State Department. When the Lusitania issue became fully apparent President Wilson shut himself up in his library.

All messages of any importance, and there were many of them, were sent direct to him. So far as is known, he has had no consultation with his Secretary of State since the sinking of the Lusitania.

What the American policy will be he has determined himself, and Secretary Bryan will hear about it today's cabinet meeting.

The fact that the President does not expect to call Congress together is accepted as assurance there is little thought in his mind of anything but academic action.

The prevailing opinion here is that Germany will be asked for reparation for the wrongs she has already done and a renunciation of her undersea warfare on innocent people.

From all over the country come expressions from the people assuring the President that the nation is unanimously behind him in whatever line of action he determines on.

Official despatches received in Washington show that Germany justifies the destruction of the Lusitania and the deaths of the American passengers by placing the responsibility for the deaths of innocent neutrals and non-combatants upon Great Britain. The charge that the Lusitania carried a large quantity of ammunition is repeated. The telegram from the German foreign office expressing these views and sent to the German embassy says the German government "desires to express its greatest sympathy for the loss of American lives aboard the Lusitania." It concludes with the statement: "The German government, despite its heartfelt sympathy for the loss of American lives, cannot but regret that Americans felt more inclined to trust British promises rather than to pay attention to warnings from Germany."

The steamship Transylvania, of the Anchor Line, is approaching the danger zone, traversing the same route as the Lusitania, with about 120 Americans on board. That she may possibly meet the same fate as the Lusitania is causing the greatest concern.

What the United States can do to uphold its honor and prestige without going to the last resort—war—is engrossing the attention of the nation. To stop the further wanton slaying of non-combatants or a repetition of an incident such as the torpedoing of the American steamship Gunflight, it is suggested that American war ships convoy American passenger and merchant vessels. Concerted action with the other neutral countries which have suffered from the German undersea raiders is a suggestion which has come from many quarters.

The foreign press, commenting on the crisis, urges the United States to take drastic action. The Paris Matin

MACHINISTS ADDRESSED BY OFFICIAL OF UNION

Vice President J. J. Kepler, of New York city, delivered a talk to members of the International Machinists' Union, local lodge No. 167, in the Trades' Council rooms, last night, the affair being well attended and thoroughly interesting. The subject, "Uniform Contracts in the Printing Press Business," was particularly interesting to the class of men included in the audience and the reception accorded Vice President Kepler and his fellow delegates from New York city, local No. 434, was an enthusiastic one.

Mr. Kepler displayed a thorough acquaintance with the topic and gave out considerable information of an "inside" nature. He also dwelt on phases of manufacturing and selling that have worked out on a successful scale in larger factories and urged the adoption of certain new principles in other shops and among the machinists in general.

CLAN McKENZIE MEETS.

At a meeting of Clan McKenzie, held in the lodge rooms, last night, it was decided to hold a box lunch social on the evening of Monday, May 24. Besides the members of Clan McKenzie there will be a delegation present from the Daughters of Scotia, who will be the guests. Two members were initiated at last night's meeting and the business session was followed by a social hour, which consisted of music and informal speaking. Refreshments were served during the evening.

FUNERAL OF MRS. STOKES.

The funeral of Mrs. Matilda Stokes, whose death occurred Sunday afternoon at her home in New York city, was held this afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Moses Carey, of Filmore avenue. Rev. Mr. Tildon conducted the services. The floral offerings were beautiful and numerous. Burial was made in the Methodist cemetery.

ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Dunellen Home and Investment Company, held last evening, in the offices of the company, the following officers were elected for the year: Lewis T. Churchill, president; Samuel M. Titus, vice-president; Fred A. Fedderman, secretary; J. A. Bogardus, treasurer. The company operates in local real estate and is said to have had a most prosperous year.

Mrs. Raymond Hamley, of Washington avenue, is entertaining her mother from Newark.

START BRIDGE WORK.

A Perth Amboy concern, awarded the contract by the Board of Freeholders of Somerset and Middlesex counties for erecting a new bridge on Madison avenue across Green brook, has commenced work and are at present engaged in diverting the course of the stream. As a result Madison avenue is closed to traffic other than foot from Greenbrook road to Mountainview Terrace.

LAYING SEWER PIPE.

Work was started yesterday on the Madison avenue storm sewerage and drainage system by the Garafano Construction Company, of Hackensack. The contractors are working against the grade from Green Brook. The size of the pipe that they are laying is 21 inch.

Dr. M. J. Whitford has purchased a runabout to assist him in attending to his practice, and Contractor Raymond Whitford has been awarded the contract of erecting a garage in the rear of the doctor's home.

TO HOLD ALL-DAY MEETING.

Tomorrow is the date of the "all-day" meeting of the Ladies' Aid and the Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Methodist Episcopal church, to be held in the church. The meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the morning and that of the Home and Foreign Missionary Society in the afternoon. Luncheon will be served at noon; price 25 cents. All interested in the work of the organizations are cordially invited to be present.

In the First Baptist church this evening a musical recital will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church by A. C. LaRue, violinist, and Miss Helen Cressingham, soprano.

ATTENDING CONFERENCE.

Judge Rene P. F. von Minden left this morning for Lynchburg, Va., to attend a meeting of the executive board of the Junior Order of American Mechanics representing the States of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The judge expects to be away until Thursday evening.

CLOSE FOR THE DAY.

The plant of the Levgar Structural Company was closed down throughout the day for boiler inspection. The company is at present employing 250 men. It has a goodly number of unfilled orders on hand, but is not rushed.

MISS DAYTON IMPROVED.

Miss Sarah Dayton, one of the assistants at the postoffice, who has been confined to her home with a heavy cold, is greatly improved, and expects to resume her duties in a couple of days.

EVERETT NOBLE'S FUNERAL.

The body of Everett Noble, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Noble, of 412 Front street, who died in a hospital at Philadelphia, Saturday morning, following an operation, has been brought home and can be seen today. The funeral will be held from the home at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It will be private. Rev. A. S. Phelps, rector of the Holy Innocents' church, will be in charge. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

Health Notes

Published by the Plainfield Health Department Every Monday.

HAVE YOU A BABY IN YOUR HOME?

The Baby Saving Show made a well directed attack on improper care of babies and gave very good visual instructions on how to properly care for them.

But what are you going to do about your baby? How are you going to care for it throughout the hot summer months which will soon be with us?

Last year, fifty Plainfield homes were made sorrowful by the loss of a little life which had come to brighten it; some of these deaths were needless and could easily have been avoided by precautions.

Twenty-one, or nearly one-half, of these deaths were during warm weather and due in many cases to summer complaint.

Summer complaint is a needless disease, a result of carelessness or ignorance. We are past that day when we may accept such a death rate among our infant population with but a wish that it had not been so.

Flies are the direct cause of many a baby's death; for without flies very few babies would get any of those diseases so peculiar to the summer season.

Protect the baby and baby's food from flies. Keep the doors and windows screened. Swat every fly you see and if there are any fly-breeding places in your neighborhood, send word to the Board of Health at once and every effort will be made to abolish the nuisance.

"As many as 5,000 germs of one disease may be in a single fly speck and flies have been known to deposit a speck every 4½ minutes."—(Board of Health, Asheville, N. C.)

"The structure of public health is builded upon a foundation that is largely fresh air and pure water."—(Heathologist.)

Human Nature.

Mike: "If all the flies in the world were put in a big wooden box and set afoire, wouldn't it be a foine sight to see it blaze?"

Pat: "Faith and wouldn't some bloomin' idiot call out the foire department?"—Asheville Bulletin.

WORLD FAMED RIDERS COMING WITH CIRCUS

Equestrians From all Parts of Globe Including Troupe of Native Balkans.

In an age of air-crafts and motor-driven vehicles it is the circus which more than any other thing tends to perpetuate the breeding of fine horses. Ringling Brothers maintain their own stock farms and from these come the equines which, augmented by a constant importation of blooded breeds from France, Spain, Arabia,

Miss Helen Rawlston, one of the many Manege Stars with Ringling Bros.

Russia and Germany, give these famous showmen the finest traveling stables in America.

When Ringling Brothers' circus comes here Wednesday, May 19, it will bring a total of 735 horses including every class from the heavy percheron of the "baggage stock" to the agile thoroughbreds and the sure-footed dapples that carry the beautiful ladies through the "hoop-la" of the rings. Besides these there will be whole regiments of prancing shetland ponies for the children.

More than 50 men and women riders will take part in a program which begins with the gigantic spectacle of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, with its cast of 1,250 characters, and terminates with a magnificent horse show. Included in the equine display will be the Lloyd family in a progression of feats running the gamut from the dare-devilry of the plains to the latest achievements in modern horsemanship. The bareback and manege stars will include Charles Augustus Clark, the world's greatest bareback rider, who is making his first tour of America; the McCrees and their famous canine performers; Josephine Clarke, the youngest and most beautiful rider in circusdom; Lillian Lloyd, noted for her brilliant wardrobe; the Hodges sisters, Florence Harris, and a score of others. The backward somersault, vaulting, other noted exponents of the double jeggling and manege achievements.

ENJOYABLE "LADIES' NIGHT" AFFAIR AT GRACE CHURCH

Under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, organist and choirmaster of Grace church, an enjoyable musical program was provided for the "ladies' night" affair in the parish house of the church, last evening. There were several vocal selections by Mrs. James Gilbert, soprano soloist of the First Presbyterian church, which pleased the audience.

Mrs. Noel G. Evans added to the enjoyment of the affair with violin solos, as did also Howard Reid with baritone solos. There was also numbers by a quartet and octette comprising members of Grace church choir, which completed the entertainment.

C. E. SOCIETY IN CHARGE.

"MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME," SAYS HUDSON TO MOTOR TOURIST

The HUDSON TOWER

Mrs. RAY MILLER

Mrs. ARTHUR BENTEL

Led by representative women, one Ohio village has decided to treat the visiting motorist as an honored guest. Tourists who have become gun shy from encounters with village "constabules" are expected to faint with surprise when they reach Hudson.

A rest room has been provided in the Ellsworth building, opposite the clock tower. Here any itinerant stranger may sit, lounge or write to his heart's content. Every convenience for the tourist's comfort is provided and the ladies of the Hudson Home Circle take turns in acting as hostess.

Hudson is a particularly appropriate point for such an enterprise. It is located on a brick paved highway, 40 miles in extent, which stretches south from Cleveland, through Akron, to Barberton and is expected, eventually, to reach Columbus. Hundreds of vehicles daily pass over this route. Hudson, as a sort of halfway station, is a most convenient stopping point for those who do not care to make the journey in a single run.

Money to equip the rest room was secured by subscription and by a benefit concert. Among those active in the work were Mrs. F. F. King, Mrs. W. Corbusier, Mrs. Thomas Blackburn, Mrs. Arthur Bentel, Mrs. Marie Shields and Mrs. Ray Miller.

"It was easy to get the money," said Mrs. Miller, "as soon as the town caught the idea."

Hudson has, for years, enjoyed a reputation as a town of [illegible]. It has been helped in this regard by a former resident, Mr. L. [illegible] of New York, who has de[illegible] and public improvement [illegible] to his old neighbors.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE GIVES PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT

Sociability was the keynote of the entertainment given in the new St. Joseph Hall, last night, under the auspices of the Women's League of the church. A short business session preceded the former, during which Father Hart complimented the organization upon the splendid charitable and social work it has been doing. Mrs. James Bailey, president of the league, presided. Following the routine business, the evening was given over to an elaborate entertainment prepared for the enjoyment of all who came. Fully two hundred friends attended the affair, which was a thorough success. Mrs. George Ailer, chairman of the general committee, was assisted in preparing the program by Miss McGurr, Miss Florence Mead and Miss Elizabeth Day. The program follows:

Address of welcome, Margaret Harper; piano duet, the Misses Nora and Helen Meaney; quartet, "Moonlight," by choir; six little philosophers, Dorothy Pacot, Rose McDonough, Irene Day, Lillian Peppengil, Phoebe Hogan and Anna Duschesne, solo, Miss Irma Good; piano solo, Miss McGurr; "A Barrel of Sweetness," Miss Frances Conshay; piano solo, Elizabeth Harper; solo, J. E. Bailey; sketch, "How She Cured Him," Miss Anna Regan, Miss Rose Cooper and Martin McDonough; piano solo, Miss Elsie Moulton, solo, Irma Good; quartet, "Good Night, Beloved," choir.

Refreshments and dancing were enjoyed in conclusion until about midnight. The refreshment committee was composed of the following: Mrs. A. Bennett, chairman; Mrs. Thomas Meaney, Mrs. E. Cooper, Mrs. Thomas Gough and Mrs. Patrick Regan.

VILLA FORCES DRIVE CARRANZA MEN BACK

Washington, D. C., May 11.—Villa has driven the Carranza forces under Obregon to a point sixty miles south of Leon, according to a statement issued by the Villa agency here today. It was asserted that Obregon left more than eight hundred dead on the battle field and lost 1,200 prisoners. Several machine guns were captured by Villa, it was stated.

The State Department was without reports from Central Mexico.

The capture of Panuca, an important town in the oil producing region of Tamaulipas, was reported by the Carranza agency.

Fighting in the vicinity of Monterey was reported in despatches received here. There is not sufficient food there, it was said, and the smelter has been shut down, throwing many workmen out of employment.

HENRY R. HUBBARD CHOSEN MEMBER OF COMMITTEE

Henry R. Hubbard, of the Plainfield High School, was chosen to serve on the executive committee of the New Jersey Science Teachers' Association, which held its annual meeting in Newark, Saturday. The organization voted to take membership in the National Education Association and to send a delegation to the annual meeting of the national body at Oakland, Cal., in December.

The following officers were elected: President, H. Morgan Campbell, Bayonne High School; vice president, Dr. R. G. Leavitt, State Normal School, Trenton; secretary-treasurer, W. J. Dunn, Barringer High School; members of the executive committee were chosen as follows: Frank F. Thompson, Rutgers College; Miss Caroline Howe, South Sie High School, Henry R. Hubbard, Plainfield High School, and Daniel R. Hodgdon, Newark Normal School.

COUNTRY AWAITS ACTION

says the least this country could do would be to expel the German ambassador. Sir Valentine Chirol, writing in the London Times, says that "whatever prompted the sinking of the Lusitania, it means that the German nation is so confident of ultimate victory it does not care in the least what the United States may say or do."

The torpedoing of the Lusitania is not to affect the steaming of other British steamships from this port. The Cymric, of the White Star Line, will steam Friday, according to schedule, it was said. The American Line steamship Philadelphia also will steam for Liverpool on Saturday.

A telegram has been sent to the President, signed by fifteen men, sons of some of the most prominent men in New York or sons of men formerly high in official life, urging that "national interests and honor imperatively require adequate measures, both to obtain reparation for past violations by Germany of American rights and insure guarantees against future violations." Among the signers are Elihu Root, Jr., Hamilton Fish, Jr., Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Dr. Richard Derby, Robert L. Bacon and John G. Milburn, Jr.

LOCAL COPPERS DRILLING FOR ANNUAL INSPECTION

Fine weather has caused the local police department to renew its outdoor drilling, and the first workout was held on Parker Field yesterday afternoon under the direction of Sergeant Maurice Higgins. These drills were started last fall and were held for several weeks prior to the annual inspection in Company K hall, in West Front street.

Parker Field has been secured for the manoeuvring this year, and it is anticipated that better results will thus be obtained. The bluecoats are put through a series of army tactics and marching, and it is likely that sharpshooting will be added to the work in the near future. A second drill will be held tomorrow afternoon.

EN ROUTE TO DUNELLEN HE LINGERED HERE TOO LONG

Charged with panhandling and annoying women on Madison avenue, last night, John Mullroy, who gave his address as Brooklyn, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, and following a hearing was given five minutes to get out of Plainfield. Mullroy, who claimed to be on his way to Dunellen to get work, was arrested by Patrolman George Muir following an hour's sleuthing.

The patrolman watched the actions of Mullroy and several times saw him leap from a dark corner in the highway and demand money from women. This morning the prisoner claimed he lingered too long at the gilded bar and pleaded for another chance.

DECISION IN CREGAR CASE RESERVED AFTER HEARING

Wells Cregar, a local taxi-cab driver, whose license was revoked last week following his arrest by Patrolman John Kelley, who charged him with exceeding the speed limit on West Front street, near Somerset street, was arraigned for a hearing before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning. Following the taking of evidence and a summing up by Francis J. Blatz, counsel for Cregar, Judge DeMeza reserved decision for one week. In the meantime the license will not be restored.

Kelley charged the defendant with driving his car at a rate of thirty miles an hour. Cregar's opinion, however, was decidedly different, his claim being that he was not going over twelve miles an hour, the legal limit. The defendant formerly drove a cab at the depot and had his license revoked four times while doing that work. Each time, however, he was fortunate enough to get it back.

LITERARY

John Galsworthy's stories are not only marked by a poet's sympathy with an understanding of life; they have set as well a new standard, in these days of smart writing, for style, for beauty of expression. In his story of "The Freelands," now running in Scribner's, he is at his best. All of the really great story writers and poets have been lovers of nature. How many passages can be recalled in Meredith? Mr. Galsworthy, in the character of Felix Freeland, probably gives voice to his own love of the land: "Like so many of his fellows—cultured moderns, alien to the larger forms of patriotism, that rich liquor brewed of maps and figures, commercial profit, and high-cockalorum, which served so perfectly to swell smaller heads—Felix had a love of his native land resembling love for a woman, a kind of sensuous chivalry, a passion based on her charm, on her tranquility, on the power she had to draw him into her embrace, to make him feel that he had come from her, from her alone, and into her alone was going back."

FRANK PARSH.

Frank Parsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Parsh, of Harrison avenue, died last night after a brief illness. He was twenty-one years old. The funeral will be held at the parents' residence Thursday afternoon at 2:30 and will be in charge of Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville. Burial will be in the Methodist cemetery.

DENIES PETITION.

Boston, May 11.—Judge Morton, of the United States District Court, today denied the petition of Werner Horn, the German army officer, who was arrested in connection with the dynamiting of the international bridge at Vanceboro and who sought his release on a writ of habeaus corpus.

PERSONAL.

Jacob Geier, of the borough, who has been confined to his home for several days with an attack of pneumonia, is slowly improving from his illness.

E. Karl Schomp, of Grove street, the borough, has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Bush, of Readington, for several days.

ITALY'S "BARGAIN."

For Italy to keep out of the European struggle as long as possible in order to complete her war preparations would be both excusable and prudent, but, judging from the succession of reports, Italy has delayed, not to consider whether she could keep out of the fight with honor or whether justice demands that she go to war at all, but in order to secure the highest price from one side for her continued neutrality or from the other for her participation in the conflict.

After months of negotiation and failure to secure satisfactory promises of cession of territory from Austria in payment for continued neutrality, Italy is now represented as bargaining with the Allies for the utmost possible reward for her military support. The foreign office at Rome denies that any agreement to enter the war has been reached, but permits it to be known that Italy has definitely informed the Entente powers on what conditions she will take up arms on their side"—conditions including formal promises safeguarding her interests in the Balkans and the Adriatic after the war.

Apparently it is now merely a matter of agreement by the Allies to pay the price. And it would seem to be believed that the required price will be paid, for Austria has rushed large forces to the Italian frontier in the expectation of a prompt addition to the hosts already opposing the Teutonic Alliance.

While Italy's attitude is suggestive of a shrewd trader rather than of a nation called to war by honor and national safety, perhaps at this distance we may be too ready to blame her for driving a good bargain. Aside from the wrongs of Belgium and France and the need of checking German militarism, there is little at stake in this war beyond the selfish interests of powerful and grasping nations. As a second-rate power exposed to possible aggression from greater neighbors, Italy would probably lose, no matter how the war ended, unless she exacted satisfactory promises in advance, and, as the first duty of a nation is self-protection, it is not only prudent but may even be patriotic for her government to make the best possible terms. But the spectacle can hardly inspire the onlooker who believes in war only as a means of redress for intolerable wrongs.

If the Italian government should cast its lot with the Triple Entente, Italy would be in a stronger position than she occupied as a member of the Triple Alliance. And her people would be better satisfied, for they are as friendly toward England as they are distrustful of Germany and full of hatred for Austria.

It is certainly to be hoped that no public school building in the city of Plainfield will ever be rented again for such meetings as that held last Thursday night, when Rev. Thos. R. Hall, whose usefulness as a minister is now at an end, came here to present what was advertised as "The German Point of View." His remarks were nothing but a lot of stuff that would do credit to a street mucker, and he disgusted hundreds of Plainfielders who were attracted to the meeting expecting to hear something on the subject. Villification of the American press, description of the Belgian atrocities in a way that caused laughter from the misguided persons who happened to be in sympathy with Germany, and a general disregard of his subject served to make the affair one of the most disgraceful that has happened in Plainfield in years. It certainly is mighty lucky for him that he did not attempt the same thing twenty-four hours later.

The New York Herald certainly is eating crow these days. In a number of places on the editorial page appeared yesterday in italic capitals the exclamation "What a pity Theodore Roosevelt is not President of the United States today!" Anyone who recalls how the Herald scored Roosevelt when he sought to be reelected cannot fail to be amused. Not only did the paper oppose the Colonel editorially, but it misrepresented his whole campaign, failed to tell the truth about the Progressive convention which nominated him, and in a thousand and one other ways did everything it could to defeat him.

Over in North Plainfield a youth who shot a rabbit received a fine of $100, and the subsequent "holler" about injustice was heard almost "around the world." The other day a laborer who nearly split open his foreman's skull with a pick-axe was brought into court over the brook and got off with a $50 fine! So the scales of justice swing.

If the United States does enter the war and VonBernstoff is given his passports, the only place left for him to depart to is Mexico. He might get some tips down there to be used if he ever gets home for improving German "kultur."

The attention of our readers is directed to a letter which appears in the Forum from Samuel W. Rushmore, which is self explanatory.

THE FORUM

May 10, 1915.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Referring to the editorial in the Courier-News of today, which contains the statement that the page advertisement which I offered to that paper was refused owing to its inflammatory character, I wish to state that the advertisement, which was an exact copy of that published today in The Press, was prepared with the assistance and with the full approval of the editor and manager of the Courier-News, who quoted me a specially low price in recognition, as he said, of its patriotic character.

I had a talk over the 'phone Sunday afternoon with the editor and manager, Charles H. Frost, who said he approved of my idea and invited me to meet him at once down at his office.

I accordingly went that Sunday afternoon to Mr. Frost's office and we talked over the whole situation. Mr Frost did not altogether approve of the wording of the copy I had prepared and suggested a number of changes, which I gladly made and the copy, as finally corrected, met his full approval and he is thus, in my opinion nearly, if not quite, as much its author as am I.

The carbon copy of the advertisement was handed to The Daily Press, in which it was published without alteration.

I consider it most remarkable that after encouraging me to publish the advertisement, giving me more than an hour of his valuable time on a Sunday afternoon in preparing the copy, after quoting me a specially low price and personally promising to publish it, Mr. Frost should, just before going to press, so completely change his mind and, without notifying or consulting me, publish such a misleading editorial.

I understand that a newspaper is a strictly commercial enterprise and that the editor must consider carefully just how an advertisement may affect his readers and advertisers. I am perfectly satisfied that Mr. Frost, at the last moment decided not to publish the copy he had helped me to prepare and had accepted for publication, but I do resent the unfair implication of his editorial.

NOT A DECLARATION OF THE U. S. POLICY

President Makes Emphatic Statement Regarding Speech in Philadelphia.

Washington, May 11.—President Wilson, who returning from Philadelphia this morning, made it emphatically clear to visitors today that his speech in Philadelphia must not be accepted as a declaration of the policy of the United States in the Lusitania affair. He declared he had formulated no plan of action in the matter. There was nothing to add, the President said to his declaration of Saturday night, in which he urged the American people to be calm. Only when all the facts are received, the Chief Executive declared, and have been carefully studied, will the United States move in the case of the Lusitania.

Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, called at the White House shortly before the cabinet meeting today, and conferred with the President for a quarter of an hour. He refused to discuss his visit and said he had nothing to say with reference to the Lusitania affair. There would be no extra session of Congress, said the Senator emphatically, as a result of existing problems. The Lusitania affair was the principal topic of discussion at the cabinet meeting. Just before the cabinet met Senator La Follette called at the White House and saw the President. The Senator told the Chief Executive that he, La Follette, represented the largest constituency of German-Americans in United States, but urged that a firm stand be taken by the Administration in the Lusitania matter.

fronts more feeble, so much so that with the advent of Italy victory over Germany is set for the middle of the summer.

Rome, May, 11—Italy today is on the verge of war. It is understood the time limit given Austria to grant Italian demands has expired. The report is that cessions of territory exacted as neutrality's price have not been promised.

The army—2,065,000 strong—is ready for any eventuality. The navy, with six dreadnaughts, ten first-class battleships, many smaller craft and over and under sea squadrons also is ready

The Agency National says Emperor William has written to Dowager Queen Margherita, mother of King Victor Emmanuel, pointing out advantages he believes would accrue to Italy should it remain neutral, and urging her to intervene to avoid a conflict with Austria.

The widow of King Humbert is quoted as having replied to the German ruler, "In the house of Savoy we reign one at a time."

Paris, May 11.—In the face of severe German counter attacks the French have made a further gain north of Arras, where the Allies are striking against the Germans over a twenty-six mile front, according to an official statement issued by the French war office today. The French not only pressed forward north of Arras but they took a number of prisoners.

Several persons were killed and wounded by bombs dropped from a German aeroplane that flew over the suburb of St. Denis early today. The raid of the aeroplane, a machine of the Taube type, was flashed from headquarters from St. Denis which is only five miles north of the centre of Paris, and garrisons of all the forts were called to duty. Three French aviators set out to meet the German aeroplane, but upon sighting them the pilot of the Taube turned nortward.

The Petit Parisien learns that Premier Salandra has asked Herr Erzberger, the leader of the Catholic centre in the German Reichstag, to leave Rome immediately. Herr Erzerberger arrived in Rome a little more than a week ago bearing an autograph letter from the Kaiser to Pope Benedict.

London, May 11.—A despatch from Stockholm to the Post says that six more coal laden Swedish steamers have been seized by the Germans and taken into Swinemunde.

Berlin, May 11.—The repulse of French attacks near Notre Dame de Lorette in northern France and the capture of two lines of French trenches on the Aisne are reported in an official statement issued by the German War Office today. Eight hundred Frenchmen were captured on the Lorette Heights, where the Allies launched a vigorous offensive against the Germans to offset the German attacks in West Flanders. Two lines of French trenches over a front of 400 metres were taken by the Germans at Berry Au Bac, where the battle line swings across the Aisne northwest of Rheims. In eastern theatre it is announced attempts of the Russians to stop the victorious advance of the Austro-German army, under Gen. Von Mackensen, failed. At the coast the Germans announce that they drove off an English warship from Westende on Monday.

CUNARD LINE CHANGES PLANS AS TO SAILINGS

New York, May 11.—The loss of the Lusitania has made necessary a rearrangement of the sailing schedule of the Cunard line. It is possible, therefore, that the Mauretania, which was announced to sail on May 29 from Liverpool, may not depart on that date. Charles P. Sumner, the general agent of the line in this city, has not received any information from the head office as to the new schedule.

Miss Eugene Rohrocher, of Flushing, L. I., who has been spending several days past visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neidig, of Manning avenue, the borough, has returned home.

Chicago's New $20,000,000 Food Market which will save $40,000,000 waste yearly $20,000,000.00 is a lot of money to spend for a grocery store. That is what Chicago is spending to build the largest food market in the world. It is estimated that the new Produce Terminal will save over $40,000,000.00 worth of food products that are now annually wasted by spoiling on account of the poor facilities of South Water Street. Chicago's new Food Terminal will also be a sharp contrast to old South Water Street in sanitation. It will be entirely of fire and vermin proof concrete.

This new terminal is to be built by the Produce Terminal Corporation on one hundred acres of land in the very center of Chicago. The location is on 39th Street, and extends for one entire mile between Ashland and Western Avenues.

Old South Water Street, with its $200,000,000.00 annual business never had railway facilities, but the new Food Terminal has a railway yard of 10,000 cars capacity. Every railroad entering Chicago has equal rights to the use of these tracks.

Chicago produce merchants are planning to move from South Water Street to the new location as soon as the buildings are completed.

Then South Water Street, famed for being the most congested thoroughfare in the world, will be but a memory of the past.

FEATURE ROLES IN SARDOU'S "DIPLOMACY"

No play from the pen of Victorien Sardou offers finer and better opportunities in numerous roles than "Diplomacy," to be seen Thursday night at the Plainfield Theatre. That is probably why the shrewd impressario, the late Charles Frohman, chose it as the medium in which to present three famous stars simultaneously, William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro. Their roles, "Henry Beauoloro," "Countess Zicka" and "Dora" respectively, would seem to offer with such a rare cast easily promises to be one of the most vitally interesting events of the theatrical year.

It is a fact not generally known, but worth recalling, that Mr. Frohman's principal woman star, Miss Maude Adams, at one time played "Dora" in a production of the famous play under the management of Belasco and DeMille, authors of the adaptation in which she played.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Heralded throughout the country as the greatest exponent of thamaturgy America has ever seen, Mrs. Eva Fay startled capacity audiences at Proctor's Theatre, yesterday afternoon and last night, in her wonderful exhibition of thought reading. While seated on the stage and with no confederates to help her out, Mrs. Fay answered scores of questions by simply divining what the interrogators wanted after they had given the matter concentrated thought. Her theatrical title is "The High Priestess of Mysticism," and Proctor declared it no misnomer. Scores of prominent Plainfielders were in the audiences yesterday and many of them asked questions of a widely divergent nature. To all of them she gave a ready answer. Without in any way appearing to ridicule the questioners, Mrs. Fay frequently injected comedy in her replies, causing numerous laughs. One of the latter came after a woman responded to her name when it was called out and admitted that she had thought of the question: "Who broke the jardiniere at the foot of my front stairway?" "The jardiniere was broke yesterday morning, wasn't it?" called Mrs. Fay from the stage. The interrogator said that that was exactly right. "Indeed it is," said Mrs. Fay, "and your husband broke it when he came home late Saturday night." The woman who asked the question seemed to be somewhat discomfided at first, but afterwards joined in the outburst of laughter from the audience. Mrs. Fay answered many questions of a business, political and personal nature, telling people that their hope of taking a long trip was coming true, where lost articles could be found, whether or not sweethearts were true and when to dispose of certain stocks that were held. The manner in which she called out names with nothing to guide her and the correctness with which she interpreted what was silently asked went beyond the mysterious, even closely approaching the weird. The demonstration is fully as entertaining as it is wonderful and crowded houses will undoubtedly be the rule during the remainder of her engagements at the theatre. An entire new change of vaudeville came with Mrs. Fay's appearance at the theatre, yesterday, and all the acts gave great satisfaction. Today's program will include several feature moving pictures, among them the second episode of "The Diamond from the Sky," the $10,000 prize serial by Roy L. McCardel, which began last week.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

George Barr McCutcheon's thrilling and romantic story, "Graustark," detailing episodes of a love affair behind a throne of a mythical kingdom, opened a two-days engagement at the U. S. Astor Theatre, Plainfield, last night. Despite the fact that the management, believing Plainfield theatregoers do not want to see cheap films at accordingly low prices, raised the price of admission, crowds were turned away at both matinee and evening performances. There appeared among the patrons to be general satisfaction with the new policy of offering the best films obtainable at popular prices. With "Graustark" as an example of what attractions are to follow at the Astor Theatre, Plainfield theatregoers may be satisfied that they will see at that playhouse the latest and best releases of the biggest photoplay producers in the world. Manager Hall has obtained exclusive rights to show first in Plainfield the big feature films made by the New Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay Company, a combination of the four largest picture making concerns in America. This company released "The Juggernaut," "Graustark" and other blue ribbon features of the same merit are soon to follow. The "V-L-S-E," as regarded by its president, Albert E. Smith, of the Vitagraph Company, is destined to fill a need in the distribution of multiple reel pictures that never could be met by the General Film Company constituted in all of its exchange mechanism for the handling of a regular program. "Experience seems to show," he said, "that in selecting features, exhibitors do not take kindly to the system that does very well for the circulation of short subjects. The 'V-L-S-E' with some twenty branches scattered through the country and chains of secondary offices allied with the main centre of distribution should give the just outlet all exhibitors have wanted for some time. Each of the four producers concerned will release one picture a month until September when the output will be doubled." All of the features to which President Smith refers will be shown soon at the Astor Theatre. Much stress has been laid upon the picturesque element of "Graustark" and with considerable success, there being a decided semblance of reality in the doings of these highly placed personages. The outside views have been taken amid surroundings of much natural beauty. Francis X. Bushman has the role of the handsome young American who becomes so romantically involved with the lovely princess while the role of the enchanting young woman is played with adequate realism by Miss Beverly Bayne. Wilton Lackaye, who is again before the New York theatregoers in a revival of "Trilby," will make his screen debut in this city tomorrow and Thursday, when he will appear in a stirring picturization of Israel Zangwill's book, "The Children of the Ghetto." The picture abounds in heart throbs and thrills and possesses exceptional appeal to those who love the dramatic, natural and the artistic in a play. Robert Edeson in "The Absentee," will be the feature attraction Friday and Saturday.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

A junior class meeting was held yesterday to make arrangements for the junior-senior "feed." The date was fixed for the evening of Friday, May 21. A committee composed of Amelia Brizzie, chairman; Charles Roll and Margaret Ewart, was appointed to select a caterer, order place cards and make general arrangements. Marjorie Burtis, May Hogan, Louise Leader, Bert Boylan and Lizzie Schroeder form a committee on decorations.

Some of the grade girls are to appear in a playlet, "My Uncle's Boots," in Cannon's Auditorium, this evening. The proceeds are for the Recreaation Hall fund.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The senior class held a meeting this afternoon and made definite plans for its class day exercises.

Members of the cast of the senior play had their pictures taken yesterday afternoon by Paul H. Collier.

Miss Myra Burrage, a former German instructor in P. H. S., and who is now teaching in New York, has been spending a few days with Mrs. Gilbert. She came to Plainfield especially to see the senior play.

The dates for the senior examinations have been definitely announced. They will be held June 3, 4, 7 and 8.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

It was certainly most gratifying to the management of this theatre the remarks and the compliments from the thousands who attended the performances of "Graustark" yesterday.

We were not only complimented on the wonderful production that "Graustark" is, but everyone seemed to think and say, "You are now operating this theatre in a way befitting to the beautiful place of amusement that it is."

There were hundreds of new faces. People who had never before attended or had the opportunity to see how our theatre is operated and conducted. We were assured by nearly everyone who passed out that they would be steady patrons in the future, if the class of pictures presented by us were on a par with the great picture "Graustark."

We did not have one dissatisfied with the price of admission charged.

We had a number of requests if reserved seats could be had in the future to see these Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay pictures which we are showing on every Monday and Tuesday of each week.

"Graustark" will be presented TODAY

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Announcement that Britt Harfin intends to open the Plainfield baseball season on Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, comes as a source of keen interest to local lovers of the national pastime. Britt has gathered together a bunch of good fielders and crackerjack hitters and there's absolutely no reason why baseball can't be restored to its former state of usefulness in this town. We were just beginning to wonder what Martin was going to do with the playground after leasing it, but the announcement of details for the opening game sets aside all fear of the abandonment of city pastiming this summer. He has arranged a strong schedule and it remains with the fans to give him the kind of support such an enterprise demands.

Twenty years in baseball, however, have failed to develop Britt Martin into a "regular" manager. When Britt told us that he didn't intend to score the fans for not attending his contests and didn't intend to resist knocking we made up our mind that he wasn't a regular guy in the managerial robes. Still, the policy outlined by the veteran has its good points and we'll all have to take our hats off to him if he gives us that revival of interest we've been shouting for during the last couple of seasons. Go to it, Britt, we're with you, first, last and all the time.

"Perth Amboy's the place for Tommy Mullin," said a fan last night. In our opinion Tommy's place is any place and if a town doesn't happen to take to his style of baseballing we'd be inclined to believe that there was something radically wrong with that burg. If Plainfield managers consent to let Mullin get away from them without even handing out an argument all we can say is that they're dead up to their necks and from their head down.

Plainfield and North Plainfield School Players Ball History to Be Given.

Introducing city and borough school baseball players who will fight for scholastic honors this season.

Pierre Duclos VanMater, N. P. H. S. '15.

Duclos VanMater, better known on the ball field as "Duke," is one of the veterans of the borough aggregation. North Plainfield has had his services as an outfielder for four years, "Duke" making the team in his freshmen term. During that season he occupied the bench part of the time, but won the hearts of the fans at the start by making a triple the first time he appeared in a High School uniform. The following year he broke his leg in the first game and put away his togs until 1914, when he played right field on the championship team.

VanMater weighs in the vicinity of 150 pounds and is eighteen years old. He throws and bats right handed. Last season he hit at a .280 clip and is an excellent base runner. "Duke" is thinking of entering Rutgers College next year.

Carlton Dunham, P. H. S. '16.

During the last few days Carlton Dunham has advanced from a utility substitute to a regular berth in the outfield, taking Apgar's place in the right garden, when he was played on first base to fill the vacancy left by Hirsch. Dunham has been playing in the infield during the first part of the season, taking O'Leary's place at second when he was injured. Dunham is a leadoff hitter and generally gets to base. Last year he warmed the bench and is looking forward to next season when he will undoubtedly get a position, probably at shortstop.

He is 17 years old and weighs about 120 pounds. Besides playing with the High School first team he was a member of the freshmen class team. He is right handed. He expects to enter Colgate College after graduation.

BORO ALLEY MEN WERE TOO STRONG FOR VISITORS

The borough three-man bowling team made a clean sweep over the Dunellen team on the Somerset street alleys, last night. The local pinners did not have to exert themselves to get the decision in any game, the first of which the scores were 491 to 478, being the closest of the match. George Conover, Gates and Menzenbach rolled on the borough team, Conover getting a 200, the highest mark of the night.

The scores follow:

N. P. H. S. RACQUET TEAM WILL MEET LEAL TEAM

The North Plainfield High School tennis team will play its first interscholastic contest this afternoon with Dunning and Chandler in the doubles against Stewart and Lyon, of Leal.

Captains Tompkinson, of High School, and Lyon, of Leal, will be pitted against each other for one of the singles matches. Townley or Dunning will oppose Stewart, and Chandler against Garrigues for the other two singles. The game will be called on the Park Club courts at 3:15.

"NO-HIT" TWIRLER CHASED BY A JINX

Although Voorhees Twirls Tight Ball His Teammates Are Walloped.

In the game with the Columbia Grammar School team on Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, the Leal School team claimed a victory of 9 to 0, although at the end of the seventh inning, when the visitors left the field, claiming that a seven-inning game had been previously settled upon, the locals were in possession of the short end of a 5 to 4 score. The Leal coach and captain claimed that no arrangement for a short game had been mentioned, but the visitors' coach refused to let his players return to the field for the eighth session.

The Leal team had one bad inning, the fifth, in which its opponents scored all their runs. The feature of the game was the pitching of Voorhees, who was credited with a no-hit game, although the full nine innings were not played. Voorhees pitched the game of his life and worked his "spitball" to perfection. He had the New York batsmen guessing all the time and sent ten back to the bench after taking three healthy swings at the ball. In the fatal fifth inning Voorhees was given the poorest support of the game, four errors, a passed ball and a wild pitch netting five tallies.

Leal scored first in the initial round, when one run was registered. Dale and Stewart singled in succession, the former scoring on an error by the second baseman. Two more were made in the second round when Sharpe drew a pass, stole second and scored when Lyon drove a triple into deep rightfield. On a squeeze play, Schneider laid down a bunt and scored Lyon while he was being put out at first. Dale made Leal's last run, on a single, a sacrifice and a safety by Voorhees.

The score:

LEAL SCHOOL.	AB.	R.	H.	PO.	A.

PITCHING AND BATTING STARS KEEP WHITE SOX IN HIGH PLACE

These four men are doing much to keep the Chicago White Sox in the first division. Fournier leads the league in batting, while Eddie Collins is near the top of the list. Red Faber and Reb Russell are among the best pitchers in the league. "I consider my team the best in the country," said Manager Rowland the other day after he had finished praising the work of this quartet.

SEEK RECOGNITION FOR HERO

Testifying to the Court of Honor at last night's council meeting, Chief Doane said:

"The boy displayed unquestioned heroism in effecting the rescue. He certainly gave no thought to his own safety and in my opinion he certainly placed himself in considerable peril in acting as he did."

The boy said that the grateful mother offered him a reward, but in his own words when being examined last night, replied:

"I didn't do it for any reward. I wanted to save the girl and I couldn't have taken a reward anyway because a Scout never takes anything for doing his 'daily good turn'."

The name of the child or her mother is not known to the boy nor to any official of the Scout movement. Commissioner Beals requests that the mother communicate with him or with the editor of the Daily Press to the end that the application for the medal may be filled out according to national Scout headquarters' rules in order that the badge may be awarded. Kiederling is only 13 years old and is a member of Troop 11 of the Grace P. E. church.

Application was made for first-class Scout examination by Kenneth Bennett, Troop 14. Cedric Ostrom, one of the original Boy Scouts of this country, who was in Thompson Seton's first troop, was elected Scoutmaster for Troop 16 of the Netherwood Reformed church. Secretary Estes, of the Y. M. C. A., and Charles H. Frost, manager of the Courier-News, were elected members of the council at last night's meeting. Howard Hall, of Troop 10, was passed to first-class Scout. Clinton Berrien, of Troop 11; Eagle Scout Charles E. Rice, Troop 5; Clinton Berrier, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 11; Harvey Kiederling, Troop 11; Howard Leek, Troop 10, and Jack Fawcett, Troop 5, were announced as winners of the various competitions at the benefit circus performance on Friday for the Boy Scout shoes offered by M. C. VanArsdale, and honorable mention was accorded to Alan Mogensen, Christian Kroener, of troop 5, and to Caryl Dunavan, troop 3, for proficiency in Scout work.

All further merit badge examination applications are not receivable until after June 24, when school closes.

Mrs. Stephen G. VanHoesen offered three prizes, the first being a Scout camp cooking kit for the best composition on "being kind," to be read by the Scout at an open-air meeting to be held during "Be Kind" week that terminates on Sunday, May 23. The composition is to be at least 500 words long and not more than 700 words, prepared on the Scout's honor that it was written entirely by himself. The composition considered the best by competent judges will be awarded the first prize. Suitable Scout prizes will be awarded the second and third best. The competition is open to every Scout in the city.

Paul R. Collier was elected chairman of the Boy Scout field day committee. The competition will be limited only to Scouts of Plainfield registered at national headquarters prior to July 1. A number of attractive prizes have been offered for this year's competition.

The council approved and accepted the invitation of the G. A. R. for the Scouts of all troops to serve as escort to the veterans on Memorial day and a detail of Scouts from Troops 11, 13 and 14 will be made to assist the soldiers in decorating graves and planting potted flowers.

Following the council meeting there was a short Scoutmasters' conference at which plans for spring hikes were discussed.

LOCAL DELEGATES LEAVE FOR K. OF C. CONVENTION

David B. Doyle, H. P. Greenwood and Robert McCormack will leave Plainfield late this afternoon, for Phillipsburg, where they will represent Watchung Council, No. 552, at the annual State convention of the Knights of Columbus to be convened there tonight.

Tonight the visiting knights, who will probably total 500, will be welcomed with a banquet and dance in Hotel Karlton, the headquarters of the delegates while in Phillipsburg. Tomorrow morning the knights will attend a high mass at St. Philip and James' church. The Rev. Edward Egan will have charge of the ceremonies.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE.

Members of the Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Daniel T. Clawson, 37 Brook avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

LOCAL C. E. UNION TO HOLD A RALLY

Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson to Speak at the Annual Gathering.

The committee in charge has arranged an attractive program for the mass meeting to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Local Union. President Theodore W. Day will be in charge of the meeting, which will begin at 7:45 o'clock, with a fifteen-minute song service led by Gideon Founiain and the local union choir.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the church, will conduct the devotional exercises, and there will be a selection by the union male quartet. Miss Florence Krausse, treasurer, and Miss Lucie Coriell, secretary, will then present their reports, which will be followed by a roll call and awarding of the attendance banner.

The election of officers will take place at 8:30, and after another selection by the male quartet the address of the evening will be made by the Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

WILLARD OWES TITLE TO CURLEY

Without Aid of Chicago Man He Would Not Be Champion.

TRAVELED 40,000 MILES.

Big Promoter Crossed the Sea Four Times and Visited Several Countries Before He Obtained Johnson's Consent—Jones Receiving Boosts.

Tom Jones, with his "maker of three champions" reputation, is hailed in many quarters as the man responsible more than any one else for the defeat of Jack Johnson by Jess Willard. True enough, Jones managed Ad Wolgast when he won the lightweight title from Battling Nelson in 1910 and two years before handled Billy Papke during the two months he reigned as middleweight champion after knocking out Stanley Ketchel. Now Jones is the manager of big Jess Willard, Johnson's conqueror, and by virtue of that victory the heavyweight champion of the world. Jones "made" Papke and Wolgast, all right, but in claiming credit for elevating Willard to the titular estate he is taking all the credit for that feat away from Jack Curley, the promoter of the big mill.

It was Curley alone who made Willard champion. The laudation, commendation and plain, ordinary boosting that Jones is getting belongs rightfully to him. There is little nourishment in such praise, and Curley probably wouldn't give two whoops for it, but the fact remains that when such things are being handed out he should be the recipient, and he alone.

Willard had the ability to make good at the opportune time, but it was Curley who made the opportunity for him. Without Curley Jones would still be the manager of Jess Willard, but Jess Willard would not now be the world's champion. If one wanted to be real mean about it he would be justified in saying that Curley enabled Willard to gain the title in spite of Tom Jones. It was Jack and not Tom who was directly responsible for making and, what is more important, staging the match. It was Curley who overcame all the obstacles in Willard's road to the championship goal.

What those obstacles were, obstacles of a financial and numerous other natures, are matters of record. Suffice it to say that after Harry Frazee offered to finance the venture last July Curley traveled 40,000 miles, crossing the ocean four times and visited ten different countries in the course of the journey which terminated and culminated in the fight at Havana. This alone furnishes a startling contrast to Jones' personal efforts on Willard's behalf.

It was not until Curley had Johnson signed to fight the ex-cowboy that Jones broke into the combination. Then the famous barber of Kewanee flashed a legal looking document, binding Willard to his management for a term of several years and refused to permit Willard to meet the black unless he was declared in. Jones' interest in the affair had not been figured on, but there was only one thing to do. He was declared in.

As for "making" Willard champion, he had no more to do with it than the big fellow's sparring partners. In receiving credit for it he is grabbing Curley's stuff.

CUP YACHTS TO RACE.

Resolute and Vanitie to Be Further Tried Out.

Further trial races to select a defender of the America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV. have been arranged for the coming summer. This does not mean, it was said, that the cup committee of the New York Yacht club believes that the European war, which caused the cancellation of the international races set for last fall, will end in time to hold the contest off Sandy Hook next autumn.

It is expected the first race between the two cup yachts Resolute and Vanitie will be about July 1, to be followed probably by a score or more other tests of speed.

WOLGAST IN WITH WILLARD.

Ex-Lightweight Champion Claims One-eighth of All His Winnings.

Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, will claim a share of the earnings of Jess Willard, the new heavyweight champion. Ad holds a contract drawn up between Tom Jones and Willard, given him when he advanced $1,500 to release the cowboy champion from Charley Cutler, who had a claim on Jess' services.

Wolgast declares he can collect one-eighth of the total of Willard's ring earnings as long as the latter fights. Ad claims to have received money from Willard on this contract as a result of Willard's fights with Gunboat Smith and Charley Miller.

MME. GEBHARDT WILL GIVE RECITAL AT Y. M. C. A. TONIGHT

The sale of tickets indicates a capacity audience of music lovers at the piano recital which is to be given at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, when Mme. Adelaide Gebhardt will appear in a joint concert with Walter McAfee, the celebrated tenor. The proceeds of the affair will be used for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A.

Mme. Gebhardt is an accomplished pianist, making her instrument so speak to her hearers that they feel the power and beauty of the composers though as embodied in her music. The young woman has been highly recommended by Paderewski. Mr. McAfee has a clear and pleasing tenor voice That charms his audience. He has a powerful and flexible voice that he can give expression to tenderness or passion.

SAYS GERMAN-AMERICANS ARE WITH THE PRESIDENT

Herman Ridder, editor of the Staats-Zeitung, of New York, made the following statement, when asked what attitude Germans-Americans would take toward the German submarine policy:

"I speak for myself and, I believe, for the great majority of German-Americans, when I say that we are with the President of the United States to the finish in all matters affecting natiional honor or national prestige.

"I subscribe unqualifiedly to the statement of Carl Schurz; 'My country, right or wrong; if right, to be kept right; if wrong, to be set right.'"

BANQUET AND ENTERTAINMENT ENJOYED BY THE MOOSE

A regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge, 210, Loyal Order of Moose, was held last night. There were about two hundred present and after the business had been transacted the members were entertained by the welfare committee. A banquet and smoker was held and a musical program was also enjoyed. Charles Fraleigh entertained with piano and vocal solos and "Jim" Regan was there with Irish jigs. "Jim" Conroy recited. Five applications were received. Four delegates were appointed to the Hudson Valley Moose Convention which will be held in Poughkeepsie, on May 28, 29 and 30. They are George Egel, L. Feiring, James McCarty and George Baggs.

NO WORD FROM ITALY.

New York, May 11.—At the offices of the Italian steamship lines in this city it was said no word had been received from Italy of requisitioning of vessels by the Italian Government. On the contrary, each of the lines had cables this morning of the regular routine nature regarding passengers and freights, showing that the cables which certain local importers claimed to have received of the Italian Government having ordered all sailings of Italian merchant vessels stopped, were incorrect. Pending official advices all sailing schedules previously announced remain in force.

FORSEES NO FRICTION.

Washington, May 11—Those who talked with the President recognized that he foresaw no friction with Japan in the carrying out of its new policy in China. Apparently the ground work for the announcement of Japan's wider sphere of influence in China had been carefully scrutinized before Peking was permitted to accept the terms. The China-Japanese question as a matter of fact now is regarded by Secretary Bryan as a closed incident.

TO EXAMINE CARGO.

ARBITRATION BOARD IN SECRET SESSION

Bosses and Journeymen Carpenters Trying to Adjust Differences.

Members of the Joint Arbitration Committee are in session in the Building Trades' Council chambers, this afternoon, considering the present strike among journeymen carpenters, the committees representing the Master Builders' Association and the journeymen having been vested with power to act in whatever manner they deem advisable. At the meeting last night, it developed that neither committee had authority to decide upon definite conclusions and they were sent back to their respective bodies after three hours of wrangling. The meeting of the Arbitration Committee will be followed this afternoon by a meeting of the masters.

L. B. Woolston, of the Master Builders' Association, in an address made at the meeting last night, scored the journeymen for the attitude they had assumed in the matter and advanced the firm belief that continued trouble with the journeymen would result in the masters declaring a lockout. He said that he would first see his men walking the streets before he would yield to their demands, and his opinion was endorsed by several of the other masters.

In speaking further on the subject Mr. Woolston cited the fact that the carpenters here received as high a scale of wages as any carpenters in the State and he said the position they have taken at the present time is vindicative and will profit them nothing. He scathingly scored the journeymen for tieing up the little bit of building that is at present under way in Plainfield. At the same time Mr. Woolston said that he was of the opinion that the carpenters were not paid enough proportionately when the scale of other mechanics was brought forward as a comparison.

Considerable speculation is being made on the probable outcome of this afternoon's meeting and it is likely that some definite understanding will be arrived at before nightfall. The consensus of opinion appears to substantiate the prediction that a general lockout will ensue.

NEW DIRECTOR OF CENSUS.

Samuel L. Rogers Recently Selected by President Wilson.

Samuel L. Rogers of Franklin, N. C. recently selected by President Wilson for director of the census, has had experiences which eminently well fit him for his new appointment. As a young man he was elected clerk of the superior court of the county of which he was a resident in North Carolina, where he first gave evidence of his fidelity to public trust. Later, during the second administration of President Cleveland, he was appointed chief clerk to the collector of internal revenue for the western district of North Carolina, and when the collector died Mr. Rogers, on account of his recognized fitness and experience, succeeded to the office of collector.

SAMUEL L. ROGERS.

For twelve years he was a member of the corporation commission of North Carolina. This is one of the important public agencies of the state having control of common carriers, state banks and other public service corporations. During his incumbency of this position Mr. Rogers had immediate charge of the state banks, and through his initiative a system of examination and supervision was organized which in a large degree raised the standard of credit and public confidence of all the banks in the state.

CONDITION STILL SERIOUS.

Etta Sharkey, the five-year-old Scotch Plains child who was terribly burned Sunday while playing with matches, was reported at Muhlenberg Hospital, this noon, as still being in a serious condition, although a slight change for the better had occurred through the night.

Near Side Stops For Street Cars

For the purpose of uniformly regulating traffic on the public highways, the Legislature has enacted a law known as Chapter 156, Pamphlet Laws of 1915.

One of the provisions of this act is that street railway cars SHALL stop at the NEAR SIDE of intersecting streets for the purpose of taking on and letting off passengers.

Exceptions are provided for in the law, "at special intersections or crossings or under special conditions where, in the judgment of the street railway company or the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, or the police authorities, the convenience, or safety of the public will be better served, the far side may be designated as the established stop."

In compliance with the law, which is mandatory and State-wide in character, NEAR SIDE STOPS will be the order on Public Service Railway on and after May 15, 1915.

In all cases where exceptions are made to the general rule, signs bearing the words "CARS STOP HERE" will be attached to trolley poles, which poles will be painted with broad white bands, to mark the actual stopping points. Where no such signs are displayed NEAR SIDE stops will prevail.

THE MASTER MIND

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly company.

If Wainwright was the one most happy in wholesome wise it was the Master Mind himself who found an unholy happiness in the bizarre situation that he had contrived so cunningly for the ultimate accomplishment of his revenge. Thus far in truth his success had been unequivocal. There had been no failure anywhere in the processes he had evolved for the consummation of his revenge against the man he hated.

* * * * * * *

In the drawing room of the Wainwright mansion Blount was pacing to and fro somewhat nervously, brooding over many things and wondering mightily as to when he should be permitted to return to the tranquil pleasures of Laramie, Wyo., where he knew not fear and where he was respected of all men. Mrs. Blount and Lucene sat near each other by the windows, looking out over the fast darkening landscape. But presently Mrs. Blount turned to her husband.

"My goodness, John!" she exclaimed reproachfully. "I do wish son-in-law would hurry up. Why, I'm so horribly hungry I'm fading away to a shadow."

Blount halted.

"You really hungry, mother?" he demanded.

"Hungry, mother?" she cried. "Well, I guess yes! Why, I ain't had a mouthful since din—lunch. And I didn't think much of that if you ask me— so there! Queer old soup!"

"You had some fried smelts besides the soup," the husband reminded her.

Lucene, also, turned toward the two and smiled demurely.

"And you had three lamb chops, breaded."

"And some creamed potatoes," Blount added.

Lucene nodded assent.

"Yes, and some fruit salad."

"And three pieces of punkin pie," quoth the husband.

Lovers They Were.

"And a pot of chocolate," declared the mistress of the house, laughing outright.

"Dearie me!" Mrs. Blount said huffily, facing the young wife. "To hear you talk anybody 'd think you begrudged me enough food to keep body and skirt together."

Parker, whom Andrew had brought on to the new establishment, appeared with the announcement that dinner was served.

Mrs. Blount bolted in the direction of the dining room. But the westerner turned courteously to his hostess.

"Come on, Lucene," he said kindly.

The distressed girl, however, refused with a shake of the head.

"You go, please," she directed. "I prefer to wait for Cortland. He's in the library talking politics with his campaign secretary, but he must come soon."

"With Mr. Marshall, eh? And does he think he's going to be elected?"

Lucene forgot her trouble for a moment in her interest over the political fortunes of the man she loved, as Blount had hoped she might.

"He's not sure," she replied animatedly.

"Mistress of the executive mansion at Albany!" Blount said half banteringly. "Hum! Pretty soft for you if he pulls it off, eh, daughter?"

Lucene laughed happily.

"Go to dinner," she repeated. "I think I'll go and hurry Cortland up."

Blount went his way obediently since he saw that such was her preference. The dilatory husband made his appearance to be greeted with an exclamation of pleasure by his wife.

"I was waiting for you, Cortland," she said fondly. "I couldn't bear the idea of going in without you, for I was worried. You must not work so hard. You'll get sick."

"Nonsense!" he answered gayly. "I'm as strong as an ox." He stooped and raised her to his side, drew her close and the lips of the two met in a tender caress.

"But even oxen get sick sometimes, I suppose," Lucene said, with a pout. "Anyhow, we must go in to dinner. You must have food for work, like the beasts of the field, you dear, big, silly man!" the wife said, with a huge content in her voice.

"Oh, you adorable, lovely little woman!" he said affectionately.

Of a sudden he released her, put her from him, to her hurt surprise. "That poem," he muttered, and picked up a book from the nearby table, with which he returned to Lucene. "Do you know, I've found some verses here that might have been written for you and me. Somehow it seems that one takes to poetry naturally when in love. Listen, dearest, to this stanza:

"I have led her home, my love,
My only friend;
There is none like her—none!"

A kiss made sweet caesura in the rhythm of the verse.

Then he read on:

"And never so warmly ran my blood,
And sweetly on and on—
Calming itself"—

The soft palm of the girl on his lips brought the reading to an end.

"Oh, please, please—you mustn't—you mustn't!" The low voice was pleading.

"Why not?" Wainwright demanded, greatly surprised by this insistence, a little grieved.

"Oh, if you only knew! If you only knew!" The words came wailing. As she uttered them, Lucene sprang from him and turned her face aside.

"See here, dearest," Wainwright exclaimed, in much distress over her sudden dejection. "You're not—not worrying over anything, are you?"

"There's nothing the matter—nothing whatever. Only sometimes I—I'm so happy that I just know it can't possibly last."

Wainwright smiled gently.

"You mean you're so happy that you're troubled?"

"Yes," she said, but she did not yet lift her eyes to his.

"And that's all?"

"Yes, that's all." Still the eyes remained downcast.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

PICTURESQUE LEGHORN.

What will become of our strenuous young women when they don the watteau styles of the summer. Styles that bring visions of shepherd's crooks and wooly lambkins and picturesque maiden posing on marble terraces. Our girls who always believe in the fitness of things, oh how will they reconcile these with motor cars and tango teas with suffragettes and golf? They may be able to subdue the gown and train them to their usce but who could converse on "Votes for Women" under a lackadaisical fascinating chapeau such as the one above. Leghorn was the shape trimmed with bunches of yellow blossoms and black velvet ribbon over old blue moire ribbon. These outlined the base of the crown, were brought to a point at front and back and hung in streamers from beneath a cluster of flowers beneath the trim at the back.

MATERNITY WEAR.

One of the greatest problems in a woman's wardrobe is to obtain suitable dresses for maternity wear. It is admittedly a difficult thing to design and execute a garment which will be at once comfortable and stylish, appropriate and up-to-date.

A glance at the above illustration will show you how adroitly and completely the Ladies' Home Journal Pattern designers and draughtsmen have succeeded in creating a modish, yet not too elaborate a dress, which is thoroughly adaptable to maternity wear.

This garment closes at the side-front, has a long waisted semi-fitted foundation with full-length or short sleeves, and a four-piece skirt. A sleeveless over-dress in Redingote effect with sash may be adjusted as required. This is one of the simplest of this class of dress, as there is no bulky fullness and no rows of fasteners to be changed. Size 32 to 44. Size 36 requires 5⅝ yards 36-inch material.

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Good evening, Mrs. Morton. Jo and I thought we'd run over and see how the sick were coming on. As long as it's a broken bone, I suppose the more company the young man has to divert him the better," said Mr. Parsons.

"He will be mighty glad to see you. Time hangs heavy on his hands. All you people will need to carry accident insurance if falling beams are going to make it dangerous to cross the enclosure," answered Nell.

"That's what I tell Roger." Mrs. Parsons placed her scarf on a chair and sat down.

"You knew that Mother Morton came today to relieve the congestion, didn't you?" continued Nell.

"That's the kind of a mother-in-law to have, Nell; one that will put her shoulder to the wheel whenever there is a load to pull." Mrs. Parsons smiled up into Nell's face. "She's what my mother would have called 'a starver' to work."

"Come right into the bedroom; Dick is waiting for you," and Nell led the way.

"Hello! Morton," exclaimed Parsons, shaking his outstretched hand. "We've got you now where you can't help yourself, eh?" He drew a chair near the bed and sat down.

"You've got me where you'll have to bring all the work to me that I do. We can arrange that, can't we?" asked Dick.

"Don't worry about that. We'll arrange that," answered Parsons cheerily.

"While these men talk business, come and see Mother Morton." and Nell drew her friend from the room.

"Mother wanted to put baby to bed tonight," she explained.

"Don't get up, Mrs. Morton," said Mrs. Parsons. "It must seem pretty nice after all these years to have a baby to love and care for again."

"I was just thinking I never had a chance to enjoy my own babies. I had so much to do. I never had a minute to play with them, so I am going to have more pleasure out of this one than I did with my own."

"It's a pity to have the work crowd out all the pleasure and it's true of so many mothers' lives. Don't you think that many women make themselves much more work than is necessary caring for their babies?" Mrs. Parsons was holding a little foot.

"Well, mine never got much coddling, because there was all the housework to do on a farm and in those days it meant caring for the milk. My husband used to spare the hired man to run the washing machine on wash days and to do the churning and that was all the help I had."

"It must have been one long grind from morning till night." Mrs. Parsons was watching the strong old face as she talked.

"It was, in the summer. I'm glad Nell doesn't have to work so hard."

"Many mothers nowadays spend their strength making, washing and ironing pretty clothes, and so deprive themselves of the pleasure of living with their children. I dress mine very plainly and simply and so save time to enjoy them," said Mrs. Parsons.

"When I see mothers fretting away their time and strength on nonessentials I think of a story I read years ago of a woman who had been appointed to keep an important lighthouse. It required a certain kind of oil. The friends of the woman borrowed and bought little dabs of the oil until she had not enough left to supply the light, and it went out. So mothers waste the strength that belongs to their children on fol de rol, and the light of the life goes out."

Household Hints

SUGGESTIONS FOR CARE OF TABLE LINEN

In selecting tablecloths it is more satisfactory to get the seventy-two inch, which gives a generous fall of sixteen inches or so at the sides, which dresses a table better than the narrower widths.

Two and a half yards is a very good measure for general use, a very convenient size for a small company requiring an extra leaf.

Three and one-half yards are required for an extended table to drape over the ends and correspond with the sides.

In hemming tablecloths a double hemstitch above an inch and a half wide hem makes a very fine finish.

The ends must be cut by the thread to make the hem true.

With napkins to correspond and finished in the same way this makes a nice set.

The care of table linen is of great importance if one would have the table arrayed at its best. There must be a pure white cloth without blemish or wrinkle, with satiny finish and with as few folds as possible.

A very good way to wash napkins and tablecloths is to first pour slowly a stream of boiling water over any stains and then let them soak in a good suds made with white laundry soap for an hour, then lightly rub out and just scald in clear soft water; rinse in a light bluing water, and during the whole process wring by hand, instead of by wringer, to avoid the wrinkles that are so hard to press out. Do not starch; stretch evenly and hang straight on the line to dry. In ironing, the linen must be evenly and well dampened. Fold the tablecloth from side to side just once and press from end to end on both sides.

This will give the satin finish. Fold together sidewise once more and press both sides carefully, then fold lengthwise as little as possible to lay in the sideboard drawer.

DISHES FOR THE DIABETIC

Many soups met with at the dinner table are more or less injurious to the diabetic. Many contain thickening consisting of flour, pear flour, vermicelli, etc. Soup should be made of good clear stock, flavored with moderate quantities of such vegetables as leeks, onions, turnips, asparagus and celery. Celery seed makes an excellent and very harmless flavoring. Herbs may also be used. A little almond flour is a good addition to clear soup.

The same rule applies to sauces as for soups—all thickened sauces should be avoided.

The following recipes have been found very beneficial and they can be used without hesitation:

Onion Sauce—Four to six white onions, according to size; one cup hot milk, one dessertspoon butter, saltspoon salt, pepper to taste. Boil onions till tender, press water from them and chop very fine. Make milk hot and pulp onions into it. Add butter, pepper and salt.

Horseradish Sauce—A wine glass of good cream, teaspoon mustard, stick of horseradish, one cup vinegar, a little salt. Grate horseradish and mix with other ingredients.

Tomato Sauce—To one pound ripe tomatoes add one quart vinegar mixed with cayenne, a quarter ounce white pepper, one ounce garlic, one ounce shallot, half ounce coarse salt, juice of three lemons. Skin tomatoes and rub through coarse sieve. Add all ingredients except lemon and boil till quite tender. Then add lemon juice and boil the whole again till it becomes thickness of cream. When cold put into bottles.

Cream of Veal—Take a pound of fillet of veal, pound it in a mortar, then stir in beaten yolk of one egg, whipped whites of two eggs and enough cream to make a paste; pepper and salt to taste. Place this in well buttered small molds which have been decorated with strips of tongue. Steam for an hour and be sure do not let it boil. Turn out and serve with tomato sauce or spinach.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Dinah, the Gorilla, Takes An Airing.

He Offered to Wheel Mistress Dinah.

"KIDDIES, do you remember Dinah, the gorilla, we saw in the Bronx Park zoo, in New York city, when we were there last summer?" asked daddy as the children ran to him for the evening story.

"Yes, daddy, and she was awfully funny," said Evelyn.

"Well, she would look more comical to you now if you could see her," said daddy, with a smile.

"Why, daddy?" cried both children.

"I'll tell you all about it," said daddy.

"Dinah is ill, quite ill, and as she is the only show gorilla in the world, of course the keepers of the zoo are very, very much worried.

"So the keeper, or curator, as he is called, sent for a doctor, and, you know, two of the very best doctors in New York went to see Mistress Dinah. They examined her carefully and decided they didn't know exactly what was the matter, but they were sure she needed fresh air.

"But how was poor Mistress Dinah to get this fresh air that was to make her well? She was too ill to walk, and, besides, she came from a warm climate and the cold winter winds would harm her very much.

"What to do they didn't know. But there was a great big man, one of the keepers who loves animals very much, and he was very, very sorry for poor sick Mistress Dinah, so he thought and thought about it, too, and one day he had an idea.

"He found an old baby carriage and brought it to the zoo and offered to wheel Mistress Dinah out every day for an airing. Of course all the other keepers laughed, but Mr. Big Nurse, who weighs 225 pounds, didn't care a mite.

"So a fur hood and big fur overcoat and fur robe were bought for Mistress Dinah, and then her fresh air cure began.

"The first day in the jungle walk nothing happened. Then the next day some visitors saw the queer pair, and the next two or three days the crowd kept growing bigger and followed after the big nurse and his funny baby, shouting and laughing and clapping their hands.

"And Mistress Dinah is so human that she seems to enjoy all the fun, and she enjoys being the center of attention too."

"What is the matter with the gorilla, daddy?" asked Jack.

"Probably some sort of lung trouble," explained daddy. "Two years is about the length of life for monkeys and gorillas in captivity. Now run along to bed, young ones."

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — THE BOSS IS WILLING TO BE FRIENDLY—BUT— — BY "HOP"

TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY ON JUNE 14

On That Date Will Occur 138th Anniversary of Adoption of Stars and Stripes.

In accordance with its custom for the past eighteen years, the American Flag Association is sending out circulars reminding the public that on Monday, June 14, the 138th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes, as the Flag of our country, will be observed throughout the land. Public recognition of Flag Day as a national anniversary is each year becoming more and more general. In the past and increasingly every year, the governors, mayors, editors, officers and teachers of schools, patriotic societies, and the American people have stirred up growing enthusiasm by calling attention to the day and ordering flags to be placed on all public buildings, by formal proclamations, by editorial comment and by exercises appropriate for the occasion.

The American Flag Association was planned July 15, 1897, and completely organized February 18, 1898. It is composed of individual members and also the members of flag committees of patriotic societies united for the purpose of fostering public sentiment in favor of honoring the flag of our country and preserving it from desecration. Among the officers active in the executive committee of the association is Lieut. Col. William H. Corbusier, of Park avenue, this city.

NAMED ASSOCIATE GENERAL SOLICITOR

Alfred Hurrell, of New York, Takes Position With Prudential Insurance Co.

Alfred Hurrell, of New York, for four years attorney for the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, has been appointed associate general solicitor for the Prudential Insurance Company of America. In this capacity Mr. Hurrell will be associated with Fourth Vice President and General Solicitor Edward D. Duffield. Mr. Hurrell has had extensive acquaintance with insurance law, and previous to his connection with the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, he was assistant counsel for the Merritt Investigation Committee of the New York Legislature, which investigated Fire Insurance Companies and Insurance Exchanges in 1910. He was in charge of the insurance end of the investigation.

As the outgrowth of this Mr. Hurrell drew the statutes which were later enacted into law regulating fire insurance exchanges and putting them under proper supervision. Prior to that work Mr. Hurrell was counsel for the New York Insurance Department and served as such during the term of Insurance Commissioner W. H. Hotchkiss. He was also assistant district attorney of Buffalo, N. Y., where he began the practice of law. Mr. Hurrell was born in Fort Erie, N. Y., and is a graduate of the law department of the University of Buffalo.

TOOK LONG AUTO TRIP.

City Judge and Mrs. William G. DeMeza and Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Bush enjoyed a 125-mile automobile trip Sunday. They motored along the shore route and visited a number of points of interest.

COURT CLERK ILL.

John Rinehart, of Dunellen, who holds the position of clerk in the local police court, is detained at his home by illness.

YOU would not be apt to think that wealthy men would feel any particular need of life insurance.

Yet they are among the heaviest patrons of the great life insurance companies.

Great investors, accustomed to dealing with large sums, and therefore familiar with the fickleness of Dame Fortune—they fully appreciate the certainty and dependability of life insurance.

And you need its protection much more than they do.

MORTGAGES AS INVESTMENTS FOR IDLE FUNDS

There is no better form of investment for those who desire a higher rate than the 4% paid in our Special Department, than mortgages on well selected property on a 50% basis.

This Company invests a certain portion of its funds in gilt edge mortgages and is willing to sell these mortgages from time to time to persons desiring conservative investments.

We are always pleased to talk over investments with persons having idle funds in an endeavor to be of service and will be glad to submit our offerings to any one who may be interested.

CLINCHING THE CHILDREN'S SHOE TRADE.

The biggest, steadiest and most frequent shoe customers any shoe house has, are the growing boys and girls. Between hard play that wears shoes out quickly and growing feet which demand constantly larger sizes, there's no end to the children's shoe demands.

BUT these demands are MINIMIZED to the relief of the hard-pressed parent, when the young folks' shoes are bought at Van Arsdale's. We claim to know how to get the RIGHT STUFF into our shoes —results prove that!

If you are not one of our regular patrons— TRY US.

P. J. REVILLE IS MADE SUPERVISOR

Will Be in Charge of Census Enumerators in This City.

WORK BEGINS ON JUNE 1

Secretary of State Martin Appoints 2,500 Men, All Democrats, Who Will Take State Census—The Plainfielders Named.

Secretary of State Martin today announced his appointment of supervisors and enumerators for the State census which is to be taken June 1. There are nearly 2,500 men named and all are Democrats. Former Councilman Patrick J. Reville is named as supervisor for Plainfield, and the local enumerators are as follows:

First ward: Joseph E. Keily, C. D. Marro, Henry E. Roche and George York; Second ward, Brockholst K. Miller, Clinton F. Ivins, I. Candee Vanatta and Arthur Dunn. Third ward, John L. O'Keeffe, Thomas O'Keeffe, Thomas C. Harding and Barton Davis; Fourth ward, John F. Casey, Jr., John Caulfield, John F. Walden, Charles Tharp, Michael Shea and James M. Cullen.

Frank D. Schroth, of Trenton, is the State supervisor. It is expected that the enumeration will show that the State has a population of more than 3,000,000. The last State census in 1905 showed it to be 2,144,-124, while the Federal enumeration of 1910 gave the State a population of 2,537,167.

Each supervisor will receive one cent for each name tabulated and he draws his pay for the entire municipality. The enumerators will receive two cents for each name counted in their districts, but each district shall not exceed 4,000 names. Interpreters are allowed $3 a day. The cost of the census will total about $100,000.

FRANK MEYERS ARRESTED AFTER A MERRY CHASE

Cries of "Help! Murder! Police! The Russians are coming!" in the vicinity of Norman's ice cream parlor early last evening, turned the little village of South Plainfield into a state of turmoil. A nineteen-year-old boy, who later gave his name as Frank Meyers, his age as nineteen, and said that he hailed from Manville, was found to be the disturber. The lad had hazy recollections of being hit by a submarine and wielded a broken beer bottle as a weapon of self-defense.

Meyers jumped from a freight train on the Lehigh Valley when he espied Detective Everhardt lying in ambush for him with a warrant for illegal train riding. In his leap he sustained cuts about the head that caused bright red gore to trickle down his face and this caused him to believe that something in the way of warfare had broken out. He rushed to Norman's store and grabbed a beer bottle, at the same time threatening Mrs. Norman with bodily harm if she refused to defend him against Everhardt, who he designated as the Kaiser. He was arrested after he had led Harry Sofield a merry chase through the fields and in the scuffle that ensued Sofield sustained some bad cuts about the face and hands. The prisoner is thought to be mentally deficient.

SAFFORD EVIDENCE RESULTS IN TANZER INDICTMENT

Evidence she gave as a witness in the trial of Franklin D. Safford, formerly a clerk in Hotel Kensington, has resulted in the indictment of Rae Tanzer on another count by the Federal Grand Jury.

The case was presented to the Grand Jury by Assistant District Attorney Roger E. Wood, and he alleges that Miss Tanzer swore falsely that she was in the company of James W. Osborne, in New York, from 2 to 11 o'clock on November 29, from 6:30 to 10:30 on November 30, from 6 to 11 o'clock on December 1, and from 4 to 11 o'clock on December 4. According to the indictment, on November 29 Mr. Osborne was in Providence, R. I.

GUEST-SCHENCK.

Miss Jennie Schenck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar S. Schenck, of New Market, and LeRoy Terry Guest, of Terrill road, were married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, at his home on Central avenue. The couple will reside in this city. Mr. Guest holds a clerical position at Muhlenberg Hospital.

JOHN R. MANLEY IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Run Down by An Automobile While Crossing Queensboro Bridge in New York.

John R. Manley, of East Ninth street, this city, is reported to be in a dying condition at St. John's Hospital, New York, the result of injuries received today, when he was struck by an automobile. Mr. Manley was crossing the plaza of the Queensboro Bridge on his way to Long Island City, where he has large property interests, when the automobile hit him. The machine was driven by a woman and she is said to have put on more speed and escaped on the Manhattan side of the bridge. Whether she was caught later is not known.

Passersby rushed to the aid of the injured man and he was removed in an ambulance to St. John's Hospital. The identification of Mr. Manley was made through papers in his possession. He is widely known in this city, where for many years he was engaged as an insurance agent. He has also been prominent in religious and temperance work.

EXPLOSION VICTIMS IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

Two Bound Brook Men Removed to Institution Following Accident.

Two men were injured and the entire one end of the Commercial Acetylene Railway Light and Signal Company's plant at Lincoln was wrecked yesterday afternoon, when an ecetylene gas tank exploded. John Worth, thirty-five years old, and William Murphy, forty years old, both of Bound Brook, were removed to Muhlenberg Hospital immediately after the accident. They are suffering from burns about the face and arms, and remained unconscious for a time after arriving at the local institution.

Inquiry made at the plant by a Daily Press reporter this morning failed to reveal any definite information concerning the exact nature of the mishap. The superintendent of the plant refused to comment on the accident other than to say that the men were hurt, and referred the reporter to the engineering department in New York city. He added that it was not known how the men were injured. Efforts are apparently being made to conceal the nature of the explosion.

BOARD OF EDUCATION RECEIVES COAL BIDS

The receipts of bids for furnishing 1,500 tons of coal for the public schools of Plainfield was practically the only business of importance considered at the May meeting of the Board of Education, last night. Four bids were received, those submitting them being George O. Stevens, Consumers' Coal Company, Wadleigh & Goodenough and C. M. Hetfield. The bids were referred to the building committee, who will make a report later.

The Board has announced a public hearing for tonight on the school budget and it is hoped that it will be largely attended by citizens so that there may be a full and free discussion of the same.

DECIDE TO SAIL ON AN AMERICAN LINER

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brockley and family, of Manning avenue, the borough, will leave Saturday morning on the American Line steamship "St. Louis" for England. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Brockley's brother, Ernest Jackson. Until last week they had passage on the White Star liner "Cymric," which sails from New York, Friday, floating an English flag, but after the Lusitania disaster Mr. Brockley immediately transferred to the American Line, which flies the American flag.

The party will go to Liverpool and spend the summer months, returning to this country the latter part of August. Mr. and Mrs. Brockley have two children who will accompany them.

NON-SUPPORT CHARGE.

Joseph DeFalgo, of 659 West Fourth street, was arrested this morning, on a complaint charging him with the failure to properly provide for his family. He will be arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court tomorrow morning.

REPARATION IN FULL OR BREAK

Wilson Said to Be Preparing Note to Germany With That Warning.

DOES SHE WANT WAR?

Some People at Washington Believe She is Trying to Force U. S. Into It—President May Address Kaiser Direct in Official Statement.

Washington, May 12—President Wilson has made up his mind in the Lusitania affair. His decision and plan of action will not be made public, however, until later. This was forecasted in the following statement issued at the White House today.

"The course of the President has been determined. It will be announced just so soon as it is proper to publish the note now in preparation."

It is generally believed here, however, that the President will tell Germany, in the communication he is today preparing to forward to Berlin regarding the loss of American lives on the Lusitania, that the "strict accountability" wording of his note of February 11 meant exactly what it said.

In the event that Germany refuses to make full reparation and to guarantee to Americans safety from attack at sea, even in unarmed belligerent ships, the United States will immediately sever all diplomatic relations with Germany, and practically declare Germany an outlaw.

WEST END HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Flames Break Out While Occupants Are Absent—Loss About $500.

A passerby on West Third street shortly after 10 o'clock last night, noticed flames creeping up the rear of the house at 613 South Second street and turned in an alarm from box 81 at Fourth street and Plainfield avenue. When the fire department reached the scene they found a brisk blaze in progress in the up-and-down two-family house at the address given, but none of the occupants were at home. The men had to break in the doors to gain entrance and found the flames confined to the upstairs part. They had eaten their way to the outside and were mounting to the roof when checked. The fire was extinguished after an hour's fight, the loss amounting to about $500.

Chief Doane found on investigation that Charles Jenkins occupied the lower floor and Mrs. Agnes Brooks, both families being colored, was the upstairs tenant. The property is owned by L. Rosenthal. When Mrs. Brooks quitted the house earlier in the evening she left a lamp burning on the kitchen table and it is believed the fire was caused by it, though in just what way is a mystery.

The lower apartment was damaged by water and the Jenkins furniture suffered considerably. The damage to the house is covered by insurance.

The department answered another alarm at 7:25 last night, the call being from box 63 for a slight blaze on the roof of the foundry at the Scott Printing Press works. It was put out with chemicals before any great damage had occurred.

MANY CLERGYMEN ATTEND DEDICATION OF CHURCH

Dedicatory services were held at the Swedish Lutheran church on East Seventh street, last night, the affair being largely attended by members as well as visiting clergymen. Rev. Dr. Louis Beck, president of the New Jersey Conference, presided at the service, and among the speakers were Rev. Dr. Martin, of Jersey City, who spoke in Swedish, and Rev. Dr. Lundgren, of Newark, who made a short address in English. There was also special music by the church choir; Charles L. Lewis also sang a solo.

The visiting ministers and officials of the local church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Lena Hellstrom, on East Seventh street, yesterday afternoon.

New York, May 12.—It is announced at the local office of the Cunard line that the steamship Mauretania, scheduled to sail from New York on June 12, has been withdrawn.

CARPENTERS FAIL TO GET INCREASE

Request for Advance in Wages Given up After a Joint Committee Conference.

HAD LONG DISCUSSION

Journeymen Agree Not to Ask for More Pay again Before May 1, 1916—Statement from Masters' Association Representative.

Following a three-hour conference between two committees of five men each, representing the Master Carpenters' Association and the Journeymen Carpenters' Local Union, yesterday afternoon, the threatened general strike order effecting the Plainfield building trades was declared to an end. The carpenters agreed to drop their demand for an increase of fifty cents a day in wages and returned to work this morning at the old rate of $4 per day. The agreement signed by both sides stipulates that the journeymen cannot ask for more money again inside of May 1, 1916.

Conferences have been held almost daily since the walkout of the carpenters began on May 1 last, but no conclusion could be reached, owing to the fact that the committees on either side had no power to act. Whatever was done was only in the form of a recommendation and had to be submitted to either side for ratification. This was overcome Monday night when the arbitration committees were named and instructed that the masters and journeymen alike would abide by their decision. Just what points were touched upon in the conference yesterday afternoon or upon what grounds the journeymen decided to return to work were not made public.

The master carpenters' committee was composed of Alexander Milne, Ira N. West, Michael D. O'Keefe, Walter Apgar and George D. Wilson. The committee from the journeymen was headed by Business Agent William Lunger, who has been looked upon as being especially fair-minded in all arguments pertaining to the increase. Those on the committee with him were W. H. Lunger, F. M. Farnham, Charles F. Johnson, Charles J. Abel and William McLennon.

In speaking of the matter today, a representative of the Master Carpenters' Association said that his organization wanted to be "fair and square" with the journeymen, but conditions at this time do not warrant the payment of the extra half dollar a day. The rate of $4 is the maximum in New Jersey and is only paid in several of the larger cities. In many places the trade receives $3.60 per day and in parts of the State the rate is even still lower. There is not much building going on in Plainfield at present, he continued, and when industrial conditions become better the increase might be considered in a better form.

The temporary lay-off due to the request for more wages, affected about three hundred local carpenters. Many of them are not working at the present time owing to the slackness of the building trade. In Hudson county, where the men also asked for a raise of from $4 to $4.50, the question is still being disputed. The carpenters of Dover and other parts of Morris county went out for a raise from $3.36 to $3.60 per day and the latter amount was granted shortly after the walk-out was declared.

EDUCATOR FROM HONOLULU VISITS THE HIGH SCHOOL

Superintendent E. C. Webster, of the Kamehameha Schools, of Honolulu, was the guest yesterday of Charles R. Bostwick, Manual Training Supervisor of this city. Mr. Webster, who has made a reputation among educators by his successful conduct of the extensive industrial schools in Honolulu, established by an endowment made them by the late queen of the Hawaiian Islands, made a number of interesting comparisons between industrial training here and in the Far East. He complimented Supervisor Bostwick on the condition of the Manual Training Department.

VISITS LOCAL SCHOOLS.

President J. E. Osgood, of the Board of Education of Brattleboro, Vt., spent Tuesday morning with Superintendent Maxson, inspecting the Plainfield High School. He expressed himself as much interested in the work of the Plainfield School.

FIRST VISITATION.

The first visitation of Bishop Paul Matthews to the Church of the Heavenly Rest for confirmation will be on Wednesday evening, May 26, at 7:30 o'clock. A parish reception will be given to the bishop after confirmation in the parish house.

MINSTREL TROUPE SCORES A BIG HIT

T. A. B. Society Black Face Artists Encored Repeatedly by Capacity Audience.

TO REPEAT TONIGHT

Master Louis Montferrante a Feature in Rendition of Ballad—Albert LaRock's Topical Song Hands Out Local "Knocks."

One of the largest audiences that St. Mary's T. A. B. Hall has held in many years crowded the building last night, when the T. A. B. minstrel troupe gave its first amateur performance of burnt cork entertainment. The presentation was in every way a creditable affair and congratulations without number have been showered upon the participants. There was an absence of hitches and principals and chorus alike acted like veterans in their respective parts. When the curtain rose amid an outburst of applause it revealed the troupe in a very pretty setting. The chorus was attired in a summery costume while the ends wore an eccentric outfit of special design. Michael D. O'Keeffe was in the center as interlocutor and capably parried the "gags" hurled at him by the ends. These were Lawrence Barrett, Jr., Joseph Carroll, John Connolly, Frank Donnelly, Russell Feiring and William Mahoney. Each man had a bunch of funny stuff and sang an end song with resultant encores. William Mahoney was especially good in his rendition of "Good Night," but the big end feature was the topical song, "St.

WILLIAM P. HAYES GRAND COMMANDER

Succeeds Nelson Y. Dungan as the Head of Knights Templar of the State.

The annual convention of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar of New Jersey was held in Trenton, yesterday, when officers for the year were elected. Grand Commander Nelson Y. Dungan, of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, this city, was succeeded by William P. Hayes, of Trenton. The officers elected were as follows:

Grand commander, William P. Hayes, Trenton; deputy grand commander, Robert H. Ingersoll, Atlantic City; grand generalissimo, Dr. Joseph MacDonald, Jr., East Orange, grand captain general, Gilbert W. Blanchard, Passaic; grand senior warden, Henry F. Barth, Bridegton, grand junior warden, Daniel Demarest, Newark; grand prelate, William Carman, Metuchen; grand treasurer, John M. Wright, Trenton; grand recorder, James A. Cartwright, Newark; grand standard bearer, Archibald G. Smith, Lambertville.

CHAMPION HIGH DIVER AT THE MOOSE CARVINAL

The Levitt-Meyerhoff Carnival Company, which will exhibit in this city all next week, at Front street and Grant avenue, under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Loyal Order of Moose, gives a startling free exhibition every afternoon and night. Miss Mae Eccleston, who claims to be the peer of all similar performers, makes a sensational dive from a ladder eighty feet high to a shallow tank containing only four feet of water. The young woman risks her life every time she makes the descent, but she only laughs when people mention the danger.

The Levitt-Meyerhoff Company is one of the oldest and most completely organized carnival organizations in the country. It will come to this city on its own special train of cars, bringing attractions never before seen in Plainfield. Members of the Moose have arranged for an automobile parade to inaugurate the week next Monday night commencing at 6:45. Charles Pagliucca is chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements.

AUCTION SALE.

Attention is called to the auction sale to be held tomorrow afternoon beginning at 1:30 o'clock in the Luftmurrow building, on West Front street, when Robert Murray, auctioneer, will sell in addition to the list of goods already advertised in the Daily Press two extra van loads of goods including several mahogany pieces, imported rugs, etc.

MISS HOLLAND BRIDE OF JOHN F. FISK, 3D

The Ceremony Will Be Performed at St. Regis, New York, Today.

Miss Alverda Mae Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Holland, formerly of Plainfield, will be married today to John Flavel Fisk, 3d, at the St. Regis, New York city. Rev. Mr. Miller, of New Haven, a classmate at Yale of Mr. Fisk, who was graduated from that university in 1914, will perform the ceremony.

Mrs. Thomas Mellish, of Cincinnati, will be the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Julia Bates, of St. Louis, Sylvia Curtis, of this city, and Margaret Kelly, of New York city.

Thomas Mellish will be the best man, and the ushers will be Roy Cox, of Cincinnati; Thomas V. Stowell, of New York city, and Junior Carll, of Garden City, L. I.

Mr. Fisk is the son of John F. Fisk, Jr., of Cincinnati, and is in business in Philadelphia. After the honeymoon the couple will make their home in Winwood, a suburb of Philadelphia.

VANDERBILT'S BODY HAS NOT BEEN FOUND

Twenty-two Other Corpses Brought to Shore, However —One Identified.

London, May 12.—American Embassy officials do not believe the report that the body of Alfred G. Vanderbilt has been found, it was stated today. Inquiries sent to Liverpool and Queenstown by Ambassador Page brought no confirmation.

The United States Embassy announced today that the body of Charles Frohman, who lost his life on the Lusitania, will be shipped to New York on Saturday.

Queenstown, May 12.—The steamer Flying Fish has arrived with seventeen additional bodies. The only one identified is that of Percy Secombe, of Boston, whose father commanded the Cunarder Cephalonia.

A Lusitania life boat containing the bodies of three women and two boys drifted ashore at Baltimore today.

New York, May 12.—It was stated this morning by Col. Isaac Emerson, father-in-law of Alfred Gwyne Vanderbilt, that word had not been received by him of the finding of Mr. Vanderbilt's body. He expects that if the body is found Webb Wade, Mr. Vanderbilt's secretary, will cable the fact to him without delay.

REV. MR. O'DONNELL GIVES A LECTURE ON IRELAND

Following a short business meeting of the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teacher Association at the Irving School, yesterday afternoon, when it was decided to buy a book treating with "Child Welfare," Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, gave an illustrated lecture on "Ireland," in which he described some of the more interesting places which he visited on a trip abroad about two years ago.

After the lecture, Mrs. Edward Young sang a solo and there was a social hour, during which refreshments were served. This was the last meeting of the association for this season and the next meeting will be during the second week of October.

TRAIN RIDERS ARE CAUGHT AFTER CHASE THROUGH TOWN

In response to a telegram sent to local headquarters this morning, Captain John Flynn met a Philadelphia express at the North Avenue station for the purpose of taking two "blind baggage riders" into custody. The trespassers, however, saw the copper first and when the train slowed up they made a break for liberty.

A short chase ensued but they were both finally caught and bundled into the patrol wagon. They gave their names as Harry Alston and James Mullen and will be arraigned before Judge DeMeza on charges tomorrow morning.

RUSSIANS ADMIT BESKID REVERSES

Claim Retreat Has Been Orderly in Carpathians Without Serious Losses.

AT DARDANELLES AGAIN

Black Sea Fleet Also Bombards Bosphorus Forts, Driving Turkish Fleet Back—"Treason if Italy Accepts Austria's Proposal."

Petrograd, May 12.—Terrific onslaughts by Austro-German forces in the Carpathians have forced the Russian army to retreat. The War Office admitted today that the Czar's troops had withdrawn from the Beskid ranges, but stated that the retreat was effected in orderly fashion and that practically all the artillery was saved.

"Our troops have fallen back without disorder to positions assigned them," it was said. "There they have checked the enemy's attacks, which for a time threatened disaster to a large part of our forces."

The War Office asserts, however, that German claims of great successes in the Baltic provinces and Galicia were false.

Official announcement was made today that the Russian Black Sea fleet bombarded the Bosphorus forts for a fourth time on Monday. The Turkish fleet emerged to give battle, but was driven back after several shells had struck the cruiser Goeben. She is believed to have been badly damaged. A despatch from Sebastopol states that Russian destroyers sunk three large Turkish ships near Sanguldak on the Anotolian coast.

Athens, May 12.—Allied warships bombarded the Dardanelles forts for eleven hours on Monday, according to a despatch from Mitylene, causing heavy damage. The Turkish guns replied vigorously. Unconfirmed reports state that several of the warships were hit.

Rome, May 12.—Acceptance of the terms offered by Austria in the latest proposals from Vienna would be treason on the part of the Ministry and Government, says the Idea Nazionale. More interviews between Premier Salandra, ex-Premier Giolitti, the leader of the neutralists, and Baron Sonnino, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, followed the adjournment of the cabinet meeting yesterday morning, without definite action.

Venice, May 12.—Three Austrians were arrested by the Italian authorities today on the charge of being spies.

Amsterdam, May 12.—All Italians of military age living in Belgium and Holland are returning to Italy.

London, May 12.—A special cabinet meeting has been called as a result of the anti-German riots.

Frederickshaven, Denmark, May 12.—The Danish schooner Anna today landed survivors of the Swedish bark Elsa, which was torpedoed by a German submarine on May 4.

Paris, May 12.—The French war statement follows:

"In the sector to the north of Arras we have maintained all our gains except before Loos, where a night counter attack by the Germans recaptured a part of the ground taken by us near Vernelles during yesterday. On the rest of the front there were artillery combats."

A German Zeppelin raid directed at Paris, this morning, failed when an airship reached La Ferte, in the department of the Aisne, thirty miles from Paris, was forced to flee when a French aerial squadron appeared to attack it.

STEPPED OFF MOVING CAR; WAS ONLY SLIGHTLY HURT

Mrs. Elizabeth Landehellar, of 308 Suydam street, New Brunswick, stepped off a moving trolley car at John and West Fourth streets shortly after 8 o'clock last night, which necessitated her removal to the home of her son-in-law, Walter Morley, of 429 John street. She was painfully injured in the fall to the macadam roadbed, her hurts including contusions about the head and face and a sprained shoulder.

The crew in charge of the car included Jesse Goldberg and Frank Depler. What caused Mrs. Landehellar to take the step off the car could not be learned.

RETURNS TO DUTY.

John Rinehart, of Dunellen, clerk in the local police headquarers, returned to duty this morning following an enfoced layoff due to illness.

RECEPTION GIVEN TO MR. AND MRS. SMALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Smalley, who were married in the Dutch Reformed church, at Allentown, Pa., Saturday evening, were tendered a reception Monday evening at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Goldson W. Smalley, of 302 Fairview avenue. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hammer, of Allentown, Pa., and a goodly delegation was present at the reception from that city. The other guests came from Plainfield and this place. The home was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants. The happy couple were showered with congratulations and also presented with numerous presents, consisting principally of silverware. The entertaining program consisted of dancing, singing and music, following which refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Smalley are at present making their home with Mr. Smalley's parents. They will shortly commence housekeeping, picking out a home in this place. Mr. Smalley is one of the borough's most popular young men. He is employed as a carpenter by the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

PLEASING RECITAL GIVEN AT NEW MARKET CHURCH

The recital held in the Baptist church at New Market, last evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, proved a success in every way. Miss Helen Cressingham displayed a soprano voice of great range and purity, and these qualities, combined with her natural musical ability, made her a very pleasing soloist. Archie La Rue, violinist, was the other artist, and deserves much praise for his fine work. He has a big tone and well developed technique. Mr. La Rue is a pupil of the famous Belgian violinist and composer, Ovide Musin.

HEARD SUNDAY.

Miss Luella Stryker, assistant at the postoffice, heard "Billy" Sunday preach in Paterson last evening. In order to be in that city in time to get a seat, Miss Stryker left the borough in the early afternoon.

TO VISIT THE FLEET.

Miss Anna Rinehart, of Penfield place, is recovering from a heavy cold.

COMPLETE DAM.

The dam being erected across Green Brook, at Madison avenue, by Contractor Caldwell, the contractor who has charge of erecting the new bridge there, was finished yesterday. The purpose of the dam is to enable Contractor Caldwell to divert the course of the stream so that the bridge piers can be erected.

SELLS GARAGE.

The Stryker garage has been sold to Elwood E. Waller, of 431 East Second street, Plainfield, who took possession this morning. Mr. Waller gives up the position of manager of the Queen City Motor Company to come to Dunellen to go into business for himself.

SELLS LARGE FARM.

The 114-acre farm, which Messrs. Haight and Scandell recently purchased from Dr. W. J. Nelson, has been sold to an Italian party in New York city, who has taken possession. The party will engage in general farming. Since he has taken possession 600 fruit trees have been set out.

MAKES A RECORD.

The steam sewer trench digger made a record as concerns the sewer work in the borough yesterday, when it excavated 115 feet of trench, with an average of a nine-foot cut, on Second street, in the Equator tract. The digger has about finished with Second street, and it was announced that Dunellen avenue, from Madison avenue west through the Equator tract to the borough line, would be the next street opened.

RAYMOND TYNAN INJURED.

Raymond Tynan, of Greenbrook road, had a bad spill shortly after 6:30 o'clock Saturday night, while riding home on his bicycle from the Saurer Motor Works, where he is employed, when a bicycle lamp, which was fastened to a front fork of his wheel slipped down and became entangled in the front wheel, stopping it and throwing Tynan over the handle bars head foremost on to the hard macadam. The accident happened on Front street, opposite De Kalb avenue. Tynan broke his fall to a very great extent with his hands. When he struck the macadam he slid a distance of about five or six feet over its hard surface, scratching his nose, face and hands and tearing his clothes.

EXCHANGES PROPERTY.

Hiram J. Scandell, proprietor of the Park Hotel stables, has made a deal with Andrew Olsen, of Plainfield, in which he has traded the ten-room house, with all improvements, at Midland Park, in which he resided before he came to New Market, for a house at 1,310 Park avenue, Plainfield. This house is located just above the hospital. The lot has a depth of 600 feet, and a frontage of 74. There is a barn and between 25 and 30 fruit trees on the place.

TALK ON WORLD PEACE.

Cleveland, O., May 12—Eminent American church leaders, deep thinkers on government and international law, and advocates of permanent world peace gathered here today for a conference. Former President William H. Taft will deliver the opening address tonight, following the welcoming addresses of the Governor and the Mayor. Judge Alton B. Parker will also speak tonight, and both he and Prof. Taft will have for their subject, "The United States Supreme Court, the Prototype of the World Court." The conference will continue tomorrow and Friday, and the speakers include Cardinal Gibbons, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, of Illinois; Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Rabbi Joseph Silverman, John Mitchell, Bainbridge Colby and Prof. Jeremiah Jenks. The conference will consider all suggestion for the establishment of a supreme court of the world for settling international disputes and avoiding war. All reference to the present European war will be omitted, but the thinkers of America will give their views with the hope that the idea will be taken up universally after the close of the present conflict.

ITALIAN PARLIAMENT.

Rome, May 12—The re-opening today of the Chamber of Deputies is considered a highly important event, in view of the international situation as regards Italy's posible entry into the European war. It is considered in some quarters quite possible that intervention may be announced, although, according to the constitution, the King is entitled to declare war. If the war question is thrown into the Chamber, a quick decision is expected, and prompt measures will be adopted for financing on a war basis.

WHAT PLAINFIELD WANTS TO KNOW.

The Answer is Found in the Statement of a Plainfield Resident.

From week to week, from year to year, there have been appearing in these columns statements made by neighbors, which we have all read with great interest, and many of us with great profit. But what we want to know is, do they stand the greatest test of all—the test of time? Here is conclusive evidence on this point from a Plainfield woman:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued until cured."

Over five years later Mrs. Rorflinger said: "I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dorflinger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

The Store Spirit at Rothberg's

There is a home-like, free-and-easy, take-your-time-and-don't-be-hurried spirit, at Rothberg's.

You will feel it the minute you enter the Rothberg Store--the very atmosphere is charged with it--it is contagious.

There is no excitement about Rothberg methods--but only the quite confidence of a store that has the goods and knows it.

There is no feverish anxiety to make a sale--but there is a very serious and laudable anxiety to make a customer.

And that is the Rothberg spirit clean through--a spirit which is helpful but not coercive, persuasive but not too persistent--a spirit which is one of heart-and-soul co-operation between the Rothberg store and the Rothberg patron.

T. A. B. MINSTRELS

Mary's T. A. B. S.," sung by William Clarkson. It contained several verses pertaining to local affairs written by Albert LaRock and set to the tune of "It's A Long Way to Tipperary." Mr. LaRock demonstrated unusual talent as a composer and has some more "hot off the bat" lines for tonight.

One of the best numbers in the entire show was the solo of Master Louis Montferrante, a fourteen-year-old boy possessed of a charming voice. He wore a handsome colonial costume which gleaned resplendant in the spotlight and added to the effect as he rendered "I Hear You Calling Me, Tennessee." He was encored repeatedly. Two other soloists, Albert LaRock and Patrick Powers also made big hits with their ballads, (a) "I Hear You Calling Me," (b) "When It's Moonlight in Mayo" and "Irish Eyes of Love." Manchester's orchestra of four pieces provided the accompaniments and also furnished music for the dancing which was in order at the close of the program continuing until two o'clock this morning.

The program for the minstrels in full was as follows: Overture, Manchester's orchestra; opening chorus, medley of popular airs, entire company; end song, "Dancing at the Cotton Ball," Joseph Carroll; ballad, "I Hear You Calling Me, Tennessee," Master Louis Montferrante; end song, "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield," E. F. Barrett, Jr.; ballad, (a) "I Hear You Calling Me," (b) "When It's Moonlight in Mayo," Albert F. LaRock; end song, Auntie Skinner's Chicken Dinner," Frank Donnelly; clog dance, John McCaffrey; end song, "Dancing Underneath the Irish Moon," Russell Fiering; ballad, "Irish Eyes of Love," Patrick Powers; end song, "Good Night," William Mahoney; topical song, "St. Mary's T. A. B. S.," William Clarkson; end song, "Shooting the Bull," John Connolly; closing chorus, "The Red, White and Blue," entire company.

The members of the chorus included: William Boyle, Frank Brennan, John Casey, William Clarkson, Russell Day, Frank Deady, John Denny, John Diskin, Harry Dunn, Bernard Fee, Frank Force, John Force, Thomas Griffen, John J. Hines, Daniel Kregar, Arthur Kyle, Albert F. LaRock, Richard Lawton, John McCaffrey, Edward McCann, James McCarthy, Hugh McDonnell, Louis Montferrante, Michael Montferrante, Martin Muldowney, John Nolan, James P. O'Keefe, John L. O'Keefe, Patrick Powers, John Powlison, Joseph Regan, Joseph Roach, Joseph Smith, Edwin Sullivan, James Traynor and John Winzenried.

Much of the credit for the success of the enterprise is due John J. Hines, Michael D. O'Keefe and Joseph T. McCue, who comprise the minstrel committee. They have worked early and late in connection with the coach, Lawrence Barrett, Jr., to bring the troupe to a state of perfection and the audience last night was unanimous in the opinion that they had accomplished the desired end.

The show will be repeated tonight and the attendants will include a delegation of 100 members from the T. A. B. Society from Elizabeth. They will come to this city by special trolley. The demand for tickets has been so great that a special matinee will be given for the benefit of the school children Saturday afternoon and it is possible that another performance will be given Friday night. The minstrels are being given in celebration of the forty-third anniversary of the T. A. B. organization.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Freedom Commandery, No. 5, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will hold a drill tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock in Co. K Armory.

The observance of "Ladies' Night" which was scheduled for this evening at the Jr. O. U. A. M. Club, has been postponed until Wednesday night of next week.

The annual State convention of the Knights of Columbus was opened yesterday at Phillipsburg, and is being continued today, about 200 delegates being in attendance. Warren Council, of that city, received the attendants last evening with a reception and dance. A high mass was celebrated this morning at the Church of St. Phillip and James, the service being in charge of Rev. Father Egan.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Philadelphia.—Under the guidance of Miss Mary Porter Beagle, of Barnard College, six hundred young working women of this city gave a pageant on Saturday, depicting "The Romance of Work." Miss Beable originated the idea and supervised the production. The proceeds of the pageant are to be used by the Philadelphia Vacation Society in maintenance of a summer home where hundreds of women have an opportunity to rest in the hot months. The pageant itself was a truly magnificent affair, showing woman's work in its development, with a climax on the present-day co-operation as the crowning achievement.

Harrisburg, Pa.—An appropriation of $800,000 for mothers' pensions to be distributed by a board of women trustees, is hailed by the women of Pennsylvania as the best piece of child welfare legislation ever passed by any State in the Union. In recognition of Governor Brumbaugh's great interest in the new legislation, the women tendered him a reception Sunday, Mother's Day, in Pittsburgh.

Houston, Tex.—Women are having no small part in the big sociological congress which opened here on Saturday, and is extending over until tomorrow night. Among the Southern sociologists who are speakers at the congress is Mrs. Minnie U. Rutherford, president of the W. C. T. U., of Arkansas, who speaks on "The Conservation of the Health of Mothers a Primary Responsibility of the State. Miss Mary Georing, professor of domestic economy, University of Texas, speaks on "The Relation of Food Supply to the Public Health." Miss Agnes Morris, of New Orleans, discusses "Health Conditions in Country Jails, and Mrs. C. A. Waterfield, of Paris, Tenn., will give her views on "Conserving the Health of the Child."

Portland, Me.—A fountain is to be erected in Portland as a memorial to Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, the eminent leader in the temperance cause, who died a little more than a year ago. The fountain is to be a replica of the one erected in Chicago in momory of Frances E. Willard. The work will be in bronze, with a granite base. The design represents a child holding a cup in which are the bubbles for drinking. The fund for the fountain was raised by the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Boston—That a man's brains are but one-forty-third of his bulk, while a woman's are one-fortieth of hers, is the statement of Dr. Elmer Southard at the Harvard Medical School. "Women have more brains per volume than men," he concluded, "and four hard-headed men have collaborated with me on these data." The statistics related to American men and women. Although the men's brains weighed slightly more, the relation to their bulk was less.

Denver—Frisking about the dewy grass on the top of a Colorado mountain, as barelegged nymphs and sprites, a group of college girls from Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will this summer get back to nature. The girls are athletic dancers, and they long for the life that is free and simple, uncontrolled by the modern conventions of dress. The college girls plan to live as did the Helenes on the shores of the sparkling Aegean Sea centuries ago. Led by Miss Portia M. Swett, a graduate in the class of 1910, they hope to find perfect freedom of body and spirit in the out-of-the-way mountains.

Turkish Tales.

The Turkish empire is composed of many mixed races. It includes Greeks, Slavs, Albanians, Armenians, Jews and Circassians.

The Ottoman navy in 1909 was entirely reorganized by a British admiral, with a staff of navigating, torpedo and gunnery officers.

In European Turkey trying climatic changes are frequent. In the winter the northeast winds are bitterly cold, while in the summer the heat is almost unbearable.

WILL SEND ANOTHER RELIEF SHIP ABROAD

Hamilton W. Mabie, a member of the New Jersey State Committee of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, made an address recently before a mass meeting at Summit, where he resides, the purpose of the meeting being to organize a local branch of the State committee. Mr. Mabie spoke from information he had received direct from the American Minister at The Hague, to the effect that the reports which had reached America showed that Belgium would need America's help for an indefinite length of time to come.

New Jersey is now thoroughly organized for the work of relief, and it is confidently expected that the contributions, already large, will soon be sufficient to load a New Jersey State ship. It is expected that food to the value of nearly half a million dollars will be sent by the State to the destitute in Belgium. Among the members of the advisory committee are Everett Colby, of Orange, and Ernest A. Ackerman, of this city.

LABOR AND ART CLASHED.

The Battle Was Rather One Sided and Labor Won the Night.

Among the experiences which Sir Frederick Cowen, the eminent composer, relates in his book "My Art and My Friends" is the following: Once while conducting in Melbourne a terrible noise of hammering started overhead as soon as the concert began.

"I put down my baton and stopped," writes Sir Frederick; "so did the noise. Thinking it was over, I began again; so did the noise. I then sent a messenger with a polite request that the noise should cease. After about ten minutes, during which the hammering grew more and more persistent, the messenger returned, and I said to him:

"'Did you give them my message?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'And what was their answer?'

"'They said, "Tell Mr. Cowen we've got our contract to finish by a certain time and we ain't going to stop for no concert or nobody."'

"Upon this I turned to the audience and said:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, as you have possibly noticed, there has been a fight between labor and art. Labor has won. I am very sorry, and I wish you all good night.'

"Then I dismissed the orchestra, and there was no concert that evening."

FIRE RISKS ON FARMS.

Safety First Should Be as Much the Rule There as Elsewhere.

A contributor to Farm and Fireside shows how appalling fire risks are on farms. He tells how to reduce some of these fire risks and writes in part as follows:

"The inveterate smoker is about as dangerous as a walking stick of dynamite. It makes me shudder to see a man smoking around the farm buildings. One man I know never will forget the way he was run off the farm when I caught him smoking a cigarette while stacking hay.

"Another dangerous practice of which the average man is guilty is that of carrying ordinary matches loose in his pockets. He should carry either safety matches or keep the ordinary kind in a metal box.

"On most farms the lantern is still the usual light for working about the buildings after dark. A good way to keep it clean and safe is, first, to take out the burners and clean them by boiling in strong soapsuds. This will keep the ventilating passages of the burner working properly. Then wipe all leaking or spilled oil off the base.

"Never set a lantern down. Either hold it or hang it up. Then when it is accidentally struck it will swing instead of upsetting."

A Gladstone Anecdote.

Lord Alverstone tells this anecdote of Gladstone in his "Recollections:"

"Mr. Gladstone was very much interested in the Caucasus. I had a friend, Captain X., who had recently come home from that district, and I gave him a letter of introduction to Mr. Gladstone. A few days later I met Mr. Gladstone in Parliament street. He stopped me and said, 'Your friend, Captain X., knows more about the Caucasus than any man I ever met.' A few minutes afterward I met Captain X. in Pall Mall. I said to him, 'Well, you have made a great impression, Mr. Gladstone.' 'Have I?' he said. 'Yes,' I replied. 'He says you know more about the Caucasus than any man he ever met.' 'Well,' said Captain X., 'that is very strange, for, though I was with him for three-quarters of an hour, I made only three observations.'"

Leather Medals.

Leather medals were originally conferred as a genuine mark of honor. When King John of France, captured at Agincourt, was forced to pay to Edward III. of England a ransom of 3,000,000 gold crowns to effect his release he was left without precious metal for coins or decorations. So he found it necessary to pay the palace expenses with leather money. He also used leather medals when he wished to confer honor on some nobleman. The custom quickly arose of presenting leather medals as a burlesque distinction.—American Boy.

COUNCIL PRAISES RETIRING PASTOR

Ecclesiastical Body Accepts Rev. Charles L. Goodrich's Resignation.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Visiting Clergymen Convene for Purpose of Considering Pastor's Letter—Sentiments of Council Compiled by Committee.

Following a meeting held by the Ecclesiastical Council held in the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon, a committee composed of Rev. Dr. Samuel L. Loomis, Rev. Dr. Charles S. Mills and Rev. Dr. Charles H. Richards, was appointed to draw resolutions on the resignation of Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich. The meeting was called for the purpose of acting on the resignation following its acceptance by the local church and each of the clergymen representing different parts of this and other States spoke in the highest terms of the retiring pastor. On every hand his work was lauded and the commendory remarks in some instances came from those who had followed his accomplishments closely throughout his thirty-one years of work in Plainfield.

The resolutions adopted by the committee follow:

"Having listened to the letter of resignation addressed by its pastor, the Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, to the Congregational church of Plainfield, and having also heard personal tributes touching the matter from members of the church and from members of the council, and having reviewed the action of the church accepting the same, subject to the advice of this council, we reluctantly conclude that this step has been wisely taken and that the pastoral relation so long maintained, ought at length to be and hereby is dissolved.

"We warmly congratulate our brother, Mr. Goodrich, upon this pastorate. It is an extraordinary thing that a minister, still in the prime of life should have to his credit a record of thirty-one years of continuous service in a single field. Such a record in such a community as this, would be possible only to a man or rare gifts and graces.

"We know him as a faithful and effective preacher of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, his discourses ever marked by earnestness, wisdom, ingenuity and instructiveness, as well as rich in inspirational power.

"As a pastor of extraordinary sympathy, generosity, tact and skill, a brotherly man friend and counselor of his people, a comforter of the sick and afflicted and very dear to children.

"As a man of noble public spirit, profoundly interested in the welfare of this city, honored and loved throughout the entire community as are but few of its citizens, everywhere reckoned a Christian gentleman of the highest type.

"As an exceedingly efficient worker in Congregational affairs beyond the limits of his own parish, having served us long and variously—as president of the Congregational Union(now the Home Missionary Society) of New Jersey; as corresponding secretary of the New Jersey Conference for twenty years, preparing with indefatigable labor and great efficiency the statistics of our churches; as director of the Congregational Church Building Society and as the personal friend and the counselor of not a few of our New Jersey churches.

"After a period of rest and relief from responsibility, which the strain of this long service has made necessary, we earnestly hope and confidently believe that Brother Goodrich will resume those pastoral duties for which he is so well equipped. It would give us the greatest joy if his fields of service might continue to be within the limits of our own conference.

"To the Congregational church of of Plainfield, we also extend our warm congratulations upon its present prosperity, upon its cheering prospects, upon its large opportunity, upon its permanent possession in this retiring pastor, whose words will not be forgotten by his people, and whose influence will not perish though they see his face no more among them—upon the watch, care and guidance of the Great Shepherd who has said, 'I will never leace thee neither will I forsake thee'."

MASONIC ORDERS GATHER AT STATE CAPITAL CITY

The annual meeting of the Past Commanders' Association of New Jersey was held Monday evening in the rooms of Palestine Commandery in Masonic temple at Trenton and was followed by a dinner.

The officers elected by the past commanders were: Warren Dobbs, Jersey City, president; Peter McGill, Bound Brook, vice president; John M. Wright, Trenton, secretary and treasurer. Besides the election, reports were presented and acted upon.

The Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, will elect officers at its conclave today. Robert A. Meeker, of this city, is the high priest, and Peter McGill, of Bound Brook, the grand secretary.

THIEVES MAKE RAID ON CARLOAD OF COPPER

Railroad detectives at South Plainfield received word last night that a car loaded with copper attached to a local freight which left Perth Amboy only a short time before had been broken into and a large quantity of copper stolen. The copper is believed to have been stolen at a point between South Plainfield and Potter's Crossing. The detectives are still working on the case.

Such a large quantity of copper was taken it is the belief of the railroad officials that the thieves must have had a wagon stationed near Potter's Crossing so as to make a quick get-away.

MAY 12TH IN HISTORY.

1621—First marriage in the Plymouth colony took place, between Edward Winslow and Susanne White.

1780—Charleston, S. C., surrendered to the British; 2,500 men and 400 cannon fell into the hands of the invaders.

1797—Bonaparte took possession of Venice, which boasted an independence of fourteen centuries.

1820—Florence Nightingale, famous Crimean war nurse, born at Florence, Italy. Died in London, Aug. 13, 1910.

1854—British frigate "Tiger" stranded at Odessa and was destroyed by the Russians.

1859—British government declared neutrality in war, between Austria and Italy.

1870—Province of Manitoba formed, with G. Archibald as governor.

1874—University of London resolved to admit women to degrees.

1879—John Henry Newman became a cardinal.

1914—U. S. Senate adopted bill providing means for popular election of U. S. Senators in States where laws were not provided.

THE SCHOOL BUDGET.

But a single increase is included in the tentative school budget for 1915-16 which will be placed before the taxpayers at a public hearing in the High School auditorium tonight. Contrary to expectations there is considerable evidence of "slicing" and a casual survey of the figures indicates that the School Board has taken drastic action to keep the total down. The big jump of the year is the $9,327 increase in the salary item. The teaching force, exclusive of manual training, consists of one superintendent of schools, six principals, 128 teachers, five supervisors, six special teachers and sundry substitutes, extra teachers and helpers occasionally required.

For a number of years past teachers regularly employed have been engaged under a fixed salary schedule, whereby each teacher's salary increases annually until a maximum is reached. Thus, $5,800 of the $9,327 jump represents a regular increase under this schedule. Of the remaining $3,527, the sum is nominal, being balanced by the same amount carried in the last income item and set down in this estimate to cover cost of instruction in swimming classes, which pay for the use of the swimming pool, an amount in excess of the charge. The remaining $2,527 represents an increase resulting from the employment of additional teachers.

The biggest decrease in a single item comes in the evening school account and amounts to $1,747.68. The evening schools have done remarkable work in teaching reading and writing to adults who, by reason of foreign birth or lack of opportunity, were unable to master these elementary branches. Since the innovation was started here there has developed a demand from other adults whose early education has been interrupted or interfered with, that they be accorded a similar chance to study in the evenings. The decrease is to be accomplished by suspending for the year 1915-16 the evening High School and some of the manual training work. This in itself is a big item, and the board should be commended for its action.

There are evidences on every hand that economy has been the watchword. Twenty-one items have been cut down, five were increased and two remain the same as last year. This is an accomplishment that deserves the highest public commendation and from all appearances it would seem that every possible deduction has been effected. The public hearing tonight will afford taxpayers an opportunity to get a direct and personal line on the increases and it is to be hoped that a representative gathering of citizens will be present. The school budget in past years has been the subject of considerable adverse criticism. It is with a view to allaying the unrest in the minds of taxpayers and to give a satisfactory and complete accounting of the items that the Board members have decided to conduct the hearing tonight.

To fill the position made vacant in the State Department of Education by the death of J. Brognard Betts, of this city, it has been suggested that H. Brewster Willis be selected. Mr. Willis is well known to many of our Middlesex county readers in Dunellen and other towns, and he is said to possess all the qualifications necessary for the job. Educated as a lawyer, and having spent twenty years as county superintendent of schools in Middlesex county he possesses the necessary qualifications for the job. The Newark Sunday Call briefly reviews his career, showing how he taught school as a young man while studying law, and later assisted his father, Rev. Ralph Willis, who was also county superintendent of schools. At the death of his father, about a score of years ago, the young man was appointed in his place, and has faithfully discharged the duties of the position ever since. It was largely due to his efforts that every public school in New Jersey has an American flag, and Mr. Willis has in other ways done much for the school system of the State. He is an excellent speaker, and because of the experience he had teaching a few years while a younger man he knows the viewpoint of the teacher. His brother, W. Spader Willis, is principal of the Newark State Normal School, and, like the county superintendent of Middlesex, he is an efficient schoolman.

Talk abount hunting for a needle in a haystack! The officer who is given the job of arresting the men on the submarine which sank the Lusitania, following the verdict of the coroners jury that they are murderers, will have some job.

It's a fine time to cut out the Sea Girt camp this year, with the present need in this country of every bit of military preparedness that we can have.

By the way, what's happened to the usual "clean-up" week movement in Plainfield this year?

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:
Dear Sir:

As the mother of Miss Elizabeth Pardoe, I take exception to your statement in today's Daily Press that my daughter might possibly be seen dancing "Clad in a thin film of air." My daughter's costume is the accepted Grecian costume, worn with silk knickerbockers, a costume selected and advised by Louis Chalif, professor of dancing of the Chalif School of Dancing, New York city.

A costume that is accepted as a matter of course by cultured and intellectual people in New York and other cities. The University Forum, a body of college graduates, asked Prof. Chalif to especially prepare them a program of interpretative Grecian dancing, to be presented at a meeting of their society at the Hôtel Plaza in New York city, which he did, choosing my daughter, Miss Pardoe, as one fitted to interpret his classical selections, which were received enthusiastically by this intellectual and noted audience, with their wives, daughters and friends.

Again, Miss Pardoe presented classical interpretations to an audience representing New York's best in family and intellect. At the Russian Red Cross bazaar, in the 71st Regiment Armory, again these presentations were received with much enthusiasm. At this affair Miss Pardoe, alone of all the dancers, was by his special request, presented to the Russian ambassador, his wife, Madame Rakhmeteff, and his staff, who complimented her highly on her dancing.

It remains for Bound Brook, the sanctimonious, to criticise, probably through ignorance. The criticism is especially unjust, as Miss Pardoe is an unusually quiet, modest, industrious little girl. This winter, keeping up with her High School studies, she taught two terms of a children's class in dancing, two terms of an adult dancing class, taught a number of private pupils, took a course in the Chalif School of Dancing in New York city, gave a number of exhibitions in New York city, and composed a number of beautiful dances. Therefore, I take exception to your statement and ask an apology in your paper.

Sincerely,
ETHEL PEABODY PARDOE.
Bound Brook, May 11, 1915.

MRS. S. F. SMITH IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Franklin Teacher Ass'n Receives Reports and Enjoys Entertainment.

Routine business, reading of reports by the various chairmen of the committees, and election of officers for the ensuing year occupied the first part of the meeting of the Franklin Parent-Teacher Association, which was held in the auditorium of the Franklin School, last night. Dr. Clara Krans submitted a report of the splendid work which the various clinics in the Council of Child Welfare Organizations is doing in this city. The officers elected for the coming twelve months were as follows: President, Mrs. S. Frederick Smith; vice president, Miss Noel J. Bullock; secretary, Mrs. H. K. Hubbard, and treasurer, Miss Caroline Barber. The resignation of Mrs. Edward McCarthy, chairman of the refreshment committee, was accepted with regret and Mrs. Charles H. Russell was elected to fill the vacancy.

After the business session the following musical program was greatly enjoyed by those present: Piano solos, Miss Mary E. Wilkins; contralto solos, Miss Marjorie Robinson, Mignon's "Dost Thou Know That Sweet Land?" Tosti's "Serenade," S. Frederick Smith, accompanist, soprano solos, Mrs. John B. Cottrell, accompanied by Mrs. S. Frederick Smith, piano and violin obligato, Mrs. Noel J. Evans; violin solos, Miss Elizabeth Schuck, accompanied by her sister, Miss Mary Schuck, piano, "The Meditation" from Thais and Nevin's "Rosary;" tenor solos, D. C. Patterson, Bevan's "Flight of Ages" and "True Till Death" by Gatti; accompanied by S. Frederick Smith; two baritone selections by Charles E. Lewis, accompanied by Mrs. Charles E. Lewis; two numbers by Grace church quartet.

Refreshments were served in conclusion under the direction of Mrs. Edward McCarthy, chairman of the refreshment committee, who was ably assisted by her committee.

TREAT IS PROMISED LOCAL MUSIC LOVERS

Recital to Be Given in Hartridge Auditorium Includes Well Known Artists.

Talent well known to Plainfield music lovers will play an important part in the musicale to be given in the Hartridge School auditorium, May 20, and the program as announced gives every indication of being one of the best of the season here. Miss de Ahna, contralto in the First Baptist church choir, and a member of the faculty of the Institute of Musical Art in New York city, is one of the most promising additions to the program. She excells in German leider and Plainfielders will have an excellent opportunity to judge her acquaintance with this music.

Oscar Wasserberger, the boy violinist, pupit of Mittei, has entertained local music critics on previous occasions and his reception here again will no doubt be an enthusiastic one. Hugh Allen is the only contribution to the program who is not well acquainted locally. It is enough to say of this singer that he has sung with Gadski and Gartiz at Carnegie Hall. At the Colony Club recently he received a notable ovation. It is only owing to the present conflict in Europe that Mr. Allen, who has sung in the opera at Milan and was engaged for the winter season at the Deutches Opera Haus, is available for concert programs in this country.

TALENTED ARTISTS APPEAR AT Y. M. C. A.

Mme. Gebhardt and Mr. McAfee Give Fine Program at Joint Recital.

An appreciative audience attended a joint recital given at the Y. M. C. A., last night, by Mme. Gebhardt, pianist and Mr. MacAfee, tenor, assisted by Margaret Pasquan Prillwitz, accompanist. The program which comprised classical and popular numbers pleased the audience as was evidenced by the frequent applause. Both Mme. Gebhardt and Mr. McAfee are talented artists and their work last night sustained their reputation as soloists. Their selections were especially pleasing, while the work of the accompanist left nothing to be desired. The artists were so favorably received that it is possible that they may be heard here again soon.

The program follows: Part one, piano selection, "Rigoletto," Verdi-Liszt, Mme. Gebhardt; song, Siciliana (Cavalleria Rusticana), Mascagni, Mr. McAfee; piano selection, "Liebestraum," Liszt, Mme. Gebhardt; song, "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume," Schumann; "Still Wie Die Nacht," Bohm, Mr. McAfee; song, (a) "I Hear a Thursh at Eve," Cadman, and (b) "At Dawning," Mme. Gebhardt; song, "The Sands of Dee," Clay, Mr. MacAfee; piano selection, "Second Nocturne," Gebhardt, Mme. Gebhardt; song, "Vesta la Giubba," (I. Pagliacco) Leoncavallo, Mr. MacAfee; piano selection, "Erlkonig," Schubert-Liszt, Mme. Gebhardt; duet, (first act "Tosca") Puccini, Mme. Gebhardt and Mr. MacAfee, with Margaret Pasquah Prillwitz, accompanist.

Part two: Piano selection, "Fantasie Impromptu," Chopin, Mme. Gebhardt; song (a) "Myra," Clutsam, (b) "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," Clay, (c) "Where My Caravan Has Rested," Lohr, Mr. MacAfee; song, "One Fine Day" (Madame Butterfly), Puccini, Mme. Gebhardt; song, "Dormi Pure," Scudere, Mr. MacAfee; piano selection, "Pelonaise in O Flat," Chopin, Mme. Gebhardt; duet, "A Night in Venice," Arditi, Mme. Gebhardt and Mr. MacAfee.

PUBLIC HEARING ON AIRDROME QUESTION

Taxpayers Will Be Given Opportunity to Express Views Tomorrow Night.

In order to give local citizens, particularly those living in the vicinity of East Front street and Watchung avenue, an opportunity to express their sentiments on the subject of having an airdrome located at the juncture of those two thoroughfares, Mayor Leighton Calkins has advertised a public hearing to be held promptly at 7:45 tomorrow night. Michael Shannon, resident manager of the Plainfield Theatre, who is promoting the new idea, will be present at that time and it is expedient that anyone having anything to say regarding this matter be on hand promptly at the time stated.

Excavation work necessary for levelling off the ground and laying a floor of cinders and gravel on the lot selected for the open-air motion pictue theatre has already been started and should the Mayor decide to grant a license the performances will be started about May 20. Unless a reasonable amount of well-qualified opposition is raised against the project the Mayor intends to supply Mr. Shannon with the proper credentials for conducting such an enterprise here.

In a number of nearby cities open-air motion picture entertainments have long been a summer amusement feature for the populace and their has been little opposition to them in other places. No objection has as yet been lodged with the Mayor over the application of Mr. Shannon for a license and it has been decided that a public hearing would prove the best means of gaining some information concerning the attitude of residents in that location.

The spot selected is directly opposite the Y. M. C. A. building on Watchung avenue and is an ideal place for such a feature, as far as the business end of the proposition is concerned. The Mayor has made a personal investigation into the merits of the question and is of the opinion that an airdrome at that point would not prove detrimental to the peace and welfare of the taxpayers living nearby.

titude toward neutral commerce, as given the State Department yesterday, does not affect cases like the Lusitania. It promises only good behavior toward vessels of non-belligerent nations and will have no effect on the present note.

Diplomats here declared today that if the United States outlawed Germany other neutral nations might well be expected to follow the example either in fact or sympathy.

A strong opinion exists in some quarters here that Germany is deliberately trying to force the United States into a declartion of war. If such is the case, it is held, the United States can do nothing toward permanently preventing war, and any attempt to minimize the Lusitania and Gulflight incidents will only result in still further outrages.

The United States note will contain no threats and will be worded in a firm but friendly tone. But the demand for "safety at sea for American citizens" will be made fully apparent.

President Wilson is convinced, and is understood to have told his cabinet, that quick action in dealing with the situation is necessary to check the rising sentiment of indignation in this country. He is determined not to swerve from the stand he took regarding the treatment that Americans should be accorded when Germany first declared the "war zone" about the British Isles.

While completing his communication the President had before him the full official report on the torpedoing of the American tank steamer Gulflight, as well as the latest communication from the Berlin foreign office. The latter deals only with neutral commerce and covers only a minor part of the case which the President will present to Germany.

It is believed that the note will be sent tonight and published simultaneously in this country and Germany tomorrow morning. Also it is believed the President will forward the note direct to Emperor William instead of sending it through the German ambassador, which is the usual custom.

Officials here commenting on the situation, agreed today that if the opinion that Germany is seeking to force this country into war is erroneous a firm stand by President Wilson at this time will aid greatly in securing a speedy and satisfactory understanding between the United States and Germany.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company for today is as follows: 9 a. m., 63 degrees; 11 a. m., 71 degrees; 1 p. m., 72 degrees.

JUNGLE COMEDIANS FEATURE OF CIRCUS

Dumb Clowns Play Important Part in Ringling Bros. Trained Animal Dept.

Her name is Norma, and although her vocabulary is somewhat limited, she is said to be one of the expert fish epicures of America. In round numbers she consumes about twenty pounds of fish every day, which means approximately 7,300 pounds a year.

All of which is cited to show that Norma is quite some little fish eater for a modest, unassuming young lady scarcely in her 'teens.

Before proceeding further with this fish story, however, it is necessary to explain that Norma is not exactly like other girls. Norma is one of the gigantic polar bears that travels all over the country in a private tank car with Ringling Brothers' circus. She was born in Greenland four years ago and brought to this country by Haakon Jargeson, captain of a whaling vessel. Jargeson found her when she was a cub and made a pet of her. When the ship reached port Jargeson tried to present her to his better half, but Mrs. Jargeson, the mother of twins, rebelled. It was then that the sturdy mariner was seized with an inspiration—the circus. A telegram was dispatched to Ringling Brothers offering the bear for sale. An attractive offer was received and Jargeson chartered a special car to transport Norma to her new home. Strange to say, she has taken to her new home as readily as she would to the frozen north.

Being childless, she has adopted "Billie," a fox terrier, and has developed quite a maternal instinct. Billie seems to reciprocate this affection and is much attached to his foster mother. The circus has in store this season many surprises in the way of trained animal acts. There are three herds of performing elephants, the finest of their kind in captivity, that perform numerous new and original tricks with almost human skill and intelligence. These ponderous performers dance, play baseball, juggle and do almost everything but talk. After a fashion they do that, adding much comedy to their act in a remarkable telephone scene.

The variety of the zoological collection is no more widely varied than the ethnographic classification of the 1,280 people who make up the great circus colony. There are twenty-seven nationalities represented among the performers of the big tented municipality which is to appear here on Wednesday, May 19.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The triple-star combination, William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro will be seen here in "Diplomacy," at the Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow. Malise Sheridan, who is entrusted with the small but highly responsible part of Mion, the maid in "Diplomacy," distinguishes herself by a series of lingual gymnastics. In the character of the glib-tongued maid, Miss Sheridan is called upon to speak French, German, Spanish and English with equal fluency in the first act of Sardou's play. She is an adept in wending her way through this maze of languages. Charles Frohman, who gave his personal attention to the selection of the cast for "Diplomacy," chose Miss Sheridan for this difficult role after testing over a score of other applicants for the part.

Lovers of Mary Pickford have had ample opportunity this week to view their favorite in different roles at the Plainfield Theatre, where she has been featured each day with the exception of tomorrow, when the legitimate production of "Diplomacy" will hold the boards. As many of Miss Pickford's admirers had complained to the management of the Plainfield that they were unable to see her in screen productions here for the reason that the productions were limited to one day, consequently Manager Shannon secured the finest photoplays featuring the popular favorite and rightfully has named the week, "Mary Pickford Week."

"Hearts Adrift" is the feature film which is being shown at the West Second street playhouse this afternoon and tonight. Friday, Mary Pickford will appear in the leading role, that of "Tess," in "Tess of the Storm Country," and the part of the little fisher maiden is smypathetically portrayed by the young woman. One of the greatest successes has been scored in "A Good Little Devil," which will occupy the screen on Saturday afternoon and night.

To all women visiting the theatre today or Friday, the management gives dainty little souvenirs as mementoes of Mary Pickford and those who have received them are highly pleased with the articles. Go tonight or Friday and receive one, if you have not done so already.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Mrs. Eva Fay, the beautiful Indian widow of the late John T. Fay, still weaves the mystic spell at Proctor's Theatre, and those who have not seen her Monday or Tuesday should not fail to see her tonight. If you are contemplating some important change in the routine of your daily life, social, business or otherwise, consult her. Ask her any proper question and she will try to give you an accurate answer. Those who have witnessed the former performances of Mrs. Fay consider her remarkable for the speed and accurateness with which she answers each question. Her work is far above that of the ordinary telepathist that there is no room for comparison. She almost compels belief that she is gifted with superhuman talents. If you wish to consult her, write your question, and keep it in your hand or in your pocket, never allowing the possibility of a confederate seeing what you have written and the seeress sitting upon the stage, her eyes covered by a blind, the footlights and the orchestra, and from ten to one hundred feet of space between you and her, will call out your name and answer your interrogation. Her wonderful exhibition, adroitness and dexterity comprize the most finished performance of occultism and psychic control ever offered to Proctor patrons and it is necessarily mysterious. Mrs. Fay is a young woman of strong character and fascinating personality. She is tall, sinuous, elan and her orbs are as dark as erebus. In their languid depths there lingers the mystic fires of Delphi, Buddha and Mahomet.
